FIERCE FIGHT

Deadly Battle of Gypsies and Officers.

One Nomad Killed and Others Wounded.

Johnstown, Pa., April 12.—In a fierce fight on the mountains near Lilly last night between a band of gypsies and a posse of officers one gypsy man was killed outright, a gypsy woman shot through the shoulder, Division Foreman Tittler, of Galliatin, was wounded in the mouth and Frank Coons, his assistant, was shot through the bowels. The latter is expected to die. The gypsies had come from Blair county, where they are charged with having committed numerous thefts, and were followed by a constable, who secured assistance. On the approach of the posse, the gypsies broke their camp near Summit, but seeing that escape was impossible, made a stand and opened fire.

After the fight the gypsies carried the body of their dead companion and the wounded woman to Lilly, where several of the party were arrested and put in jail.

A LITTLE BEHIND TIME

Filipinos Have Elected General Sandico to Succeed Aguinaldo, But Unfortunately the General Has Surrendered to Americans.

Paris, April 12.—Agoncillo, the agent of Aguinaldo in Paris, received a cablegram this morning announcing that the Filipina general, Sandico, has been elected to succeed Aguinaldo as commanding general of the Filipino forces, as well as dictator during the continuation of the insurrection.

Sandico belongs to a distinguished family residing at Pandakan, near Manilla. He is a man of energy and is well educated, speaking several European languages.

As announced by the Associated Press Monday, April 8, in a dispatch from Manilla, Gen. Sandico surrendered to the American authorities at Cabanatuan, in the province of New Ecipa, island of Luzon. It was added that Sandico has a bad record and may be tried.

A KINGDOM RECOVERED

Successful Trap Laid By Arabians Under Ibu Rashid Resulted In Capture of Nejd---Five Thousand Killed.

Bombay, April 12.—Ibu Rashid has recovered the kingdom of Nejd, Central Arabia, after defeating Mabaronk, sheik of Koweyt, who recently seized the city of Nejd and deposed Ibu Rashid, after a pitched battle. The army of Mabaronk was lured into a narrow gorge, where the hordes of Ibu Rashid swooped down from the mountains and overwhelmed their enemies. The fugitives who have reached Gulf ports declare that 5,000 men were killed. The fate of Mabaronk is not known.

It was announced in a dispatch from Bombay, March 8 to the Associated Press, that Mabaronk the Sheik of Koweyt, was then master of central Arabia, according to dispatches received by the Times of India, Mabaronk having followed up his previous victory over the army of Ibu Rashid by driving defeated troops clear across central Arabia, seizing the city of Nejd and deposing Rashid. The latter appealed to the sultan of Turkey to send troops from Bussorah, a frontier city of Asiatic Turkey to his assistance threatening to stop the overland pilgrimages to Mecca, if not helped.

TO EXPLAIN.

Minister Loomis Will Be Given an Opportunity at Washington.

Washington, April 12.—The various interviews ascribed to Minister Loomis, at San Juan, have attracted much attention here and the minister probably will be invited to explain some of his utterances if he is not able to enter a broad denial of the accuracy of the interviews. Reflections upon the personal character of the president of enezuela are not regarded as proper according to official etiquette and it is confidently hoped that the minister will be able to repudiate these. Otherwise, it would be manifestly impossible for him to return to Venezuela, even in the event that the issues which led to his departure were satisfactorily composed. The prevalent idea is that no matter how these personal questions are settled, it will be a long time before a United States minister resumes the post at Caracas.

APPOINTMENTS.

Several More Made By President Mckinley.

Washington, April 12.—The president today made the following appointments:

War—Charles R. Krauthoff, to be commissary with the rank of major.

Navy—Charles J. Lang, to be a lieutenant; James C. Pryor, to be passed assistant surgeon, with rank of lieutenant, junior grade; Abel B. Pierce, to be passed assistant paymaster, with rank of lieutenant, junior grade, and Stephen Donely, to be a gunner.

CLAY WORKERS

Dissatisfied and Say They Will Strike.

East Liverpool, April 12.—All indications point to a possibility of the greatest strike among pottery workers in the history of the business in America. The kiln men are the latest to present a grievance. They want $1.50 per kiln, or about $4 per day. Dissatisfaction seems rampant in all departments. Tomorrow it is expected a decision will be reached by the men. If they decide to strike here, workers all over the country, numbering 170,000, will quit work.

VACILLATING.

Trade Policy of Germany Has Produced Bad Conditions.

Berlin, April 12.—A recent article in the Berliner Tageblatt takes a gloomy view of the industrial conditions in Germany, which it says are so bad that the efforts of the charitable are powerless to cope with the situation. Reduced production and consequent dismissal of working people is the only ending of the condition. There is little prospect of an improvement in the condition. The situation is made more serious by the uncertainty of Germany's commercial policy. The numberless industries of the country do not know whether disastrous tariff wars will not destroy the work of years. The uncertainty of Germany's vacillating trade policy drives German capital and intelligence to found large industrial undertakings abroad and hinders business relations with foreign countries. Prices are so depressed in Silesia that even the iron works there, which possess their own coal mines and furnaces, cannot cover operating expenses. The tin plate and tube manufactories, plants for the manufacture of electric supplies and the textile industries are in a similar plight.

Many factories have closed, and in others the hours of labor have been reduced, while work folk crown to the gates of the factories, seeking employment. The wealthy classes feel the pressure of these conditions proportionately with the working and professional classes.

FATALLY WOUNDED.

Chicago Newspaper Man Tries to Suicide.

Chicago, April 12.—Bert Cassidy, one of the best known newspaper men and artists in the West, shot and fatally wounded himself today while standing in the local room of the Daily News, with which paper he was associated. Domestic troubles are believed to have caused the deed. Cassidy was one of the first men to use chalk plates in connection with daily newspaper illustrating.

MOULTON'S CONDITION.

New York, April 12.—Robert Hayden Moulton, who shot A. W. Dingwall, the theatrical manager, in the Pabst hotel some time ago, was reported today to be somewhat better physically, but it was said his mental condition was very bad.

THE KICK ON MULES

Cabinet Discusses Various Aspects of New Oreleans Case.

General Opinion That Neutrality Proceedings Belong to Nation.

However, Attorney General Knox Will Make an Investigation.

Washington, April 12.—The legal proceedings at New Orleans to prevent the shipment of mules purchased in this country to South Africa was the most important matter discussed by the cabinet today, and the attorney general was directed to make an investigation of the question and report his opinion to the cabinet. As near as can be learned members of the cabinet with legal training are of the opinion that these proceedings are contrary to the rights of the government. The view expressed is that when neutrality proceedings are inaugurated in United States courts they should be brought in the name of the United States, an alleged violation of neutrality being a question affecting nations, not individuals. The mover of the proceedings in the New Orleans case is a man claiming to be a resident of South Africa, who contends that his interests are placed in jeopardy. It is pointed out that if an individual could go into the courts and secure restraining orders on the ground that the neutrality laws of the country was being violated the commerce of the country might be decidedly endangered. These views of the New Orleans proceedings were elicited during a brief suggestion with reference to the statement that the British government had decided to use no more American meat in its army. No official information exists concerning this report. Attorney General Knox will make thorough investigation of the New Orleans case. If it is found that the neutrality laws are such as to permit individuals to bring proceedings in courts, congress may be asked to pass such amendments as will leave these questions wholly in the hands of the government.

The president submitted to the cabinet a very gratifying cable from Secretary Hunt of Porto Rico, expressing the satisfaction with which the news of Governor Allen's continuation at the head of the insular government had been received there. The cable also denied emphatically the reports of disaffection, discontent and destitution in the island.

NEGLECTED.

Man Suicides From Want of Attention From Neighbors.

Steele, N. D., April 12.—A farmer named Revenger shot his neighbor, Nels Olsen, in the neck, the bullet emerging at the mouth and inflicting a serious wound. Revenger also shot at Peter Levine, who was saved by his leather cuff, the bullet striking his wrist. Later Revenger's body, with the face shot away, was found on the prairie. He had committed suicide, firing a shotgun with his toe. He left a letter saying the neighbors had neglected and slighted him for years, and he is thought to have been insane from long brooding over fancied grievances.

DENIED OF COURSE.

Nothing Known of Forged Notes of Scotland.

Edinburgh, April 12.—The Bank of Scotland denies all knowledge of the forging of their bank notes of £20 by the alleged forgers, John A. Skoog and Emil Moberg, now in custody in New York, and say that no counterfeit notes of their own issues have come to their notice. The police of Edinburgh also deny any knowledge of the counterfeiting of Scotch bank notes.

New York, April 12.—John Albert Skoog, the alleged counterfeiter, who shot himself twice Tuesday night while being pursued, was found today to be suffering from paralysis of the right side. The hospital physicians do not think he will recover.

SEVENTY WERE DROWNED.

London, April 12.—A special dispatch from Hong Kong says two Chinese steamers came into collision yesterday between Canton and Wu Chow, and that seventy Chinese were drowned.

STRIKE EXTENDS.

All Departments of Shops Closed But One.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 12.—All departments of the Ashley car shops of the Central railroad of New Jersey, except the machine shop, are idle today. The blacksmith and laborers employed in the shops having declared a strike last night because of sympathy for the striking car repairers. There are now 650 men on strike. The machinists say they will strike at noon if the demands of those now on strike are not granted. If the men in the machine shop strike the number of men out will be raised to 800.

RICH STRIKE.

Victoria, B. C., April 12.—News has been brought here by the steamer Boscowitz that a strike of rich quartz has been made near Kitzlass canyon in the Skeenar river. Quartz has been struck here paying about $1000 to the ton.

MIGHTY

Is the Power of Department Store Trust.

It May Transact All Kinds of Businees.

New York, April 12.—The Journal of Commerce says: It has been learned that the scope of the Associated Merchants company, which has just been organized by John Claflin, and which Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. are financing, is much wider than at first reported. The business that Mr. Claflin proposes to buy are, it is understood, among the very highest character in the city. No definite contracts have yet been made, and negotiations have not yet reached a definite stage, but it is known that Mr. Claflin's idea is to secure, if possible, control of such high class houses as Arnold, Constable & Co., Lord & Taylor (including both the Broadway and Grand street stores) and Simpson, Crawford & Simpson. These additions to the already important list mentioned in the prospectus, namely, the Claflin company, the Adams Dry Goods company and McCreery's, constitute a trade consolidation movement that is without precedent in dry goods merchandising circles. There is also foundation for the statement that Mr. Claflin has had in mind the entrance of John Wanamaker into the combination, but he found little encouragement in this direction. It is, of course, not intended to purchase these concerns outright; it is merely proposed to do the same as with the other stores, namely, purchase a controlling interest. It was reported that the stock of the Associated Merchants company offered by J. P. Morgan & Co. to the public had already been fully subscribed. John Claflin, when questioned, said that it was too early yet to consider what additional companies would be taken over, as nothing had been definitely arranged in that direction. A representative of Simpson, Crawford & Simpson, when questioned, said that he had not heard of any negotiations.

HAS UNLIMITED POWERS.

New York, April 12.—A special to the Tribune from New Haven, Conn., says: The Associated Merchants company of New York, known as the department store trust company, gains a wide range of powers through thec harter rights originally granted by this state to the Columbian Construction company, of which the New York company is the outgrowth. The charter thus taken over authorizes the company to conduct a manufacturing business, to own and equip steam and electric railroads, bridges, stores, buildings, warehouses, telephone, telegraph and electric lines, steamboats, vessels, ferry boats surface or underground railroads, to deal in real estate, stocks, franchises, securities, to negotiate with any other company regarding their stocks and establishments, to operate railroads in this or any other country. The company is, however, prohibited from occupying any highway or public ground in this state for railroad purposes.

These enormous privileges are buried in the charter that passed both houses recently and which are now understood to have been put through for the benefit of the big organization.

ALDACE WALKER DEAD

Chairman of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Stricken Down By Heart Disease on Eve of European Trip.

Aldace F. Walker was born in West Rutland, Vt., in 1842. He was educated at Middlesbury, Vt., college, and at the Columbia law school, after which he served with the New York volunteers in the civil war, advancing to the rank of lieutenant colonel. After the war Mr. Walker practiced law in New York from 1867 to 1873, when he removed to Rutland, Vt. In 1882 he was elected a state senator in Vermont, and from 1887 to 1889 he served as a member of the interstate commerce commission.

On leaving the interstate commerce commission Mr. Walker became chairman of the Western Traffic association. His connection with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad began in 1894, when he was appointed receiver of the company's property. After the reorganization Mr. Walker was made chairman of the board of directors, and he retained this position up to the time of his death.

Mr. Walker died of heart disease. His death came as a surprise. He had not been feeling well for the past two weeks, but was not so ill as to create any concern among his friends and family. He was to have sailed for Europe today, and all arrangements had been made for his departure. Mr. Walker leaves a widow and two children.

AMERICAN BEEF BARRED

The British War Office Will Try the Experiment of Supplying the Army With Only Home Grown Beef.

London, April 12.—The British war office confirms the report that it is going to try the experiment of supplying the army with only home grown beef. The experiment will extend six months from June 1. The director of contracts, A. Major, said to a representative of the Associated Press:

"The new rule applies only to refrigerated beef, hitherto bought in the open market in London. It will not seriously affect the American trade, as the total weekly supply for the army is only 200,000 pounds, which is barely 2 per cent of the weekly imports of refrigerated beef into England from the United States. Mr. Brodick's action was taken long before the New Orleans proceedings. It is quite absurd to suppose that any idea of retaliation prompted the order, which was due to a natural desire to help some of the home industries. The difference in price is very trifling, and we are making that up by giving Tommy Atkins frozen mutton two days instead of one day weekly. If the plan is satisfactory, our supply problem will be greatly simplified, for we often have complaints and disagreements over refrigerated beef. You must not suppose that we now use no home grown beef. Aldershot and some of our other camps are almost entirely supplied with home grown beef. We have hitherto used refrigerated beef as an addition to our rations, rather than as an integral part. We have no prejudice against American firms, and we do not believe they will miss this trade to any extent, even if it is decided to continue the experiment."

WAR RISKS.

Insurance Raised on Vessels For Chinese and Japanese Ports.

San Francisco, April 12.—The Examiner says: Vessels bound from this coast to Chinese and Japanese ports must carry extra insurance and have been put on a "war risk" basis. This means a heavy addition to the usual rates of insurance and comes in the class as special hazards. The reason for this decision on the part of the marine underwriters, is the strained relationship between Japan and Russia. The first vessel on which war risks were written was the Hong Kong Maru, one of the Japanese line. She sailed yesterday and carried extra lines of insurance on both hull and cargo.

IS IT THE PLAGUE?

Condition of Ann Arbor Student In Doubt.

Chicago, April 12.—A special to the Record-Herald from Ann Arbor, Mich., says: Dr. Novy, when asked regarding the condition of Charles B. Hare, the student who is supposed to have the bubonic plague said:

"Nothing yet has been decided, but he is recovering rapidly. He is out of bed and walks around occasionally inside the contagious ward. He will be kept there until week after next anyway, and until it is certain he cannot spread any infection."

Student Commings, who is caring for Hare, has not caught any infection, and preventives are still being applied to him.

REWARD OFFERED.

For Return of Document of Confederate Thanks.

London, April 12.—Stories and memories of the Alabama have been revived here by an advertisement offering a reward for the recovery of a document conveying the thanks of the Confederate states to John Lancaster for rescuing Capt. Semmes and part of the crew of the Alabama when the Kearsarge sank her off Cherbourg.

The Confederate steamer Alabama, Capt. Raphael Semmes, was attacked and sunk by the United States corvette Kearsarge, Capt. Winslow, near Cherbourg, France, June 19, 1864. The British yacht Deerhound picked up thirty-nine persons, including Semmes and fourteen of his officers after which she headed for Southampton. Capt. Winslow's officers begged him to throw a shell at the Deerhound, but he refused. John Lancaster was probably the commander of the Deerhound.

CAPTURED EIGHTY.

London, April 12.—A dispatch from Gen. Kitchener from Pretoria, dated Thursday, April 11, says Col. Monro's mounted infantry after two hours' hard fighting has captured eighty prisoners, including Commandant Bresta, at Lietfindeyue, near De Wetsdorp.

FRENCH TO MOVE.

Troops to Be Ordered From Pekin Soon.

London, April 12.—A dispatch to the Reuter company from Pekin says that the French military authorities contemplate removing 7000 men at an early date. The Germans are perparing to repatriate the infantry brigade. The indemnity claims are now understood to total 60,000,000 sterling.

DETECTIVE SHOT.

One of Pittsburg's Oldest Killed By Burglar.

Pittsburg, April 12.—As soon as the murder of Grocer Kahney was reported to the police department this morning, Superintendent O'Maher put the detectives to work. This afternoon several of the officers came upon the three burglars on Fulton street, and immediately the fugitives opened fire. The officers promptly returned the fire, and in the fusillade that followed, "Paddy" Fitzgerald, one of Pittsburg's oldest and best known detectives, was almost instantly killed and two other officers are reported wounded. Before Fitzgerald fell he wounded his murderer, and the other officers succeeded in arresting the trio and lodging them in jail.

OVER SUBSCRIBED.

Many People Want New Trust Stock.

New York, April 12.—Announcement is made that the underwriting syndicate of the Associated Merchants' association has many times over subscribed the issue of $5,000,000 first preferred stock offered to the public. There are unconfirmed reports that the Associated Merchants' company is negotiating for the control of a number of other stores in Greater New York besides those originally mentioned in that connection.

DEAD APOSTLE.

George L. Cannon of Mormon Church Expires.

Monerery, Cal., April 12.—Apostle George Q. Cannon, of the Mormon church, died here today, after a brief illness. He slept well yesterday and the fore part of last night, a bulletin was issued about midnight stating that he was resting easily. The change fofr the worse came a few hours later and he passed quietly away early this morning. Mr. Cannon was about 75 years of age. He was one of the leading men of Utah and of the Mormon church. The body was taken to San Francisco during the morning, for embalming, after which it will be taken to Salt Lake City.

Sues For Divorce.

Mary C. Venning has begun a suit in district court to secure a divorce from Charles C. Venning on the grounds of cruelty and desertion. They were married at Iron River, Wis., Dec. 5, 1895, and the plaintiff is 28 and the defendant 34 years of age.

Mrs. Venning itemizes the following counts in her general charges of cruelty, alleging as follows: That he broke her nose at Hibbing April 20, 1897; that he kicked her senseless at Sparta March 1, 1899; that he pounded her until she was blue and bruised all over at Sparta Aug. 1, 1899. She also charges that he was unreasonably jealous, that he called her names and that he accused her of being unfaithful to him. She charges that he deserted her Nov. 1, 1899. I. Grettum is the attorney.

MAYOR'S APPEAL

For General Observance of April 26 as Cleaning Day.

Clean Streets and Yards Necessary For City Beauty.

Each Citizen Urged to Make It Individual Matter.

Make Duluth conspicuous for neatness and cleanliness! That is the injunction of Mayor Hugo's proclamation for all citizens to observe Arbor, Bird and Cleaning-Up day on April 26.

The proclamation was prepared this morning. Mayor Hugo desires that every citizen shall observe the day set apart for beautifying and cleansing the city, to the end that public health shall be preserved and the city be made conspicuous for its excellent sanitary and aesthetic conditions. In the latter connection he says:

"Our topography is such that every tree and bush can be most advantageously displayed. While we have a just pride in our velvety lawns, which make a fine showing on close inspection, yet the city as a whole, viewed from a little distance, looks bare and unadorned. The systematic placing of trees along our streets, especially on the steep hillsides, would, with our natural scenery, give Duluth a world-wide reputation for unique picturesqueness. However, if Duluth were made a perfect bower of foliage, it would not avail unless our streets and yards are kept clean."

The mayor will, as intimated in last evening's Herald, request the ministers of the city to speak of the general observance of cleaning-up day from the pulpits, either next Sunday or the following Sunday. It is the desire of the city officers interested to stir up as much enthusiasm in the cause of city cleanliness as possible.

The mayor's proclamation is as follows:

Governor Van Sant, in a proclamation recently issued, has designated Friday, April 26th, as "Arbor and Bird day," in accordance with a statute authorizing the chief executive to set apart a day in each year for the planting of forest trees and the beautifying of public and private grounds, and I heartily commend this idea to the citizens of Duluth.

That the sentiment embodied in this law and proclamation may be thoroughly established, and that our homes, streets and public grounds may be beautified, I would earnestly recommend to the people of our city, and especially to the school children, that the spirit of the day be observed, not only by the planting of trees and shrubs, but by the removal of all the offensive materials which have accumulated in the streets, avenues, alleys and vacant lots around town.

The personal effort of each one can accomplish a great deal. Everyone should be as mindful of the condition of the public property in the vicinity of his home, as he is of his own lawn. If we would refrain from throwing paper, tin cans, ashes and other refuse on the property of our neighbors and of the city, it would prove a means of self defense in the matter of sanitation, preserve the natural beauty of our landscape, and—incidentally—we would be observing the wise laws made for our government.

The board of public works and the health department of the city of Duluth are busily engaged in cleaning up the streets and alleys of our city. The funds at their disposal are very limited, and it is impossible for them to attempt more than they are absolutely obliged to do, and it is necessary to have the co-oneration of the general public in order to accomplish the improvements which are required at this season of the year.

The departments above mentioned have no authority to do more than to clean up public thoroughfares, except in some special cases where the public health is threatened by some offensive accumulation; therefore the piles of rubbish on the vacant lots and in back yards, do not come under our supervision, but yours, and becomes a matter of individual and personal responsibility. Will you do what you can to aid the city officials and endeavor to create an interest in this work throughout the community, in which you have an influence, and thus assist in securing a clean and beautiful city?

The wisdom of the legislature in calling upon the citizens of the state to devote one day of the year to the planting of trees and shrubbery, can be keenly appreciated in Duluth. Our topography is such that every tree and bush can be most advantageously displayed; and while we have a just pride in our velvety lawns, which make a fine showing on close inspection, yet the city as a whole, viewed from a little distance, looks bare and unadorned. The systematic placing of trees along our streets, especially on the steep hillsides, would, with our natural scenery, give Duluth a world-wide reputation for unique picturesqueness. However, if Duluth were made a perfect bower of foliage, it would not avail, unless our streets and yards were kept clean; so let us call April 26 of this year, Arbor, Bird and Cleaning day. Let us each act and cooperate with the other, so that the evils which are a menace to our health and an offense to our eyes, may be removed, our homes beautified, our self-respect increased and our city made conspicuous for neatness and cleanliness.

PUT IN LOOP.

Street Railway Company Will Have One at Lester.

In about ten days the Duluth-Superior Traction company will put a force of men at work on the Lakeside line, fixing up the tracks and repairing the lines generally. In addition a loop will be put in at the end of the line for the use of the big double truck cars that are to go on the line in a short time. On the other lines Ys are used, but in this case a loop will be put in, and it will be the only one in the city.

Tomorrow afternoon the members of the park board will pay a visit to Lester Park to see what this popular resort needs in the way of repairs this spring. The board is conscious of the beauty of the land donated to the city for park purposes out there, of the popularity of the spot as a resting place and breathing spot for people during the summer and of the need of keeping it up. Hence its official visit of tomorrow afternoon, when the board will be accompanied by William C. Sargent, president of the Lakeside Land company.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

THREATS FOR ALL

Proposed to Kill All Democrats In Kentucky Legislature.

Senator Frazer Heard Mountaineers Discussing Plan.

Testimony For Prosecution In Ripley Case Is All In.

Frankfort, Ky., April 12.—Testimony for the prosecution in the case of Capt. Garnett D. Ripley, on trial for alleged complicity in the Goebel shooting, is practically all in, and the prosecution will rest tonight or early tomorrow. Senator Newton Frazer of Shelby county testified first today as to the mountaineer mass meeting, Jan. 25, at which he said he heard threats against all of the Democratic members of the legislature. Ed Steff retold of seeing Goebel fall and seeing a gun which, he said, was pointing from the office of the secretary of state drawn back as the window was lowered.

Silas Jones said he stayed in the governor's office much of the time while here. He repeated his statement, made informer trials, that Governor Taylor told him, he as well be at home as he (the witness) had not brought his gun with him.

Adjt. Gen. Murray identified letters found in his office after Gen. Collier retired. One, alleged to be from Caleb Powers, addresssed to Gen. Collier, Jan. 22, asked for official orders calling out the London and Barboursville troops, as the officers of those companies had resolved not to go to Frankfort except under regular orders. The letter closed with the expression: "We have undertaken a grave matter and must have these men at Frankfort."

HIGH PRICE PAID.

Good Sale of Lumber Is Made.

Some sales of lumber have been noticed in the past two days at top prices. Richardson & Avery yesterday sold 3,000,000 feet of No. 3 and better to Albany parties at $16. M. C. Potter today disposed of 700,000 feet of No. 3 and better at $14. All the lumber in these sales is on the docks in West Duluth and West Superior and will go out by boat at the opening of navigation. The Potter sale of lumber goes to Detroit.

Night Prowlers Around.

It is reported that burglars tried to break into the home of A. M. Miller, 417 West Second street, about midnight last night.

Mrs. Miller heard a noise at the door and quickly telephoned to police headquarters. The desk man at headquarters notified Officers Norman Terry and Herman Fritz and they in turn hurried to the Miller home. Officer John Roberg was also attracted to the house. The policemen made a careful search of the premises, but were unable to discover the prowlers or any trace of them.

SCIENTIFIC FOOD.

Mothers Feel a Responsibility In Selecting Food.

If children are not healthy, round and rosy, ready for study or play, there is probably something lacking in the food.

A sure body builder for children (or adults) is Grape-Nuts, the famous ready-cooked food, and there is a reason.

Grape-Nuts contain natural phosphate of potash and albumen obtained from grains, and these elements combine in the human body to form gray matter in brain and nerve cells all over the body. Such nourishment means vigor, snap, strength and force of both mind and body.

That is scientific feeding, and with Grape-Nuts you have the youngsters fed in a way that will bring the biggest kind of returns as they grow up and you see what they accomplish because they have well built bodies and good sturdy brains.

This is worth thinking about and the results may be depended upon. Give your children Grape-Nuts and use the food yourself.

CISSIE'S TROUBLE

Rude Officer Gathers In a Soundly Sleeping Damsel.

Her Elegantly Rhetorical Plea Fails to Move Him.

Other Incidents of More or Less Amusing Interest.

Cissie Bernhart started, shuddered, shivered—and then awoke!

While bathing her inner consciousness in sleep, a police lieutenant brusquely entered her Paradise alley flat, converting her rosy dream to a gray green nightmare.

"And, prithee, why this rude awakening?" she trebled in the most pellucid Elizabethian.

"Use not your Shakespearean rhetoric on me!" he cried, with a high left guard. "Remember I'm a policeman and a married man!"

"What meant you by yon bursted door?" she asked.

"There was more meanness in my meaning than was meant, by any means," retorted the officer.

"Do you want me to leave this happy home?"

"Most lamentably so. Word comes that you are not to be in the accustomed haunts tonight."

"Who voices it?"

"Myself."

She reached him in three Lady Macbeth strides and began talking like a seltzer siphon.

"But, my dear girl," expostulated the lieutenant, "shake not your gory locks at me. Tell your troubles to an ordinary policeman."

Shortly afterward an acquaintance saw Miss Bernhart riding up St. Croix avenue in a patrol wagon. He inquired:

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"

"I'm going to jail for a while," she said.

This morning she was fined $15 and costs for sundry things to which she entered pleas of guilty.

With tears trickling from her ingenuous eyes, Kate Missdahl, alias Marshall, a pulchritudinous young woman arrested on the Bowery last evening, took her place in the box of sorrows.

Gowned in a becoming brown tailor-made, she was promenading with a friend on the Bowery last evening, when placed under arrest to answer a charge of vagrancy.

As she waited for the patrol wagon the "friend" stood across the street to waft soft farewells to the charmer in brown. Looking sorrowfully over at her he burbled:

"Au revoir, pet! Don't forget your true love when in a prison cell. Be sure and think of me, always at my best."

"It's the least she can do," added a bystander.

"Bon Voyage, me dear!" he yelled, with a Parisian accent that savored of a West Superior business college.

"Bye-bye, Earnie!" chirped the sepia swathed maiden, blowing things at him off the tips of her suede-cased digits, as they placed her in the wagon. Then for the first time she seemed to realize that she was in an embarrassing position, and burying her face in the lap of a detective who had accompanied the patrol, she begged the driver to do his Ben Hurrest and get her to the station as quickly as possible.

This morning in court she said she was not guilty of vagrancy, and her hearing was set for late in the afternoon.

Wearing a frumpy, frazzled gown with a dizzy hat planted full of cambric spring blossoms, Hattie Flynn wept moistly as she was taken into court.

She had far and away the best of the weeping contest with Kate Marshall. According to the score keepers, since her arrest last night at the hour when soubrettes yawn, she has "wept bitterly" twice; "sobbed softly" three times; "moaned pathetically" once; "her eyes filled with tears" seventy-eight times, and she "wept uncontrollably" on the shoulder of an officer.

As opposed to this Miss Marshall only showed one "lip trembling with suppressed emotion" and her eyes filled with tears only once.

Miss Flynn admitted the accuracy of the charges against her and was fined $15 and costs.

OPEN TO HIM.

A. B. Wolvin Can Manage the Steel Trust Fleet.

Capt. A. B. Walvin is said to have been offered the management of the large fleet of boats that is controlled by the new iron and steel combine. The information comes from sources rather close to the inside, and it is said that the object of Capt. Wolvin's present trip East is to discuss the matter. The matter is in abeyance pending the settlement of a point of difference. Capt. Wolvin is willing to undertake the task providing he is permitted to maintain his residence here. This is not exactly what the trust managers desire, as the natural location of the headquarters of the boats is supposed to be Cleveland, where all the lines converge no matte what ports they may bring cargoes from. At the same time vesselmen say that it is not at all difficult to manage the lines from Duluth, and that this plan would work as well as any.

It is said that Capt. Wolvin will not accept the position if he has to give up his residence in Duluth, and his acceptance of the offer depends upon whether the trust managers will consent to have the line managed from Duluth. The fleet under control of the trust will number about 125 vessels, a large proportion of those engaged in the iron trade.

DREDGING COMBINE

Options Obtained on All the Plants at Buffalo.

Will Control All Dredging Work On the Great Lakes.

Capital of $10,000,000 and Will Include Thirty Plants.

Buffalo, April 12.—The Times today says: J. A. Smith, of the Smith Dredging company, of Cleveland, representing Eastern capitalists, has secured options on the plants of Dunbar & Sullivan, Hingston & Woods and the Buffalo Dredging company, with the ultimate purpose of merging them into a big dredging combine, which will control all of the dredging work on the great lakes. It will have a capital of $10,000,000, and will embrace twenty-five or thirty of the biggest plants on the lakes.

THE STRIKE.

President Uhler Believed To Have Made Serious Mistake.

In the matter of the striking Marine engineers, the Detroit Free Press of yesterday published an article of some length explaining what it termed a bad mistake on the part of President Uhler in refusing to treat with the members of the Lake Carriers' association. It says that President Uhler admits his mistake and wants to back out of it as gracefully as possible now, and intimates that had not the mistake been made, the trouble might now have been settled. The Free Press says:

"Though the striking engineers will not admit it, it is the general belief among the vessel owners here that President Uhler's object in visiting Detroit on Tuesday evening, was to induce the two local branches of the engineers' association to pass resolutions instructing him to withdraw his ultimatum of two months ago that every member of the Lake Carrier's association must first quit the organization before the strikers would treat with them on the matter of wages and classification."

The article goes further to say that Mr. Uhler seems to have unlimited power in the organization and can settle any trouble between the owner and the engineers without consulting any committee, as well as a number of other important things, without reference to anybody else. The conclusion is then drawn that it is because of President Uhler's declaration that bitterness and friction has appeared on both sides and the settlement of the trouble has been delayed.

The reason, says the Free Press, that the owners assign for Mr. Uhler's unwise action, was the treatment he received at the hands of James Corrigan, chairman of the Lake Carriers' association executive committee. It will be remembered that after the engineers had made up their wage and classification schedule, a copy was sent Mr. Corrigan. Some time went by and as no acknowledgement of the schedule was made, Mr. Uhler wrote to Mr. Corrigan about it, and got a short reply to the effect that Mr. Corrigan did not know that the demands were to be considered or that they ever would be considered. This answer is said to have so provoked President Uhler that he vowed that the Lake Carriers' association must first recognize the engineers' organization, and then himself as the head of the organization, before his association would deal with them individually. The mistake is claimed to have been made by Mr. Uhler in classifying all the carriers with Mr. Corrigan, whereas many of them were willing to confer with him and arrange a settlement.

IS AFFIRMED.

The Bridge Company Must Pay the Barge's Damage.

The United States circuit court of appeals has affirmed the decision of Judge Lochren in the case of the American Steel Barge company against the Duluth-Superior Bridge company. The action was brought to recover damages for the accident to barge 134 of the plaintiff's line, which was injured last year by the failure of the draw of the bridge to open in response to the signals of the boat. The barge was coming down from the ore dock and had passed through the railroad bridge. The draw of the Duluth-Superior bridge failed to open and before the boat could be stopped it ran into the bridge and the upper works were badly damaged, and partially swept away. The company was sued and Judge Lochren awarded damages in the sum of $1043 and costs. This is now affirmed. The total amounts to about $1200.

The Trainmen's Ball.

The ball given by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen last evening at the Armory was a very large and successful affair. The attendance numbered about 200 couples. The decorations were very handsome and were greatly admired. The dancing program was lengthy and the music was excellent. Flaaten's orchestra played.

MORGAN RETICENT

He Says But Very Little To the British Reporters.

Does Not Think That British Interests Are Hurt.

W ll Not Place Trust Securities on European Market.

London, April 12.—J. Pierpont Morgan, in an interview with a London reporter, is quoted as saying he thought the formation of the United States Steel corporation would have a steadying effect of the British steel market and rather favorable than otherwise. He did not see why the steel trade would suffer either in Great Britain or Germany. As to the report that he intended to place trust securities on the European market, Mr. Morgan said:

"There is no surplus capital to give away. The people on this side are under a misapprehension. All the shares are allotted long ago. What we bought we had to pay for."

Mr. Morgan courteously declined to discuss the point any further.

In regard to the stories about a copper combination, Mr. Morgan said he knew nothing. He also said he would meet Mr. Carnegie while in Europe.

ARMY OFFICERS.

Well Known Germans Will Visit This Country.

Washington, April 12.—Two well known officers of the German military service, Capt. Kapherr of the Hussars, and Count Arnim of the Guard Du Corps, will arrive in America shortly, and will be informall-- connected with the German embassy here, although not occupying the positions of military attaches. Capt. Kayherr is the oldest officer of that rank in the famous guard of Hussars, stationed at Potsdam and commanded by the emperor when he was crown prince. The Guard Du Corps, to which Count Arnim belongs, is another crack regiment. Capt. Kapherr will be in this country for six months and Count Arnim for one year. The connection with the embassy will be merely for the purpose of federating their movement, as they spend most of the time in travel and recreation, it being customary in the German service to grant foreign leave for this purpose.

MORE IN SIGHT.

China's Resources Are Improving Right Along.

Pekin, April 12.—The committee of ministers, which is considering China's financial resources has reached the conclusion, based upon what information is thus far obtainable, that $300,000,000 in gold can be raised without injuring China's resources. The examination by the committee into this subject is thus far incomplete and it will probably subsequently learn that other Chinese resources for indemnities are available.

The ministers openly express their desire that the foreign troops leave Pekin. They are seemingly as anxious for the departure as were the besieged ministers anxious for the arrival of the troops.

NO REPORT

Received of Smallpox on the Monterey.

Washington, April 12—Surgeon General Van Reypen of the navy said today that he has received no report relating to a prevalence of smallpox aboard the Monterey, as reported by Consul McWade, in a news dispatch yesterday from Pekin. Admiral Van Reypen says it is almost impossible for the disease to spread to any extent aboard our naval vessels, owing to vaccination and other precautions.

IRISH EMIGRATION.

London, April 12.—The official report of emigration from Ireland shows that 47,107 persons left that country in 1900. This is 10.5 per 1000 of estimated population. The emigrants were equally divided between the sexes.

PORTO RICANS PLEASED.

Washington, April 12.—The state department today received a dispatch from Speaker Rossy of the Porto Rican legislature and other members of that body, expressing their gratification at the news that Governor Allen is to return to the island.

LAUD KRUGER.

Illinois Legislature Passes a Series of Resolutions.

Springfield, Ill., April 12.—A resolution was adopted without opposition by the lower house today lauding Paul Kruger "as the leader in the patriotic cause of his race in resisting British oppression and preserving to his people the inalienable rights of home rule and self-government," and extending to him "a cordial welcome to our shores and to the state of Illinois," and asks him, if he should visit America, to address the Illinois house.

FROM THE POPE.

Catholic Educators at Chicago Receive Cablegram.

Chicago, April 12.—A cablegram from Pope Leo was received at the convention of Catholic educators. It was as follows:

"The holy father thanks you for the good wishes expressed by you in the name of the convention of Catholic colleges, and bestows his most hearty apostolic benediction. CARDINAL RAMPOLLA."

AT COLOMBO.

Colombo, Ceylon, April 12.—The duke and duchess of Cornwall and York landed this afternoon and were accorded an enthusiastic reception. The streets, which were elaborately decorated, were filled with thousands of natives in multi-colored costumes. While the receptions were in progress, a wind storm swept over Colombo and a number of natives were injured near the royal pavilion.

GOES TO ATLANTIC CITY.

Washington, April 12.—The Chinese minister has gone to Atlantic City for a few days recreation, where he joins Madame Wu, who has been there for some time. The report in a Paris paper, that the Chinese minister at St. Petersburg, was thrown down stairs at the instigation of Count Lamsdorff, is not credited here, and Chinese officials look upon it as a statement doing injustice to Count Lamsdorff, rather than to Minister Yang Yu.

A DRUNKEN ROW.

Budapest, April 12.—The disturbance yesterday at Tatatovaros, Hungary, was merely a drunken row among miners, and not a serious conflict between strikers and soldiers, as reported in the United States by a news agency. No one was injured. The triviality of the affair was fully known yesterday.

DYNAMITE TIME.

Up on Washington Heights, where the older residents boast of their forefathers' revolutionary experience and the chickens run across the cable tracks, clocks are at a discount, says the New York Sun. The thoughtful housewife usually knows the time to the minute when the booming of dynamite disturbs the air.

The Italians who are doing the blasting up there have a keen idea of saving time and therefore set off the blasting at daylight, noon and knocking-off time. In this way there is no interruption to the work of the regular gangs, the blasting being done when the men are supposed to be resting at their own expense.

A stranger who happens to get up on Washington Heights about midday is startled by the roar and bang of the explosions, which come in rapid succession. It sounds for all the world like a bombardment of modern naval rifles and he wonders what it all means. The old settler on the Heights if he happens to be on the street pulls out his timepiece and says:

"This watch is forever running slow. It reads two minutes of 12 and there the blasting has begun. I must have it repaired."

The thoughtful housewife within earshot of the heavy siege flounces around with the first bang of the explosive and remarks:

"Do hurry, Maggie. The Italians are blasting. The children will be in from school in a second and here the table is not set."

There are several factories on the Heights and they regulate their lunch hour whistles by the blasting. Last week a watchmaker on Amsterdam avenue was seen to wind up and set his clocks with the beginning of the midday blasting. It is no uncommon thing to see the police as they hurry out to a relief take their time from the wholesale blasting. An old settler said the other day:

"If the watchmakers had to depend upon Washington Heights they would starve. With the exception of a clock here and there the tradesmen place their faith in the blasting reports for accurate time. Clocks are all right in their way. Personally I prefer the blasting each day to tell me the hour and minute."

FUR COATS.

Said to Be an Excellent Thing For Grip Sufferers.

"This overcoat is a bargain," said the furrier, spreading out a fine fur-lined garment, before the New York Sun man. "It's price a few weeks ago was $3500. We can let you have it now for just $3000 even. You will find it hard to beat that garment at such a price. It is mink lined and trimmed with Russian sable.

"Of course that does not say everything. A coat may be mink lined and sable trimmed and cost not more than $350 or $1200. But it will be Hudson Bay sable and the mink will be of a different quality. There is a vast range of values in furs, according to the quality."

"Has business been up on the average this winter?"

"Last year was a record year with us and this year has been quite up to last. Of course the great prosperity of the country has to do with it. Naturaly there is no trade which feels the effect of good times and the reverse more than the trade in expensive furs. And then, this year, there has been another reason for good business. We have sold scores of fur-lined coats this year on account of the prevalence of the grip.

"To victims of grip who are just beginning to go out of doors, when they are in position to afford it, the doctors of late have been prescribing a fur-lined coat. There is nothing that man can put on his back equal in point of warmth to a fur-lined coat. I have no doubt they have saved many a life.

"There is no particular change in the styles of the standard fur coats, except a tendency toward simplicity. Formerly they were all made with great Brandenburgs, or frogs, hanging across the breast. Now they are all held together with a simple loop and button. And then, again, there is a simple decline in the demand, among people of good taste, for the sealskin trimmed coat.

"The sable and the Persian lamb trimming have taken the place of the sealskin. Then of course there is the sea otter for fur trimming. That is the most expensive fur of all and it is becoming more and more expensive all the time. Here are two sea otter skins. They are about five feet long and one of them is just enough to make the facings, collar, sleeve trimmings and so forth of a coat. The coat of each as it stands is $1250.

"You can go practically to any length you like in price for a fur-lined coat. It would be entirely practicable to get up a coat which at the fair market price of the furs and including the labor and the other materials besides furs would be worth $25,000 at a reasonable valuation. Coats costing from $5000 to $10,000 would not be at all remarkable, not of course that the sale of garments of that price is very common.

"The lined and trimmed Persian lamb coats range in price from $185 to $350; the lined and natural beaver will cost from $200 to $475. A coat lined with natural muskrat and trimmed with beaver may be bought for $75. The Persian lamb coats have been in very great demand of late. As used all these skins are dyed a brilliant black and this can be done to perfection only in Leipsic.

"Speaking of sealskins, you are not to imagine because they have become unpopular with men that they have lost caste with women. They are as popular as ever. They are just a shade higher this year than last and the demand for them has been very great.

"Of course it is the fur that makes the cost of the garment. After that all else comparatively is trifling, yet of themselves these other items count up for a good deal. There is of course, first of all, the labor. A cutter of sealskin garments is like a diamond cutter in a way. His touch must be of the surest and the most delicate as well. He will know just exactly what he is going to do, you may be sure, before he puts his knife into a $1200 or $1400 skin. The least slip or error and all is ruined. It is a trade by itself and one that requires not only long experience, but good sense as well to become an adept in. These men—many of whom are Germans, although there are some Americans among them—get good wages, and the total of their wages as well as of all the other skilled hands who have to do with a coat before it is turned out comes to a very pretty penny.

"Then there is the cloth. That costs something. It is a specially made kersey that comes from England and costs us $9 a yard. It all counts up and does its share to making a very substantial tall to a four-figure price. You can get a coat made up in this way, lined with mink and trimmed with sealskin, for from $800 to $900. The sealskin jackets for women range in price this year at from $250 to $500.

"The automobile has developed a line of trade in furs that seems to be rather on the increase. We have made a number of entire fur suits this winter for automobile driving—coat, waistcoat, trousers and even cap and boots, and fur both inside and out. These suits run up as high as $225 in price and so on down to $100. The furs commonly used are muskrat for linings and badger for facings. The outer coverings when they are not fur inside and out, is of whip-cord, corduroy, leather—whatever is fancied.

"The caps are of racoon skin—flat-topped and with a black visor to keep the hair of the fur out of the wearer's eyes.

"Some very beautiful lap-robes have been turned out this season. They are made of heavy black or grizzly bearskins; of mink and Hudson Bay or Russian sable. A Hudson Bay sable carriage robe will cost from $450 to $950. If you are going in for a Russian sable you may expect to pay from $1000 to $3000 and $4000."

STAMPS ARE BEAUTIES.

The first sheets of the Pan-American exposition stamps, upon which the bureau of engraving and printing at Washington has been at work for four months, have been finished. The stamps are in two colors. The bureau of engraving and printing undertook the task of conforming to the desire of the post-office department in issuing the series in two colors with many misgivings and doubts. The obstacles in the way of producing stamps in two colors are exceedingly difficult to overcome. Before the sheet receives the first impression it is thoroughly dampened. After printing is allowed to dry, during which time it has shrunk. Before the second printing the paper is again dampened, and when it dries there is a further shrinking, although very slight. The beauty in the two-color stamp lies in the accuracy of register, the close matching of colors, or the fitting of vignette into the frame. When it is taken into consideration that each sheet is placed upon the steel plate containing the 200 vignettes or borders by hand for both paintings and that the variation of a fraction of a quarter of an inch is sufficient to throw the entire 200 pictures or borders off center, the difficult task before the bureau appears. Add to this the shrinkage of the paper, which is not uniform and the plot thickens.

If it were possible to print the stamps on a steam press where the sheets would be fed to a gauge, and the paper used dry, the undertaking would be a very simple one. However, only the best results are obtained by wetting the paper and using the old-fashioned hand press.

The stamps now being printed are of the denomination of 2 cents. The central design or vignette is printed in black ink in all the denominations, the border of the design being of the color of the current series of stamps. The picture of the 1-cent stamp shows a fine steamer, representing fast lake navigation; the 2-cent stamp, an express train at full speed, depicting and paid transit; in the 4-cent stamp, an up-to-date automobile in front of the capitol in Washington; the 5-cent shows Niagara Falls in all its glory; the 8-cent, a splendid representation of the great canal locks at Sault Ste. Marie, showing vessels passing through, and the 10-cent value shows a magnificent ocean liner.

The department will be ready to supply requisitions several weeks prior to the opening of the exposition. It is believed the demand will be very great and stamp collectors throughout the world undoubtedly will use several millions of the stamps. Journals devoted to the hobby of stamp collecting already are predicting that the beauty of the Buffalo stamps will start a great multitude to collecting stamps.

The bureau has orders from the post-office department to print the new stamps in the following quantities: One cent, 21,000,000; 2-cent, 160,000,000; 4-cent, 5,600,000; 5-cent, 8,000,000; 8-cent, 3,000,000; 10-cent, 4,000,000; total, 251,000,000.

COUPLE OF FOOLS.

They tell in Southeast Missouri of a young man there who advertised under an assumed name for a wife, says the Kansas City Journal. The fellow's sister happened to see the advertisement and answered it, also under an assumed name, and then they exchanged photographs. The outcome may be imagined, but what the old folks said when they found that there were two such fools in the family may not be repeated in print. The law forbids it.

A Woman Attempts Suicide In a Store In Chicago.

Listening to a Funeral March Leads to the Mad Deed.

She Had Recently Become Estranged From Her Husband.

Chicago, April 12.—With the solemn strains of a funeral march ringing in her ears and thoughts of a life filled with romance and lately with domestic difficulties preying upon her mind, Mrs. Mazie Winston on Wednesday sought to end her existence by swallowing carbolic acid. She was walking in the crowded aisles on the first floor of Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s store when she placed the phial to her lips and drained the contents.

Mrs. Winton then hurried to the ladies' lavatory, where she fell unconscious. Attendants and employes of the establishment rushed to the prostrate woman's assistance, and after an hour's hard labor Dr. Wiley, the house physician, succeeded in restoring her to consciousness. She was then removed in a police ambulance to the Samaritan hospital, where the attending physicians declared she would recover.

Mrs. Winston had recently become estranged from her husband, and since that time those who know her insist that her actions upon many occasions have been exceedingly erratic. She conducted a hair-dressing establishment at 259 Thirtieth street for several weeks, but became despondent over her husband's absence. She is a daughter of the late John Hanger, who for many years was a wealthy distiller of Stanton, W. Va. Upon his demise a will was left, but never probated. This document made Mrs. Winston sole executrice of the estate. Finally her friends persuaded her to have the will and estate investigated. This was done under the direction of Luther Laflin Mills. The will was found to be genuine, but the estate had been dissipated by years of neglectful management and increasing incumbrances until nothing remained.

Some of Mrs. Winston's closest friends assert that the destruction of the high hopes she once entertained of becoming the recipient of wealth doubtless affected her mind, and when her husband and she separated a month ago her dual troubles led her to make the attempt upon her life.

WEDDING IN A CLOISTER.

First High Nuptial Mass In a Convent.

New York, April 12.—The first high nuptial mass ever performed within the walls of a cloister in the United States will be celebrated next Wednesday on the occasion of the wedding of Miss May Matilda O'Ryan, of Silling, Que., at the convent of the Ursulines, at Bedford Park. A special dispensation for the performance of the ceremony has been obtained from Archbishop Corrigan and Mgr. Begin of the diocese of Quebec.

The bride, a very beautiful brunette, is a member of one of the most prominent families in the province of Quebec and an heiress in her own right. She has for several months been staying with her sister, Mother St. Michael, at the convent at Bedford Park. She has many friends among the members of the order, and it was for the purpose of enabling them all to witness her marriage that it was determined that the ceremony should take place within the convent.

Miss O'Ryan was educated in the Ursuline convent of Quebec, and in the convent of the same order at Georgetown, British Guiana., of which her sister, Rev. Mother Mary of the Incarnation, is the mother superior.

The groom is Dr. Gustave Arthur Taschereau, of St. Ferdinand, Canada. He is a nephew of the late Cardinal Taschereau of Canada.

The wedding ceremony will take place at noon. As the bridal party enters the chapel it will be saluted with the "Bridal Chorus," sung for the first time by the choir of brides of the church.

Rev. Father Burke, S. S., chaplain of the chapel, will celebrate the nuptial mass, assisted by Rev. Father Tetreau, chaplain of the Convent of the Misericorde, and Rev. Pietro Gravol. The blessing will be pronounced by Cardinal Gibbons, who is coming specially from Baltimore to attend the ceremony. Many high dignitaries of the church, including Archbishop Corrigan and several hundred invited guests, many of whom will come from Canada, will also be present.

TO THE BOUNDARY.

Change In Brainerd & Northern Road Proposed.

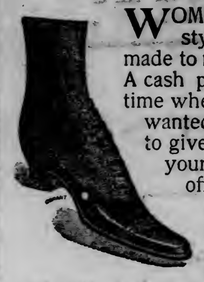

St. Paul, April 12.—The Northern Pacific will apply to the state authorities for permission to increase the stock of the Minnesota & International Railway company, of which corporation C. S. Mellen is president, from $100,000 to $500,000. The purpose is to absorb the Brainerd & Northern Railroad company. It is the intention of the Northern Pacific to merge the two roads into one, to be known hereafter as the Minnesota & International.

The step is another move toward ultimately pushing construction of the Minnesota & Northern road straight to the Canadian border at Koochiching, through an immensely valuable timber country, into the lake region. The Brainerd & Northern is largely owned by the Northern Pacific, although the original owners who were extensive lumber dealers, own stock. The president of the Brainerd & Northern is E. A. Merrill, of Minneapolis. Much of the remaining stock is owned by the Messrs. Backus, Merrill, Carpenter, Lamb and others. The Northern is capitalled at $500,000. There are ninety-one miles of track in operation, extending from Brainerd in a northerly direction to Bemidji. At this point the Minnesota & International line commences. Thirty miles of new roadbed are built and practically ready for the rails. Beyond this the Northern Pacific has pushed its surveys, and it has been practically decided to crowd construction northward toward the boundary. This road, although called Minnesota & International, is a Northern Pacific company.

Accidents come with distressing frequency on the farm. Cuts, bruises, stings, sprains. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil relieves the pain instantly. Never safe without it.

A MENACE TO CITY

Gambling In New York Has Reached Dangerous Proportions.

Conducted Openly and Protected By Police on Duty.

Committee of Fifteen Makes Its Report to the Public.

New York, April 12.—The committee of fifteen organized some months ago to investigate vice as it exists in this city, made its preliminary report to the public yesterday. This report will be followed by others from time to time as the committee deems necessary.

The report says that the committee's investigation disclosed the fact that gambling and pool rooms were being operated openly in violation of the law, that the gambling spirit had been developed to such an extent as to become a distinct menace to the community and that these resorts were undoubtedly protected in their operations by officers whose duty it was to close them. Raids were made by the committee and its agents and the results obtained show conclusively that a committee of citizens can force the police to close such resorts, thus proving that vice is protected and also that the raids have resulted in making the gambling business unprofitable.

This committee has been collecting data from different sources and intends presenting a report embodying suggestions abating the evil of the gambling problem in great cities. It does not believe in any violent attempt to suppress this evil, but it is hoped the forthcoming report will present such recommendations and suggestions as to enable the community to face the situation conservatively and to deal with it conclusively and wisely.

The committee says the actual conditions of the tenement problem is alarming in respect to secret evil and that of 125 tenement that were examined by its agents and in which disorderly women were living, there were found in each house an average of twenty-four children under the age of 18 years and the committee is collecting evidence which will be utilized to eliminate this evil. It is also investigating the organized traffic in young girls by a so-called cadet system.

The committee recommends with urgency the necessity of providing suitable places of meeting where the people in each neighborhood can come together and discuss the evils that menace their civil life and where they may from time to time meet their legislative representatives with a view of obtaining from them an account of their stewardship and where remedies may be proposed and discussed. Therefore the recommendations is made that in each assembly district one suitable assembly hall shall be built which shall be kept available for such citizens' meetings and it throws out a suggestion that these might be built in connection with the new public libraries which are likely to be erected in every part of greater New York.

TORRENS LAW

New System of Registering Land Titles.

Will Go Into Effect Next September.

Much interest is being taken in the bill that has passed the legislature introducing in this state the Torrens system of registering land titles. The new law will apply only to counties having over 75,000 inhabitants, which means St. Louis, Hennepin and Ramsey counties, and it will go into effect on Sept. 1 next:

The new law is optional. It does not compel any property owner to register the title of his land under the Torrens system, and in this respect follows the procedure in Illinois and Massachusetts. An application for registration must be made to the district court, in the county where the land is situated, and the form of the application is presented. The court is empowered to enquire into the condition of the title and to remove all clouds therefrom, and "for that purpose the court shall be always open, and such orders, judgments and decrees may be made and entered as well in vacation as in term time. The owner of any estate or interest in land in counties having over 75,000 inhabitants, may apply to have the title of their lands registered, but no title derived through sale for any tax assessment shall be entitled to be registered unless adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction, or the applicant, or those through whom he claims have been in the actual and undisputed possession of the land under such title at least fifteen years.

Registers of deeds in the several counties are made registrars of titles, and their deputies are created deputy registrars, to act under rules and instructions established by the district court. The registrars must furnish bonds, fixed by the county commissioners and approved by the judges of the district court. The judges are authorized to appoint one or more competent attorneys in each county to be examiners of titles and legal advisers of the registrar, their salaries to be fixed by the county commissioners.

The application must be filed in the office of the clerk of the court with an abstract of the title. The court will refer the application to an examiner of titles and the court will act on his report, twenty days being given all interested in the title to make an appearance. If no person appears, the court may at once, upon satisfactory proof of the applicant's right thereto, make its order and decree confirming the title of the applicant and ordering registration of the same. The court shall not be bound by the report of the examiner of title, but may require other or further proof. In case an appearance is entered, the cause shall be set down for hearing on motion of either party, and the court may refer the cause to an examiner of title, as referee, to hear the parties and their evidence and report to the court. If the court finds that the applicant has not title proper for registration, a decree shall be entered dismissing the application, and such decree may be ordered without prejudice. If the court finds the applicant has title, a decree of confirmation of title and registration shall be entered, which shall bind the land and quiet the title thereto. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court as in other civil actions.

Section 30 says: "No person shall commence any proceedings for the recovery of lands or any interest, right, lien or demand upon the same adverse to the title as found, ordered or decreed in the decree of registration, unless within two years after the entry of the order or decree; this section shall be construed as giving such right of action to such person only as shall not, because of some irregularity, insufficiency or for some other cause, be bound and concluded by such order or decree.

After any land has been thus registered it must forever remain registered land. It is provided that no title to registered land in derogation of that of the registered owner shall be acquired by prescription or adverse possession.

The registrar will keep a book, known as the "register of titles," wherein he will enter all first and subsequent original certificates of title, and all memorials and notations will be entered upon the folium whereon the last certificate of title of the land to which they relate is entered.

The registrar will, at the time he enters his original certificate of title, make an exact duplicate thereof, but putting on it the words "Owner's duplicate certificate of ownership," and deliver the same to the owner or to his attorney duly authorized. For the purpose of preserving evidence of the signature and handwriting of the owner in his office, the registrar is required, whenever practicable, to take from the owner his receipt for the certificate of title, properly witnessed.

The registrar is to keep tract indices, in which will be entered the lands registered in the numerical order of the townships, ranges, sections, blocks and lots, and the names of the owners, with a reference to the volume and folium of the register of titles in which the lands are registered. He will also keep alphabetical indices of the names of all registered owners, with proper references. No new certificate will be entered or issued upon any transfer of registered land which does not divest the title in fee simple to said land or some part thereof from the registered owner. All interests in the registered land less than estate in fee simple will be registered by filing with the registrar the instrument creating or transferring such interest, and by the registrar noting it upon the certificate of title. A similar memorandum will be made on the owner's duplicate. The cancellation or extinguishment of such interests will be similarly registered. Where there is a dispute the registrar will refer the matter to the court for decision. No new certificate of title will be entered, or memorial made upon any certificate, in pursuance of any deed or other voluntary instrument, unless the owner's duplicate certificate is presented with the instrument, except it may be lost, mislaid or destroyed. Registered land, and ownership therein, will be in all respects subject to the same burden and incidents which attach by law to unregistered land. Whenever registered land is sold and the same is by law subject to redemption by the owner or any other person, the purchaser will not be entitled to have a new certificate of title entered until the time within which the land may be redeemed shall have expired.

Upon the original registration of land, and also upon the entry of a certificate showing title as registered owners in heirs or devisees, there shall be paid to the registrar of titles one-tenth of 1 per cent of the assessed value of the real estate as an assurance fund. Whenever this assurance fund is sufficient, the county treasurer shall invest it, with the approval of the court, in bonds. Any person sustaining loss or damage through any mistake or malfeasance of the registrar or his deputies, or wrongfully deprived of any land through incorrect registration, can sue the county treasurer for the recovery of damages to be paid out of the assurance fund. Damages must not exceed the fair market value of the real estate at the time of the last payment to the assurance fund on account of the same real estate. No such action can be brought after six years from the time to bring it occurred.

Certificates of title and duplicate certificates entered or issued under this law are declared subjects of larceny, and false statements under oath in connection with this law will be deemed perjury. Fraudulent procurement of any certificate, or erasure or alteration in the registrar's book, is declared a felony, punishable by a fine not exceeding $5000 and imprisonment not exceeding five years, or either or both. Forgery in connection with the proceedings under this law is punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not exceeding ten years or a fine not exceeding $1000, or both.

On filing an application for registration, the applicant will pay $3 to the clerk of the court, which will be in full of all clerk's fees and charges. Every publication in a newspaper shall be paid for by the party in whose behalf it is made.

The fees payable to registrars are: When filing application, $10 for the first $1000 assessed value of the property and $2.50 for each additional $1000; granting certificate of title and registering the same, $2; for registering each transfer, $3; when land transferred is held upon any trust, $5 additional; for entry of each memorial on the register, $3; for additional duplicate certificates, $2; for filing copy of will or letters of administration, $5; for cancellation of each memorial or change, $1; for each certificate showing condition of register, $1; for any certified copy of an instrument, same fees now allowed to registers of deeds for like service. All of these fees shall be paid to the county treasurer, to be user for the current expenses of the county.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE LATEST SUCCESS.

Next Tuesday the Lyceum will again offer farce comedy as the attraction, William Gillette's latest success, "Because She Loved Him So." It is a farce, but it has a not unserious side. It seems to answer the question: "What shall I do to make my hubby love me." It is a kind of advice to a wife and mother, minus the mother. "Because She Loved Him So" has been styled "The Little Minister of Farce." That distinction being bestowed upon it both on account of its popularity and the decided quality of its great success.

NORTH BROTHERS' SHOW.

The success of North Bros., who have been playing at the Sixth Avenue theater this week at popular prices, has been almost phenomenal. Coming here highly recommended, but entirely unknown to Duluth's theater-goers, from a half-filled house on Monday night, they have drawn larger crowds to each successive performance until last night there was not an empty seat in the house. All the members of the company are versatile. Although "Paradise Regained," which was on the bill Wednesday and Thursday evenings, is of an entirely different style from that of "Princess Vergie," which was presented on the two first nights, they were both admirably presented, and plainly showed the ability of the players. Their specialties, which occur between each act, thereby eliminating the long, tiresome waits, are good and are very well received. Baby Hazel, a winsome little lass of 5 or 6, is making a great hit. Lee Mitchell, the male prima donna, is good and acts and sings remarkably like a woman. Virginia Goodwin, Genevieve Llynel and Stella Holman are good, and Harry Chapin, C. C. Chapin, F. C. Carter, Ned Martyn, and A. N. Borden are excellent in both comedy and the heavier parts. "My Pard, the Colonel," will be presented tonight and Saturday, while a matinee will be given Saturday afternoon.

Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus.

Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, is one of the most prominent lecturers of the country and his visit to this city Monday evening at the First Methodist church as the closing attraction in the Star Lecture course will doubtless see a large audience present to hear him speak on "The Later Eloquence of Puritanism." An exchange says of him:

"Dr. Gunsaulus came forward with the ease and grace of a practiced orator. His full round voice and clear enunciation made every syllable audible in all portions of the house. In powerful condensation of thought, clear analysis of motives and portrayal of critical periods and events, Dr. Gunsaulus proved himself a master. As an orator, his great fame is well deserved."

PRESENT BY DEPEW.

Miss Paulding Given a Fine Lot In Washington.

Washington, April 12.—Miss Paulding, niece of Senator Depew, whose engagement with Lieut. Edie was recently broken off, has been presented with a valuable piece of property in the heart of residential Washington by her uncle. The consideration was "affection and one dollar." A deed was placed on record conveying to her the lot at the southeast corner of Nineteenth and N streets, Northwest.

After the betrothal of Miss Paulding and Lieut. Edie became known it was reported authoritatively that the senator would donate a home to the bride-to-be. It is supposed that her dot would be considerable in addition, as Senator Depew is a very wealthy man. This gift has revived gossip as to the cause of the breaking of the engagement, which is still a mystery.

"Little Colds." Thousands of lives sacrificed every year. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures little colds, cures big colds too, down to the very verge of consumption.

VERY HIGH BOUNTIES

Canada's Efforts to Encourage Iron and Steel Manufactures.

Bounties Piling Up and the Law May Be Repealed.

United States Capital Dominant In All the Plants.

From The Herald Washington Bureau

Washington, April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The iron and steel bounties offered by the Dominion of Canada have grown to such proportions as to create much discussion, and there is a growing disposition to demand from parliament a repeal of the law granting them.

A recent report from Consul General Bittinger, at Montreal, states that in 1896-99 the iron bounties reached $280,-109. Last year, according to the auditor general's report, the Dominion gave $212,774 as bounties on iron and steel. The bounty paid is $3 a ton on pig iron from Canadian ore and $2 on pig iron from foreign ore, $3 a ton on puddled bar from pig iron made in Canada, and $3 a ton for steel ingots made from Canadian pig iron.

The Dominion Iron and Steel company, limited, of Sydney, Cape Breton, in its offer of the sale of $3,000,000 of 7 per cent prefered stock, sets forth an estimate of the government bounty which will be received by that company for seven years. The company states that "if the production from the company's works be as estimated—300,000 tons of pig metal nad 60,000 tons of steel blooms in 1901, and thereafter 400,000 tons of iron and steel per annum, made from foreign (Newfoundland) ore —the bounties to be received from the Canadian government" will be as follows:

1904	1,450,000
1905	1,000,000
1906	625,000
1907	225,000
Total	$8,995,000

The Cramp Ontario Steel company, with a capital of $5,000,000, is a new enterprise located at Collingwood, Ont. The bounties granted to such enterprises in the province of Ontario by the province and Dominion combined amount to $7 per ton of the product.

So many iron and steel plants are being started in the Dominion that it is feared the bounties offered will shortly become a greater burden than the country can stand. In all the iron and steel plants now in operation, as well as in those projected, United States capital is dominant.

It is very clear that with so large a bounty, abundant raw material and cheaper labor than in the United States, the iron and steel plants of Canada will have a considerable advantage over the plants in our country.

OFFER OF MARRIAGE

Is Sent to Lillian Russell By Telegraph.

New York, April 12.—Lillian Russell slept as peacefully last night as if proposals of marriage by telegraph were of everyday occurrence, and when she was seen today there was no sign of either irritation or levity in her face as she commented on the strange proceeding.

The exclamatory and amatory message read as follows:

Miss Lillian Russell:—I love you!! Will you marry me? With lots of love.

CORNELIUS H. ALLEN,
925 Central Park west.

Dr. Allen is a dapper little man, swarthy and with close cropped beard.

"Say for me that this is all a jest," he declared. "I wish you could deny the whole story for me."

"Then you proposed to Miss Russell for a joke?"

"I did not say that at all. I said the thing was a jest on me."

"Then you are not in love with Miss Russell?"

The doctor slackened his march up and down the room, but made no reply.

"A great many men are—at a distance, you know," suggested the interviewer, and the doctor smiled.

"Now, really, I don't know whether to get mad or laugh over this," he broke out. "I have just a slight acquaintance wiht Miss Russell."

"I have never seen this man," said Miss Russell, "and know nothing about him. About three weeks ago he sent me a note —a request to be presented, or something of that kind—and I burned it. Then twice he sent me boxes of roses at the theater, and twice he has called here at the house, but has been told that I do not receive calls from strangers."

"I had piles so bad I could get no rest nor find a cure until I tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. After using it once, I forgot I ever had anything like piles."—E. C. Boice, Somers Point, N. Y. Look out for imitations. Be sure you ask for DeWitt's. Max Wirth.

INSISTS ON A DOT.

Deserted Bride Sues to Recover Her Property.

Kokomo, Ind., April 12.—In a case on trial here, the plaintiff is Mrs. Lucinda Ware, of Greentown, and the defendant Oliver M. Ware, her son. Mrs. Ware sues for a husband and the recovery of property amounting to $10,000.

Mrs. Ware, who is quite old, was to have taken for a second husband George Cruson, of Greentown. Her relatives objected, saying Cruson was after her property. To satisfy them that it was a love affair, Mrs. Ware deeded all her property to her son, reserving only a life interest. But Cruson said he had bargained for a woman with means and he wanted all he had contracted for or nothing. Mrs. Ware decided that the delayed wedding must come off, and to hasten it brought suit against her son to recover the property.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA.

A CURE FOR IT.

Not a Patent Cure-all, Nor a Modern Miracle, But Simply a Rational Cure For Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbuggery and deception, the manufacturers of patent medicines, as a rule, seem to think their medicine will not sell unless they claim that it will cure every disease under the sun. And they never think of leaving out dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They are sure to claim that their nostrum is absolutely certain to cure every dyspeptic and he need look no further.

In the face of these absurd claims it is refreshing to note that the proprietors of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making any undue claims or false representations regarding the merits of this most excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They make but one claim for it, and that is, that for indigestion and various stomach troubles Dyspepsia Tablets is a radical cure. They go no farther than this and any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or nervous dyspepsia, who will give the remedy a trial will find that nothing is claimed for it, that the facts will not fully sustain.

It is a modern discovery, composed of harmless vegetable ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its great success in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medical properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, no matter whether the stomach is in good working order or not. It rests the overworked organ and replenishes the body, the blood, the nerves, creating a healthy appetite, gives refreshing sleep and the blessings which always accompany a good digestion and proper assimilation of food.

In using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets no dieting is required. Simply eat plenty of wholesome food and take these tablets at each meal, thus assisting and resting the stomach which rapidly regains its proper digestive power, when the Tablets will be no longer required.

Nervous Dyspepsia is simply a condition in which some portion or portions of the nervous system are not properly nourished. Good digestion invigorates the nervous system and every organ in the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents per package.

They are manufactured by the F. A. Stuart company, of Marshall, Mich.

Any druggist will tell you it gives universal satisfaction.

"HE" WAS A WOMAN

"Dr. Theodore Keattle" Masqueraded For Over Thirty Years.

Had a Son Who Will Now Receive Her Property.

Louisville, Ky., April 12.—Hugh H. Haviland, of Greeneville, Ky., claims to be one of the heirs of a fortune left by "Dr. Theodore Keattle," another "Murray Hall."

"Dr. Keattle" died at Punta Gorda, Fla., in 1896. Then it was discovered that the "doctor" was a woman, and that for thirty years she had masqueraded. The woman was a mother. Those who were supposed to know say that in 1853 a little boy was placed in the Protestant Episcopal Orphan asylum at Louisville by "Dr. Keattle," then confessedly a woman, known as Kate Haviland. The boy's name was Hugh Haviland. He was later bound out to a farmer, and finally rose to an independent position at Greeneville. This is the story of Hugh Haviland, told by himself in a letter to the Courier Journal:

For nearly forty years he knew nothing of his parents. Then came a letter from a New York lawyer—G. Tarleton Goldthwaite, 141 Broadway—who wrote that while searching for the heirs of "Dr. Theodore Keattle," whom death revealed to be a woman, he had found that in 1853 she, going by the name of Kate Haviland, had placed Hugh H. Haviland in the Protestant Episcopal Orphan asylum at Louisville. Hugh H. Haviland, at Greeneville, is regarded as that boy. That Kate Haviland was "Dr. Keattle" was, it is said, practically established by witnesses in New York and Brooklyn. But Hugh Haviland is heir to but half the fortune. A girl, who is expected to divide it with him, Grace M. Clark-Elliott, Haviland's niece, so Lawyer Goldthwaite says, believes herself sole heiress to Imbra Clark, of Australia, who died worth $25,000,000. Hugh Haviland's little sister, Kate Haviland's other child, according to Lawyer Goldthwaite, was put by the mother with foster parents. The girl grew up, married Imbra Clark and went West with him. In 1877 they went to San Francisco, and there a child was born. Within two weeks the delicate mother, Kate Haviland's daughter, died. The baby was placed in the hands of Mrs. Martha A. Griswold, superintendent of the Home of the Friendless, by Imbra Clark, who sailed almost immediately for Australia. Several years after Mrs. Griswold heard of Clark's death and advertised for someone to adopt the little orphan girl. The Elliotts responded, and on Aug. 21, 1878, were granted papers of adoption by a court in San Francisco. In 1897 the Elliotts learned that Imbra Clark had left a fortune of $25,000,000, to which there was no heir, and began a fight for their foster daughter's rights. The estate is tied up in the English courts, and though hundreds of claimants have come forward, none has been able to prove claims to the satisfaction of the British authorities.

Grace M. Clark-Elliott had almost given up hope when Goldthwaite's letter came, telling her she was heiress to the estate of her grandmother, the spurious "Dr. Keattle," of Punta Gorda, Fla. Now Miss Elliott expects to prove her claim.

BIG PROFITS.

Rockefeller Is the Greatest Winner In Wall Street.

New York, April 12.—Ninety-one railroad and industrial corporations, having an aggregate capital of $3,400,000,000, have made a gain of $1,250,000,000 since the first of last October, term of six months.

This increse in the selling value of the shares represented by the list of properties amounts to 35 per cent. More than 1,000,000 shareholders have been the gainers by the advance.

The greatest individual winner is John D. Rockefeller, who is easily $360,000,000 better off than he was a month before the election of William McKinley for a second time. The advance in Standard Oil alone, a corporation not included in the list of ninety-one above mentioned, shows a profit on his 28 per cent interest aggregating $65,000,000. He cleared $49,000,000 on his Minnesota iron properties, to say nothing of the sum realized from the sale of his lake fleet of ore carriers.

On his known holdings it is easy to figure profits of at least a quarter of a billion dollars from prices ruling a half a year ago. His winnings may be vastly above the sum given, for he is interested in many things about which the public knows little or nothing.

Eight floors of the Standard Oil building on lower Broadway are monopolized by the offices of companies in which John D. Rockefeller and his associates have their money invested. He is today the largest individual holder of the stock of the United States Steel company.

The Carnegie holdings of bonds of the big steel company might, from a strictly banking point of view, have a greater cash value than the Rockefeller share interest, but aside from the Scotch ironmaster no person is in the billion and a half trust as deep as the founder of the petroleum monopoly.

W. K. Vanderbilt is believed to have been the biggest winner in Wall street, next to Rockefeller. In addition to his immense investment holdings, Mr. Vanderbilt loaded up with the largest speculative line of stocks ever carried by a single person, more than 1,000,000 shares. This line has probably been increased instead of being reduced. He is probably ahead of the market on speculative investments not less than $35,000,000, and his fixed holdings have increased correspondingly in value.

No trouble would be experienced in finding people in Wall street who would organize a syndicate to give him $50,000,000 for his profits since the beginning of 1900.

HE LEAVES METHODISM.

Brooklyn Clergyman Has Become Christian Scientist.

New York, April 12.—Rev. S. E. Simonson, of Brooklyn, has withdrawn from the Methodist Episcopal church to become a Christian Scientist. In a letter which was presented to the New York East conference Mr. Simonson writes: "I now feel that the time has come when in simple justice to the church, as well as to myself, I must withdraw from the ministry and membership of the said church and ask that the same take effect just as soon as you can conveniently release me.

"I have been forced by circumstances to make an honest and impartial investigation into the teachings and practices of the Christian Scientists, and I have found them to be in accordance with the teachings of Christ.

"I therefore must accept them or do violence to my highest and best conviction that God has given me. And I freely choose to follow the God-given light. For it was through Christian Science that I was given back my health when an eminent physician had given me up. But this was not all. There came to me such a spiritual insight into the word and such a power from God, the like of which I had never known till I came in touch with the truth as taught by these people."

The withdrawal was accepted, but on motion the conference decided to file Rev. Mr. Simonson's credentials in the archives instead of returning them to him.

Rev. James M. Pullman, brother of George M. Pullman, caused a sensation in the conference by delivering a stinging speech about the evils of trusts. Mr. Pullman is the presiding elder of the New England conference. He declared that the rapid growth of trusts is fast eating away the vitality of the nation This pernicious system, he said, is fast depopulating the towns of New England, formerly so thrifty and prosperous, and he predicted that unless steps were taken to check trusts many of the manufacturing towns of his section of the country would be ruined beyond repair in ten years.

The speaker charged the trust magnates with closing many factories by taking away the manufacturing industries. To corner the market on everything was their idea, he said.

VALUABLE ROADS.

They Are Paved With Gold And Silver.

M'Connellsburg, Pa., April 12.—Thompson township, Fulton county, undoubtedly has the most valuable roads in the United States. They are veritably paved with gold and silver. The roads have been macadamized with tons and tons of mineral rock, and nearly the whole county is ablaze with excitement over the discovery that some of this rock assays $4.60 a ton in gold and silver.

Joseph H. Covalt, of Thompson, says prospectors will at once begin the development of the minerals. Thousands of acres of land in the township have been leased by capitalists, who will turn quarries into gold mines.

GERMANY PLEASED

Claimed She Is Glad For Everything Making For Peace.

For This Reason She Is Pleased With Toulon Festivities.

The Russian Newspapers Also Express Keenest Satisfaction.

Berlin, April 12.—German official circles comment calmly on the Toulon festivities. They claim that German has not been unpleasantly impressed thereby, but that, on the contrary, she is glad for everything making for peace. The officials point out that the French were less demonstrative than at the reception of the Russian fleet a few years ago. One official said:

"We can only hail the demonstration as a guarantee of the continuance of peace. The French, apparently, are dropping the Alsace-Loraine question. The prospects of a European war are more remote than ever, the nations being too much occupied with developing their economic strength to think of war."

RUSSIA ALSO PLEASED.

London, April 12.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the newspapers there express keen satisfaction at the festivities at Ville Franche and Toulon, as evidencing the strengthening of the Franco-Russian alliance, and they consider that the Franco-Italian rapproachment is calculated to lead to the early conclusion of an alliance between Russia, France and Italy, which, in view of the pacific sentiments of the three powers, would, in the opinion of the newspapers of St. Petersburg, constitute an efficacious guarantee of European peace.

A GREAT CRY

Being Raised By Venezuelan Press Against United States.

New York, April 12.—A dispatch to the Herald from Port of Spain, Trinidad, says: Efforts are being made by the official press of Venezuela to create apprehension throughout Latin-America that the United States is seeking to control the new world. A great outcry is being raised over the American policy in Cuba, which is cited as evidence of far-reaching ambitions on the part of the United States.

The most influential Caracas journal issued in mourning its editions announcing the capture of Aguinaldo.

News from Barcelona, Venezuela, is that the Venezuelan government definitely refuses to make reparation in the case of the American consul, Mr. Baiz, who was twice imprisoned, it is alleged, without cause, and from whom large sums of money were extorted under a threat of torture.

ELECTRICITY

Applied to Producing Bleaching Liquor Out of Brine.

Washington, April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The application of electricity to manufacturing processes has long occupied the attention of scientists and inventors. Every effort has been made in recent years to simplify and cheapen the cost, not only of the necessary machinery, but of chemical elements as well. According to a recent report from Consular Agent Harris, at Elbenstock, Dr. Oettul, a German professor, together with Haas & Stahl, electricians in Auc, Saxony, have invented an apparatus for producing "chemic," or bleaching liquor, out of ordinary brine, the product being sodium hypochlorite, which is attracting considerable attention among textile manufacturers. It is claimed that the chemic obtained by this method produces a whiteness superior to that of the English bleaching liquor.

The following detailed description of the invention and its improvements may be of interest to the textile manufacturers of this country:

The ordinary apparatus is extremely simple, being mainly a trough or box of slate, swung on trunnions, in a suitable frame, with an inlet for the brine and an outlet for the sodium hypochlorite resulting from the passage of a current of electricity through brine as it runs through the box, the poles or electrodes being placed at opposite ends of the box. Thermometers are suspended at the inlet and at the outlet, in order to show at a glance the strength of the sodium hypochlorite, it having been found that every rise of 5 degreen celsius corresponds to 1 gram of free or active chlorine per liter (equal to 62 grains per gallon.)

In order to clean the apparatus the thermometers are removed and the trough reversed and cleansed with a hose pipe. The electrodes last about one year and can be easily replaced. The bleaching liquor, the product of the apparatus, is eminently suitable for bleaching raw cotton, yarn, cloth, lace and the finest embroidered fabrics made of cotton, linen, jute or flax, pulp, paper, etc. It advantageously replaces chloride of lime for all purposes.

The advantages claimed for this system are: First, the electralysed solution possesses the highest discoloring or bleaching powers; second, the goods treated in the ordinary process of bleaching are not harmed in the least, and there is scarcely any appreciable loss in weight; third, lime or magnesia salts are not deposited on the cloth, thereby eliminating any possible trouble in subsequent dyeing and printing; fourth, constant strength of liquor, which can be used as fast as made, if desired; fifth, economy in cost of production.

The apparatus is constructed in three sizes, to produce per ten hours, respectively, 350, 650 and 1000 gallons of electrolyzed solution, containing three grams per liter, equal to 186 grains per gallon of active chlorine, prepared from brine of a strength of 6 degrees Batume.

For purposes of comparison, we may say that 650 gallons of the electrolyzed solution contains twenty pounds of active chlorine; to obtain from chloride of lime thirty pounds of active chlorine, it would be necessary to use seventy pounds of bleaching powder, and the resulting 650 gallons would be found to give considerable inferior results. The reason of this apparently inexplicable difference lies in the constitution of the electrolyzed liquor, which has been found to contain the following: Free chlorine, free hydrochlorine acid, sodium, hypochlorite, and chlorate of soda. It is chiefly the free hypochlorous acid which causes the rapid bleach. This solution is absolutely harmless to the fibre of the threads, the best proof that they are in no way injured being that goods bleached by electrolysis only lose about 2 per cent, as against some 8 per cent for chloride of lime bleach. All apparatuses are intended to be connected with the dynamo already in use for electric lighting. J. S. VAN ANTWERP.

Best Remedy For Rheumatism

QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies, but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. George F. Parsons & Co., druggists of this place., to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

BOWERY REFORM

That District Giving Less Trouble Than Ever Before.

Big Mitt Gang Seems to Have Been Broken Up.

Organ Recitals Now Constitute the Principal Diverson.

The Bowery is threatened with a deluge of reform. Owing to rigid police regulations more strictly enforced than ever before, criminals and disorderly persons are leaving the alley in rampant confusion. There is already a decrease in the visible supply of willowy soubrettes—the kind that used to fluff frivolously up and down the glittering thoroughfare with beautifully upholstered figures, of which they would think whenever statuesque Greek goddesses were mentioned in their presence.

So far as is known there is not a single big mitt man in town, except a few now serving sentences behind the bars of the county jail. The police department went after the gang with vigorous determination this spring and failing to convict the members of bunco work, they had them sent up for hard labor on charges of vagrancy. In this way the gang was broken up, notwithstanding the fact that several expert professional big mitt men were imported here from St. Paul early in the season.

Another wave in the threatened deluge of reform is very noticeable from the fact that notwithstanding there have been more woodsmen in town this spring than for several years, the percentage of robberies has been smaller and the percentage of stolen property recovered has been greater than usual.

Flurry touching and hold-ups have been rather frequent, but in every instance so far the thieves have been caught and even the old Bowery rounders are evidently endeavoring to lead better lives. It is not probable that the Bowery could be freed from crime in a thousand years with a policeman for every saloon, lodging house and restaurant. When careless woodsmen with rolls of money, sleep in rooms with thirsty rounders without money, petty robberies are inevitable.

The principal trouble on the Bowery at present seems to rest with the saloonkeepers—the kind of whisky they sell and the picture machines in which frivolous nalads are won't to disport themselves in a fervent manner—that must certainly be unfriendly to the reform movement.

Another evidence of reform was the arrest yesterday of a man for spitting on the sidewalk. He was fined $4 in police court and being financially shattered he had to go to jail for two days. In the words of a street car advertisement, Chief Crandall says:

"And if you don't expect his fate, Then you should not expectorate."

Nothing more exciting than an organ recital and the arrest of a blithe soubrette startled the reformed Bowery last evening. The organ recital was held in a saloon near Sixth avenue, and the business manager succeeded in attracting a good-sized crowd by circulating a rumor that the program would consist of Beethoven's "Sonata Appassionata," Schumann's "Symphonic Etudes" and the "Winterstrume" and a "Meistersinger Fantasie" by "Vogner."

A classical program always draws on the Bowery, and it was not long till visitors were seated round listening to some rag-time melody in E. S. Fales' voice. Finally someone ventured the suggestion that the organ recital begin, but Fales continued to sing in a voice that would float through the fog of cigarette smoke and drown the waiters' parrot cry of "What does youse want?" Finally there was a unanimous demand for the organ.

"All right, the professor will oblige," responded the master of ceremonies. He waived his hand with a suave, cantabile movement toward a corner, where something appeared like a dog kennel perched on wheels beyond the picture hat of a peroxide blond soubrette from West Michigan street.

Immediately there was a movement in the corner indicated, and a one-armed musician from far away sunny Italian arose, grasped a crank and began to grind out wierd strains from a hand organ. These strains came fortissimo and pianissimo in turn, while whole bunches of portamento cadenzas rang through the room.

The combination of contrapuntal adagio passages was recognized as the classic known as "I've Mortgaged My Happy Home in West Duluth." This aria was changed with the utmost ease by the soloist, after three glasses of whisky had been launched at his head, and the pathetic music of "Down in a Coal Mine" was ground out in a tempo with a rallentando crescendo on the final measure.

The stirring music of "Goo-goo Eyes" was drowned by a tutti-fruti chorus, the fortissimo of which was a prolonged and presto demand, "If You Ain't Got Money, You Needn't Come 'Round." The recital had just begun, when many drinks of doubtful brew were sent to the struggling organist. As the tones of the instrument became planissimo and the tempo retared somewhat, the audience grew in power and the demand for that mixed drink composed of amyl alcohol and rain water was something tremendous.

However, an organ recital with such a classical program is a sure indication of reform on the Bowery, and so is the request of the police department that boot blacks be licensed during the coming vacation in order to restrict their numbers.

Chief Crandall complains that the urchins, who are as thick in summertime as sparrows, annoy people by their language and actions and should be suppressed, especially on the Bowery.

AS TO CUBA.

Senator Spooner Is Confident No Changes Will Be Made.

New York, April 12.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: "Congress has defined the relations which shall exist between the United States and Cuba, and, in my judgment it will not agree to any modification," said Senator Spooner, member of the senate committee on relations with Cuba, after a conference in the war department with Secretary Root. "The terms offered Cuba," said Senator Spooner, "are more in the interest of the island than in that of the United States. I am confident that the mass of the people of the island, appreciate the unselfish attitude of this government and if they had an opportunity to declare their views they would unhesitatingly approve the relations as defined by congress." The attention of the senator was called to the suggestion that Gen. Wood should dissolve the convention and issue a call for another, the people at the time of the election of delegates to vote upon the question of the acceptance of the Platt amendment.

"I have seen that report," he said, "I know nothing about it. I believe, however, that the convention after further consideration of the matter will come to the conclusion that the wise course to pursue is to incorporate in the constitution the terms offered them."

ALL OVER NOW.

Denver Emerges From Her Snow Blockade.

Denver, Col., April 12.—After a continuous snow storm for ninety-six hours, the skies cleared today and under the bright sunshine the snow melted rapidly. The storm was the most extensive known in the Rockies in ten years. There was little snow on the western slope. Rotary snow plows were kept in operation during the night on all roads running over the divide and passenger trains were run, although the schedules were badly disarranged. Many freight trains were stalled in snow drifts and none were run, except on special orders. Service on several mountain lines was entirely abandoned. All the roads will be opened today.

HIGH IN KANSAS.

Water In Rivers Overflows the Banks.

Abilene, Kans., April 12.—Smoky Hill river and its tributaries in Central and Western Kansas are high and out of their banks in several places after three days' continuous rain.

Smoky Hill river, rose ten feet here last night, flooding the electric light plant and causing a shut down. Fields are being flooded and it is feared the dams below this city will go out.

ATTENTION, SEAMEN!

There will be a meeting of the Lake Seamen's union at 18 West Superior street, Saturday Evening, April 13, at 8 o'clock, G. B. COAD, Agent.

RIFLED THE MAIL.

Employe of Philadelphia Postoffice Arrested.

Philadelphia, April 12.—Postal inspectors arrested Jerome S. France, an employe of the main postoffice in this city on a warrant charging him with stealing and rifling the mail. France was what is termed a "state caser," and his duty was to distribute mail matter into cases for each state in the Union. For several weeks complaints have been received from various sections of the country of mail being tampered with and the postal inspectors were put on the case and as a result France was arrested while at work in the postoffice this morning. The inspectors say France made a partial confession.

CHAMBERLAIN RESIGNS.

Washington, April 12.—Walter H. Chamberlain of Chicago, today tendered his resignation as United States assistant commissioner of patents. The resignation will take effect May 1, when Mr. Chamberlain will resume the practice of patent law.

GEN. TAYLOR DEAD.

Louisville, April 12.—Gen. Thomas H. Taylor, a veteran of the Mexican and civil wars, died today from pneumonia, aged 75. During the Mexican war he was elevated for distinguished services through the various ragde from private to major, and in the Confederate army from captain to brigadier general. Gen. Taylor was chief of the Louisville police for many years.

NOT GUILTY.

WIFE—I'll bet ten cents you forgot to mail that letter I gave you this morning.

HUSBAND—You lose. I merely forgot to put a stamp on it.

JAPAN'S ATTITUDE

Toward Russia More Clearly Defined.

New York, April 12.—Dispatches to the Tribune from London says: Japan's attitude with regard to the Chinese situation is now more clearly defined. When the Chinese court returns to Pekin another protest will, it is said, be sent to Russia against the occupation of Manchuria. The Russian minister in Pekin is reported to have been instructed to adopt a policy of terrorization toward China, in hope of compelling the imperial court to agree to a Manchurian treaty.

SHOT BY BURGLARS.

Pittsburg, April 12.—Thomas Kahney, a grocer at 113 Albert street, Mt. Washington, about 3 o'clock this morning, was shot and almost instantly killed by burglars who were looting his house. Kahney met death while trying to rescue his wife from the robbers. Three men had entered his house and were trying to force a gag in Mrs. Kahney's mouth to prevent her from giving an alarm. Several shots were fired at Kahney with fatal effect. After the shooting the burglars fled from the house and have not been captured.

Sidewalks That Are Dangerous.

Mrs. J. N. Dinnen sued the city of Huron, S. D., for $7000 for damages sustained by a fall on a defective sidewalk, and was given a verdict for the full amount asked. Unless the officials of the city of Duluth take prompt action in relation to some of the rotten wood apologies which disgrace the name of sidewalks in this city, the taxpayers are liable to be mulcted in a much larger sum than the little city of Dakota. Next to the disgraceful condition of the paving of Superior street, the sidewalks of the city of Duluth come in for condemnation and ridicule of everyone visiting the city. They are a blot on civilization. There is not a country town of 100 inhabitants that made any pretension to walks whatever, that would allow such a condition of affairs as exist in this city. On some of the avenues in the heart of the city the walks are not fit for an animal to walk upon. Spikes protrude from half an inch to two inches, endangering not only the dresses of the ladies and the footwear of all pedestrians, but they furnish a trap for the stubbing of a toe by which a person is liable to be thrown headlong; holes of various sizes furnish a pit into which anyone may stumble and break a limb; loose boards riding one on top of another furnish a most successful barricade to the unwary traveler on a dark night; while perhaps the most dangerous feature of the common condition is the sudden rising of one end of a rotten plank, which flies into the face of the pedestrian as his companion steps unconsciously on the other end. Take it all in all the "rocky road to Dublin" is a pathway of pleasure compared to some of the walks in this city. To be candid, the matter is a serious one. Any day some person is liable to be seriously injured by reason of the defects in the walks and it would cost the city a round sum in damages. The city should take some action at once. The police should report all defects to headquarters and the abutters should be compelled to repair their walks or provide new ones. Prompt action may save large expense.

Public Gifts and Bequests Last Year.

Data concerning public gifts and bequests which were bestowed or became operative in the United States in the last year of the century are published by the New York Times. For this material it acknowledges its indebtedness to Rossiter Johnson, editor of Appleton's Annual Cyclopedia. According to the scheme followed by Mr. Johnson, the forthcoming number of the cyclopedia will contain an exhaustive list of gifts and bequests, each amounting to $5000 or over (where the value of the donation is unknown it is so indicated). This list excludes the ordinary denominational contributions for educational, benevolent and religious purposes, or state and municipal appropriations to public and sectarian institutions, and the grants of congress for various measures of relief. For obvious reasons the multitudinous contributions to the India famine fund, which amount to more than $250,000, and to the Galveston flood sufferers, $1,253,710, have been omitted in detail, but the fact is emphasized that even omitting these gifts and reckoned within the limitations designated the number of gifts and bequests shows a large increase over that of 1899, although the total, $47,500,000, is over $15,000,000 less than the total for the preceding year. In regard to the magnificent total contributed in 1899 Mr. Johnson wrote that it "is without a doubt the largest amount ever devoted to philanthropic purposes, as individual offerings, in any country in one year." But without attempting to account for the falling off in the total of 1900, it may be deemed even more significant that the contributions were more numerous than in 1899, while it is furthermore worthy of comment that the gifts to education and culture have in a large measure signalized this augmentation in the number of donors. It is not only the spirit of philanthropy of certain wealthy Americans that has made the last year of the century conspicuous in this respect, but the fact that the spirit has been more generally displayed than in the previous year, not alone in charity and benevolence, but in those directions which help people to help themselves by opening to them the means of education and culture.

WHAT AILS PORTO RICO?

Something is wrong in Porto Rico. Although that island was recently saved from the misrule of Spain, and is supposed to enjoy the finest kind of a paternal government, it still weeps and will not be comforted. Reports of petitions praying for help for starving thousands reach us. Discontent stalks abroad, notwithstanding the tariff levied for its (the island's) benefit a year ago. Many native inhabitants are leaving their homes for distant parts of the globe, because they cannot get enough to eat under American rule. Governor Allen, disgusted with his job, determined to resign, and was persuaded not to do so only through his regard for the president.

What is the matter with Porto Rico? Can it be the climate? No, we are told that the climate is like what we have been told of Eden. Can it be that the soil is not fertile? No, we are told that the earth yields abundantly. Can it be the government? Ah, now we are treading on dangerous ground and must be careful. Under the Spanish rule Porto Rico was one of the most flourishing colonies of that kingdom. Of course that is not saying much, but it was evidently in better shape than it is today.

The trouble undoubtedly is that a change of government has been forced upon the people, which carried added burdens, with no compensating benefits. The old machinery has been abandoned and the new does not work well. If absolute free trade were in operation between this island and the "mother country" there is no doubt that capital would seek investment there. Capital would employ labor and relieve the strain. As it is there is no market for the products of the island. The industries and the commerce are both dead. Our colonizing experiments have not been a howling success. One of the amusing reasons given for the deplorable condition of the island is that it is owing to the enforcement of the old Spanish laws. This is given out by the administration press, and the faithful are supposed to take up this refrain. If this be so, why not change the laws? Whose business is it to see that proper laws are furnished to make the island prosperous?

THE BRITISH WANT PEACE.

There is a revulsion of feeling in England regarding the Boer war. Those who once were for fighting to the bitter end are now for peace, if the same can be had with honor. Diplomacy is suggested to solve the problem that guns and men and horses have failed to solve. The conscience of the nation is aroused when the pocket is touched too deeply. It may be that the massing of 180,000 Russian troops in the trans-Caspian region is making the British lion restless. The presence of 180,000 troops at the back door of India is something that will always make the British nation desire peace in other quarters, especially when those 180,000 troops are Russian.

It is not fair, however, to attribute the peace sentiment which is growing in England entirely to sordid interests. There has always been a large minority opposed to the Boer war on principle. The same element that was opposed to the invasion that ended in Majuba Hill is opposed to the present war of conquest. These people know the history of the Boers; how they were driven from Cape Colony to the Orange Free state; how they crosed the Vaal to found in the wilderness a home and a country where they could govern themselves. All this is known to the average Briton as thoroughly as the story of the Pilgrims is known to the American.

Six months more of war and the present government will have to change its policy or retire. There are greater stakes to be won in the game of politics than the possession of the Boer republics. India, with all its wealth, is threatened by an enemy which never retreats. Peace would be worth more to England now than a thousand diamond fields.

MRS. GOULD BEFORE A JURY.

The supreme court of New York has decied that Mrs. Howard Gould, who is a defendant in an action brought by her dressmaker for $1000, will have to exhibit herself robed in the gowns in dispute, so that the fact whether the gowns fit or not can be determined by an actual examination.

Mrs. Gould refused to pay for certain gowns because they did not fit. The dressmaker sued for the price, and the lower court allowed a referee to determine whether or not the defense had a leg to stand upon. The supreme court, however, says that the proceeding was irregular, and remands the case for trial before a jury of twelve honest men. As the question of "fit" is the only point in the case, and as the figure of Mrs. Gould is the only one that can be used to determine that fact, the lady of wealth must come before the jury and be examined in the disputed gowns. She will have to be revolved before the jury like a dummy, while each juror makes such examinations as he deems proper to determine the fitness of the gowns. When this is done she will be marked exhibit "A" and turned over to the clerk for safe keeping. Then, arrayed in another gown, she will pose, be examined as before, marked exhibit "B" and again turned over to the court to be safely preserved. Should the jury not be able to come to a decision in the jury box, they will retire to the jury room, where they will be entitled to have all the "exhibits" to examine as they discuss the points involved. They, no doubht, will want Mrs. Gould with her gowns present during the discussion, so that any little point that was overlooked in the examination in open court can he gone over again. They will, ho doubt, insist that she move about the jury room so they can see how the skirt hangs in the ordinary movements of ordinary life. Then, again, they may insist that she pick up her dress as if crossing a muddy street, to see that the dressmakers have not made blunders in that direction.

The possibilities of such a trial are endless—why attempt to enumerate them when we all know that Mrs. Howard Gould will pay the bill rather than appear in court and be marked exhibit "A?"

The largest amount of precious metals ever collected in one place is believed to be in the United States treasury. The treasury now contains about $500,000,000 in gold and over $480,000,000 in silver. The greater part of this money is held in the treasury for the redemption of currency in the hands of the people. There are about $220,000,000 of gold certificates, $120,000,000 of silver certificates and $56,000,000 of treasury notes of 189 now in circulation. Of the gold store $15,000,000 is set apart by law for the redemption of United States demand notes. The balance of gold in the treasury, after redeeming the gold certificates and demand notes, would be less than $100,000,000. It is, however, greatly in excess of any demand that is likely to be made upon it.

There is some talk about the government securing part of the ill-gotten gains of Capt. Carter by civil process. There is not nearly as much chance of the government securing the money as there is of Capt. Carter working some scheme by which he will be released from prison without serving his term. The captain is a shrewd one, and it has been intimated that some high officials are interested in his steal who have and will move heaven and earth to secure his freedom.

The daily report of "no progress" from the foreign ministers at Pekin is getting to be very tiresome. The longer troops are kept in China, the greater will be the claim against the nation. It is well known that China cannot pay anywhere near the amount that is now demanded, and the constant expense that is accumulating will have to be borne by the different governments. It is time something was done.

There is much complaint among the artillery officers over the neglect of Secretary Root to make up a list of promotions for officers in this corps. Provision was made in the army bill for increasing this corps as well as the infantry and cavalry, but while the members of the latter have been jumped up at a great rate for the past few months the artillery has been kept at a stand still. There seems to be some justice in the complaint of the artillerymen.

In response to a five minute speech by Dr. Huntington in New York city, in which he said he wanted $100,000 to support and maintain church work in a new addition, the congregation responded most liberally on Easter morning and more than the required amount was raised. It is the largest Easter collection ever taken from an American congregation. Dr. Huntington ought to be able to name his own salary in that or any other church.

According to no less authority than President Bradley of the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse companies there is a shortage in the whisky market and there will be a still further advance in prices. Whisky consumption is steadily on the increase in spite of the frequent assertion that the drinking habit is on the decrease.

The farmers of the Dakotas are complaining of the delay in receiving seeds from the government this year. They say that in all probability they will be received, if at all, too late for planting. The department cares not whether they are planted or not as long as they are sent out.

New York has a "Get-Together" club composed of a thousand representative men and women, who are studying the economic and social problems of the day. The consensus of opinion is that these problems are serious and demand instant and radical attention.

It is said that Attorney General Knox gives up a salary of $50,000 a year as attorney for the steel trust to accept one of $8000 from the United States. Do you believe it?

It is no wonder that the Topeka judge who said that drunkenness was a disease and not a crime, ran thousands ahead of his ticket at the recent election.

The supreme court is certainly taking plenty of time to decide whether "the constitution follows the flag." It should be a well digested decision.

When public sentiment takes its gloves off, it is a dangerous thing to trifle with, sagely observes the Washington Post.

And now a great copper trust is proposed, second only to the steel trust. Of course, Rockefeller will be in it.

LINES TO A LAUGH.

Detroit Journal: Generally speaking, a workman is known by his tools, but in the case of a political worker it is doubtful if his tools know him as thoroughly well as they think.

Philadelphia Press: Cholly—I'm told that Miss Peppwey expressed the opinion that I look like the czar.

Miss Sharpe—Well, I believe she did say you looked as if you "had been shot at and missed."

Chicago Tribune: "She's not bad looking," observed the unemotional young man. "But she hasn't any money."

"What does a girl with hair like that need of money?" exclaimed the other youth, gazing after her with his soul in his eyes.

Indianapolis Press: "After all," mused Aguinaldo, as reported by the new wireless telegraph, "it is better to be a live star boarder than a dead martyr."

So saying he signed, and Freedom giggled convulsively as Aggie fell.

Detroit Journal: We could scarce believe our senses.

"Yes," said the savant, "this apparatus for measuring time is extremely delicate! By means of it we are enabled to cognize the interval during which Mr. Rockefeller's income is one dollar! Actually!"

How perfectly staggering, in thought. It sueggsts magic, in fact.

Chicago Tribune: Finding the sentinel deaf to all entreaty, the young subaltern who wanted to take a stroll through the Filipino village near which they were encamped dried the Masonic sign of recognition upon him.

"That's all right," said the soldier on guard, "but you couldn't pass here without a permit if you were Hiram Abiff himself."

Mark Twain's favorite ballad begins:

You will understand this little song of mine.

THE DESIDERATUM.

In Philadelphia they inquire:

In Boston you must make it plain
You have an intellectual brain.

In New York you must show th' amount

In Baltimore you must proclaim
The women queens, in beauty's name.

In Brooklyn you will find a friend
If only you his church attend.

In Washington they give you grace

—Boston Globe.

In San Francisco they demand
That, being called, you show your hand.

In Denver they are so polite
That you must either drink or fight.

In Omaha they merely grin
And murmur: "When did you roll in?"

But in St. Louis they exclaim:
"Where is it from that you have came?"

In Joliet they always say:
"How long do you expect to stay?"

A Question of Size.

Indianapolis News: The alleged shortage in the Manilla commissary department is placed at $15,000. Is this a "small matter?" What would Gen. MacArthur call a big affair?

His Taking Ways.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Aguinaldo has taken the oath, but this will hardly satisfy us entirely. Aguinaldo's reputation is that of a man who would take anything not nailed down.

Pay Roll Slides Through.

San Francisco Call: The Hawaiian legislature, with all its bluff and bluster, noise and nonsense, has compensated for its many sins of commission by one virtue of omission. It has passed half of its legal life and has adopted only one bill.

What the Traffic Will Bear.

Philadelphia Record: Freight rates from New England on west-bound traffic have been advanced for all classes of merchandise, with the naive explanation that the Traffic association managers believe that the differential lines are in a position to compete successfully for business at the advanced rates—that the shippers, in other words, will stand another squeeze. In the new community of interest there's no such thing as letting up until the last cent of "what the traffic will bear" shall have been ascertained.

Wealth Runs to Books.

Detroit Free Press: Modern wealth seems to run to books. Carnegie is giving millions to libraries and J. Pierpont Morgan is putting fortunes into rare books. One of his recent purchases was the only copy of Faust and Schoeffer's "Psalter" in private hands, and he paid $42,000 for it. He already has one of the finest private collections in the world and in connection with his enormous railroad transactions is arranging to erect a costly fireproof library for the accommodation and security of his treasures. The undertaking is in the nature of a trust, after all.

Proctor as a Prophet.

Philadelphia Ledger: Senator Proctor returns from Cuba assured that the constitutional convention and the people of Cuba will be brought to accept the terms of freedom laid down by congress. We should all rejoice after the manner of a highwayman who is relieved of the necessity of shooting his victim by the latter's submission. At the same time it is a great pity that the American people, who would like to be honorable, are compelled to share responsibility for an absolute violation of the promises we made at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war.

Rising and Falling Credit.

Indianapolis Journal: During the past two weeks British consols have vibrated between 95⅞ and 96, and a dispatch says there is no prospect of a material rise. The consols are British 3 per cent national bonds, and are guarangteed by all the revenues at the command of the British government. A year ago consols sold in London at 101¼, and a short time before they were quoted at 104. The costly war with the Boers has hurt Bhitish credit. At the time the censol was selling at 96 our 3 per cents were quoted at 111¾ in New York. United States 3 per cents sell considerably higher in London than the British 3 per cents.

Spanish War Claims.

Springfield (Mass.) Republican: The Spanish war claims amount to a very fair figure, when added together. The sum of $20,000,000 is asked by the various claimants for losses of life and property during the period of Cuba's revolution. The appearance of Mr. Ruiz, with a claim for $75,000, recalls the case of her husband, the dentist, who was killed in a Havana prison during the Weyler regime. Five of the claims are for more than $1,000,000 each. It will be the patriotic duty of Mr. Chandler, of New Hampshire, the president of the claims commission, to scale the $20,000,000 down about one-half.

DAILY STORY.

An Old Maid's Strategy

BY JEFFERSON KYLE.

(Copyrighted, 1901, William R. Miller.)

Between the ages of 18 and 24 Sarah Jane Bascomb had a beau. That is, a young man accompanied her home from singing school one evening. During the next two years an old bachelor called to see her. One Sunday night a bashful boy escorted her to a church festival and a widower almost saw her home from prayer meeting. Between 25 and 28 nothing happened to Sarah. That is, no one asked for the pleasure of her company anywhere or directed her thoughts toward matrimony. Sarah noticed that other girls had beaux, and that other girls got married, but she wasn't envious or impatient. In due course of time, as she figured, the right man would come along and all would be well. She was aroused from her complacency with a shock. One day she overheard her mother saying to her father:

"Well, Samuel, our Sarah Jane is 29 years old and still on our hands. I've given up all hopes of her ever getting married."

"She's homely and awkward," replied the father, "but if she was sharp she could catch somebody for all that."

"But she ain't sharp, and there's an end of it. She's just got to be an old maid and sit around like a bump on a log. If there were forty marriageable men sitting on the fence in front of the house she'd let 'em all escape."

"If she hasn't got a beau to come sparkin' around, it saves wood and candles," sagely observed the husband, "but I dunno—I dunno. Don't seem natural for a gal to grow up and not have fellers spookin' around. Mebbe I wouldn't mind the candles and wood if they'd come along."

Sarah Jane had a dim idea that she wasn't handsome or attractive, but it had never occurred to her that girls fished for husbands and needed to be sharp to secure one. The words of her parents were a revelation to her, and she sat down in her room to think things over. She was thinking for a whole week before she had arranged her plan, and her mind was so preoccupied that her mother complainingly observed to the father:

"Samuel, I don't know what on earth ails our Sarah Jane. She's becoming as stupid as a last year's squash. If she hadn't had mumps and measles when a child I should think she was coming down with 'em."

It was coming spring and the ice on the river was breaking up. Homely and awkward though she was, Sarah Jane was a fair skater and had used the ice a great deal that winter. She knew the river for several miles, and she knew something of the supporting power of a cake of ice when adrift. One evening, after the ice had been abandoned by all others as dangerous, she took her skates and set forth. She did not put the steels on her feet when she reached the river, but hiding them in a safe place she picked up a board and walked out on the ice. There was a stretch of it still clinging to the shore, but after she had jumped up and down a few times the jar broke off a large cake and she was afloat. Yes, Sarah Bascomb was afloat on a river at least fifty feet wide and four feet deep, and the wind was blowing all of five miles an hour.

The old maid ought to have shouted for help, but she didn't. It wasn't time yet. She sat down on her board and went drifting into the darkness and to unknown perils without so much as a prayer to heaven. She drifted past the cooper shop, past the tannery, past the foundry, past Johnson's wheelbarrow factory, and if any stray villager saw her he imagined that it was only an old barrel on its way to the far-off ocean. Sarah Jane had drifted two miles before she rose up, cast the board from her and uttered a piercing cry for help. The mighty river, with its mighty four feet of water took a bend here, and on one of the bending banks lived Farmer Raymond. The farmer had a son George of about Sarah Jane's age, and on several occasions, mostly in church, she had detected him looking at her with more or less admiration. People had wondered why he didn't get married, but as he was always failing off the barn, getting kicked by colts or breaking out with boils, he had delayed the important event. As the old maid's cry went ringing through the darkness she wondered if George Raymond was at home and had his boots on, and as the cry was repeated she wondered if he would think it the wail of a cat and pay no heed, or recognize it as the voice of a woman in peril and at once haste to her relief.

Sarah Jane had good lungs and George had good ears, and at her third scream he came dashing to the river's brink. By this time the current had carried the cake of ice to shore, but she did not step off as she might have done without wetting her feet. On the contrary, she maintained her position and sobbingly asked to be saved. George Raymond had never saved anybody's life, but he knew how it ought to be done. He stood on the bank and called out words of cheer. Then he flung off his coat and hat and dashed out upon the cake. It was only a small dash, but it proved that he had only been waiting for an opportunity to show his heroism and was a good deal of comfort to Sarah Jane, whose feet were now getting cold and the end of her nose looked red. In less time than it takes to protest a promissory note he had seized Sarah Jane around the waist and carrying her as lightly as if she had been a barrel of lard he mounted the bank and dumped her down on a soft spot of earth and informed her that she was saved. It took her half an hour to realize it, and by that time they were slowly walking back to the village with his arm around her still trembling form. For a novice at the business he did well. For a homely, awkward old maid who had never fished for a husband before, her hook was nicely baited and the line pulled in at just the right time.

Two or three days later everybody knew that George Raymond and Sarah Jane Bascomb were engaged and father and mother Bascomb looked at each ohter in amazement. Three months later there was a marriage, and after the ceremony, and when the happy bridal couple had gone to the circus as their bridal tour, Mrs. Bascomb looked at her husband in awe and mystery and whispered:

"Samuel, how on earth did Sarah Jane do it?"

"That's what I'm thinking on myself," was the reply. "It jest goes to show that you may think you know a girl like an open book when you don't really know a tarnal thing about her."

LIZARD IN HIS STOMACH.

Iowa Man Relieved After Suffering Eight Years.

Clinton, Iowa, April 12.—George C. McClusky, of this place, has been relieved of a live lizard 5½ inches in length that has inhabited his stomach for eight years. For three years McClusky has been an invalid and has suffered greatly. When taken sick he weighed about 170 pounds and a few weeks ago when he was taken to St. Louis to be operated upon, he weighed but 90 pounds and could not walk without help. The doctors said he had a tumor in his stomach and he went to St. Louis to have it removed.

He was kept without food for three days, during which time the lizard became so restless that its movements could be observed on the outside of the body. On the third a piece of poisoned bread was forced down McClusky's stomach. This the lizard ate and soon died. A strong cathartic relieved the patient and the lizard was cast out, but for three or four days McClusky's condition was considered hopeless.

The lizard was carefully examined by naturalists and they say it is at least 8 years old. Mr. McClusky says that about eight years ago, when fishing, he laid down on the bank of the river and drank from among a pile of stones. He swallowed something but did not know what it was, but supposed it was some vegetable substance.

"MEDICS" HAVE A FIGHT.

Peacemaker Has Five of His Ribs Broken.

Chicago, April 12.—Two classes of the Northwestern university medical school at 2421 Dearborn steret, engaged in a battle at the entrance to the amphitheater. One man was dangerously injured and nearly a score have bruises and torn clothing.

During the battle a corpse was snatched from the demonstrator's table and was tossed over the heads of the participants. Peter Mathius, the janitor, who tried to stop the fight, was crushed between two football wedges. Five of his ribs were broken. Professor W. S. Hall interfered and he was seized from behind and thrown over the heads of the men and landed outside of the line of battle.

Coats, hats and furnishing wear enough to stock a small store littered the entrance to the amphitheater after the fight.

HER SON-IN-LAW'S SON.

Michigan Woman, Aged 69, Gets Fourth Husband.

Prescott, Mich., April 12—Mrs. George P. Bowen, of Reno, aged 69, after having been married three times and borne fourteen children, has tried matrimony again. Her fourth husband is James C. Smith, of Churchill, 22 years old, a son of one of her sons-in-law, William H. Smith, who, six years ago, then a widower of 65 and a father of ten children, wedded Miss Maggie Emma Gunn, aged 20, her daughter by her second marriage.

X-RAY FOR CANCER.

Oakland Doctor Thinks It Is a Sure Cure.

San Francisco, April 12.—Joseph Cairn Simpson, the horseman and turf writer, who suffered for years with a malignant cancer of the face, is cured. Dr. J. H. Selfridge, of Oakland, who treated Mr. Simpson, is thoroughly convinced that the X-ray is a cure for cancer.

ALUMNI BANQUET

University of Michigan's Former Students Have a Feast.

Presence of President James B. Angell Is the Feature.

He Talks of Michigan's Great Educational Institution.

The Duluth-Superior Alumni association of the university of Michigan held its first annual banquet at the Spalding last evening, and the affair was a pleasing one in every way. There are a large number of business and professionel men at the head of the lake that formerly attended the Michigan university, and nearly 100 of them were present last night to participate in the festivities.

Dr. A. W. Ryan officiated as toastmaster and announced that the association would first dispose of a little business before opening the program of the evening. A little time was taken for the selection of a president, F. A. Patrick and Dr. A. W. Ryan both declining to act. No further action was taken, and Dr. A. W. Ryan will hold over another year. The other officers selected were as follows: George Clithero, of Superior, vice president; J. H. Whitely, secretary; H. A. Dancer, treasurer.

DR. JAMES B. ANGELL.

The presence at the banquet of President James B. Angell, who for twenty-nine years has been at the head of Michigan's magnificent educational institution, was a matter of extreme pleasure to the old students of the university, and as he arose to speak he was greeted enthusiastically by the college yell, led by Dr. J. E. Browers, who graduated in 1864:

"U. of M. Hu-Rah! Hu-Rah! U. of M. Hu-Rah! Hu-Rah! Hu-Rah! Hu-Rah!"

Michigan! Michigan! Rah! Rah! Rah!"

President Angell's remarks were confined principally to the university, its progress and recent improvements. Its total income, he said, is $500,000 per year. The attendance is steadily increasing, and this, President Angell believes, is due to the rapidity with which the Northwest is being settled up and the increasing number of those people that are able to give their children a college education. Notwithstanding all that has been said of Cultured New England, said President Angell, the proportion of students attending the colleges of the north central states, as Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota, is greater than that of the New England institutions of learning. President Angell referred to the distinguished men in public life who once attended the university of Michigan, and mentioned in particular the late Senator Cushman K. Davis, to whom he paid a splendid tribute. The aim of the institution, he said, had been to make solid, substantial men, men that were fit to battle the problems of life successfully, and from what has been accomplished in the past he feels that the efforts have been attended with great success. In his concluding remarks, President Angell expressed his satisfaction and pleasure in attending such occasions, and said that the institution of which he is at the head always strives to keep in touch with those that have gone out from it.

Ex-Senator Charles A. Towne, the next speaker, spoke eloquently for a few minutes. Mr. Towne paid a splendid tribute to President Angell and the great work of the institution that he represents. He spoke of civic duty and said that where there are thousands of men that will rush up to the cannon's mouth in the heat of battle, there are not so many that have the moral courage to do what they think is right along civic lines.

Other interesting talks were made by Dr. A. C. Taylor, who responded to the toast, "A Medic of '74;" Mrs. Francis Scott, a member of the first woman's class to graduate from the institution, responding to "The Co-Eds;" Mrs. William E. Chandler, of Superior, "The Alumni," and Judge William A. Cant, "Post Graduate Problems." The banquet was brought to a close by the rendition of another college yell.

Following is a list of the members of the association:

Howard T. Abbot, F. D. Adams, Dr. William R. Bagley, Mrs. W. R. Bagley, J. H. Bennett, J. Bond, C. M. Ross, Dr. A. J. Bradden, Mrs. A. J. Braden, J. H. Brigham, W. A. Cant, D. G. Cash, J. SIDE PATHS.

Law Which Is For the Benefit of Wheelmen.

Wheelmen of this county will be interested in the text of a bill passed by the legislature at the present session, designated to provide for a system of bicycle side-paths. It is applicable to this county, and to any county having more than 50,000 inhabitants, and in a very short time steps will be taken to make it effective here. The law provides for the appointment of "side-path commissioners" and for the construction and maintenance of side-paths.

Upon the petition of 200 resident wheelmen of the county the county board shall appoint five persons, each of whom shall be a "bicyclist," to constitute a board of side-path commissioners, giving to each city and to one or more villages a representation as nearly as practicable in proportion to the estimated number of bicyclists residing in such localities. The terms of office are to be five years, arranged so that one commissioner will go out each year.

This board is authorized to make side-paths along any public road or street of the county, for which purpose the written approval of the county board is necessary, as well as that of the village and city authorities when the paths run through such cities or villages. The paths are to be not more than ten feet or less than five feet wide, and shall be built within the limits and along and upon either side of such thoroughfares. The board is to adopt a form of license badge, emblem or device suitable to be affixed to a bicycle, and to be known as a "bicycle path license." These licenses are to cost between 50 cents and $1, and are to be good for one year. Nobody may ride on the paths without such license affixed to the left side of the front fork of his wheel.

The license fees are to be deposited with the county treasurer and credited to a side-path fund, upon which the commission may draw warrants signed by a majority of the board. The money may be used for no other purpose than to repair and construct side-paths and necessary expenses in carrying out the law. The county board may loan the commission money with which to buy licenses, but it must be repaid out of the first receipts.

Animals may not be permitted to trespass on the path, nor may any person obstruct or injure it. Neither may any wheelman ride a bicycle in a dangerous or reckless manner upon them. Violations of any of these provisions constitute a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $5 to $25 or a jail sentence at the rate of $1 per day in case the accused does not pay the fine.

A BIG TRUST.

To Include Chief Copper Mines In United States.

New York, April 12.—John D. Rockefeller, Henry H. Rogers, Lewissohn Brothers, James Stillman and Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, and their associates, are planning a gigantic copper trust which will be second only in capital and influence to the great United States Steel corporation.

A combination has been effected with Senator Clark, who, it is said, has withdrawn from his alliance with the Heinze interest and will turn over his United Verde mine and his other great Montana interests to the trust.

No new corporation will be formed. The Amalgamated Copper company will increase its capital stock to a sum sufficient to embrace all the present companies.

It is said that the mining companies to be taken in are as follows: Amalgamated Copper company, controlling the Anaconda Copper Mining company, the Colorado Smelting and Refining company, the Parrott Silver and Copper company and the Washoe Copper company; the Calumet & Hecla Copper Mining company; the United Verde; the Boston and Montana company; the Butte and Boston company; the American Smelting and Refining company, controlling the following: The Guggenheim smelting interests, the United Smelting and Refining company, the Omaha and Grant Smelting company, the San Juan Smelting and Mining company, the Pueblo Smelting and Refining company, the Hannuer Smelting company, the Consolidated Kansas City Smelting and Refining company, Pennsylvania Smelting company, Globe Smelting and Refining company, Bimetallic Smelting company, the Germania Lead works, Chicago and Aurora Smelting and Refining company and many other concerns.

The capital stock of the companies in the new trust is as follows: Amalgamated Copper company, $100,000,000; American Smelting and Refining company, $100,000,000; Calumet and Hecla Mining company, $2,500,000; the United Verde Junior Copper Mining company, $3,000,000; Boston and Montana Consolidated Copper and Silver Mining company, $3,000,000; Boston and Montana Consolidated Copper and Silver Mining company, $3,750,000; Butte and Boston Consolidated Mining company, $2,000,000.

The United States Smelting company will be the selling agent of the trust.

IS REPORTED DEAD.

Some Doubt However of Demise of McCook.

Seattle, April 12.—Col. J. C. McCook, United States consul for the Klondike, whose dangerous illness was announced in Dawson advices a few days ago, is reported dead by the White Horse Tribune of April 4. On that date the paper published what purported to be a Dawson special to the effect that the consul had died of pneumonia. However, the same day the White Horse agent of the White Horse & Yukon railroad told A. J. Morris, of Dawson, that the announcement was premature, that Col. McCook was still alive, but at death's door. Col. McCook is said to have contracted pneumonia while returning to Dawson from his home.

GRANDFATHER CLOCKS.

They Cost From $80 to $800 According.

"I suppose," said a man acquainted with the clock trade, "that of all the mechanical contrivances produced in the world the one of the most world-wide common use is the clock," says the New York Sun. "I do not know of any land in which clocks are not sold. There are many people, in one country and another, buying clocks for use as such who cannot tell the time by the position of the pointers on the dial but only by the strike; and then we come to peoples who can tell the time by reading the dial as well. Nevertheless, substantially all of the clocks exported are striking clocks.

"In this country of all the clocks in use probably one-half are strikers, with the proportion of strikers increasing.

"Everywhere there are more clocks used now than ever before, and everywhere more in proportion to the population. In plenty of households where in old times there would have been seen one or two clocks there would be found now three or four or half a dozen.

"Clocks were never before so cheap as now. This is due to competition and to greatly improved processes of manufacture. You can buy a very good sort of alarm clock nowadays for 75 cents, and from 75 cents clocks range in price up to $700 or more, this for some of the finest of the grandfather's clocks.

"Nowadays clocks are made in almost endless variety. There are simply hundreds of styles, and hundreds of new styles are produced yearly, a corresponding number being dropped. A manufacturer will have twenty or thirty staple styles which are of steady sale, and which he produces year after year. The rest are the productions year by year of designers constantly employed, who are all the time getting up new patterns and new designs in finish and ornamentation.

Perhaps half the clocks sold in the country are of metal, this including most of the alarm and other smaller clocks. The popular demand now is for a showy, ornamental clock for the money, and this demand is met. There is little demand now for fine shelf clocks in cases of simple designs in fine woods.

"Then there has been a common improvement in clock bells, which are now, in all sorts of clocks, more melodious than formerly. One would be likely to find in these days, in any clock not designed solely for utility, as for instance, an alarm clock, a pleasing, musical stroke.

"There is greater demand now than ever before for grandfather's clocks, which are made in this country in large variety and sold in considerable and constantly increasing numbers. A good clock of this kind, striking the hours only, can be bought for $80. From that they run in price up to $700 and $800, and perhaps more.

These clocks are all made in old styles, colonial and Dutch, with more or less variations perhaps, in details and in elaboration of finish, but still characteristic in style. The cases are made of fine woods beautifully finished, and the clocks themselves are admirable examples of American clockmaking art; good for generations.

"Many of these clocks are equipped nowadays with tubular bells, whose form makes it possible to put inside the clock case virtually any number that might be required. These tall clocks strike the hours, many of them the quarters, and many are provided with bells upon which may be struck Westminster or Whittington chimes.

"Some have a switch, by the turning of which the clock is made to strike either set of chimes that may be preferred; or by the turning of the same switch the chimes may be made silent. The chime bells in many of these clocks are most musically melodious; while the big bell upon which the hours are struck has the deep and mellow tone of a great bell far distant.

"Some of these bell arrangements are distinctly modern, but the original form of the clock is preserved, and very many of these grandfather's clocks that are made today are in every way most satisfactory and delightful productions.

"Some fine grandfather's clocks are made in England. Marble clocks and some gilt and other ornamental clocks are imported from France.

"Of clocks considered in general there are more made in this country than in any other. Taking all the clocks made here of one kind and another, the American production of clocks amounts to thousands of clocks daily, with this output all the time increasing. The next greatest producer of clocks in general is Germany, whose product is about a third less than that of this country; its product, like that of this country is also increasing. We sell clocks literally all over the world, and more of them than any other country does, with Germany, however, everywhere competing."

NOT UP TO HIS IDEALS.

During Lord Dufferin's term as governor general of the Dominion of Canada he made a tour of the then little known west. The trip was a long and tedious one. The Canadian Pacific railroad being unfinished, much of the journey had to be made by the ordinary, old-fashioned stage, says the Evening Wisconsin.

When British Columbia was reached the news quickly spread among th various tribes of Indians that the representative of the "great mother" across the water was in their country. One of the more important chiefs announced his intention of visiting the camp of the white men. Accordingly, gorgeously arrayed in buckskin, richly ornamented with bead work, and wearing the traditional feathered head dress, he approached the camp.

Dufferin, dressed in an old tweed hunting suit, which bore numerous evidences of the close proximity to camp fires, and wearing a ragged, unkempt beard, did not present a very imposing or prepossessing appearance. He was seated on the ground and holding over the fire a forked stick on which a venison steak was impaled.

The Indian approached and asked that the "mighty chief" be pointed out to him. He stared at the governor-general for a moment, then walked slowly around him. A look, in which scorn, incredulity and commisseration were cautiously intermingled, gradually overspread his features.

"Oh, hell!" he ejaculated, and with great dignity walked away.

LEPROSY ENDEMIC

Over Two Hundred Cases On the Island of Teneriffe.

Beggars Met Displaying Limbs Without Fingers or Toes.

Washington, April 12.—The existence of about 200 lepers on the islnad of Teneriffe, Canary Islands, has been officially reported here by United States Consul Berliner, at Teneriffe. He says there are three distinct classes of leprosy on Teneriffe island, namely, lepra arabum, lepra elephantisais and lepra tuberculosis. The disease diverges into two main varieties, the spotted and the nodular. The report is based on personal investigation and the assistance of physicians and says:

Leprosy is somewhat endemic among people here, on account of their eating a good deal of fish, often putrid, and their general uncleanliness.

As being contagious it is generally discredited here, but in my opinion it is very infectious. In former years Spain had established a colony at Grand Canary for lepers. They were housed there, but had perfect liberty to wander about with the restriction that they must stop at the house built for them. In course of time this law became a dead letter and gradually they spread over the different islands.

At Santa Cruz de Teneriffe, the capital, there are (from personal knowledge) twenty-two lepers, fifteen of whom are men and there are also some children of these unfortunates. They are given a place about fifteen miles from the city hall, where they live, which is called Barranco Santo. There are also living at the same place about 200 people besides, nearly all beggars. You meet them at all times of the day in town or road, asking alms and exposing their limbs. Many have no fingers or toes, and they hobble along and a more pitiable sight is hard to imagine.

Officially it is not recognized that leprosy exists on these islands.

The provincial government at Teneriffe has lately built a large building about two miles out of town. The building has two separate wings, one for insane patients and the other for lepers.

United States Consular Agent Swanstrom, on Grand Canary island, in an accompanying report says that leprosy there is decidedly decreasing. There are fifty patients in the hospital at Las Palmas. A few families infected with the disease live in their own homes.

SAYS SHE WAS DRUGGED.

Novel Defense to a Charge of Bigamy.

New York, April 12.—Mrs. Alice Gladys Castleman Burns, an actress living in Brooklyn, has been indicted by the Hudson county grand jury in Jersey City for bigamy. The woman was married to Walter F. Burns on Sept. 23, 1900, but shortly after his marriage Burns learned that she was the wife of another man, having been wedded to Peter Brauemlich three years before.

The woman admitted her bigamous marriage, but claimed that she was under hypnotic influences, and the effect of frequent administrations of a drug deprived her of all sense of right and wrong. Until recently Burns was a member of the importing firm of Overton & Burns in this city. He is reputed to be a millionaire and is now in business in the West. Mrs. Burns claims to be a member of a prominent Kentucky family and the daughter of Brig. Gen. John Partridge Castleman.

TO WRITE ON CROKER.

French Political Scientist to Prepare a Book.

New York, April 12.—Richard Croker's life is to be put in print for the entertainment of the French. Achille Viallate, editor-in-chief of the Annals of Political Sciences, Paris, and also a collaborateur on the Revue de Paris, intends to prepare for the Revue a biography of the Tammany chief and has written to Gustavus Myers, author of "The History of Tammany Hall," for documents bearing upon Mr. Croker's life. "Mr. Croker's character will be of interest, I believe, to the French readers," M. Viallate says.

WAR IN A QUARTET.

Musical Family Broken Up By Divorce Suit.

New York, April 12.—A decree of absolute divorce has been granted to Franz P. Kaltenborn, organizer of the Kaltenborn quartet, from his wife, Louise Kaltenborn, an accomplished musician. Kaltenborn is given the right to marry at will, but this privilege is denied the divorced wife. The first public intimation of trouble between the Kaltenborns came on Jan. 14 last, when the quartet disbanded. Mrs. Kaltenborn then accused her husband of "professional jealousy" and charged that he had deserted her, taking with him a $6000 Stradivarius belonging to her father.

MILLION DOLLAR HOTEL.

Chicago Man Gets a Contract at Toronto.

Toronto, Ont., April 12.—Toronto capitalists have bought the site for a $1,000,000 hotel to be called the King Edward. The contract for the building and furnishing has been awarded to William A. Issley, of Chicago, formerly of the George A. Fuller company. He will have associated with him W. Horn, of Toronto. The hotel is to be opened in the autumn of 1902.

A PREACHER SUED.

Singer Wants Heavy Damages For Slander.

New York, April 12.—Mrs. Martha Dorlon Lowe, the Brooklyn contralto, has brought suit against Rev. Charles Herald, of the Bethesda Congregational church, charging slander. She has seven causes of complaint, and asks altogether $55,000. Mrs. Dorlon Lowe alleges that March 3 the minister preached a sermon directed against her in which he said:

"As far as I can judge from my study of the Bible I cannot see how any Christian woman can sing the praises of God in a church while being engaged in the business of singing in the vaudeville theater. And for a woman to enter the vaudeville straight from the service of the church, while at the same time engaged in church work, is not consistent with Christianity. It is almost blasphemy."

March 17, it is alleged, Rev. Mr. Herald published in a Sunday newspaper an article even stronger in denunciation of her.

A FINE SANCTUARY.

St. Louis Christian Scientists to Build Temple.

St. Louis, Mo., April 12.—The Christian Scientists here are laying plans to build a temple to cost $100,000. They have already purchased a suitable lot fronting on one of the most fashionable thoroughfares of the city. The Christian Scientists, besides being numerically strong, count among their believers several wealthy and prominent men who have consented to make handsome contributions. It is expected that the new temple will be modeled something after the structure to be built in New York.

"BOBS" AND THE BUN BOY.

A pretty story is told of Earl Roberts and a bun boy in the employ of the refreshment contractors at Basingstoke station, says the London Mail. As the train conveying Earl Roberts to London drew up in Basingstoke station the little bun boy rushed eagerly forward to see the distinguished general, but was roughly repulsed by one of the railway officials. The incident, however, did not escape the kindy eyes of "Bobs." Noticing the look of deep disappointment on the lad's face Earl Roberts called him to him, bought one of his buns and gave him a penny for himself.

RECRUITS REQUIRED

Complete Change In Plans For the Reorganized Army.

Must Be Eighty Thousand Men Before First of August.

Prospect of Getting So Many Recruits Is Not Good.

Washington, April 12.—Gen. Young's pessimistic views of the future of the Philippines from the standpoint of peace are already operating to bring about a complete change in the plans of the administration regarding the size of the reorganized army. The president is now convinced that it will be absolutely necessary to maintain an army of 60,000 men in the archipelago for at least a year to come, and has urged the war department to double its efforts to recruit the organization to at least 80,000 men before the first of August next.

The president appreciates that this is a gigantic task in view of the disheartening experiences the recruiting officers have met with wherever they have opened stations, but he says that the work must be done and that the quota must be raised. Adjt. Gen. Corbin is of the opinion that the president's commands cannot be carried out in the time he has fixed, but nevertheless he is going to redouble the force of recruiting officers and in other ways endeavor to secure a larger number of acceptances of the vacancies in the ranks of the new army than have been obtained up to the present time.

Senator Mark Hanna has excited the envy of the members of the cabinet by the frequency with which he is dining and entertaining the president without inviting them to the feasts. Three times during the present season the senator has had the president as a guest at his home, and not on one of these occasions has he invited a single member of the cabinet to be present.

Usually when the president is invited out the prospective host always takes the pains to ask at least three or four members of the cabinet to be his guests with the president. In fact it is an unwritten rule that this procedure shall be followed. Senator Hanna, however, is apparently above the rules of Washington's official society and does as he pleases in entertaining his friend the president.

On the occasion of his last dinner to Mr. McKinley he invited Attorney General Knox, but as Mr. Knox had not arrived in the city at the time, the function had to be carried out without him. Members of the cabinet would be glad to go to the dinners at the home of so powerful a politician and withal so genial a host as Senator Hanna, especially when their immediate chief is there, and they do not like the idea of being omitted from the list of guests.

KEEPING TRACK OF VACUUM.

There was once a chief engineer in the British navy, a patient man who had spent so many nights by the bedside of an expiring boiler, which never expired, but kept on bursting blood vessels and getting a death rattle in its thousand throats, that he had become reconciled to knowing that he would be called upon to stop leaks at all hours of the day and night for the rest of his natural life, says Youth's Companion. His only envy was the man who could sleep undisturbed through the whole night. This man was Bulstrode, chief engineer of another ship.

One night the assistant engineer sent a man up to Bulstrode to report the gradual disappearance of hte vacuum in the air pumps. Knocking at the door the man sang out:

"Please, sir, the vacuum is decreasing!"

The answer came back in a drowsy voice:

"All right. Report to me if it gets lower."

Half an hour later the man again rapped at the door.

"The vacuum is much lower, sir."

"Very good. Tell me if it gets still lower."

After another half an hour:

"Mr. Bulstrode, the vacuum's gone, sir."

"All right; report to me if it comes back."

THE SEA ANEMONE.

When first placed in an aquarium the sea anemone will at the slightest touch contract its flower-like tentacles instantly; but in the course of a few months it changes in this respect greatly, and becomes decidedly tame, says the New York Sun.

When fed the food is conveyed to the anemones because they can't go after it. In nature the sea anemones would attach themselves to rocks or timbers in a tideway or wherever they could get food from the passing waters. In captivity in an aquarium the food is handed down to them in the water on the end of a stick, to be shaken off within reach of their tentacles. At first they shrink from the stick at the slightest touch, but after a time they get to tame that they are not frightened by it at all.

The sea anemone has some power of motion. It changes its location by shifting itself along on its base, and it may attach itself almost anywhere. While they might cling to rocks over which there was an unbroken sweep of water, they might fasten to a rocky shelf where they would be protected by an overhanging cliff. The tame anemones in an aquarium would be those attached to rocks situated in open water.

An anemone that had remained in a sheltered place under some projecting and protecting rock, would still remain sensitive. The one out doors, so to speak, would know the stick and not be alarmed by it; the one that lived in that sheltered place under the rock would still draw in its tentacles at the slightest touch.

The small and delicate little coral polyps found off the Jersey coast do just the same thing. From the top of the body of one of these polyps spring the waving tentacles with which it gathers in its food.

Like those of the sea anemone, they are flower-like in appearance, so that these coral polyps are like so many little marvelous flowers; or, where there are many of them gathered together, they might be likened to a forest of the tiniest imaginable willows. But one of these little trees with a trunk half an inch in height, and with branches spreading out from it, will sink suddenly at a touch, into the shallow structure it has built on the rock and quite disappear from view.

In captivity, when it is first sought to feed them, the coral polyps would all shrink thus, the forest going down with a wave-like movement and disappearing before the rod on which the food was placed. There would now seem to be, over the surface of the rock but the pattern formed by the myriad of contiguous round formations, each with a radiating star like figure within it and each figure marking the home of a polyp.

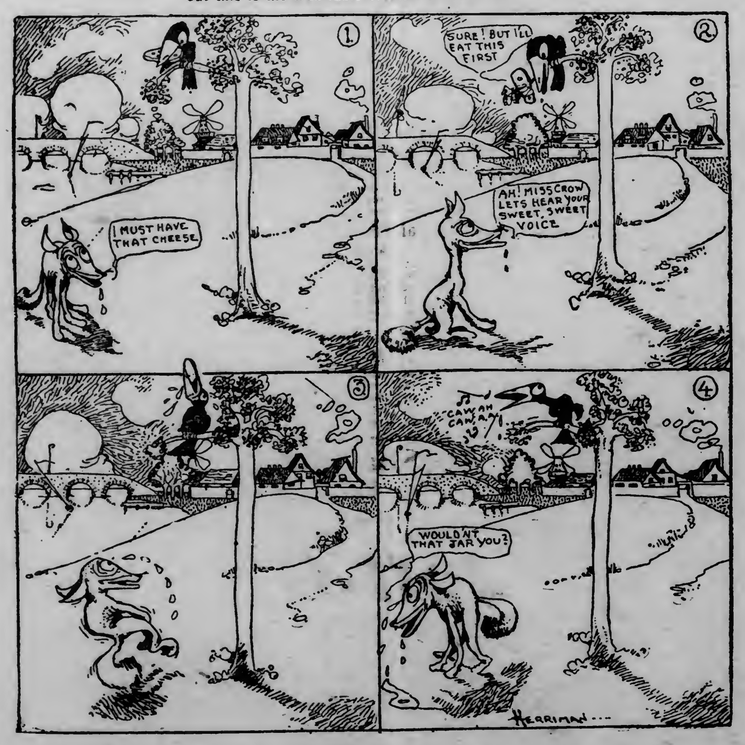

After a while, this time being measured perhaps in minutes, more or less, the polyps would rise again, a few at a time, and all to disappear again at a touch. But that would be when they were new in captivity. Gradually they become less and less sensitive, until, like the sea anemones, the coral polyps do not shrink.

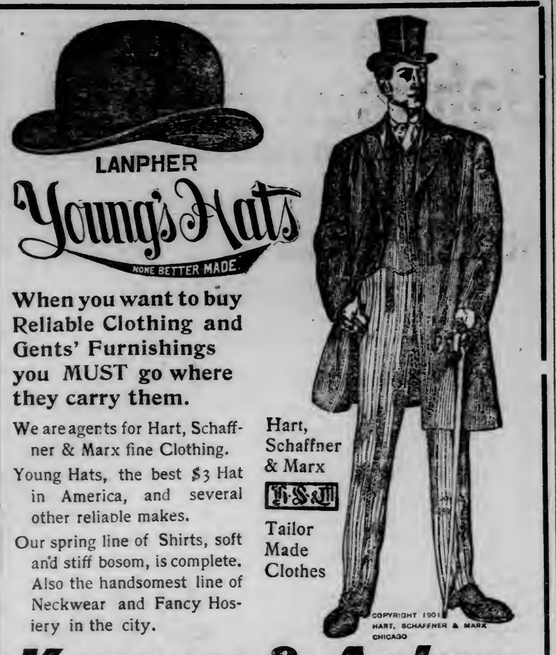

When once the whole forest went down at the mere waving of the stick in the water near them, now they all stand up, not afraid. Like the sea anemones, they can be crowded down, but they are not now disturbed by anything in the usual care of them. Like the sea anemones, the coral polyps have become tame; and so they, too, seem now to show intelligence.

THE DAKOTAS.

Steward Milstead of the Asylum Prosecutes William Gerke.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—William Gerke, of Eldridge, was arraigned in Judge Pearson's court charged with embezzlement. He furnished bonds and the case was continued to April 15. The complainant is Steward John Milstead, of the asylum, who alleges that the defendant, a tenant on his farm, embezzled hay to the amount of twenty-five tons, valued at $175, and also forty bushels of potatoes. The defendant has hitherto borne a good reputation.

Fargo—There are many witnesses to be heard in the case of Herman Robertson, who is charged with murdering a child born to Mrs. Emma Jasmer a few hours after its birth. Robertson was employed by Mrs. Jasmer, who is a widow, and is said to have been the father of the infant. The only testimony taken yesterday afternoon was that of Dr. Salvage, who attended the woman. He testified that he left the mother and child in good health at 3 o'clock in the morning, and the crime is said to have been committed about three hours later. This morning there was a legal scrap over the efforts of the state to get in the testimony of Constable Forest to whom Robertson is said to have made a confession.

The annual protest on the Fargo water supply is on. The ice has gone out of the river and there is a slight rise, making the water as muddy as the Missouri. It contains the sewage from Wahpeton and Breckenridge and a choice mixture of defunct animals. The citizens generally use artesian water, but a few drink the vile stuff that comes through the city water pipes. It is an absolute menace to health. The supply is so limited that there is little sentiment in favor of a filter. There is an unlimited artesian supply, and flowing wells can be secured within the city limits.

Grandin—M. C. Kenyon and Miss Mabelle Baylee, of Caledonia, N. D., were united in marriage at Hillsboro by Rev. F. D. Whittles. Mr. Kenyon is 59 years of age while Mrs. Kenyon is but 24. The groom is an old resident of the state and a prominent farmer.

Grafton—Mayor-elect W. C. Leiskow was inducted into office and in his inaugural address outlined his municipal policy very clearly. He announced that all laws and ordinances now on the statute books would be enforced.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell—Dakota University has selected her debators for the debate with Yankton college at Yankton on May 6. The men are Gustavus Loevinger, J. M. Devers and Lauritz Miller, the alternate being H. J. Bushfield. The subject is "Resolved, that the Negro Should Not Have Been Enfranchised." Mitchell has te negative.

S. S. Bately is besieged with applications from farmers over the state for his remedy to prevent smut in corn. He has just returned from a trip to Charles Mix and Douglas counties, and has arranged with leading farmers to give his remedy a good test. He does not hold that it is an absolute preventive, but it has so worked in wheat and it ought to be good on corn. Mr. Bately will make no charge for the remedy until it has proven its worth.

Kimball—B. M. Coffee, the blind man who several weks ago deserted his family here and eloped with his sister-in-law, has returned and been forgiven for his conduct by his wife and received back into the bosom of his family.

Huron—Frank Adams, in jail here for the past three months, charged with sending obscene letters through the mails, has been liberated, the evidence not being sufficient to insure conviction.

Pierre—The state land department has just issued thirty-nine patents to final purchasers of land. Of these, six went to Union county; six to Moody county; six to Lincoln county; five to Yankton county; ve to Clay county; three to Minnehaha county; three to Brookings county; two to Lake county, and one each to Turner, Bon Homme and McCook counties.

Deadwood—Albert Maltner has just returned from Lakeside, Neb., where he owns a large cattle ranch. He says that during the last blizzard the losses to cattlemen were very large. One man lost a drove of 100 cattle out of a herd of 400. Many cattle were driven against barb wire fences in the blinding storm and were trampled under foot. Most of the cattle perished from want of food.

Sioux Falls—Adjut. Gen. Conklin, of the South Dakota National Guard, has advised Lieut. E. F. Hawkins, of this city, who organized one of the two companies being formed here, that he had decided to allow the two Sioux Falls companies eighty-two men each, instead of fifty, as at first contemplated. It is probable that both companies will be mustered into the service next week.

TO FREE RUSSIA

From Reactionary Influence Was Lagowski's Intention.

St. Petersburg, April 10 (Wednesday.)—MM. Witte and Muravieff, ministers of finance and justice respectively, attended the trial of Lagowski, the provincial official who recently attempted to assassinate Privy Councillor Pobledonostzeff, procurator general of the holy synod. The trial, which resulted in a sentence of six years' penal servitude in Siberia, with loss of civil rights, was held behind closed doors. Lagowski, in his defense, declared it was his intention to free Russia from the reactionary influence of the procurator general.

TO DRAFT TREATY.

Hay and Pauncefote Will Arrange New One.

New York, April 12.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: Active negotiations are in progress between the United States and Great Britain relative to the Isthmian canal treaty. If it can be accomplished, Secretary Hay and Lord Pauncefote will arrange a draft of the treaty before the departure of President McKinley and his cabinet on their Western trip the latter part of this month. When Lord Pauncefote sails for England in June, he will take with him the draft agreed upon with Secretary Hay.

PRIMARY LAW

Provisions of New Primary System.

Next Spring's Election First In Duluth.

The new primary election law will work a great change in the system of nominating candidates for office. The party caucus and delegate convention is now a thing of the past and the people will rule if the law works as it is intended to. The occupation of the professional delegate, who too often disposes of his vote to the highest bidder, is gone The voting of men at both Republican and Democratic caucuses is also a thing of the past, for the caucuses of both parties are held at the same time and a voter can vote but one ticket.

Another feature of the new system and one of the finest is that the voter can express his choice upon candidates for each and every office. Under the present system two or three men can make a combination and run a set of delegates. The voter may desire one man and not the others, but he is powerless. For instance, in this county last year the present sheriff, auditor and treasurer formed a combination on the Republican caucuses. Any man who wanted W. C. Sargent to get the nomination had to vote also for Odin Haiden and L. H. Whipple. If he wanted Mr. Halden he had to vote for Mr. Sargent, and if he wanted Mr. Whipple he had to vote for the other two. There was no way to express his individual choice. He had to take all or none. If this new law had been in force, he could vote for whom he wished for each of the offices.

The law which has been adopted is much the same as the Hennepin county law, which was in force last year in that county, and which is generally conceded to have worked well, although the professional politicians very naturally were dissatisfied with it. The people generally were well satisfied with it, however. The act covers all elective positions, except state offices and town, village and special elections. Elective members of school boards, park boards and library boards in towns and villages and in cities of 50,000 inhabitants or less are also excepted. This does not apply to Duluth and therefore school directors in Duluth will come under the provisions of the act. The law is not effective until Sept. 1, however, so that this year's school election will not come under it. Next spring's city election will be the first test of tae law in Duluth.

The primary or nominating election is on Tuesday seven weeks before the election at which the candidates nominated are to be voted for, and the same day is fixed as the first day of registration. By voting at the primary election every voter registers for the election. There are two more days to register after the primary election, however. The primary election takes the place of the first day as now fixed by law.

The method of securing places on the primary ticket is extremely simple. The aspirant for office is obliged only to file his name and pay a fee at least twenty days before the primary election day any person who may be eligible to the office which he seeks may file with the secretary of state, if the office he seeks is voted for in more than one county, or with the county auditor if it be voted for in only one county, his name together with an affidavit setting forth that it is his bona fide intention to run for the specified office. If the office sought be a district office the candidate is required to pay to secretary of state a fee of $20 if voted for in a single county to the county auditor a fee of $10. Candidates seeking nomination to offices for which there is no compensation are not required to pay either fee. The secretary of state divides the fees he receives among the counties represented.

The secretary of state is required to send the names of qualified candidates to the county auditors nineteen days before the primary election. Fourteen days before the primary election county auditors are required to group the names of the candidates filed with them acording to political parties, and have separate tickets printed for each party. These he is to post in his office and to publish twice in the official paper of the county. The ballots are to be printed on white paper and be exactly alike in color and size. The name of the party is to be printed across the top in plain black type. The law gives specific directions for the printing of the names and the form of the ballot.

There is a change from the method of voting fixed in the Hennepin county law, in that a man who came up to vote received a copy of the ballot of each party and could only vote one. If he voted more than one the ticket which had the most crosses on was the one to be counted. Under the provisions of this new law a man in asking for a ballot must, if challenged, swear that it is the ticket of the party with which he affiliated at the last election, and who candidate he generally supported and with which he proposes to affiliate at the next election. It might be said here that this provision has been criticised. The assertion is made that it does away with the secrecy of the ballot if a man is obliged to disclose how he voted at the previous election. The object of the Minneapolis law was to prevent this. The law does not, however, require any more than does the old primary system when a man could be made to declare his party affiliations if he was challenged.

The method of voting is exactly the same as employed at general elections under the Australian system.

The ballots are to be canvassed by the judges of election, in the same manner that the ballots cast at general elections are canvassed, except that the tickets of the several parties shall be canvassed separately. The tally sheets compiled after the Australian system are to be returned to the county auditor and by him to a canvassing board, which is required to meet two days after the primary election.

The canvassing board shall consist of the clerk of the district court, the county auditor, the chairman of the board of county commissioners and two justices of the peace of different political parties, to be selected, if possible, by the judge of the district court; provided, however, that none of the members of the board is a candidate for nomination at the primary election. In that case he shall be replaced by an elector, to be selectde by the judge of the district court.

If the canvassing board finds a tie, the decision is to be by lot, to be determined then and there. The successful candidates are to be notified of their choice, and their names will be placed on the official ballot if they deposit the fee required by law.

No person who was a candidate for a nomination and was defeated can have his name placed on the official ballot. Independent candidates can still be place on the ballot, however, under the provisions of the general election law. Vacancies can be filled by the party committees.

The ballots for the primary election are to be printed so that no candidate will have an advantage by having his name placed at the top. The Hennepin county law provision stands in this respect. When the ballots are printed the tickets are to be changed as many times as there are candidates in each office division on the ticket, and as nearly as possible an equal number of ballots shall be printed for each change. After the ballots are printed, and before they are cut and blocked, every ballot is to be changed so that no two alike shall fall together. This means that no man will gain an advantage through the voter who crosses the first name he comes to.

COPPER COLORED ROCK.

Library Excavation Is Disclosing Some.

The library board may be compelled to establish a guard around the excavations for the new Carnegie library building to keep off mineral prospectors. Up in the northeast corner of the lot the workmen have exhumed a quantity of stone and earth discolored by copper, and it is as green as the rock and earth around any copper mine. In the present state of the copper mining industry, when stocks are selling like hot cakes so long as they have any relation to copper, it would not be surprising to see a squad of rapacious copper miners assault the works and drive off the city's workmen, taking possession of the copper lode that may underlie the library site and filing a mining claim.

If the discolorations are from copper, as would seem likely from their color, it is probable that they come from float copper, of which large quantities are found everywhere in this locality. At the same time there is no way of telling that a little more digging would not develop a copper mine of great value. People who have noticed the excavations have all permitted their fancy to run riot, picturing the library board stopping work on the library to explore for copper, finding a gigantic copper vein, working it until a few millions had been gained and then using the money to put up the best library building in the country, to pave Superior street with tiled flooring or silver dollars and even to build another addition on the court house in case it was decided the county had some interest in the mine.

Death Claims Her.

Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Thayer and daughter Marie will return Saturday from Wausau, Wis., where they had been called to what proved to be the last illness of Mr. Thayer's widowed mother. Though troubled with an affection of the heart and although 75 years of age, no alarming symptoms had developed at the time Mr. Thayer arrived at her home, but on Saturday last she turned suddenly worse and passed away at 4:30 p. m. All her surviving children were present at her bedside during the several hours which preceded final dissolution, the survivors being as follows: L. E. and S. E. Thayer, of Everett, Wash.; N. B. Thayer, of Duluth; William Thayer, of St. Louis, Mo., and C. B. Thayer, of Wausau, Wis.

The funeral took place Monday following and was largely attended. The following named friends of the deceased acted as pall bearers: Walter Alexander, vice president National German-American bank; A. H. Grout, cashier First National bank; S. M. Quaw, president Quaw Lumber company; A. A. Bock, clerk circuit court; James Young, manager Wausau Boom company, and William Collins.

Settlement Arranged.

C. D. Graves, the railroad man charged with sidetracking funds belonging to the Switchmen's union, has been released from custody and the charges against him dismissed.

County Attorney McClintock yesterday moved a dismissal of the case in the municipal court, saying that it was very doubtful if the evidence was strong enough to convict.

Mr. Graves' friends say that his arrest was an injustice and a mistake, and that a satisfactory settlement had been arranged with the union before the arrest was made. It is claimed that it was the result of a misunderstanding.

Testimonial From England.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years. She is now quite well." It is a great pleasure to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be able to publish testimonials of this character. They show that great good is being done, pain and suffering relieved and valuable lives restored to health and happiness by this remedy. It is for sale at Boyce's drug store.

IN MICHIGAN.

Old Resident of Westmeebish Died of Smallpox.

Sault Ste. Marie—Pierre Trombley, an old resident of this county, died Wednesday of small pox, at his home at Westmeebish, twenty miles from here. This is the first death from the disease in this locality. There are many cases throughout the county at present and every effort is being made to keep it away from the Soo.

Ironwood—William Rodda and Frank Davis, members of the Thirtieth United States infantry, returned home from the Philippines this morning and were given a public reception, being escorted from the station to the Armory by the Third regiment band. Both men served through the Cuban and Philippine wars. Davis was promoted from private to lieutenant while in the Philippines. Detachments of the Thirtieth "hiked" over 4000 miles and took part in sixty-seven engagements.

Iron Mountain—The Cuff mine will soon be operating again. A few men have been put to work making the necessary minor repairs and within a few days a small force of miners will be employed. Men will be taken on as there is room for them and it is said that before the end of sixty days there will be 200 hands at work.

James O'Connell, of Iron Mountain, one of the members of Company L, recruited largely in Marquette county, which served with the Michigan volunteers all through the Spanish-American war, died at Menominee as a result of malarial fever contracted during the campaigning.

A. M. LaCourt and James Carey, of Sagola, were in Iron Mountain this week. They have been cruising on the Fence river and they report that the wolves have been playing havoc with the deer.

Menominee—John Rochon, one of Menominee's early settlers, but of late a merchant at Wauceedah, was killed by a south-bound Northwestern train at Spies avenue in Menominee. He was walking on the track and he did not observe the train until it was nearly upon him.

Capt. John Dunn, an aged mariner, who sailed one of the first boats that entered Menominee harbor, died very suddenly at the Newberry hospital for the insane, of fatty generation of the heart. Capt. Dunn was sent to that institution some two weeks ago. He was 84 years of age at the time of his death and his first trip into Menominee harbor was made some forty years ago. He was sailing into that port when the first sawmill was built and he loaded lumber from its saws onto his craft by means of lighters. Capt. Dunn was on the water nearly sixty-one years and he spent the best part of his life at Menominee.

TALKS ON CHINESE

Dr. Angell, Former Minister to China, Discusses Them.

The Present Trouble and What Has Caused the Same.

Solution of Problem Is To Change the Chinamen's Ideal.

Dr. James B. Angell, former minister to China, and now president of the university of Michigan, spoke before the pupils of the high school this morning at 10:30 on "China." In commencing his address he paid a thigh tribute to the Duluth high school graduates with whom he had come in contact at the university of which he was president, and spoke of the high standard of scholarship which the graduates of the Duluth high school have always shown. Continuing, he said:

"I fear had my subject been left to my own choice that this old heart of mine would have induced me to speak of something in the line of education, but I was asked to speak on China, and although the subject may seem to be a very remote one to you young people, it is important that all of us know something concerning the political questions which are disturbing the great powers at the present time, and I will attempt to make clear the nature and the causes of the conflict between China and the European powers.

"In the first place I want to remind you of the fact that the Chinese have been for a long time, and are now, averse to the coming of foreigners into their country. They resisted it as long as possible and when in 1841 the English entered Canton they did it with force and were opposed to the last by the Chinese. They say that they have lived some 5000 years in peace and prosperity and want to continue in the same way. This fact is really at the bottom of the trouble.

"In 1858 England and France made war on China, and the Chinese were compelled to sign treaties giving them certain privileges. They insisted on being allowed to trade at certain ports, to travel in certain limits and a number of other things on the same order. Although the Chinese signed this treaty they did so much against their will and were deeply offended at that time. They were not allowed to levy duties on imports above 5 per cent, and this was to be collected in silver. Since that time silver has declined to about one-half its original value and thus the Chinese really get only about 2½ per cent duty on the imports which are brought into their country. Furthermore inasmuch as the Chinese courts are very bad according to our customs, by that trenty it was arranged that a foreigner when he broke one of their laws must be tried in a court composed of the consuls of his country.

"The foreigners have gone into many towns instead of the few prescribed in the treaty. A few years ago there was an upheaval in the Chinese court and they decided to teach their young men western sciences and educate them in newer ways, but the conservatives were shocked and put the idea down. A few of the progressive young men were beheaded and the life of the emperor was threatened for awhile.

"The foreign powers have taken so many ports that it looked to the Chinese as if they would eventually take all of their country. The great empire of Russia first seized Port Arthur; then England laid claim to Wei-hai-Wei. Germany seeing the advantages of her rivals, claims Kian-Chou. Japan rushed upon Foo Chow. France, Italy and even the lesser nations of Western Euorpe all demanded ports. This has created a great deal of dissatisfaction and you can easily see that an uprising was inevitable.

"It has been said that the missionaries were responsible to a great extent for this trouble, and consequently were first set upon when the uprising took place. They were the first attacked, because they were foreigners, and are scattered far and wide over the country, and so were the most exposed to attack. The uprising was not so much against religion as it was against foreigners, and as a matter of fact the missionaries were not the first killed, but the early victims were the men employed in the construction of railroads. The most sacred religion to the Chinaman is the worship of his ancestors; they have protected and cared for the graves until the whole country is one vast graveyard, and it is impossible to run a railway through the country without disturbing countless numbers of graves. To this the Chinese are very much opposed, and the war was brought on by threats of the foreigners to disturb the graves and thus, to their mind, to bring ruin and unhappiness to themselves and their descendants.

"Not a great deal is known of the Boxers, that organization which has been doing all the mischief. They were originally a body of men bound together for civil protection, but their leaders had some strange power over them, something like hypnotism, which made the men fanatics, and, thinking that they were invulnerable to the guns of the foreigners, absolutely fierce and fearless. In the first place, the movement was not so much to kill the foreigners as to frighten them away from the country, but two things arose which swelled the movement to what it is. One was famine, and there were millions of men starving who joined themselves to the movement in the hope of gaining some of the plunder which would revert to the Boxers. Then there were in China, as in a great many other countries, large bands of lawless men who gathered around the body. The dowager empress, in reality the leader of this movement, availed herself of these men to make the attacks on the embassies. This was, even from their own standpoint, a great blunder on their part, and hurt them in their struggle a great deal.

"There are two solutions offered in regard to this difficulty, one being that the European powers portion the empire off among themselves and divide it up. This, in my judgment, is impossible and can never be done. Should Russia take the northern quarter, Great Britain the central part, and France the southern section, as has been suggested, Britain will have 100,000,000 hostile people to placate, and I have but to point to their experience in dealing with the tiny nation of Boers to illustrate my belief that England, at least, has no stomach for an aggressive experiment with the countless and indomitable people of the Celestial kingdom. A European war would be brought on in a very short time, and if there is anything that Europe does not want at the present time it is just that.

"The other solution is that the powers allow the present emperor to retain his rule. China is loyal and will obey her ruler to the death. The dowager is a puzzle to many people and they cannot understand how it is that the emperor obeys her mandates so completely. This is due to the fact of the strong filial respect of the Chinese and although the emperor is only her adopted son, he must regard and obey her as his mother. You can't displace her and she will have to be borne with until the merciful Providence makes some other disposition of her.

"It gives me pleasure to say that I believe our government is pursuing the best policy in China today. Namely, the policy of peace and magnanimity and justice. Of course, we must fight against such menaces as marked the outbreaks of excited Orientals during the past two years. But we want no part of China. We should take no advantage of that ancient, great and kindly people in its hour of disaster.

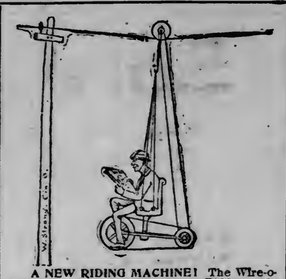

"The government is much like the old confederation in this country before the war of independence. There are eighteen provinces ruled by a governor who is appointed by the emperor for a term of three years, and who has the power of life and death over his subjects. When the emperor wants money or troops he asks for them from this governor. Some times he gets them, some times he does not.

"By some means—and I say it seriously and after years of service in China and years of further study of the question—the solution of the Chinese question by some means lies in getting the ideal of the Chinese fixed upon the future instead of upon the past. The Christian ideal, the promise of the future is the whole spirit of advancement. The ideals of the Chinese, are yet fixed upon the national patriarchs of 5000 years ago. They are ever looking backward. They are anchored to the past. Brave, patient, industrious, frugal, of fine physique, quick intelligence and imbued with a profound and an admirable quality of filial respect, they are forever looking backward instead of forward. Their fundamental trouble lies in the fact that their ideal is behind them."

DEADLY GERM.

Lockjaw Baccillus Lurks In Dirt or Most Anything.

The lockjay bacillus is a formidable beast. It is inseparable from dirt. Down on Long Island, where the tetanus bacilli most do congregate the microbe ought to be used as a bugaboo for scaring dirty youngsters into reformation. Dirty hands, lurking bacillus, a scratch or cut—and the mischief is done, says the New York Sun.

The unenlightened public persists in associating all lockjaw with rusty nails, and quite refuses to accept the bacillus that was formally introduced in 1885. As a matter of fact, the nail's only function is the making of a wound through which the poison can enter the system, and an oyster shell or a toy pistol can serve the purpose of the bacillus quite as well as a nail.

Why this bacillus should be especially prevalent in certain localities scientists do not explain, but the fact remains. The Shrewsbury river is a happy hunting ground for the beast, and a clam shell taken out of the mud down there may inflict a scratch that will mean death. All Long Island mud is full of bacillus, and the fact that Long Island children ilve to grow up would speak volumes for their cleanliness were it not that exposure to sunlight kills the bacillus immediately, and so the sun fights for the preservation of the Long Island species.

New York itself isn't inhospitable to the tetanus bacillus. In 1899 there were ninety deaths from lockjaw in New York city and its vicinity, many of the cases being due to accidental wounds made by toy pistols on the Fourth of July. The pistol wounds in themselves would not have bothered the small boys more than on any other Fourth. Probably there were no more of the wounds than there usually are on that glorious day; but, unluckily for the owners of the pistols, lockjaw bacilli were out in tremendous numbers that season and seized the opportunity offered by the pistol wounds. No boy can celebrate the Declaration of Independence properly and keep his hands clean, so there was no escaping the lurking foe.

Last year two cases of lockjaw in this city were due to abrasions on the head, caused by diving in shallow water. The diver in each case struck his head against something sharp on the river bottom, and the bacillus in the mud entered through the cut, causing lockjaw within a few hours.

A wound upon the face or head, if affected by the bacillus, will be more dangerous than a wound upon the foot or hand. The poisoning develops more rapidly and is more violent in form. A large majority of lockjaw cases originate in the feet or hands of the sufferers, because those parts of the body are more exposed.

In warm climates the disease is more common than in colder localities, not because the germ revels in heat, but because the feet are less heavily shod in warm countries and are more liable to injury.

For the same reason, in the South more negroes than Caucasians have lockjaw. The negro makes a practice of going barefoot and his feet are frequently scratched or cut. In one recent mild case of tetanus poison, caused by stepping upon a nail, a New York doctor analyzed leather scrapings taken from the shoe, around the point of incision, and found them full of tetanus bacilli which had been imbibed from the nail in its passage through the thick leather. Had the patient's foot been bare the germs would have entered the wound.

Another New York doctor tells of several cases of lockjaw which he has treated, while at his summer home, and which have been caused by the introduction of the tetanus bacillus through wounds made by the horns of catfish.

"I have known of tetanus poisoning from cuts made by fish fins and from lobster claws and from oyster or clam shells," said the doctor to a Sun reporter, "and I'd advise anyone to suck a wound like that vigorously, the instant it is made. The poison isn't ordinarily on the fish or the shell, but it is on the dirty hands, and a fisherman is pretty likely to have dirty hands and to get occasional scratches in handling fish."

The mosquito carries the tetanus bacillus along with other germs, and in localities where the bacillus is plentiful cases of lockjaw for which no cause could at first be found have been traced to mosquito bites.

In violent cases of lockjaw the poison toxine may develop and produce alarming symptoms within a few hours after the entrance of the bacillus into the blood, but in most cases the development is slow at the outset. The trouble shows first in a soreness and stiffness of the side neck muscles, and gradually slight spasms of the muscles appear.

These spasms increase in vibience and extend to the muscles at the back of the neck, and then to the entire spine and trunk. The abdominal and chest muscles become rigid, and the spine is ordinarily curved. The face takes on grimaces, with the forehead furrowed, the angles of the mouth drawn back into a grin, and the jaw firmly set; and this facial expression, in connection with the hoarse noise made by the sufferer, renders a case of violent tetanus poisoning one of the most frightful sights in the range of medical experience. Chronic convulsions sweep over the body, at intervals more and more frequent, as the case becomes more violent, the slightest noise or jar, or even a current of air, being enough to bring on one of the spasms. It is only during these convulsions that the patient suffers pain.

Mild cases may last several weeks, but in acute cases death occurs in from one to seven days, and then mortality is very high. It is estimated that about 90 per cent of the cases end fatally, and among infants there is no recovery. The mortality from lockjaw is, however, decreasing, as a knowledge of the nature of the disease becomes more widespread and physicians learn how to treat it.

Analysis has shown that tetanin poison is much like strychnine poison in its effects, though much stronger, and various experiments have been made to find an antitoxin that will neutralize the poison. While the results have not been thoroughly satisfactory, prompt inoculation with tetanin antitoxin is undoubtedly valuable in many cases and should always be tried, if it is possible.

Thorough cauterization of the wound is necessary, and, if done promptly, will ordinarily prevent danger; but the difficulty is that the wound is often too slight to occasion any notice or alarm until after the toxin has developed and the harm is done.

When the disease is once fully developed the physician has a difficult proposition upon his hands. The patient is relaxed by the use of chloroform, and hypodermic morphine and bromide injections are given. Hot applications are sometimes beneficial. The patient is kept in a dark room and absolutely quiet, the slightest excitement being enough to bring on convulsions. If there is no tooth missing in the patient's closed jow it is not unusual to extract one, so that a stomach tube may be passed through the opening and nourishment given that way. Artificial respiration is often necessary. A case developing before the sixth day has chances of recovery; but if the trouble does not appear until after the twelfth day, there is comparatively little hope for the patient.

KIND HEART.

New Story of Grant's Loyalty to an Old Friend.

"And that reminds me," said Governor Crittenden, "of what was to me one of the most interesting and touching stories I ever heard, having its origin prior to and its sequel following the war, says the Indianapolis News. It was told me by Samuel J. Churchill, a brother of Gen. Thomas J. Churchill of Little Rock, Ark., some time in the '70s. The other person involved in the story became, during and after the rebellion one of the greatest characters of the century. Churchill resided in St. Louis prior to 1860. He was a state senator, and some time in 1870 he returned to Kentucky and was chosen secretary of state. His associates in St. Louis were Edward Bates, Hamilton Gamble, Samuel T. Glover, Gratz Brown, Frank Blair and gentlemen of that class. I much doubt if there is one reader of this paper who ever knew him or ever heard of him unless it be Judge John W. Henry or Col. Van Horn, whose knowledge and memory of Missouri cover many years, many stadia of history, and still he was one of the prominent political and social leaders in St. Louis and Missouri in those days—genial, cultivated, 'brave as a man is, soft as a woman.' He was in affluent circumstances, and he was never forgetful of the obligations of wealth.

"Prior to the war there was living near St. Louis a man in the most humble circumstances. Though a soldier by instincts and education, and a graduate of West Point he was daily engaged in selling and delivering cordwood to whoever would buy—small quantities from a time-worn wagon, drawn by two horses of inferior grade. This man was, in address, above his business.

"There was something about his appearance that indicated that he was more than an ordinary man. He often sold Churchill his small loads, and was often told by him that when he failed to sell to others before night to drive his load to his woodshed, throw it in and call for his pay next day. By that association the two became well acquainted, one always delivering good wood, full measure, and the other very prompt, polite and liberal in his payments, besides extending other hospitalities so well understood and cultivated between gentlemen of their class.

"The rail splitter, the toiler on the tow path and the cartman of today may, in the fullness of time, become the president of the United States.

"There is no bottom rail now; all are on top. Time, in its ceaseless course, drifted us on and on from that early day, and soon, from the very nature of our government, civil war sprang up in all its wild passions and devastation, embittering friend against friend, dividing the benefactor from the beneficiary and causing the world to stand aghast at the conflict. The temperaments of those friends—the man of riches and the wood seller—led them far apart for more than four years. One cast his destiny with the South the other with the North. As the war progressed this young wood seller gradually unfolded the qualities of a great military leader, and was advanced from grade to grade, from section to section, from Vicksburg to the Potomac, from the Potomac to Richmond, and from Richmond to the presidency, ever equal to any demand of any emergency. This man was Ulysses S. Grant, one of the greatest military men the world had ever seen, one whose greatness of head and heart increased to the utmost limit of life, whose dying words fell from his pen—

"Like roses from the lips of Angelo,
And angels might stoop to pick them up."

"As the war progresseed this woodvender became greater and greater, and his ante-bellum friend became poorer and poorer, his property being seized, sold and confiscated, so that when the cruel war was over he had no place he could call his home, no resting place for his weary feet.

"Some years after the surrender of Gen. Lee, Churchill concluded to return to his old Kentucky home for the purpose of starting again in life, and, if possible, gather up once more the lost threads and regain the lost dollars. In going homeward from Richmond he passed through Washington, where, from the politeness of his nature, he felt it to be his duty and pleasure to call on his old friend, Grant, who in the strange legedemain of fate, politics, brains and fortune, had become president. Churchill said he approached the White House with fear and trembling, not knowing how he would be received, if, indeed, he were received at all.

"This apprehension showed he did not know the rich qualities of head and heart of his old friend. The reception room was full of senators, congressmen and others awaiting their time and turn on the outside, to be called into the president's room. This alarmed him that much more, fully confirming his belief that he would have to leave without seeing the president. With all these doubts he still ventured to send his card in. As soon as the president saw the name upon it he came to the door himself, called him 'Sam,' and invited him in in a spirit that showed him to be not only great in reputation, but also great in heart. As soon as the door was closed between them and the outside crowd, the president told the servants to notify the others he would not see them for half an hour.

"Churchill told me he did not know what was to become of him. All kinds of thoughts were rushing into his head, such as prisons, expatriation and other punishments for treason. These were soon silenced as the president said to him: 'Sam, how are you? Sit down and take a smoke. You used to give me the best Havanas when I could not buy; now I want to return some of the past favors. Have you any money? How is your wardrobe? Do you want anything? Do you want an office? Can I be of any service to you whatever? I thing more of those who were my friends when I was helpless, with a growing family on my hands, than I do for all such time-servers as stand on the outside waiting to press me for places.'

"Churchill was overcome by such nobility of sentiment and such generosity, but he replied:

"'I am a rebel, fresh from the Confederate army, and I have too high an opinion of you as our conqueror and as an old-time friend to ask any special favor at your hands. I would accept nothing that would embarrass you in the lines of your own party. I have no right to ask anything; I did not come here for that purpose. I only came to see what changes, if any, had come over the spirit of my old friend.'

"The president replied: I care nothing for all that. There are obligations stronger than politics and ties higher than the recollection of an unfortunate war. Think it over, Sam, until evening Then come and dine with me and Mrs. Grant. If you require Democratic talk she and her father, General Dent, will give you all that sort of thing your heart desires. I will promise you that I will not break up the treasonable camp.'

"I presume many others have heard this story from Churchhill, who is now long since dead. It fully illustrates the two men, the superb greatness of heart and independence of one and the fine sensibilities of a cultivated Southern gentlemen of the other. What was done for the unknown Grant in the days before the war by Churchhill sprang from a magnanimous heart, and what was afterward done by the greatest leader and warrior of an age to the impoverished Churchhill was prompted by a lofty and appreciative spirit.

Grant was always great enough to do what he believed was right, whether for the good of his party or against it. Longfellow has said, 'Great men stand like solitary columns in the city of God.'

"Both men are dead. Conqueror and conquered. Each was a friend to the other when times were rough. Neither left a recollection of memory sweeter and brighter than this I tell of. Such men will meet their rewards."

GREEN TRUCK.

Plenty of It Now In Michigan Street Market.

Those who believe in the efficacy of pieplant as a remedy for blood troubles, and as a cleansing agent for the system generaly, may indulge in the pie of the pieplant to their heart's content, for Michigan street is well supplied with it. Call it rhubarb and it is the same thing, and just as plentiful, just as cheap, and just the Potomac to Richmond, and from Richmond to the presidency, ever equal to any demand of any emergency. This man was Ulysses S. Grant, one of the greatest military men the world had ever seen, one whose greatness of head and heart increased to the utmost limit of life, whose dying words fell from his pen—

Those who believe in the efficacy of pieplant as a remedy for blood troubles, and as a cleansing agent for the system generaly, may indulge in the pie of the pieplant to their heart's content, for Michigan street is well supplied with it. Call it rhubarb and it is the same thing, and just as plentiful, just as cheap, and just as much of a blood remedy, if it has any potency in that line. By the box it is rated at $3 on Michigan street.

Asparagus, which is also credited with some medicinal properties, and spinach, which popular belief credits with similar up-building powers, are also plentiful. As for green onions, supposed to be good for special purposes as well as for general beneficial results, they are present in large quantities, as well as a large line of other fresh vegetables that ought to make glad the heart of the housekeeper, who is often puzzled to invent a change in the household menu. The whole line of the vegetable pharmacopoeia is at hand, and at any rate everything offered is very excellent to eat, and certainly wholesome enough, with tendencies toward health and strength even if the popular ideas of their medicinal properties are over-wrought.

Things are not particularly expensive, either, for this season of the year, and the housekeeper may start out with her market basket—if she uses one—after consulting the advertisements of the retail dealers in this evening's paper, with a clear conscience and content in the thought that she is providing the very best possible food for those in her care.

Strawberries, of the Louisiana variety, are coming in large quantities, and though the price is not down where many people can reach them it is slowly sinking, and the days will not be long before they will be within the means of everybody. Pints are quoted on Michigan street at $3 to $3.50 per case, and quarts at 35 to 40 cents per box. Mushrooms have made their appearance, and they are not tough, leathery and stale, but fresh, sweet, wholesome and toothsome.

Prices are generally a little high on all these fresh vegetables, as might be expected, but not particularly so. Butter and eggs are firm, but supplies are ample enough for the demand.

Bran and shorts are off 50 cents all around, but corn, oats and hay continue unchanged.

LOST THREE FORTUNES.

Kansas City Star: "Can you guess who that man is?" asked an employe of the United States supreme court as a short, stocky, white haired man passed in. "Ex-President Benjamin Harrison?" "No." "He looks some like Harrison." "Yes, but he is not a statesman. That man is Deacon S. Y. White, the speculator. He has a case before the supreme court." "Is he going to argue it himself?" "Certainly. He used to be a prosperous lawyer. He has appeared before the supreme court a number of times. Mr. White has made and lost three great fortunes in Wall street, but he always pays his debts in full."

CORDIAL.

Loubet and Duke of Genoa Have a Love Feast.

Toulon, April 11.—In behalf of the king of Italy, the duke of Genoa today distributed a number of decorations to the French ministers and military, naval and civil officials.

President Loubet spent the early part of the day in making a tour of the hospitals and afterwards received at the town hall delegations from the Toulon societies. He also distributed medals to workmen who had been thirty years in the same employ.

At noon President Loubet boarded the Lepanto, the Italian flagship, and lunched with the duke of Genoa. The latter, in toasting the chief executive of France, said:

"Permit me, Mr. President, to express to you my acknowledgment of the very cordial and sympathetic welcome accorded by France to myself and to the squadron under my command. I shall retain an unalterably happy recollection of the magnificent reception, drink to France and to her armies on land and sea, and I also desire to express my high regard for yourself personally."

Before he resumed his seat the duke touched glasses with President Loubet, and the two warmly clasped hands. President Loubet replied:

"Monsignor, I am profoundly moved by the friendship you have just expressed for the French republic and its president and by the sympathy which you show for its army and navy. It is unnecessary to repeat to you, what are the feeling of the French nation towards Italy. You already know them and I have described them to you. But I wish once more to assure you that we are profoundly touched by the evidence of friendship which his majesty, the king of Italy, has given to France by sending your grand squadron here. I drink to the health of King Victor Emmanuel, to the royal family, to their prosperity and to the Italian fleet. I drink also to your personal health, Monsignor. Just now I noticed in your cabin, the pictures of those dear to you. Permit me to associate them with myself in the good wishes I am now expressing, and to drink to the health of your entire family."

The United States armored cruiser New York, with Rear Admiral Frederick Rodgers on board, arrived at Fort Said Thursday on the way to Manilla.

The British colonial office has received a dispatch from Sir Walter Hely-Hutchinson, governor of Cape Colony, announcing that the bubonic plague is now confined to the Cape peninsula, with the exception of a few cases, one of which is a soldier at Hermon camp, about forty-five miles from Cape Town.

King Charles of Portugal, replying to a number of deputations who had protested against the proceedings of the government in dealing with the Catholic associations, said: "As the king of a Catholic country I will recommend your representations to the attention of my government in order that the question may be settled in accordance with the laws of the country."

The British war office has issued the following special order regarding surrenders in the field: "Any officer or soldier who, when in the presence of the enemy, displays a white flag or other token of surrender, will be tried by general court-martial."

Advices from Gourock, on the Firth of Clyde, says Sir Thomas Lipton has given up the idea of taking the Shamrock I across the Atlantic as a racing partner for the Shamrock II for preliminary trials in American waters. BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A floral parade that will surpass anything of the kind ever attempted in the West is one of the features contemplated for the entertainment of President McKinley when he visits Chicago in June. This novel welcome will take the place of a military display.

The remains of Abraham Lincoln, which have been resting in a temporary vault during the reconstruction of the Lincoln monument, will be removed to the new monument within a few days. The removal will be private, only the trustees of the monument, state officers and representatives of the press being present.

The Wisconsin senate passed the Hagemeister substitute for the Stevens primary election bill by a vote of 19 to 14. It provides for the nomination of only county officers by primary elections. An amendment was adopted making the law optional with counties.

Governor Hunt, of Idaho, Thursday issued a proclamation abolishing martial law in Shoshone county. He reviews the circumstances under which martial law was proclaimed there and sets forth that he has recently made a personal investigation and found the country prosperous and peaceful.

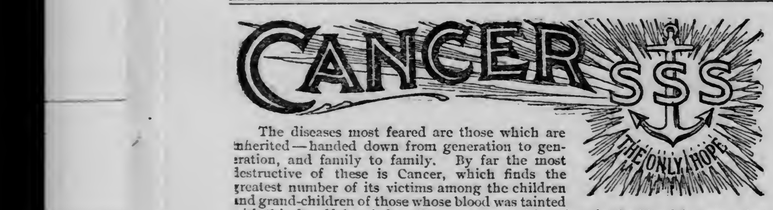

A Monon local train containing many passengers was prevented from crashing through a burning bridge fifty feet high, near Frankfort, Ind., Thursday afternoon, by Milo Hughes, an 8-year-old boy. At the risk of his life he remained on the track until he attracted the attention of the engineer, who brought the train to a stop a dozen feet from the bridge.

Former Assistant Secretary of War Hon. George D. Melklejohn was presented Thursday with a big silver loving cup by his former associates in the department, the contributors including Lieut. Gen. Miles, Adjt. Gen. Corbin and others.

INCREASE STOCK.

St. Paul, April 12.—The Northern Pacific Railroad company will apply to the state authorities for permission to increase the stock of the Manhattan & International Railway company, of which C. S. Mellen is president, from $100,000 to $600,000. The purpose is to absorb the Brainerd & Northern Railroad company. It is the intention of the Northern Pacific to merge the two roads into one, to be known hereafter as the Minnesota and International company.

The diseases most feared are those which are inherited—handed down from generation to generation, and family to family. By far the most destructive of these is Cancer, which finds the greatest number of its victims among the children and grand-children of those whose blood was tainted with this dreadful malady. You may carry this poison in the blood for years, but as the vital powers begin to wane a slight bruise or cut, wart or mole, sore or pimple may develop into Cancer. From middle life to old age is the time when the slumbering poison is most apt to break out, a sore or ulcer often degenerating into Cancer, and Tumors become more progressive and ulcerate through the skin, the sharp, shooting pains causing the most intense suffering.

The Cancer patient naturally grows despondent as one after another the usual remedies fail, and the sore shows no sign of healing. The impurities that have been accumulating in the system, perhaps for generations, cannot be eliminated nor the poisoned blood made pure by salves, washes and plasters. The proper treatment is to purify and build up the blood, remove the cause, when the sore or ulcer heals.

S. S. S. goes directly into the blood, destroys the virus, stops the formation of Cancerous cells and cleanses the system of impurities. What we say of S. S. S. as a cure for Cancer is supported by the testimony of those who have tested it and been restored to health.

Begin in time, don't wait until the blood is so polluted and the system so thoroughly saturated with the poison that no medicine, however efficacious, can check the progress of the disease. If there is a taint in your blood get it out at once, don't wait for some external evidence of it, the appearance of a tumor or ulcer. We have prepared a special book on Cancer which we will mail free. Our physicians are ready to help you by their advice and such direction as your case requires. Write us fully and freely—no charge for medical advice. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Mr. J. B. Arnold, of Greenwood, S. C., writes: "A tiny ulcer came, just under the left eye. It began spreading, and grew worse rapidly, destroying the flesh as it went. As Cancer is hereditary in my family I became thoroughly alarmed, consulting the best physicians and taking many blood medicines, none of which did me any good, when one of our leading druggists advised me to try S. S. S., and by the time I had taken the second bottle the Cancer began to show signs of healing, the discharge grew gradually less and finally ceased altogether, the sore dried up and nothing remains but a slight scar. I feel that I owe my life to S. S. S."

DECIDED FOR HAY

The Story of the Sorrows of An Adopted Son.

History of Colossal Fortune of the Date Robert Edwards.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court of the United States handed down a decision Monday in the case of Whitney vs. Hay, confirming the title of valuable property in this city to the latter.

There is quite an interesting story involved in this case. Some twenty years ago Dr. Richard Piper, who was the pioneer handwriting expert of this country, and who through it and other occupations had amassed about $100,000, took a desperate fancy to Edwin B. Hay, of this city. He pressed upon him an offer to make him his heir, to adopt him as his son, on condition that Hay should take him and his wife to live with him and take care of them until their death. It might seem that this was a pretty good thing for Hay, but it did not turn out to be so.

The old people came to his house and constituted themselves "star" boarders, without paying any board, enjoying, as the summer advertisements say, "all the comforts and refinements of home," having the free run of the establishment and generally making themselves easy. The old lady was affectionate and amiable and not hard to get along with.

The old man was a scientist and a crank, and perpetually occupied in the pleasing pastime of discovering why this is thus. He created a revolution in the Hay household. This went on for years, when the old man built a double house on Corcoran street, to which, however, Hay materially contributed, and the whole party moved into the new house. Hay continued, as usual, to pay all the expenses.

After a while longer the old lady went to her eternal rest. Presently the old man seemed to sour on his adopted son and to forget he had eaten his bread and meat for so many years and slept under his roof. He wanted him to pay rent. Subsequently he went back to Chicago, whence he had come, and until the day of his death never returned to the Corcoran street house.

In the meantime some friends and relations, whom he had not seen since he began life as a poor young man, appeared and exhibited excessive fondness for him. Oblivious of his written promises to make Hay his heir, and disregarding the full equivalent which he had received, he bestowed various sums upon these others, and finally wound up, just before his death, by willing the Corcoran street house to one of them. It is believed he was not in the mental condition to appreciate what he had done.

Hay was in possession, and Hay refused to vacate. The fight was carried into the courts, where it has been going on for three years, until the decision of Monday. All the courts, from the lowest to the highest, affirmed the validity of Hay's claim.

His status being now so satisfactorily established, Mr. Hay says he proposes to carry the war into Africa, and will proceed to institute suit against all those who profited by the old man's benefactions. When he gets through it will end the story of the sorrows of an adopted son.

The history of the colossal fortune of the late Robert Edwards reads like one of Alexander Dumas' finest romances, but the facts are apparently substantiated by incontestable records, and the claimants, it will be seen, are the descendants of well-known families among the early settlers of Virginia Maryland and Kentucky.

The records of Northumberland county, Virginia, show that Robert Edwards, son of William Edwards, of Lancaster county, who married Miss Mary Nicholson Haden, and whose mother was Ann Harrison, daughter of Col. Benjamin Harrison, and an ancestor of the two presidents of that name, was, in 1735, when 22 years old, fined fifty pounds of tobacco for absenting himself from the parish church for thirty days, which fine he reluctantly paid and then "removed from the state to Manhattan Island, N. Y.," where he purchased land and became a wealthy shipowner. In 1783, while New York City was still occupied by British troops, being in ill health and discouraged, Robert Edwards leased his real estate, on which the lower part of Broadway and adjacent streets are now located, for a small consideration and soon after started on a sea voyage, from which, however, he never returned. The lease stipulated that "at the end of the term of ninety-nine years, or twenty years later, as might be arranged between the heirs and lesses, the property, with all the improvements thereon, should revert to his heirs." He died a bachelor, leaving two brothers, Haden and Benjamin Edwards, of Westmoreland county, Virginia, his only heirs.

Benjamin Harrison Edwards, the younger brother, removed to Loudoun county, where he died, leaving children. Haden Edwards, who had charge of his father's estate in Lancaster county, married Penelope Sanford, of Stafford county, and had issue of four sons and three daughters. John, the eldest son, removed in 1780 to Kentucky, then a county of Virginia, which he represented in the legislature of the state, and subsequently, on the admission of the territory into the Union as a state, in 1792, he was elected United States senator. Benjamin, the second son, married in 1784, Margaret Beall, daughter of Ninian Beall, of Montgomery county, of Maryland, and located at Mount Pleasant, in that county. He was a member of the Maryland state convention that ratified the federal constitution and subsequently represented his district in congress. His son, Ninian Edwards, removed to Kentucky in 1803 and became successively territorial governor, governor and United States senator of Illinois. The third son, Sanford, served on the staff of Gen. Marion during the revolutionary war and settled in South Carolina. His oldest daughter married Mr. Morris, of Morrisania, N. Y. His fourth son married Elizabeth Monroe, of Westmoreland county, Virginia, a cousin of James Monroe, former president of the United States. Of the three daughters of Haden Edwards, the oldest, Penelope, married William Pope, a distinguished lawyer, removed to Kentucky and had issue John Pope, United States senator and president pro tem of the senate 1811; Governor Nathaniel Pope, grand father of Maj. Gen. John Pope, United States army, and other children. The second daughter, Mary Edwards, married Hon. William Ashmore, of Kentucky, and the third, and youngest daughter, Elizabeth Edwards, married John Chancellor, a wealthy Virginia planter, whose mother Jane Monroe, was a sister of Andrew and Spence Monroe, of Westmoreland county, and an aunt of former President James Monroe. Dr. C. W. Chancellor, of Baltimore, late United States consul at Havre, France, now residing in this city, is a grandson of John and Elizabeth Chancellor, and the nearest of kin living to the deceased millionaire, Robert Edwards. Judge James Edwards Cantrell, former lieutenant governor of Kentucky, and the late William Haden Edwards, former consul general at Berlin, are also descendants of Haden Edwards and co-heirs to the great fortune.

Interest in this claim of over $200,000,000 has been recently revived by the discovery of important papers, which, it is believed, will enable the heirs to substantiate the claim and push it to a successful issue.

A GOOD START.

London Sporting Times: "She had undertaken to teach me to waltz," he observed.

Then, surveying himself in the restaurant mirror, he readjusted the poise of his hat and pinched his necktie up a little tighter.

"I've only been at it three weeks, but I have already learned where to put my arm."

Here enthusiastic pals congratulated him warmly, and even prophesied that if nothing should interrupt his studies he might reasonably hope to be an Espinosa before De Wet was caught.

MME. YALE'S HAIR TONIC

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

It affords me great pleasure to call the attention of the public to Mme. Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic, which is the first and only remedy known to chemistry which positively turns gray hair back to the original color without dye. It has gone on record that Mme. M. Yale—wonderful woman chemist—has made this most valuable of all chemical discoveries. Mme. Yale personally indorses its action and gives the public her solemn guaranty that it has been tested in every conceivable way and has proved itself to be the ONLY Hair Specific. It STOPS HAIR FALLING immediately and creates a luxurious growth. Contains no injurious ingredient. Physicians and chemists invited to analyze it. It is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary, it makes the hair soft, youthful fluffy and keeps it in curl. For gentlemen and ladies, entirely gray and with bald heads, it is especially recommended.

A SCIENTIFIC MEDICINE.

Dear Madame Yale:—I wish to say a few words in regard to your Excelsior Hair Tonic and Hair Cleanser. I have used both with the best possible results. My hair had been falling out for some time. I had used various remedies with little or no avail. Finally my attention was called to your Excelsior Hair Tonic. I purchased a bottle and began using it. The result was beyond my expectations; after the second application my hair had ceased to fall out, and as I continued my hair seemed to have more life and vigor and new hairs began to come in. After using the second bottle I was surprised to see that my hair was no longer tinged with gray but had returned to its natural color.

Your Excelsior Hair Tonic is certainly a scientific medicine and I believe the only one that treats the hair as a sick member and feeds and nourishes it until it is restored to its natural and normal state of health. I cheerfully recommend it to any one who is in need of a Hair Tonic or Restorer, as I have the utmost confidence in the efficacy of all your remedies.

Respectfully,
MRS. C. L. BROWN,
51 Harper Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Madame Yale's Hair Tonic is sold throughout the world at $1.00 per bottle.

Freak Methods of Education In Chicago's Public Schools.

Children Will Be Taught to Mew Like a Cat.

Fair Teachers Must Go Through the Pantomime Also.

Chicago, April 12.—Freak methods of education in the public schools were illustrated the other morning when forty sets of language lessons were sent out to the schools.

These lessons are in the form of big posters, on which are printed in heavy type the words to be learned by first and second grade pupils.

The method, as explained by W. W. Speer, superintendent of the Third district, is a combination of visualization, auralization and action, especially action. The pupil is shown words, such as "hop," "skip" or "jump." A cadet teacher then proceeds to put the word in action. The pupil imitates her, and, after the whole class spends sufficient time in hopping, skipping or jumping, it becomes language perfect so far as the word in question is concerned.

Superintendent Speer is the author of Speer's arithmetic, by which the third "R" is learned by means of blocks. He says that great care must be taken to prevent children learning to read during the language lessons, as the object is merely to teach them to speak and think.

The system is devised to proceed from simple words to comparatively difficult sentences, such as "Wash your face," "Comb your hair" and "Brush your clothes."

The sight of a pretty teacher going through this pantomime and repeating is said to be a great stimulus to eloquence. There is no question about the enjoyment of the pupils during the lesson. They imitate the actions with the faithfulness of monkeys, and their parents wonder at their talents. Some of the sentences for the first grade are:

"Ring the bell," "Run on your toes," "Half close your shoes," "Play stoop tag," "Ride on a bromstick," "Make snowballs."

The educators engaged in teaching the system say that before two years have gone by pupils will be able to go through appropriate actions when they have such expressions as:

"Lean over your desk. Put the doll to sleep. Shake your left hand slowly. Walk slowly and beat the drum softly. Throw a bean bag at the target. Put your hands in your pockets. Bow to the blue-eyed girl."

The last is a favorite with the boys, and it is claimed they all play favorites.

Beating the drum softly does not come so easy, and shaking the left hand is always attended with the difficulty of distinguishing it from the right.

In addition to these intellectual exercises the children are taught to mew like a cat, bark like a dog and imitate other unique sounds that heretofore have been considered to come instinctively.

The ages of the pupils range from 6 years to 15. Superintendent Speer says the system had the sanction of Max Mueller, the German philosopher, and is of great help to the children of foreigners, many of whom order their boys and girls are not able to read sentences like "It is a cat," may now learn that the idea is not to teach reading, but how to say the words.

The new charts were placed in the school houses yesterday. They cover a course of four school months, and after a pupil has learned to shake hands, bow, jump, dance, laugh, beat the drum, etc., he is supposed to have a fair start on the highway of knowledge.

BURNED PEST HOUSE.

Infuriated Citizens Set Fire to Public Building.

Bradford, Pa., April 12.—This town was greatly excited last night over the burning by a mob of a public building. Three weeks ago a small pox case developed here, the patient being a railway man named William Meyers. The victim was isolated in his rooms in the Armstrong block, the board of health lacking a pest house, and soon recovered.

Later five new cases developed and the board of health decided to secure a temporary pest house. A vacant school house in the Second ward was selected and carpenters and plumbers were put to work fitting it up.

When it became known the people residing near by became greatly wrought up and resolved to make trouble.

Last night at 8:30 o'clock a mob of 300 men and women surrounded the school house. They surrounded the night watchman and held him firm, while the incendiaries battered down a door and set fire to the place. All who tried to prevent the fire were kept back and in a few minutes the entire structure, a large two and a half story wooden building was in flames. Plumbers' tools and other articles in the house were destroyed and the excitement ran high, men and women running up and down the streets crying against the board of health. As the flames rolled and cracked the mob howled its delight. Dire threats were made as to what would be done if police or health officers interfered, but there was no interference. No arrests have been made.

Great Lakes Towing Company Has Maytham Line.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 12.—Attorney G. S. Potter of Potter & Wright, counsel for the Maytham Towing and Wrecking company, announced today that the deal whereby the Great Lakes Towing company absorbs the Maytham line has been closed. The necessary papers are being drawn up, and will be signed today. The acquisition of the Maytham lines gives the Great Lakes Towing company control of the towing business of the great lakes.

Sore Hands

Red Rough Hands Itching Burning Palms and Painful Finger Ends

ONE NIGHT TREATMENT

Soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of CUTICURA SOAP. Dry, and anoint freely with CUTICURA, the great skin cure and purest of emollients. Wear, during the night, old, loose kid gloves, with the finger ends cut off and air-holes cut in the palms. For red, rough, chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, feverish palms, with shapeless nails and painful finger ends, this treatment is simply wonderful.

Millions of Women Use Cuticura Soap

Assisted by CUTICURA OINTMENT, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations and chafings, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used them to use any others, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp and hair of infants and children. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odors. No other medicated soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, viz., TWENTY-FIVE CENTS, the BEST skin and complexion soap, the BEST toilet and BEST baby soap in the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor, $1.25, Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT (50c.), to instantly allay itching, inflammation and irritation and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT (50c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring and humiliating skin, scalp and blood humors, with loss of hair when all else fails. Sold throughout the world.

TEMPORARY RATES.

Vessel Owners Agree on Ore and Coal Rates.

Cleveland, April 12.—All the vessel owners that attended the meeting Wednesday have signed an agreement not to make any freight contracts during the next ten days at less than 90 cents from ports at the head of Lake Superior, 80 cents from Marquette and 70 cents from Escanaba on ore, and 50 cents on coal to the principal ports. The plan as regards season contracts is to pro-rate all such business among the members of the organization. A few owners who did not sign the agreement say they will hold out for the rates named by the pool.

BREAK THE BANK.

The bank at Monte Carlo was "broken" a few days ago. This simply means that the funds of a particular table had to be replenished, says the Louisville Courier Journal. In this particular instance one table had to be supplied with fresh gold and notes three times during the evening, the lucky gambler being a well-known Russian. A great fuss is always made over the race occurring a dog and imitate other sounds that heretofore have been considered to come instinctively.

LOST ITS STRENGTH

Wheat Market Slumps Quickly After a Fair Advance.

Foreign Markets Fail to Reflect Advance Here.

Primary Receipts Light and Clearance Unusually Large.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 12.—Foreign markets did not reflect the advance of yesterday in American markets to the extent that had been expected but nevertheless the markets here were steady and strong until after the noon hour. A sharp break came after that and the market closed very weak, hFe opening at Liverpool was ¼@⅝d higher and the close was ⅛c up. Antwerp closed unchanged and Paris was higher. The Northwest receipts were light and the Argentine shipments show a falling off as compared with a year ago, the shipments this week being 1,344,000 bus against 1,946,000 bus last week. The weather in the wheat country was favorable but this fact had little influence on the market. Primary receipts of wheat were 315,265 bus, and shipments 278,283; last year, a holiday. Clearances of wheat and flour were very large being 1,362,600 bus. Cash business at Chicago aggregated 350,000 bus, of which 50,000 bus was Duluth No. 1 northern. At the seaboard exporters bought 480,000 bus of wheat. Bradstreet reported exports of wheat this week at 6,465,600 bus, last year 2,887,600 bus. The world's visible of wheat according to the Trade Bulletin was 197,-600,000 bus on April 1, against 204,000,000 on March 1 and 192,000,000 a year ago. The Modern Miller says:

"Crop conditions are without material change from a week ago except that reports of insects in the wheat fields have extended further northward from Texas and are now coming from the territories and South Kansas. Outside Texas, however, no damage has resulted as yet in the country east of the Mississippi river where the Hessian fly was prevalent in the fall. The heavy rains and cool weather have caused a backward season."

There was fairly active trading in futures on the Duluth board. May wheat opened ¼c up at 72¾c, sold at 72¾c at 9:44, advanced to 73¼c at 10:49, reacted to 72c at 12:06 and held at those figures at 12:20, at 12:05 and then began the heavy break which carried it steadily downward to 72¼c at 1:06. It rallied to 72¾c and closed at that point, a decline of ¼c. At Chicago there was a decline of ½@⅝c and Minneapolis was unchanged.

Cash sales were 25,000 bus at ½c under May for wheat to arrive and 1½c under for wheat in store.

Corn closed unchanged both here and at Chicago today. The market was slightly stronger in Chicago but settled back to the closing price of yesterday. Primary receipts were 209,341 bus, last year 231,585 bus. Clearances of corn were 555,000 bus. Bradstreet reported exports of corn for the week at 2,629,000 bus, last year 2,769,600 bus. Rye was up ¼c in Duluth. Flax was off 1½c.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard cash, 73⅝c; to arrive, 73¾c; May, 74½c. No. 1 northern, cash, 71⅜c; to arrive, 71⅝c; May, 72¼c; July, 73¼c; September, 71⅜c. No. 2 northern, 69¾@69⅝c. No. 3 spring, 69⅜@69⅞c. Oats, 32@26½c. Rye, 50½c. Flax, cash, $1.59½; to arrive, $1.59½; May, $1.61; September, $1.17; September Northwestern, $1.19½; October, $1.16. Corn, 40¼c; May, 43¾c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 16; oats, 1; flax, 1. Receipts—Wheat, 30,548; corn, 1111; flax, 408. Shipments—Flax, 1000.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Movement In Wheat Was Rather Light.

Chicago, April 12.—Wheat ruled strong during the fore part of today's session on light offerings. The weather was highly favorable, but on the other hand, the movement was light and Argentine shipments only 1,344,000 bus, compared with 1,606,000 bus last week. May opened a shade lower to unchanged, at 71⅛c to 71⅝@¾c and rose to 71⅝@⅞c. Local receipts were 43 cars, none of contract grade, while Minneapolis and Duluth reported a total of 183 cars.

May advanced later to 71⅞@72c, but profit taking broke it to 70⅝@⅞c, closing weak, ¼@⅜c lower at 70⅝c.

Wet weather, light receipts and extremely light country acceptances to bids sent out last night held the corn market firm at the start. There was a fair general demand, while sellers were scarce in the pit. May opened unchanged to ¼c higher at 43⅜@43⅝c and scold to 44c. Receipts were 96 cars, 9 of contract grade.

The close was steady, May unchanged at 43⅝c.

May oats opened a shade up at 25⅛@¼c, enjoying a fair outside demand. Offerings were light and held firm at 25¼c. Receipts were 141 cars.

There was only a small local trade in provisions, but the market ruled firm on light hog receipts and an advance in prices at the yards. May pork opened unchanged at $14.45 and sold to $14.55; May lard 5c higher at $8.27½, rising to $8.32½, and May ribs 2½c up at $8.20, advancing to $8.30.

WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, April 12.—The character of the news for the most part of the day was so bullish as to advance wheat 2¢ over yesterday's close. Clearances were very large, 1,362,60 bus, making 6,465,000 bus for the week, cash bids were strong, with low grades the closer than ever to the May. Not much business, however, was consummated. New York reported nothing only 5 loads. Argentine shipments were only half last year. Evidently too much enthusiasm on the long side was the result of this bullish news and change of sentiment, for more than the advance was lost by the close, through the heavy profit-taking and short-selling indulged in. Very flattering crop reports and selling orders from the Southwest turned the strength into weakness and wheat certainly looked very heavy at the close. We may expect a weather market from now on with a range of sufficient breadth to make good scalping possible. Selling on bulges should make good money and with the uncertainties incident to a crop report along next week, conservative purchases on breaks with a view of accepting moderate profits should also be a money-making proposition.

The corn market has been firm up to 44c, where a good deal was offered, the range has been only ¼c and the more attractive wheat has drawn away the interest in corn bids are out of line. New York reporting only 3 loads and no cash business reported from here. It is claimed that Phillips has changed his line of May corn to July and September. The steadying influence in the absence of cold, wet weather and light receipts.

The oat market has been firmer, prices up a ¼c at one time, cash business is good, 500,000 bus sold from here, 200,000 bus at New York. The cash prices are 1¼c over May. There was no great trade either way.

The provision market has been strong, hogs were 5@7½c higher. In the West there were 49,000 hogs, against 72,000 last year. Packers claim the cash demand is good.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report the movement in the horse market was restricted entirely to retail trade. Farm horses were bought in a large number by consumers. Dealers and speculators were few in attendance and little strength and vitality was perceptible in the buying from that source. All classes of horses were liberal on the market, especially farm chunks and mules. Values:

Bond Sale Notice.

City Clerk Cheadle this morning notified bond buyers throughout the country that Duluth has an issue of $50,000 to run thirty years and draw 4 per cent interest, for sale.

In his circular letter the city clerk shows the rapid growth of Duluth in population, and the excellent financial rating accorded the city in previous bond sales.

The bids for the $50,000 issue must be in on May 6, before 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The issue is made for the purpose of refunding an issue of $35,000 old village of Lakeside 6s.

TONE WAS UNEVEN

The Stocks Opened With Downward Tendency, But Support Given.

Bids By Strong Interests Co-Operating Against the Bears.

The Close Was Moderately Active and Rather Heavy.

New York, April 12.—The tone of the stock market at the opening was considerably unsettled. The general tendency was downward, but it was contested at some points. The Southwesterns were notably depressed, Wabash, preferred, losing a point and Kansas & Texas, preferred, 1¾. Deading, second preferred, lost 1¾. Amalgamated Copper was forced down 2¼ after a few irregular fluctuations. Anaconda broke 2⅝; Northern Pacific on the sales of 4000 shares was quoted at 97 to 97⅜, compared with 97⅝ last night, and afterward fell back to 96. Burlington was lifted 3¼.

The rapidity with which the downward movement was arrested by bids for enormous amounts of various stocks suggested the co-operation of strong interests against the bears, and the shorts ran up prices rapidly to cover. The opening losses were more than recovered, the rise from the lowest reaching 3¼ in Anaconda Mining, 2⅝ in Amalgamated Copper, 2½ in Burlington and Rock Island, and 2¼ in Texas & Pacific preferred. Improvements in many other stocks were between 1 and 2 points, including St. Paul, Atchison and some of the industrials, trunk lines, Southwestern and Pacifics. General Electric's annual statement caused a 2½ point rise, but profit-taking broke it 3½. Northwest opened off 1⅞ at 206, rose to 207 and fell again to 203¾. St. Louis & San Francisco met stop loss orders on a scale down, failing 3¼ to 37¾. Prices were off all around from the best at 11 o'clock.

Stocks of local municipal corporations were heavily absorbed on reports of a possible favorable revision of the franchise tax law. Consolidated Gas recovered up 6¾, Brooklyn Union Gas 9, and the tractions from 1⅞ to 3½ points. The strength of these stocks permeated the general market, and renewed the upward rise which, however, did not bring the list up to the earlier best prices, except in Burlington, the Pacifics and Amalgamated Copper. Southern Pacific, which had been recently neglected advanced 1½ and General Electric and St. Louis & San Francisco rallied 3 points each. Bonds were quiet and irregular.

Profit-taking recessions of from 1 to 2 points in the grangers, Delaware & Hudson, Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas, Amalgamated Copper and Anaconda. The closing was moderately active and rather heavy.

ADJOURNED

Legislature Closed With Usual Routine.

Laybourn's Resolution Is Still On Record.

St. Paul, April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today's closing session in the house was of a routine character, no legislative business being permissible. However, the resolutions of thanks and the gratuities to clerks and other employes who had been on the pay roll during the session were adopted, although there is a rule limiting such items of expense which seemed to be contravened by the action taken.

The usual presentation of a chair to the speaker and pictures to the chief clerk were gone through with, and it seemed as if the session was about to end in good humor when Mr. Dorsey called up one of the sore spots by moving to expnnge from the journal the resolution censuring Jacobson and Washburn for their charges against the house members in connection with the gross earnings bill. Mr. Laybourn promptly resented such a move, and in one of his warmest speeches paid his compliments to the attempt to take such action. He resented the original charges as blackmailing, and said that even if nobody else stood with him, he would alone try to maintain the dignity and honor of the members of the house. By the charges made on the floor it was possible that some of the best men in the house may have had their reputations irreparably injured, and he believed such an attack should have been forwned upon. He did not want to protect any guilty man, but he did not wish any innocent man to suffer. The charges were probably made in the heat of debate by a man who at the time was practically irresponsible on account of excitement under which he was laboring. He believed that the resolutions were milder than the circumstances warranted. The long service of any man should not be an excuse for making such charges. He moved, therefore, the resolutions be adopted. However, a motion by Mr. Dunn that both motions be laid on the table was adopted, and there the matter rests, but Mr. Laybourn is victor in that the resolutions of censure are on the house records and will remain there, notwithstanding the reported threats of Jacobson and Washburn that they would have them expunged.

Toward the close of the session it was necessary to appoint a committee to wait on the governor to see if he had anything to submit to the legislature, and the speaker named Laybourn, Jacobson and Roberts. The members quickly applauded, and redoubled their applause as the three hardest fighters of the house went out together, especially when Laybourn and Jacobson, who sit opposite each other in the main aisle, shook hands and marched down the aisle arm in arm.

Later the committee reported that the governor was through with the legislature, and that he expressed his thanks for their efficient and commendable work. Speaker Dowling expressed in a few well-chosen words his own appreciation of the courtesy of the house to him during the session, and congratulated the members on their fine record. The house then adjourned sine die.

IN THE SENATE.

St. Paul, April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate met at 11 o'clock. Senator Underleak introduced a concurrent resolution for the Leech lake national park. Senator Daugherty gave notice of debate. Underleak moved to set aside the rules.

Daugherty protested, saying there had been lobbying here in favor of this action, and he protested in behalf of the settlers of the northern part of the state against forcing action upon a resolution which had been voted down time and again.

Senator Snyder, who had voted for the resolution, protested against bringing the matter up at this time, and gave notice of opposition.

After some further discussion, Underleak withdrew the resolution.

After the usual felicitations and a number of "josh" resolutions, the senate adjourned sine die.

CONFERRING.

No Information From Meeting of Central Employes and Officials.

New York, April 12.—At the office of Vice President Warren of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, no information could be obtained regarding the conference which was in session at Commninaet between employes of the road and Superintendent Oldhausen and Mr. Wentz, representing the company.

"Mr. Warren has nothing to say," was the message sent out in response to a request for an interview with Mr. Warren.

At 1 o'clock the delegates of the employes and the company's representatives were still in conference and there were no indications that a settlement had been effected or that an agreement was at hand. No news was given out and no reporters were allowed to enter the office where the discussion was going on.

From present appearances the conference is likely to last all day.

The conferees recessed at 1:50 p. m. Delegates would say no more than that the conference had progressed nicely.

REVOLVER PRACTICE.

Has Become a Part of Police Routine.

Revolver practice is likely to play an important part in police routine from now on. The first practice was held this morning by the headquarters men, who fixed up a temporary revolver range in the sub-basement of the headquarters building.

The shooting was fast and furious. Capt. Reschel, Lieut. Troyer and Jailer Fiskett made the best showing.

Court Officer Ed Jensen started out to break all records, but his revolver got excited and began shooting without his consent. It finally wound up the performance by kicking its handle off, but before it calmed down the other marksmen had taken refuge under boxes, behind the furnace and back of brick walls.

Detective Donald Irvine made quite a record. He fired three shots at a box, located about ten feet away from the target at which the others were shooting. When requested to shoot at the target he said he didn't have time as he had to meet a man on the Bowery.

A PECULIAR MOTION.

Judge Cant Has One In Mueller Case.

Judge Cant has under advisement a peculiar motion in the famous Mueller case. The suit is brought by F. S. Kosmerl and others, who claim title under two mortgages to property left by Johan Mueller, which is said to be valuable for iron. A number of people claiming to be heirs of Mueller are in the suit, and others are trying to get in. Now two of the heirs, Katherine Schafer and Christian Mueller, have applied to the court to have the trial suspended until the question of the proper heirship to the estate has been determined by the probate court. If that is refused they ask that the action be brought on at the next term for trial only on the question of the interests of the plaintiff's as against the estate. It is claimed that under the law the district court has no power to try questions of heirship at this time, but that the probate court has exclusive jurisdiction, so that any judgment of the district court is useless and unavailing until the probate court has acted.

R & G CORSETS NEVER STRETCH

The moderately straight R & G No. 397 was and is the corset of comfort with the essence of style. It is straight enough for the prevailing vogue and curved enough to conform to healthful anatomical lines. In 1900 we were unable to fully meet the demand for straight-front goods and unwilling to resort to any makeshift to meet the conditions. At present, however, considerable additions to our factory facilities enable us to keep the trade supplied with real straight-front corsets at retail prices from $1.00 to $2.50, and also our 397, 197, Empire and other popular numbers. There are over seventy styles and sizes of R & G Corsets—a corset to fit every figure. R & G Corsets are the corsets that do not stretch. Every hairbreadth of stretch is taken out of the goods by means of steam-heated iron forms. This gives a permanency to the right shape and form that will stay in it until the last day you wear it. Every R & G Corset is sold with the understanding that it must give satisfaction to the wearer, or the dealer will supply a new one free of cost. If your dealer hasn't it, send us his name and we will see that you are supplied with what you want.

THE SILKS FOR SUMMER

Variety of Fascinating Patterns Is Shown---The New Metallic Taffetas---Panne Foulards---Novel Color Combinations.

Paris, April 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—It really is a difficult task to choose a gown from among the fascinating summer silks on exhibition this spring. The variety of silks, the variety of shades, the variety af patterns, gives us a bewildering range for choice. Each and every variety has its own particular charm.

The lustrous "metallic taffetas" boast such undisputed virtues. Nothing seems to mar that look of persistent chirky crispness that is theirs. They bob up serenely from the depths of one's trunks after rough voyages, and it only takes an energetic little shake to restore their primitive freshness.

The new panne foulards are soft and the shades they boast seem just a trifle shimmery, and lend themselves so well to the complex plaiting, shirring and draping that are features of all the new summer gowns.

Surahs claim a bit more endurance than taffeta and foulards, and somehow more delicate. They are so particularly bewitching in the varied tones of old rose resede greens and mauves.

The embroidered China silks that display a good deal of open work in their weave are wonderfully dressy, made up over contrasting shades. Then, too, they are cool, a virtue that one is apt to overlook on these crisp spring mornings when one is in quest of a summer outfit.

The frugal-minded woman who dresses on nothing certain a year appreciates the "staying put" qualities in these silk gowns. Made up over a lining silklawn, they are quite as comfortable for mid-summer wear as the popular organides and dotted swisses that are so dependent on their crisp taffeta linings. Two or three of these summer silks are almost a necessary feature of all well equipped summer wardrobes. They never wilt when exposed to mountain mists nor are they affected by damp sea breezes.

A pretty casino gown of panne foulard owed the greater part of its charm to its novel color combination. It was of a soft shade of lettuce green flecked with orange. The entire underskirt was composed of broad overlapping bias folds of the silk. Over this there fell a tunic of the silk slashed into five panels that were rounded along the bottom edges. These were ornamented with ruches of narrow orange panne velvet that were carried along the upper part of the tunic to counterfeit a yoke.

The corsage was made with a broad plastron of the palest primrose mousseline de soie laid in small tucks. Over this there was a sort of waistcoat effect of Irish guipure edged with a narrow fold of orange panne velvet. Across the front of the corsage, just at the bust line, there was a broad band of orange panne velvet ribbon drawn through slashes in the lace and plastron. This terminated in full butterfly bows at either side. The sleeves of the green silk flared at the lower part, where there was a double shaped flounce effect edged with the narrow velvet ruchings. Underneath there was a puff of the pale yellow mousseline de soie. The collar was a tall affair of orange panne velvet.

Often will the summer girl of 1901 be decked out entirely in silk, from the crown of her shirred taffeta bonnet to the soles of her embroidered silk stockings; lingerie included. Time was when a girl's first silk gown marked conclusively that all important step from girlhood to young ladyhood. Now it has lost all such significance.

CASTOR COLORED CANVAS.

Silk canvas is delightfully cool and fluffy-looking. This one is made up over orange taffeta. The skirt has a long round yoke of embroidered batiste. Bolero effect corsage.

The wee-est girlie going seems to boast a dainty little foulard or surah frock this season. Not even the most conservative woman will declare them unsuitable either, for the silks we have nowadays are peculiarly adaptive and among the divers kinds may be found patterns and shades suitable for all ages.

Such a dainty girlish gown, fashioned for a miss of 17 summers, was of pastel pink panne foulard, covered with a small black dot. The skirt was made with three broad shaped flounces that overlapped. They were ornamented with rows of narrow black velvet ribbon.

The corsage was a full baby waist, cut round necked. It had several rows of buttonholes down the front and back, through which were slipped rows of the black velvet ribbon. These terminated in butterfly bows that gave a dainty finish to the decolletage. The sleeves of the pink silk were gathered into a series of soft scant puffs. The gown boasted several detachable guimpes. One of shirred pink silk, another of tucked white mousseline de sole, all dotted with tiny French knots in pink floss, while still another was of pierced and embroidered white batiste.

Women who spend their summers in suburban resorts know the necessity of the "day in town gown." A light weight sombre taffeta gown best fills the bill, as it proves a capital dust shedder, and keeps its crispness even during a wilting July shopping excursion.

A new model that would fill the bill beautifully was built of dark blue metallic taffeta, spotted with a small black figure. The skirt, which boasted quite a flare, was finished with three shaped flounces of the silk that mounted a trifle at the left side. The fullness at the back of the skirt was laid in an inverted box-plait.

The corsage was a blouse with short close-fitting basques. It had a narrow waistcoat effect of solid blue taffeta, scalloped and heavily stitched and fastened at the front with cut steel buttons. Narrow overlapping tabs of the blue taffeta were stitched on to form a short yoke back and front. The sleeves were composed of the stitched tabs put on in bias strips. They were finished a bit below the elbow with a flaring cuff. Below this there was a full detachable puff of white batiste gathered into a second narrow cuff of the stitched solid blue taffeta. The shield and collar were of the batiste held in tiny tucks.

All of the shades of tan are very much in evidence among the new summer silks. At a recent exhibition of silk models for summer wear I noticed a number of silk canvases that were delightfully fluffy and cool looking.

One that was especially chick was made of a pale shade of castor colored canvas over orange taffeta. The skirt was made with a long round yoke of ecru embroidered batiste encircled with narrow bands of gold gauze braid. Below this the material fell in a broad shaped flounce.

The corsage had a novel tucked bolero effect of the canvas over a blouse of embroidered ecru batiste. It had narrow revers of the gold gauze and the lower part was encircled with bands of the gauze braid held with small gilt buttons at the front. The elbow sleeves of the tucked canvas were finished with narrow ruffs of the gauze. Below this extended the puffed blouse sleeve of embroidered batiste.

A great many of these gowns of summer silk have a touch of guipure about them. The figured silks are rather dependent on the narrow guipure borders that give a pretty finish to plain edges. On the plain silks the guipure is effectively employed by appliqueing large striking motifs in a contrasting color to form borders along the lower part of the skirts. Sometimes the entire surface of the gown is covered with small motifs of a contrasting shade of guipure that give a pleasing "all over pattern."

COLD IN HEAD

JESUS APPEARS TO MARY

International Sunday School Lesson For April 14, 1901.

John xx, 11-18. "But Mary was standing without at the tomb weeping; so, as she wept, she stooped and looked into the tomb; and she beholdeth two angels in white sitting, one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him. When she had thus said, she turned herself back, and beholdeth Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardner, saith unto him, Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away. Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turneth herself, and saith unto him in Hebrew, Rabboni; which is to say, Master. Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended unto the Father; but go unto my brethren, and say to them, I ascend unto my Father and your Father, and my God and your God. Mary Magdalene cometh and telleth the disciples, I have seen the Lord; and how that he had said these things unto her."

Golden Text: "Behold I am alive forevermore." Revelation i, 18.

PETER AND JOHN AT THE TOMB.

John tells a clear story about how he was persuaded that Jesus had risen from the dead. Among the women who went out to the tomb on the morning after the resurrection had occurred was Mary Magdalene. Mark reminds us that it was she out of whom Jesus had cast seven devils. As soon as she had discovered that the body of Jesus was gone from the tomb, she ran, with all haste, to tell Simon Peter and John that they had taken away the body of the Master, and that she could not discover where they had laid him. Those two disciples started out together to see what they could do to fathom this mystery. They no doubt intended to find the body of Jesus and see to it that it received nothing but the most honorable treatment. At first Peter led the way, but in their eagerness to reach their destination, they both began to run, and, since John was the younger of the men, he outran Peter and came first to the sepulchre. He stooped and looked in and saw the linen cloths lying in order, but a natural reserve restrained him from entering in. Soon Peter came up and, without hesitating a moment, rushed in to fathom, if possible, the whole matter. He, too, saw the linen cloths and, in addition, saw also the napkin, that had been upon the head of Jesus, rolled up and lying by itself as if it had been removed with the greatest deliberation. John then entered, and he himself tells us that he saw all the things just as he describes them and "Believed."

The impression of this scripture is that John then and there believed that Jesus was risen from the dead; and this accords with the fact that upon the sea of Galilee it was John who first quickly recognized Jesus and said to Peter, "It is the Lord." These two disciples immediately went away to their homes wondering at what was come to pass.

Now what was it that persuaded John that Jesus was risen from the dead. He had not seen Jesus, nor had he been told that Jesus was risen. He expressly tells us that up to that time he did not understand the scripture which foretold the resurrection. Neither he nor the other disciples seem to have expected a real resurrection, such as actually occurred. He had seen evidence of a purely material sort. He felt sure that the tomb would not have been left as he found it if the body of Jesus had been taken away for some evil purpose. No doubt his knowledge of Jesus shed a sudden light on the circumstances, and he became convinced that the body that was missing had come to life again much after the manner in which Lazarus had come forth from the grave

Of course there is another interpretation possible at this point, and it may be the correct one. Perhaps the expression, "He saw, and believed," refers to the fact that he became convinced that the report of the women to the effect that he body was gone was correct. According to this view, his conviction of the resurrection was a later development, on the basis of the fuller evidence. Other evidence came in such quick succession that in later years John may easily have been in some doubt as to just the precise moment when he became thoroughly convinced that the Lord had risen from the dead.

WEEPING MARY.

After delivering her message to the two disciples, Mary returned to the tomb to see if anything more could be done for her friend and benefactor. Probably the two men had come and gone before her arrival. At any rate, after they were gone she stood at the tomb weeping as though her heart would break. Her sorrow was not only because her friend was dead, but because that, even in death, she could not minister to him. Loving hands find comfort in doing the offices of love for the cold body of the departed. To be deprived of that privilege is to have the arrow of grief driven harder into the quick of one's soul.

Mary wiped her tears away enough to take another look into the yawning tomb. She wanted to be sure that no mistake had been made in her former glance. She was also interested to see if there were any mementoes of Jesus to which she might cling for some assauagement of her grief. This added act of her affection was abundantly rewarded. Instead of commonplace graveclothe, such as Peter and John had seen, she saw two angels sitting, one at the head and the other at the feet where the body of Jesus had been lying. It was to the question of these Angels that Mary made her reply of despair. "Woman, why weepest thou?" "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him." Her anguish was bitter. She turned away from the tomb, for she found scant comfort there. The searching of her love, however, was rewarded. Through the mist of her tears she discerned the form of a man standing near the entrance to the tomb. She did not wait to carefully scrutinize his features. She merely thought that the gardner was the only man likely to be present there at such an early hour. To him she addressed her complaint. Sir, if the body of my friend is in your way, and you have carried him off to make room for some one else, tell me where you have put him and I will remove him. In the intensity of her weeping she had not recognized the voice of Jesus in the questions about the cause of her grief and the person whom she was seeking.

FROM SHADOW TO SUNSHINE.

It was not the gardener who confronted her, but Jesus himself, as Mary discovered as soon as he had called her by name. It was the utterance of the word "Mary" that told her more than all the things she had seen in the tomb. That one word was like a summer breeze that drives away the clouds and lets the sunshine flood the earth. No more tears for her then! "My Master!" was her exclamation of delight. She had hoped that possibly she might find the dead body of Jesus, and that would have been all the comfort she expected. It was with a transport of delight that she hailed the presence of the living Jesus. Jesus had spoken words about his departure and a return at some future day, at which time he would require a reckoning from all his disciples. Perhaps Mary thought that this was his final return, and that from that time on she would be able to revel with delight in his uninterrupted presence. She would have taken hold upon him in order to verify with her hands the impression made upon her mind. But Jesus forbade her, saying, "Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to the Father."

It is a striking part of this story that Jesus made himself known to Mary rather than to Peter and John. One thing must be said about that. Peter and John had come to the tomb largely out of curiosity, while Mary had come originally because her love for Jesus prompted her to do for his body an actual service. There is a familiar scripture which says, "If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know of the doctrine." The revelation to Mary on this occasion may very easily be classed as progress in spiritual knowledge that was gained through conscientious effort to do service to our divine Savior. Perhaps Peter and John would have themselves received the appearance if they had risen early that morning to assist the women by rolling the stone away from the door of the tomb. But they were no doubt comfortable in their beds when the faithful women were en route with their spices to the tomb. If we yearn for knowledge of and fellowship with Jesus, we may be sure that we will not find it while taking our ease lolling on some bed of "Amaranth and moly." But in doing his work with zeal we are sure to enter into an increasing knowledge of his grace. The same principle applies to our experiences of gloom and sadness. If we sit down and nurse our grief, we can easily nurture it into a storm. But if we arise from our seat of sorrow and strive to do the divine will in the accomplishing of our God-given tasks, then in his own way God will reveal himself to us.

Jesus directed Mary to go to his brethren and say to them, "I ascend unto my Father and your Father, and my God and your God." She went to do his bidding. The disciples heard the story and listened with breathless interest when she said, "I have seen the Lord."

FAITH'S TRANSFORMATION.

The sudden transformation of Mary's sorrow into gladness was not more complete than is the change wrought in the character and life of each believer in and follower of the risen Lord. He transforms our actions and our characters by dwelling in the heart as the vital principle and energy of the new life. He is the source of present joy and righteousness. He is also the living hope of our eternal blessedness. In him lies the possibility of realizing the prophet's spiritual portrayal of the Messiah's reign. Isaiah said, "The wilderness and solitary place shall be glad; and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose. It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing."

Let one imagine for a moment that he is in one of our great northern forests where the notes of few song birds are ordinarily heard. But some morning, in that improbable place, he hears a note like that of the lark, and all day long the woods are melodious with the warbling of sweet singers, and in the late afternoon he hears the song of the thrush, and the evening twilight has its stillness broken by the call of the whippoorwill, and the nightingale sings his vesper song, and from his singing the imaginary sojourner passes as from a grand music hall out into the land of dreams where the odor of his bed of boughs is converted—transfigured—into a bar of roses. Yes, the transformation of life is often as sweet and beautiful as that, when the risen Christ is taken as the soul of one's life. For wherever a human being finds Christ and embraces his living hope, whether it be in the depths of a hitherto unpenetrated forest, or on some bleak, uncharted island, or in the wildness of an Arab or Indian encampment, or in the fastness of some mountain people, or in the busy marts of commerce where men have buried the God who is a spirit in the lethe, thick and heavy, of the streams of trade—wherever men truly receive Christ, there he works a transformation for them that makes it possible for heaven to begin upon earth, and with the ears of heaven they may hear divine music in what had been the humdrum noises of earth, and with eyes of faith they may see fields elysian where before had been only verdureless wastes. Faith is no dream. Hope is not vain. Christ in a man's life can make all the difference between heaven and earth.

COSTLY LONDON FOGS

A London fog is an expensive visitation. A day of it, counting the day at eight hours, is estimated to cost anything from £50,000 to £100,000 in hard cash, says the London Chronicle. No small proportion of this goes to the gas and electric light companies, which have to supply about a third more power than usual. But there are also the railways. For signalling is expensive. At Chapman Junction alone £50 has been spent by a single railway company during a day's fog in extra pay to the plate layers. When the red light cannot be seen at a distance of 100 yards the plate layers become fog signalers, and for this their regular wages and 4d per hour overtime, provided the overtime does not run into a second shilling.

For signals, like a cuckoo, are more frequently heard than seen, and like a number of things, such as babies, cats and crickets, make an amount of noise altogether out of proportion to their size. The largest of those in use is scarcely bigger than a crown piece, and is a quarter of an inch in depth. The little tin box contains a teaspoonful of gunpowder and three percussion caps, and is fitted on the rail by a red ribbon. It comes from Birmingham mostly and costs exactly a penny apiece. A hundred and fifty thousand or so are purchased by a big railway company in the year, and there are not many left over at the end of it.

Omega Oil

For sore FEET

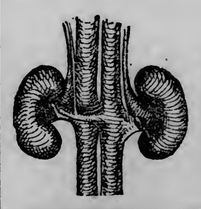

Just about the worst pain of all comes from sore feet. Some people have to take off their shoes right in the middle of the day because their feet hurt them so. If these same people would first bathe their feet in warm water, and then rub them with Omega Oil, they could wear their shoes from morning till bedtime. Omega Oil is a liniment that contains a rare little Swiss green herb that goes in through the pores of the skin and stops pain. It takes out the soreness, removes the tenderness, reduces swellings, invigorates the tired muscles, and causes all the bad odors arising from perspiration to disappear. That's a good deal for one remedy to do, but Omega Oil does it just the same. It is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for.

Tell your druggist you want Omega Oil and nothing else. If he refuses to supply you, the Omega Chemical Co., 257 Broadway, New York, will mail you a bottle, prepaid, for 50c. in cash, money order or stamps. 7d8

AT WEST DULUTH

The announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Jessie Edna Mathison, daughter of Mrs. Nellie Mathison, to Charles W. Berglund, which will occur next Thursday at their future home at 5202 Ramsey street. The bridesmaid will be Miss Genevieve Farrington, of 2002 West Michigan street, and the best man, Magnus Johnston, of West Superior. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. R. A. Saunderson, of Emeota M. E. church. The bride is a well known and popular young lady of this part of the city, and the groom has been connected for some time with the Headquarters grocery, at Ramsey and Fifty-second avenue west.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Capt. J. W. Mann has just returned from a winter spent in hunting and trapping in the country north of Grand Raids, Minn. The captain says that he has had reasonably good luck and is back to get in readiness for the steamboat business the coming summer season.

A library party was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. G. Pake, by the ladies of the Asbury M. E. church. It was a delightful affair in which about fifty of the ladies participated. The best guessers were Mrs. W. W. Walker, Mrs. T. J. Ryan, Mrs. Jesse Norton and Miss Lottie Robinson. The latter was awarded the prize. A dainty luncheon was served later in the afternoon.

The Senate Social and Debating club will celebrate the opening of their new club rooms this evening by a banquet at which a number of the members have been assigned toasts. The debate that was postponed last week will also take place this evening. The question to be debated is: "Resolved, that capital punishment should be abolished."

Mr. and Mrs. John Schrieber, of West Duluth, have moved to Proctorknott.

Mrs. M. Jollymore, of Proctorknott, is visiting in Eau Claire.

Miss Ella Juveland will return to her home in Zumbrota, on Monday, after a few months' visit with relatives here.

Miss Schulze has left for a visit in St. Paul.

PAN.

So extremely ugly was the god Pan that his very mother was frightened at the look of him, and fled away. Pan, thus deserted, was about to perish, when he was rescued by his father, the god Mercury.

"A little more," remarked Pan, hereupon, and my name would have been Pants!"

This was thought to be distinctively rustic wit, and Pan was accordingly appointed deity of the inhabitants of the country, inclusive of suburbanites, their being a vacancy in this position at the time

Disclosures In the Scandals at Manilla.

Quantities of Flour Sold By Sergeants.

Manilla, April 13, 2:25 p. m.—The trial of Sergt. Memson, the first case in the commissary scandals, began with the startling disclosures expected. Two witnesses testified that quantities of flour were taken from a government warehouse and sold by three commissary sergeants and two others, who divided the proceeds. Finnick, proprietor of an American bakery, was incriminated, and other business men were also involved. The extent of the alleged sales have not been ascertained.

Archbishop Chappelle, the papal delegate in the Philippines, has been summoned to Rome. He will sail soon and his return here is improbable.

Gen. MacArthur has forwarded to Washington a special report on saloons and the social evil in the Philippines.

Information concernings the doings of Aguinaldo is withheld by the authorities.

EARLY VISIT TO PARK

The Yellowstone Will Be Opened Two Weeks Earlier Than Usual For Benefit of the Presidential Party.

Washington, April 13.—Several matters in connection with the itinerary of the president's Western trip were decided today. Former Senator Carter and Mr. Bach, representing the transportation company of the Yellowstone Park, arranged for the trip through the park. Usually the park is not opened to tourists until the middle of June, owing to the fact that the park is at an elevation of 7000 feet, and is not completely clear of snow until that date. For this occasion, however, it will be opened this year a fortnight earlier. The presidential party will reach Butte, Mont., May 28, and will lunch there, proceeding in the afternoon to Helena, where dinner will be had. The party will reach the park on the morning of May 29, and spend three days there traveling through it. In this brief time all the features of the park cannot be visited and several of the famous geysers will necessarily be missed. But the plan is to have the party see the best scenery and the most picturesque of the great natural wonders in which the park abounds. Upon leaving the park on the evening of May 31, the party will double back to Anaconda and leave thence southward for Salt Lake City. The Kansas itinerary will include stops at Topeka, Emporia, Ottawa, Baldwin, Lawrence and possibly Junction City.

Capt. Pitcher of the First cavalry, now stationed at the Presidio, San Francisco, is to succeed Capt. Goode as superintendent of the Yellowstone park.

Colorado Springs, Col., April 13.—Mayor Robinson, chairman of the general committee on entertaining President McKinley during the latter's two days' visit in Colorado Springs June 6 and 7, announced today that the president has consented to lay the cornerstone of the new $100,000 Y. M. C. A. building on June 6.

THE SAME OLD STORY

The Daily Report of the Inability of the Ministers of the Powers at Pekin to Agree.

Washington, April 13.—The last advices to the state department from Mr. Rockhill contain further details respecting the amount of the indemnities claimed from China by the powers. It appears that these claims have been much exaggerated in some statements, though the sum total is still far in excess of the amount of money it is believed here that China can raise. It is the belief of the department that the total claims should not be allowed to exceed $150,000,000 or $200,000,000. According to information received here, the British claim, so far as formulated, is reasonable in amount as compared with other claims. In fact, the United States, Great Britain and Japan represent in these negotiations the moderate element whose desire is to prevent the imposition of charges that shall destroy the Chinese government and result in the division of the empire. None of the claims exceed $100,000,000, and even the largest is something less than this amount. This is believed to be the Russian claim, which is fixed at $90,000,000. The German claim is flexible, ranging between $60,000,000 and $80,000,000, but is nearer the former mark at present, though it doubtless will grow. As already stated, the claim of the United States is $25,000,000 and if the remaining powers are to be allowed a proportionate share, the aggregate will be beyond China's ability to pay, which has been tentatively estimated at $200,000,000.

Nothing has yet been determined respecting the method of raising the indemnity fund, even after an agreement is reached.

Erect Statue of Liberty In San Jose de Buena Vista.

San Jose De Buena Vista, Antique province, Panay Island, Philippines, April 13.—When the United States Philippine commission arrived here today, the members were welcomed by the people of this town, who had erected an immense festal arch. Every village of Antique province was represented by delegates. A statue of liberty, erected on the town's principal square, named after Washington, had pictures of Abraham Lincoln, President McKinley and Judge Taft, president of the commission, on its pedestal.

The province has been wholly pacified since the recent surrender of the insurgent, Fullon, and the aspiration for a provincial form of government is unanimous.

The commission has mailed to Washington detailed recommendations for the form of general civil government to be established in the archipelago. The legislative council is expected to consist of four of the present commissioners and three Filipinos, the latter to be appointed by President McKinley.

Lieut. Col. William S. Scott, of the Forty-fourth volunteer infantry, commander of Antique province, has been made its governor, while Lieut. Fred L. Wilson, of the same regiment, has been appointed provincial treasurer.

ORDERED RELEASED.

San Francisco, April 13.—An order has been issued by President McKinley directing that the prisoners at Alcatraz belonging to volunteer regiments sentenced for minor offenses be released. This is done to enable the men to go home with their regiments. The order reads that the release shall take place on date on which the regiment, to which the prisoner formerly belonged, is mustered out. There are about 250 general prisoners on the island who will be affected by the order.

NOW CONSTITUTED.

Permanent Court of Arbitration Ready For Business.

The Hague, April 13.—Dr. W. H. De Beaufort, president of the administrative council of the permanent court of arbitration, has notified all the powers concerned that the court is now constituted. This notification is intended to take the place of a formal installation. The convention has not yet been signed by China, Luxemburg, Mexico or Turkey.

AGREEMENT PROBABLE.

But Little Variance In Central Railroad Conference.

New York, April 13—There is a strong probability that the Communipaw conference between representatives of employes and officers of the Central railroad of New Jersey will reach an agreement by tonight as to the schedule of the engineers and firemen, but those concerned refused to talk.

It is known, however, that the contending sides are quite close together, and the points of variance are, it is understood, not material.

A GREAT MATCH.

Toledo, Ohio, April 13.—George H. Ketcham, of this city, has succeeded in getting another match race for his champion trotting stallion Cresceus, 2:04. For a purse of $10,000 and a side bet of $12,000, Cresceus will meet The Abbot on the track of the Brighton Beach Racing association during the week of Aug. 16. The bet has been posted.

A CANAL TREATY

Hay and Pauncefote Are Anxious to Have One Drafted.

Feeling of the Senate Is Being Quietly Ascertained.

Negotiations With Great Britain Not Yet Begun.

Washington, April 13.—There is authority for the following statement of the status of the Panama negotiations:

After the adjournment of the senate, and the lapse of the pending Hay-Pauncefote treaty, Secretary Hay decided to pursue the subject further. But to avoid the possibility of another failure, for the same reason as brought about the loss of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, the secretary determined to reverse the usual method of procedure in framing treaties. He, therefore, concluded to first consult the ratifying power, the United States senate, to ascertain if it was possible for the senators to agree upon the basis of a treaty, which should be at the same time acceptable to the executive branch of the government and to Great Britain.

It was realized that unless two-thirds at least of the senate could be brought into agreement in advance upon the basis of the treaty, it would be perfectly useless for the executive to embark in negotiations with England for the formation of another convention. Secretary Hay is devoting himself to the ascertainment of the feelings and desires of the senators, and consequently not having completed this work, he has not begun negotiations with Great Britain for a new treaty.

It is not an easy undertaking to test the senate in this fashion, not only because of the number of senators who must be sounded, but also because of the indecision of some of the men who rank as leaders. It is not even possible to predict now, because the results obtained are so inconclusive that the state department will be unable to acquaint Lord Pauncefote with the basis upon which it is willing to negotiate for a treaty before the ambassador sails for London next June. It is even possible that Lord Pauncefote may feel it incumbent upon him to delay his departure for a time, or even to omit his leave altogether, if by so doing he can better ascertain the senatorial condition, for the ambassador is naturally desirous to assure himself of success before he again undertakes to frame a treaty which shall bear his name. It follows, negotiations not having been started, that nothing has passed between the governments of the United States and Great Britain respecting a quid pro quo to be demanded by England in consideration of the release of the United States from the restrictions imposed by the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

RIDICULOUS.

Morgan Thus Characterizes Reports of His Stock Selling Trip.

London, April 13.—To a reporter of the Associated Press today J. Pierpont Morgan reiterated his statement that his visit to Europe is not in connection with the United States Steel corporation or with any new enterprise. "I have no special business here," said Mr. Morgan; "but came here, as I come every year, for rest. The reports that I am here to place steel stock in England and on the continent is almost too ridiculous to contradict. The report contradicts itself to anyone who will take the trouble to think. The stock which the United States Steel corporation issues in exchange for the various companies it has taken over is in the hands of the original holders of the stock of those various companies, and neither the Steel corporation nor J. P. Morgan & Co. have any stock to sell."

In regard to the continent and the anxiety with which Berlin is said to be awaiting his arrival, Mr. Morgan said: "I am going to Aix before long. But this is the present extent of my plans for the continent. I may go to Berlin, but certainly not on business, so far as I know at present."

TWO GUILTY.

Verdicts Against Murderers In Widely Distant Localities.

New York, April 13.—James Handly was found guilty of murder in the second degree last night and sentenced to Dannemora prison for life. Handly killed Burton M. Lane, Dec. 3 last, because Lane induced his sister to break her engagement with Handly.

Stevenson, Wash., April 13.—James G. Green has been found guilty of murder in the first degree for killing F. V. Benjamin, at Underwoods Landing, March 20 last. Green shot through a window and killed Benjamin while the latter was sitting in a ballroom beside Mrs. Nellie Brown, to whom Green was at one time engaged to be married.

NO FURTHER TIDINGS.

Buena Vista, Col., April 13.—No further tidings have reached here today concerning the avalanche reported yesterday on Italian mountain in Taylor's park, about forty miles west of this city. Several hundred miners are employed in that vicinity and it is possible some of them perished; but so far as known here, there is no reason to suppose the slide caused any great loss of life.

DIED AT BERLIN.

Berlin, April 13.—Dr. Block, of San Francisco, who has been studying in the Berlin clinics, died here last night of scarlet fever. His body will be sent home.

NOTED GANG

Important Capture By Pittsburg Police.

Trunks of Plunder and Burglar Outfits.

Pittsburg, April 13.—Chief of Detectives Roger O'Mara believes that in the arrest of the Wrights and Wilcox yesterday a noted gang of housebreakers has been broken up, and whose list of crimes culminated yesterday in the murders of Grocer Kahney and Detective Fitzgerald. The smallest man in the party says his name is John Wright, 28 years old, single, came from Canada to Pittsburg six weeks ago. He has black curly hair, sharp pointed chin and talks with a soft accent. Robert D. Wilcox said he was a laborer, 21 years old. He is tall and fine looking. Jennie Wilcox, his reputed wife, acknowledged to the age of 22. She is plump and has a mass of yellow hair. Jesse Wright, or Jesse Bodyn, as letters found showed her maiden name to have been, said she was 22 years old. Her features are haggard, suggesting confirmed illness. Both gave their callings as that of housekeepers. The Bodyn woman is supposed to have been a dancing teacher in Milwaukee, where she conducted the Ideal dancing academy.

Edward Wright, the alleged murderer, is a powerful young fellow, 22 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 175 pounds. He is being closely guarded today at Mercy hospital, where his wounds are being treated. In the encounter with the detectives, Wright was shot three times. One ball struck him behind the right ear and followed the jaw bone into the mouth; another shot struck him in the right knee, and the third made a flesh wound in his right side. The wounded knee is the most serious. Wright says he is a shoemaker by trade and that he came from Chicago.

In the rooms of the prisoners several trunks of plunder were found and in Wright's room burglar outfits, including a vial of nitro-glycerine, percussion caps, fuse and five sticks of dynamite were secured.

THE TWO SHAMROCKS

Will Have First Speed Trial May 4---Four Hundred Men Are Working Night and Day on Challenger.

Glasgow, April 13.—It has been provisionally arranged that the cup challenger will have her first trial with the Shamrock I, either in the Solent or outside the Isle of Wight May 4.

Sir Thomas Lipton and George L. Watson visited the Dennys' yard today and urged hastening the work. Unavoidable delays have so retarded the construction of the Shamrock II, that every effort will be required to have the challenger ready for launching Saturday next. Between 300 and 400 men are now working day and night, putting the finishing touches on her hull. Her spars are completed and the builders promise to have her mainmast stepped within an hour after the boat taking the water. The shell will immediately be taken south to be fitted out for her trials. In order to distinguish the Shamrocks, the challenger will be first painted white, but before she starts in the cup races, it is expected she will be coated with the familiar green.

MISSING GOLD FOUND

The Three Bars Which Were Stolen From Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse Discovered on Board the Ship.

Bremen, April 13.—It is authentically reported that the three gold bars stolen from the store room of the North German Lloyd liner, Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, during that vessel's last trip from New York, were discovered by a steward during the cleaning of the ship this morning, near the second cabin.

The report of the recovery of the gold bars is officially confirmed.

INSPECTION.

Board of Public Works and Aldermen Travel Some.

Aldermen and members of the board of public works drove over London road yesterday afternoon, as far as Lester Park, and then doubling on their tracks, drove out to West Duluth, examining the condition of First street and Third street.

As a result of this investigation there seems to be some diversity of opinion as to the necessity for repairing London road. Property owners throughout the city have petitioned the council to take immediate steps to preserve the fine driveway out the lake shore, which has been torn up by the heavy teaming of a lumber concern. They are of the opinion that nothing will save the road except a new top dressing, which would cost about $10,000.

One of the members of the board of public works this morning expressed the opinion that with a few repairs the road would do for two or three years to come, when it could be torn up and repaired less expensively than if the work is to be done this year.

The commissioner was frank to say, however, that he had not consulted the other members of the party and did not know how they might feel about it. He thought that First street and Third street to West Duluth were in greater need of repairs than London road.

The members of the party were: Alderman Moore and Alderman Rothermal of the First ward, Alderman Barnes of the Seventh ward, Alderman Johnson of the Fifth ward, and Commissioners Wilson, Butchart and Martz of the board of public works.

WRECKAGE FOUND.

Evidently From Small Coasting Vessel of Rouen.

London, April 13.—Special dispatches from Brest report that quantities of wreckage have been washed ashore at Ushant together with barrels of petroleum, cases of candles and a life buoy marked "Cyclope-Rouen." The indications are that the wreckage belonged to a steamer and a sailer.

The maritime registers available do not contain a record of a vessel named "Cyclope," hailing from Rouen or any other port. It is probable that the "Cyclope" is a small vessel belonging to Rouen and not of sufficient importance to be entered in the registers.

RIPLEY CASE.

Testimony Continued In Trial For Complicity In Shooting.

Frankfort, Ky., April 13.—In the trial today of Capt. Ripley for alleged complicity in the Goebel shooting, W. P. Reeder, ex-county clerk of Knox county, testified that he talked with Caleb Powers and Charles Finley frequently in regard to the crowd they were alleged to be getting up to go to Frankfort Jan. 25. Witness asked Finley if there was going to be a fight. According to witness Finley replied that he thought so and should not be surprised if Goebel were killed in the next five days.

County Judge Bruce testified that Ripley's company was illegally gotten up, no application having been made for its organization as required by law.

Wharton Golden told of the organization of the mountain army. His testimony was similar to that which he gave in former trials.

FOX RISING.

High Water Causing Damage In the Valley.

Milwaukee, April 13.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Kaukauna, Wis., says: The Fox river is very high and is slowly rising, being at danger point in this city. The coffer dams, false work and derricks of the Hackworthy Construction company, at Combined locks, one mile above here, have been swept away, involving a loss of about $20,000. The flood is threatening the canal of the Kaukauna Water Power company.

DEADLOCK BROKEN.

Both London Railroads to Have Electricity.

London, April 13.—It is understood that the deadlock between the two underground railroads is ended, and that a contract has been signed by the terms of which both systems will be simultaneously equipped with electric power.

The Globe commenting on the foregoing statement, says that while Charles T. Yerkes will not be back in England until June, it is expected that immediate steps will be taken to commence work.

It is not an easy undertaking to test the senate in this fashion, not only because of the number of senators who must be sounded, but also because of the indecision of some of the men who rank as leaders. It is not even possible to predict now, because the results obtained are so inconclusive that the state department will be unable to acquaint Lord Pauncefote with the basis upon which it is willing to negotiate for a treaty before the ambassador sails for London next June. It is even possible that Lord Pauncefote may feel it incumbent upon him to delay his departure for a time, or even to omit his leave altogether, if by so doing he can better ascertain the senatorial condition, for the ambassador is naturally desirous to assure himself of success before he again undertakes to frame a treaty which shall bear his name. It follows, negotiations not having been started, that nothing has passed between the governments of the United States and Great Britain respecting a quid pro quo to be demanded by England in consideration of the release of the United States from the restrictions imposed by the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

RIDICULOUS.

Morgan Thus Characterizes Reports of His Stock Selling Trip.

London, April 13.—To a reporter of the Associated Press today J. Pierpont Morgan reiterated his statement that his visit to Europe is not in connection with the United States Steel corporation or with any new enterprise. "I have no special business here," said Mr. Morgan; "but came here, as I come every year, for rest. The reports that I am here to place steel stock in England and on the continent is almost too ridiculous to contradict. The report contradicts itself to anyone who will take the trouble to think. The stock which the United States Steel corporation issues in exchange for the various companies it has taken over is in the hands of the original holders of the stock of those various companies, and neither the Steel corporation nor J. P. Morgan & Co. have any stock to sell."

In regard to the continent and the anxiety with which Berlin is said to be awaiting his arrival, Mr. Morgan said: "I am going to Aix before long. But this is the present extent of my plans for the continent. I may go to Berlin, but certainly not on business, so far as I know at present."

TWO GUILTY.

Verdicts Against Murderers In Widely Distant Localities.

New York, April 13.—James Handly was found guilty of murder in the second degree last night and sentenced to Dannemora prison for life. Handly killed Burton M. Lane, Dec. 3 last, because Lane induced his sister to break her engagement with Handly.

Stevenson, Wash., April 13.—James G. Green has been found guilty of murder in the first degree for killing F. V. Benjamin, at Underwoods Landing, March 20 last. Green shot through a window and killed Benjamin while the latter was sitting in a ballroom beside Mrs. Nellie Brown, to whom Green was at one time engaged to be married.

NO FURTHER TIDINGS.

Buena Vista, Col., April 13.—No further tidings have reached here today concerning the avalanche reported yesterday on Italian mountain in Taylor's park, about forty miles west of this city. Several hundred miners are employed in that vicinity and it is possible some of them perished; but so far as known here, there is no reason to suppose the slide caused any great loss of life.

DIED AT BERLIN.

Berlin, April 13.—Dr. Block, of San Francisco, who has been studying in the Berlin clinics, died here last night of scarlet fever. His body will be sent home.

NOTED GANG

Important Capture By Pittsburg Police.

Trunks of Plunder and Burglar Outfits.

Pittsburg, April 13.—Chief of Detectives Roger O'Mara believes that in the arrest of the Wrights and Wilcox yesterday a noted gang of housebreakers has been broken up, and whose list of crimes culminated yesterday in the murders of Grocer Kahney and Detective Fitzgerald. The smallest man in the party says his name is John Wright, 28 years old, single, came from Canada to Pittsburg six weeks ago. He has black curly hair, sharp pointed chin and talks with a soft accent. Robert D. Wilcox said he was a laborer, 21 years old. He is tall and fine looking. Jennie Wilcox, his reputed wife, acknowledged to the age of 22. She is plump and has a mass of yellow hair. Jesse Wright, or Jesse Bodyn, as letters found showed her maiden name to have been, said she was 22 years old. Her features are haggard, suggesting confirmed illness. Both gave their callings as that of housekeepers. The Bodyn woman is supposed to have been a dancing teacher in Milwaukee, where she conducted the Ideal dancing academy.

Edward Wright, the alleged murderer, is a powerful young fellow, 22 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 175 pounds. He is being closely guarded today at Mercy hospital, where his wounds are being treated. In the encounter with the detectives, Wright was shot three times. One ball struck him behind the right ear and followed the jaw bone into the mouth; another shot struck him in the right knee, and the third made a flesh wound in his right side. The wounded knee is the most serious. Wright says he is a shoemaker by trade and that he came from Chicago.

In the rooms of the prisoners several trunks of plunder were found and in Wright's room burglar outfits, including a vial of nitro-glycerine, percussion caps, fuse and five sticks of dynamite were secured.

THE TWO SHAMROCKS

Will Have First Speed Trial May 4---Four Hundred Men Are Working Night and Day on Challenger.

Glasgow, April 13.—It has been provisionally arranged that the cup challenger will have her first trial with the Shamrock I, either in the Solent or outside the Isle of Wight May 4.

Sir Thomas Lipton and George L. Watson visited the Dennys' yard today and urged hastening the work. Unavoidable delays have so retarded the construction of the Shamrock II, that every effort will be required to have the challenger ready for launching Saturday next. Between 300 and 400 men are now working day and night, putting the finishing touches on her hull. Her spars are completed and the builders promise to have her mainmast stepped within an hour after the boat taking the water. The shell will immediately be taken south to be fitted out for her trials. In order to distinguish the Shamrocks, the challenger will be first painted white, but before she starts in the cup races, it is expected she will be coated with the familiar green.

MISSING GOLD FOUND

The Three Bars Which Were Stolen From Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse Discovered on Board the Ship.

Bremen, April 13.—It is authentically reported that the three gold bars stolen from the store room of the North German Lloyd liner, Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, during that vessel's last trip from New York, were discovered by a steward during the cleaning of the ship this morning, near the second cabin.

The report of the recovery of the gold bars is officially confirmed.

INSPECTION.

Aldermen and members of the board of public works drove over London road yesterday afternoon, as far as Lester Park, and then doubling on their tracks, drove out to West Duluth, examining the condition of First street and Third street.

As a result of this investigation there seems to be some diversity of opinion as to the necessity for repairing London road. Property owners throughout the city have petitioned the council to take immediate steps to preserve the fine driveway out the lake shore, which has been torn up by the heavy teaming of a lumber concern. They are of the opinion that nothing will save the road except a new top dressing, which would cost about $10,000.

One of the members of the board of public works this morning expressed the opinion that with a few repairs the road would do for two or three years to come, when it could be torn up and repaired less expensively than if the work is to be done this year.

The commissioner was frank to say, however, that he had not consulted the other members of the party and did not know how they might feel about it. He thought that First street and Third street to West Duluth were in greater need of repairs than London road.

The members of the party were: Alderman Moore and Alderman Rothermal of the First ward, Alderman Barnes of the Seventh ward, Alderman Johnson of the Fifth ward, and Commissioners Wilson, Butchart and Martz of the board of public works.

WRECKAGE FOUND.

Evidently From Small Coasting Vessel of Rouen.

London, April 13.—Special dispatches from Brest report that quantities of wreckage have been washed ashore at Ushant together with barrels of petroleum, cases of candles and a life buoy marked "Cyclope-Rouen." The indications are that the wreckage belonged to a steamer and a sailer.

The maritime registers available do not contain a record of a vessel named "Cyclope," hailing from Rouen or any other port. It is probable that the "Cyclope" is a small vessel belonging to Rouen and not of sufficient importance to be entered in the registers.

RIPLEY CASE.

Testimony Continued In Trial For Complicity In Shooting.

Frankfort, Ky., April 13.—In the trial today of Capt. Ripley for alleged complicity in the Goebel shooting, W. P. Reeder, ex-county clerk of Knox county, testified that he talked with Caleb Powers and Charles Finley frequently in regard to the crowd they were alleged to be getting up to go to Frankfort Jan. 25. Witness asked Finley if there was going to be a fight. According to witness Finley replied that he thought so and should not be surprised if Goebel were killed in the next five days.

County Judge Bruce testified that Ripley's company was illegally gotten up, no application having been made for its organization as required by law.

Wharton Golden told of the organization of the mountain army. His testimony was similar to that which he gave in former trials.

FOX RISING.

High Water Causing Damage In the Valley.

Milwaukee, April 13.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Kaukauna, Wis., says: The Fox river is very high and is slowly rising, being at danger point in this city. The coffer dams, false work and derricks of the Hackworthy Construction company, at Combined locks, one mile above here, have been swept away, involving a loss of about $20,000. The flood is threatening the canal of the Kaukauna Water Power company.

DEADLOCK BROKEN.

Both London Railroads to Have Electricity.

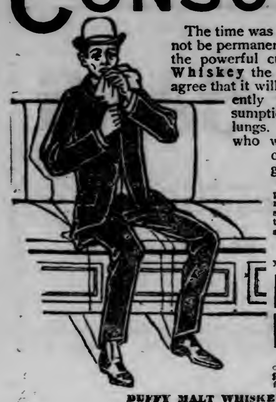

London, April 13.—It is understood that the deadlock between the two underground railroads is ended, and that a contract has been signed by the terms of which both systems will be simultaneously equipped with electric power.

The Globe commenting on the foregoing statement, says that while Charles T. Yerkes will not be back in England until June, it is expected that immediate steps will be taken to commence work.

IS CAUGHT.

Frank Ryan Taken In the Act of Burglary.

Frank Ryan, a burglar, was neatly trapped early this morning in Dominico Cusciotto's saloon. He had broken into the saloon through a rear window and was busily engaged in opening the money drawer behind the bar when Officer Milostan discovered him.

The officer endeavored to gain an entrance through the front way, but the burglar made a dash for the back of the saloon. The officer ran around to the rear of the building, and the burglar gave up his efforts to get out through the window he had entered. He threatened to shoot and the officer blew his whistle.

Roy McKenzie, the former giant member of the police force, heard the whistle and responded as in the days when he too wore the star and chased burglars. He broke in the front door of the saloon while Officer Milostan assaulted the rear, and the burglar, finding himself surrounded, surrendered.

He was examined in police court this afternoon and bound over to the grand jury. One of the strongest bits of evidence against him developed through his breaking his knife blade in trying to force the money drawer. The blade was found in the drawer, while the knife to which it belonged was found in his pocket. The burglar was captured about 1:30 a. m.

ACTIVE BIDDING

The Sale of Interests of O. W. Saunders' Estate.

Brings Almost the Whole Amount of the Claims.

Mineral Discoveries Enhance Value of the Property.

There is one set of creditors in this town that is happy all through. They owned claims against an estate that was not supposed to be worth much of anything, and most of them had long ago mentally charged their bills up to profit and loss. But the estate owned property in St. Louis county, and recent iron ore discoveries very near this property brought the value up so that at the assignee's sale this morning the property brought $33,700. The claims amount to about $39,000, so the creditors will get nearly all of their claims.

The estate is that of O. W. Saunders, who made an assignment some years ago. Harvey A. Wing is the assignee, and this morning, pursuant to an order from the district court, he held a sale of the property, most of which is located in the vicinity of Mesaba Junction, where ore was discovered not long ago. The sale was to come before the district court for confirmation this afternoon.

M. H. Alworth was the principal purchaser, his buying amounting to $33,075 out of the total of $33,700. These purchases are only of fractional interests, so the whole value of the property is large. Mr. Alworth purchased an undivided half interest in lots 2, 3 and 4, and the se¼ of the nw¼ of section 30, 59-14 for $15,000; an undivided one-third interest in the ne¼ of section 29, 59-14, for $15,875; and an interest in the ne¼ of the sw¼ of section 23, 59-15, for $1200.

The bidding was active between representatives of Mr. Alworth and O. D. Kinney, who are said to have been engaging in a rather spirited contest for some time. It is said also that Mr. Alworth had already bought up most of the claims against the estate, so most of what he pays for the property will go back to himself as a claimant against the estate.

RICH IN OIL.

New Field In Which Some Duluthians Are Interested.

An oil field of remarkable prominence has been discovered in Nevada, and it seems that Duluthians have been able to get in on the ground floor. Through connections formed while engaged in mining in Montana some ten years ago, John G. Howard, of this city, learned of this new field shortly after its discovery. He has just returned from three weeks spent in examining the district. According to Mr. Howard this oil field is about seven miles long by four miles wide, and consists of alternate beds or stratas of Trenton limestone—called in the West "oil shales" and sand conglomerate, commonly celled oil gravel. The remarkable extent of these formations, surpassing anything heretofore known, gives promise of the richest oil field yet discovered.

In the California oil fields an oil gravel, 250 feet in depth, is considered an extreme limit, while in the Nevada field the oil gravel is in no place less than 1000 feet. The oil shales (Trenton lime) are so impregnated with oil that when broken open a strong smell of oil is clearly perceptible, and upon chemical analysis give results as high as 20 per cent paraffin, while whole stratas average more than 16 per cent. Indeed, these shales are so rich in oil that, were they situated in the Eastern states, where reasonable freight rates could be secured, it would be profitable to distill them for the oil they contain. A dump, formed by running a drift into these shales, in search for coal, was accidently set on fire and it burned for over two months in the same manner as a coal heap would.

Coal has been found in the upper stratas of these shales, and a company is now endeavoring to open up a coal mine and has two veins of coal, one forty inches and the other forty-four inches in thickness. This field has been examined by three oil experts, and all three have agreed that it presents the strongest surface showing they have ever seen, and promises to be the greatest field known, because of the extraordinary depth of the oil bearing formation. One of these experts is the man who has been most successful in the oil fields of California, and who has no superior in the United States. These three experts have agreed, upon separate examinations, that oil has been formed there in vast quantities, and is to be found there beyond question, unless some break in the formation has allowed the oil to escape, and all have agreed, after a thorough examination of the formation for indication of such break, that no such indication can be found, and that the formation is as true and regular as any they have ever seen, and that if a break has occurred no indication of it appears upon the surface. That a break should have occurred in so thick a formation, without some indication of it appearing upon the surface, is considered to be next to an impossibility.

If oil is found at Elko it will be a paraffin oil of the highest grade, one barrel of which will be worth more than three barrels of the California and Texas oils, which are asphaltic oils, and can be used only for lubricants and fuel.

These oil lands approach within a mile of Elko, a station on the Southern Pacific railway, which lies in the valley of the Humbolt river, at a level to which oil can be piped from every point in the field.

Mr. Howard has brought with him samples of the shales and oil gravel, which are on exhibition at B. E. Baker's office, in the St. Louis hotel.

AT WEST DULUTH

The family of Edwin Ward, of Thirty-ninth avenue west, had a very narrow escape from asphyxiation from coal gas on Thursday evening. Mr. Ward is away from home in the Klondike, and the family at home consists of Mrs. Ward and four children, a daughter and three sons. When the family retired Thursday night, Ralph Ward, a son employed in the Graves-Manley offices at Duluth, fixed the coal fire and, as he supposed, opened the damper into the pipe. It was closed, however, and he was the first to be awakened toward morning by hearing a cry from another member of the family. Hastening to his mother's room, Ralp found her gasping for breath and feared that she was about to die. He then noticed the presence of gas and started for the door, but had hardly opened it before he was taken very sick and lay on the floor for some time before able to regain his feet. As soon as he could, he arousued other members of the family and some of the neighbors were called to their assistance. The house was opened and thoroughly aired, but all the family, except Ralph, were confined to their beds yesterday from the effects of the gas. This is the second accident of the kind that has occurred in West Duluth this season.

A LIVELY CONTEST.

One of the most spirited glove contests witnessed in West Duluth for a long time took place this morning about 10:30 o'clock, at the corner of Oneota street and Thirty-ninth avenue west. The principals were two well known young men of Oneota, who are said to have had a falling out over a young lady and finally, through the good offices of friends, were brought together to settle their troubles in this matter. The settlement was witnessed by quite a crowd of friends, but there were no officers in sight. Several street cars passed the point of meeting during the progress of events and the passengers opportuned the conductors to hold the cars for just a few minutes. It was not learned what the result of the meeting was, but it is understood that it was brought to an end by police interference.

WILL NOT LEAVE.

William Lambert, who for the past few seasons has captained the Duluth ball team, this morning received a letter from James Wiggs, who has signed with the St. Joseph, Mo., team in the Western league. Wiggs urges Lambert to accept an offer from the manager of the St. Joseph team, and says there is a place for him on the team any time that he will accept it. Mr. Lambert played on this team in 1898. "Capt. Bill" says that he is satisfied here and will not consider the offer.

VISITED THE STREETS.

The council committee on streets and the board of public works yesterday made a tour of inspection of the macadamized streets of the city, including West Grand avenue and other West Duluth streets, as well as London road and West First street. The committee was very much impressed with the wearing quality of the roads, which have had no attention since put down. The roads in about every instance, however, are very much in need of repairs as the rock at the bottom is beginning to work up through. The committee will make out a report of their inspection to be presented to the council.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

There is an open air temperance meeting reported to be held this evening at Tremont street corner. The meeting will be in charge of John Carter, Andrew Erickson, Fred Goodrow and Clarence Murray.

There will be regular services at the West Duluth Baptist church tomorrow. Preaching by Arthur L. Hoag, the pastor, both morning and evening. Sunday school at noon. B. Y. P. U. meeting at 7 o'clock. The subject of the morning sermon will be "Working For Christ," and in the evening the topic will be "Another Great Transformation From a Kingly Youth to a Foolish King."

The Senate club had a fine time last night at its banquet in the new club rooms. Various toasts on appropriate subjects were responded to by the different members. One of the features of the evening's entertainment was a debate on the question that capital punishment should be abolished. The affirmative side won. An elegant spread was another of the chief attractions.

This morning the condition of Mrs. S. J. Nygren was reported as unchanged.

Mrs. N. C. Hendricks, who has been threatened with typhoid fever, is reported a little better.

August Schulte has returned from Carlton, where he has been employed at a mill.

Court Earnest Workers, No. 228, I. O. F., will give their dance in the Great Eastern hall on April 17, instead of April 19. All those holding tickets are good for April 17.

Chris Engelsen has purchased a lot in the Sixth division of West Duluth and will build a house on the property this summer.

George Hardman and R. G. Scott, of Hibbing, were calling on West Duluth friends this morning.

John Winess has returned from the woods, where he has had charge of a camp.

Isaac Noxon, bookkeeper at the St. Louis Lumber company's mill, sprained his ankle on Thursday evening while walking on Ramsey street.

Solomon Bright has gone on a two months' business trip in Michigan and Wisconsin.

WATER IS HIGH.

Beautiful Effects Produced By Chester Creek.

People living in the vicinity of Fourth street and Fourteenth avenue east are telling of a fascinating sight which they witnessed last evening. It was a beautiful rainbow, or rather a perfect supernumerary rainbow, the effect being produced without either rain or sun or moon.

Chester creek has been breaking over the falls at that point in a torrent for several days. At one time last evening the water was so high and tempestuous that the spray blew clear up over Fourth street. The refraction and reflection of rays of light from the electric arc light on the corner formed a bow through the spray in which were exhibited in concentric bands the various colors of the spectrum. The colors seemed more distinct than in the lunar rainbow, which is formed frequently by the reflection and refraction of the moonlight on spray.

TAR MACADAM

City Engineer Patton Is Favorably Impressed With It.

City Engineer Patton estimates that the proposed improvements to Nineteenth avenue east will cost $19,731 from London road to Second street, or $25,328 from London road to Fourth street.

It is probable that an innovation in street building will be introduced in making this improvement. Tar-macadam may be used instead of the straight macadam. Mr. Patton has examined into the tar-macadam proposition to which many engineering papers have been devoting much space recently, and is of the opinion that it is the ideal material to be used on Nineteenth avenue.

The grade on that avenue is rather steep and water during heavy rains is likely to wash out ordinary macadam. Mr. Patton sys that he would recommend tar-macadam for this reason if no other, but he is convinced that it is superior in many ways to the macadam on London road and other streets of the city. It would be about as cheap as the ordinary material for macadamizing purposes.

This new street material has been used extensively in Canadian cities, in Hamilton, it is said, that tar-macadam streets have been in for eight years without repairs and are in excellent condition. It is a sort of demi-asphalt mixture.

Mr. Patton says that the macadamizing of Nineteenth avenue east from London road to Second street would cost $8331, while the sewer system from the lake to Second street would cost $11,400, making a total of $19,731 for the contemplated improvements as far as Second street.

The macadamizing from London road to Fourth street would cost $10,984 according to the estimate of the city engineer, while the sewer system from the lake to Fourth street would cost $14,344, making a total of $25,328 for the improvements up to Fourth street.

THE TELEPHONE CASE.

Minneapolis Decision May Settle Duluth Case.

At the special district court this morning the case of the City against the Duluth Telephone company, involving the latter's right to do business in Duluth without the former's consent, was settled for an appeal, after some slight amendments had been made to Judge Cant's findings in favor of the company. It will be remembered that Judge Cant held that the company had a right to keep on doing business under a state law giving telephone and telegraph companies the right to run along the highways of the state. He held that a street was a highway under the legal meaning of the word.

This appeal would have been made before were it not for the fact that the parties have been waiting for the decision of the supreme court in the case esnt up from Minneapolis, involving similar questions. When that was argued before the supreme court, City Attorney Mitchell and W. W. Billson, attorney for the Duluth Telephone company, filed briefs on the same question, and it is hoped that the court will decide this question. If it does, that will determine the Duluth case also; but it is not necessary for it to decide the question in the Minneapolis case. If it does not, the whole matter will have to be argued before it in the Duluth case.

Other matters acted upon at this morning's special term were as follows: Edgar O. Achorn against Ada M. Child et al, order for taking deposition; Mary A. Venning against C. C. Venning, order appointing J. C. McGilvary referee to take the plaintiff's testimony; Charles B. Benson, etc., against D. G. Willard and others, judgment ordered; the matter of the confirmation of the assignee's sale in the estate of O. W. Saunders was to come up this afternoon. Five other cases were continued.

"R. and L. T." You will want one!

HE OBJECTS.

W. J. Power Would Tie Up New Town Site.

The proposed new range town of Chisholm, projected by Capt. J. H. Pearce, A. M. Chisholm and others, is tied up, temporarily at least. W. J. Power, of Hibbing, has begun suit in district court to call off the sale of the townsite and enforce the specific performance of a contract he claims to have for the sale of it to him. Lis pendens has been filed on the property, and that means that it is tied up until the dispute between the parties is settled.

The suit is brought by W. J. Power against J. H. Pearce, A. M. Chisholm, H. F. Korrer and Mary Korrer. Mr. Power claims that some time ago he had a contract to buy the property for $15,000, and that he not only had a written acceptance of his offer from Korrer's attorney, but a telegram from Korrer himself accepting it. Later, he claims, the other defendants came in and offered Korrer $20,000 for the property, and this offer was accepted also, and a deed under it made and recorded. It went on record Wednesday, an this was the first intimation Mr. Power ha of the deal to sell the property he believed himself to be buying.

It is alleged in the complaint that the defendant, A. M. Chisholm, knew of the plaintiff's contract for the purchase of the property and his connection with the deal is alleged to be fraudulent.

The case is important, because the proposed townsite is said to be a very desirable one. It is located in section 21-58-20, on the west shore of Longyear lake, and while the property itself has no ore that all around it has lots of it, and mining developments there are likely to be heavy. There is also a sawmill near by.

TO STOP SALE.

Frank M. Zeller Would Save His Pennsylvania Stock.

Frank M. Zeller has begun suit in district court to have the Pennsylvania Iron and Steel company, Henry Truelsen, S. W. Clark, Simon Clark, Jacob Stubler, Gustav Meden and John E. Davies enjoined from selling stock of his in the company to satisfy an alleged claim. Zeller owns 6810 shares out of 26,000 in the company, and the company still has 3172 of his shares in its possession. It claims that he owes it $3685.60, and it is threatening to sell his stock to satisfy that debt.

Zeller claims that while the stock has no value at present, as the company owns only undeveloped mineral lands, he believes that explorations will develop that the property is worth $500,000 because of the iron ore it contains. He alleges that he owes the company nothing, but that it owes him $4100, of which $1600 is an assigned claim of William C. Bond for salary as president and $2500 is his own claim for services as a creature. He admits that he has not paid for all of his stock, but says that he located the land for the company, and that he got the stock with the agreement that he was to pay for it when he was able, and that any indebtedness between him and the company was to be settled up all at once. Therefore he asks for an injunction, and his petition is presented by Greene & Wood as his attorneys.

Denies the Motion.

Judge Cant has denied the motion of two of the heirs of Johann Mueller to suspend the hearing of the Mueller case until the probate court determines the question of heirship. He also denies the further motion to have the case tried at the nuext term of court solely on the question of the title of F. S. Kosmerl and other mortgage claimants as against the estate, leaving out the question of heirship. It was claimed by some of the heirs that the district court had no jurisdiction over the heirship question until the probate court had passed upon it.

CURED BY A MIGHTY POWER

SPEECHLESS 14 MONTHS.

Mrs. Cluff Restored By Dr. Mitchell.

Mrs. Cluff, who resides at the corner of Forty-fifth avenue and London road, was taken with hoarseness which destroyed her power of speech, and for fourteen months she was not able to speak above a faint whisper. Four different physicians have attended her, but failed to make her speak and pronounced her case a hopeless one. Mrs. Cluff was taken to Dr. Mitchell, who gave her a few treatments and restored her voice. She stated to a number of people in Dr. Mitchell's reception parlors, after she was cured, in a clear firm voice, that she had not spoken for fourteen months. All that Dr. Mitchell did to produce this cure was to apply his hands to the afflicted throat.

Mr. G. W. Thompson, of 907½ East First street, says: "I was sick. Was advised by physicians to fix my business up for I could only live thirty days at the longest, they said I had a very bad case of diabetes and it was impossible to do anything for me. Hearing of Dr. Mitchell and his wonderful power to heal diseases, and being told by Mr. C. H. McComber, of this city about how the doctor had removed a tumor of five years' standing for him, I decided that if this could be done there might be some help for me, and I placed myself under Dr. Mitchell's treatment for one month, for which I am very thankful, as his treatments worked wonders for me. That is five months ago and I now weigh more than I ever did."

Mrs. E. Loring, 515 Twenty-second avenue west, cured by Dr. Mitchell's magnetic treatments of St. Vitus dance, from which she had suffered everything.

If you are sick do not neglect the opportunity of consulting Dr. Mitchell. Consultation is free. Go and learn how your disease can be cured without medicine. Act for yourselves. To allow the opinion of others to rule your choice, is but submitting tamely to the lowest and most ignominious slavery.

Dr. Mitchell has an office at 17 East Superior street. By bringing this advertisement with you, it will entitle you to consultation free.

BIG DEAL IS MADE

Timber Sale Aggregating a Million and a Quarter.

Tract Is One of the Best In This District.

Price Paid Is the Top Notch For This Vicinity.

A large and important timber deal, one of the greatest ever made in this district, has been partially closed; that is, a part of the tract has been bought and the deal for the balance is still pending.

Yesterday the Scanlon-Gipson Lumber company, of Minneapolis, bought part of the Avery tract of timber which lies north of this city along the Cloquet river. This is an immense tract of pine timber, so close to the city that it can be reached in a few hours' drive, and is but a short distance from the Scanlon-Gipson new mill site at Cloquet. The deal for the timber in this tract was said to have been made some time ago to Jacob Mortensen, of Chicago, and several other interests, the price given as $5.50 a thousand for 200,000,000 feet of timber, but the report was premature, as the deal afterward fell through.

It was taken up almost immediately by the Scanlon-Gipson company and another local lumber company, who were to take the whole 200,000,000 feet, but owing to the fact that about 100 forties of the timbered land are disputed with the Northern Pacific Railway company and the matter is now in the United States court and state supreme court, part of the deal affecting the local purchaser is said to be hung up awaiting settlement in court.

The lumber interests mentioned as having made the sale are Cook & Turrish and John McAlpine, of this city; Alexander McLaren, of Chippewa Falls, Wis.; Walter Alexander, of Eau Claire, Wis.; Alexander Stewart, of Wausau, Wis., and one or two other local lumber men that had small interests which they pooled with the rest. The timber is located for the most part in towns 53, 54 and 55, ranges 12, 13 and 14.

The price is reported at $6.25 a thousand, and if true, is the largest price ever paid for so big a tract of standing pine in Northern Minnesota, and is pointed out as being significant in connection with the advancing prices of pine lands.

WILL BE ENDED.

Strikers Will Probably Go Back to Work.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 13.—Officials of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, in charge of the car shops at Ashley and a committee of the strikers, went into secret session at noon. The conference is expected to last some time. The conference adjourned at 2 o'clock. It is said Superintendent Thomas made a proposition to reinstate the twenty-seven men whose suspension caused the strike.

A meeting of the strikers has been called for 3 o'clock and the indications are the strike will be declared off and that all hands will return to work Monday.

DISGRACEFUL.

Member of Canadian House Attempts An Assault.

Buffalo, April 13.—A special from Ottawa says: A disgraceful scene occurred in the house of commons last night, Mr. Talbot, Liberal member for Belle Chase, attempting to assault N. Clarke Wallace, who was comptroller of customs in the late Conservative government, as he was leaving his seat in the chamber.

Mr. Wallace had laid his walking cane on his desk, and Talbot attempted to seize it to strike Mr. Wallace, but was prevented by several members, who divined his intention. Mr. Wallace took the matter coolly. The cause of the trouble was a scoring of Mr. Talbot by Mr. Wallace at yesterday's meeting.

BALL TEAM.

Hansell Signs Some More Players For the Nine.

Manager Hansell of the Duluth Baseball club has signed "Bill" Lambert, the popular outfielder and captain of last year's team. He signed yesterday afternoon and this morning received an exceptionally good offer to play with the St. Joseph, Mo., club in the Western league. Lambert, however, has turned down other Western league propositions and it is not likely that this latest offer will tempt him. The offer was made through Jim Wiggs, the erratic twirler, who caused so much gladness and sorrow among the Duluth fans during the season of 1899 and part of last season.

Manager Hansell has made Sheppard an offer, which the star short stop has under consideration. He intimated that he might be ready to sign a contract some time today.

It is definitely settled that Sturgeon, the promising young catcher from Milwaukee, will sign a Duluth contract. He wired here today that he would report for practice on May 1.

Mr. Fear, of Ashland, who has been looking after baseball matters in the south shore town, is now in Chicago, and it is reported that he is going to sign with Evansville, Ind. Manager Hansell says, however, that Fear is in Chicago hustling up some good players, and as soon as he returns to Ashland there will be a meeting for the purpose of fixing up a season schedule.

SUPERIOR STREET PAVING.

Petition For Brick Nearly Large Enough.

The prospects of the petition for the paving of Superior street with vitrified brick are assuming a rosy appearance. Up to this afternoon, after only five days' work, the petition was signed by 1500 feet of local owners of property on Superior street, and with the outside signers that are confidently expected, those who are pushing the petition look to see over 3000 feet represented on the petition. Only 2200 feet are needed. The petitions are for the paving of Superior street from Eighth avenue west of Third avenue east with the best grade of vitrified brick.

A DIZZY SMILE.

It Lands Carrie Summers In Jail.

As pleasing as the opening chords of a soft Italian opera was the bewitching, pensive smile of Carrie Summers last evening as she started up Lake avenue. It grew so violently bewitching that persons owning frame buildings and other inflammable property, first telephoned the fire warden and then the police. A detective was sent out from headquarters with instructions to stop the smile at all hazards.

He went down Lake avenue and soon met the tall, shapely young woman with the dangerous smile. She wore a magnificent gown of dazzling cardinal red, brocaded in poppies of the hues of flags of all nations, closed in at the waist with a huge horseshoe of fake diamonds. She wore a red hat that violently matched the smile and gown. The detective being a plain clothes man was unnoticed by Miss Summers till the light of her smile fell upon him with all its fiery impetuousness.

The detective stopped her and they held a short conversation. Miss Summers insisted that she was not doing anything incendiary. When the detective asked her more about herself, she said that she was very wealthy. To prove this she invited him to visit her home close by. The officer didn't see anything about the flat to indicate a high position or moral endeavor, and the girl seeing that she was about to be arrested asked the detective to excuse her for a moment while she could go to her room to put on her long, trailing silk gown of pink crepe de chine, magnificently embroidered in select orchids and trimmed with wide bands of priceless sable.

The detective perceiving her wild desire to get out the back window, suavely inquired if she desired the change for fear the costume she had on would fade the plush-shaded roses on the rich, cream colored carpet.

That was too much for Miss Summers. She burst into tears. The detective insisted that she accompany him to headquarters.

"But I have nothing to wear," protested the girl, "and besides I do think it's such bad form to have one's name in the papers. My father is rich, but honest and it would break his heart if you should fine me more than $10 and costs. Please don't!"

Miss Summers was in jail but a short time when a man put up $15 bail for her, and she forefeited this by not appearing in court this morning.

Sends Six Recruits.

This afternoon Capt. Wilder, the recruiting officer for the regular army, who has been in the city after recruits this week, sent a squad of six enlisted men to St. Paul, where they will be fitted out with clothing and supplies. The six sent down were all men of fine physique and were selected for enlistment from among about ten that were examined by Dr. Patton, the examining physician here.

Burglars Abroad.

Burglars tried to enter the home of J. B. Middlecoff, at 1412 Jefferson street, last night. About 11 o'clock the servant heard some one on the walk in the yard, but thought nothing of it. About 2 o'clock Mrs. Middlecoff was awakened by one of the children and while in the room attending to it heard a key put in the lock in the front door and tried. The party doing it made considerable effort to work the lock and she called Mr. Middlecoff. As she did so she turned on a light. This evidently frightened the would-be burglar away for no signs of anyone could be found.

Charge Found Untrue.

Findings have been filed in the case of John Johnson against Clara J. Gibbs, a sister of Alonzo J. Whiteman, in which Johnson claimed usury as a ground why a mortgage on his property should be set aside. The court finds the charge of usury untrue, and declares the defendant's foreclosure of the mortgage to be valid. It is found that the defendant only took the 10 per cent interest allowed by the note. The mortgage was for $250. H. G. Gearhart was attorney for Mrs. Gibbs.

CASE SETTLED.

Toronto, April 13.—The telegraph suit, the action of Morros Clarke, of Boston, to annul the lease by which the Great Northwestern company has for seventeen years controlled and operated the lines of the Montreal Telegraph company, has been settled out of court in favor of the defendants. "Each side will pay its own costs," is all the information either side will give for this disposition of the case.

WESTERN TRIP.

Arrangements Nearly Made For Ohio Delegation.

Washington, April 13.—Arrangements for the trip of the Ohio delegation in congress to San Francisco, upon the occasion of the launching of the battleship Ohio are practically completed. The delegation will leave Cincinnati at 11:30 a. m., May 7, for New Orleans, whence they will proceed to San Francisco over the Southern Pacific. After the launching they will go north to Portland and Seattle and return over the Northern Pacific, arriving in Columbus about June 1. It is understood that neither Senator Hanna nor Senator Foraker will accompany the party. The representatives who will not go are Messrs. Burton, Weaver, Van Voorhees and Kerr.

AT DAGGERS POINT.

Seville, Spain, April 13.—The strikers from the cork works, accompanied by their women folks, attacked the factory today and, with drawn daggers, forced the workers to cease their tasks.

LETTER CARRIERS

Can Wear Shirt Waists During the Hot Weather.

Washington, April 13.—The assistant attorney general for the postoffice department has ruled that the amendment attached to the current appropriation act, limiting the hours of work for letter carriers throughout the country to forty-eight hours a week, expires with the act itself on June 30 next. After that date, the postoffice department will re-enact the rules of the eight-hour law of March 24, 1888.

The amendment at the time of its consideration in congress was fought by the association of letter carriers and the department found it expensive to enforce it. The eight-hour law specifically provides for eight hours a day, while the amendment allowed the averaging of this amount of work so as to keep within the limit of forty-eight hours in the six days of labor.

The postmaster general has decided to issue an order permitting letter carriers throughout the country to wear a loose fitting blouse instead of a coat when the heat of the summer warrants it.

FOILED.

Daring Attempt to Rob Express Car Was Frustrated.

Warshington, April 13.—A daring attempt to rob the express car of the second section of a Northbound passenger train on the Pennsylvania railroad at the Virginia Midland crossing, four miles southwest of this city last night, was frustrated by prompt action of the express messenger. As the train approached the crossing shortly before 11 o'clock, the messenger in one of the two express cars discovered several men crouching between the two coaches, trying to force open the door of one of them. The messenger gave the signal for the train to stop and as it slowed down the men jumped off and escaped across the fields. The police who are investigating the case believe there were three men in the gang.

MUST COME DOWN.

Lansing, Mich., April 13.—State Railroad Commissioner Osborn today ordered the Grand Rapids & Indiana and the Muskegon, Grand Rapids & Indiana companies to reduce their passenger rates to 2½ cents per mile. The earnings of these roads last year showed $2000 per mile, which, under the statute, brings them within the 2½ cent classification.

SHEA ARRESTED.

Cedar Island Lake Case Once More.

William Shea, of Eveleth, has been arrested on complaint of W. B. Phelps, attorney of the Cloquet Lumber company, and the court will be asked to put him under bonds to keep the peace. The trouble is another phase of the dispute over the Cedar Lake island. Shea is one of the settlers who caused the arrest of the Cloquet Lumber company's men who were cutting timber there and endeavored to have them put under bonds to keep the peace. The men were discharged upon the hearing. Mr. Shea's version of the present affair is that he had a conversation with Mr. Phelps in which he intimated that he would prevent the men from cutting the timber by force if necessary.

UHLER'S VIEW.

Says Marine Engineers Will Fight to Finish.

Cleveland, April 13.—National President Uhler, of the Marine Engineers' association, arrived here today from a trip around the lakes in the interest of the pending strike of the members of his organiation.

"I found everything satisfactory at all points visited," said Uhler. "Not to exceed eight or ten boats have been fitted out and not one of our members has gone to work. In all my experience I have never before found the men so unanimous and determined to fight to a finish."

THE MULES

Will Be Permitted to Sail From New Orleans.

New Orleans, April 13.—Judge Parlange in the United States superior court today handed down a decision dismissing the suit for injunction, brought by Boer representatives here, with a view to preventing the shipment of mules and horses out of New Orleans to the British army in South Africa.

MOUNTAIN TRAGEDY.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 13.—A special to the Sentinel from Sneedville reports another mountain tragedy. Evan Bledsaw, a feudist, was found dead sitting upright against a tree, grasping his rifle tightly. It is believed he had been decoyed to the desolate spot in hope of capturing the man who killed his father several years ago.

A UNITED STATES SENATOR RESTORED TO HEALTH

Pe-ru-na as a Nerve and Catarrh Tonic the Talk of the World.

Hon. W. V. Sullivan, United States Senator from Mississippi.

Hon. W. V. Sullivan, United States Senator from Mississippi, in a letter recently written to Dr. Hartman, from Oxford, Miss., says the following of Peruna as a catarrh remedy:

"For some time I have been a sufferer from catarrh in its most incipient stage, so much so that I became alarmed as to my general health. But, hearing of Peruna as a good remedy, I gave it a fair trial and soon began to improve. Its effects were distinctly beneficial, removing the annoying symptoms, and it was particularly good as a tonic.

"I take pleasure in recommending your great national catarrh cure, Peruna, as the best I have ever tried."---W. V. Sullivan.

Hon. Philip B. Thompson, Jr., Member of Congress from Kentucky, in a recent letter has the following to say of the national catarrh remedy, Peruna. The letter was written at Washington, D. C., and reads as follows:

"My friends have used your remedy, Peruna, and I take the pleasure in testifying to the merits of your medicine. Besides being one of the very best tonics, it is a good substantial catarh remedy."—Philip B. Thompson, Jr.

Mr. William Pfeiffer writes from 309 Bank street, Cincinnati, O., as follows: Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.:

Dear Sir—"Owing to the fact that I have been troubled with catarrh and was cured by your medicine (Peruna), I cannot express my thanks to you for the health I am now enjoying. My case of catarrh is one which has been in my system for years before I knew what was wrong. It was going from bad to worse, until tired of it I went to an institute for treatment. The doctor in charge said my nose would have to be operated upon. Having no confidence in the operation he wanted to perform I at once began to take Peruna, which is our family remedy. I also followed your directions in the book "Winter Catarrh," for which my mother sent, and found relief. Shortly after I suffered with a heavy cold, but recovered from that, and am now very healthy.

"I cannot express my thanks to you for the service your medicine has rendered me, and I recommend it as the best remedy for catarrh, as I am one who has been cured by your medicine."—William Pfeiffer, Jr.

Mrs. W. E. Grissom, of Henry, Ellis county, Texas, writes:

"I took Peruna faithfully over two months, and the result is a thoroughly renovated system and a strong, buoyant feeling, to say nothing of a cure of the chronic catarrh. Therefore I shall avail myself of every opportunity to speak of Peruna as a catarrh cure."—Mrs. W. E. Grissom.

Catarrh is a systematic disease, curable only by systematic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does. Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears; then it is permanently cured.

Mr. Harry M. Stevens, of Midland Beach, L. I., New York, proprietor of the Richmond hotel, says this of Peruna: "It gives me pleasure to testify to the value of Peruna. I have used it for years and have found it to be a most excellent family remedy. For colds, catarrh and similar ills, it is unsurpassed."—Harry M. Stevens.

HON. HARRY M. STEVENS.

During the winter season the onset of catarrh is often very sudden. It begins like an ordinary cold. It very rapidly fastens itself upon the organ attacked, whether it be the head, throat or lungs, and assumes a stubborn form of catarrh at once.

Upon the first appearance of what is known as a common cold everybody should immediately take warning and provide themselves with a bottle of Peruna. One bottle of Peruna will do more at the beginning of the attack than several bottles can do after the disease has become thoroughly established in the system.

Peruna cures the catarrh wherever located. Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice free.

REDUCTION PROMISED.

Tobacco Trust Would Reduce Price of Cigars.

New York, April 13.—The American Cigar company, which was recently purchased by the American Tobacco company, has made final arrangements for the absorption of the Havana-American company.

The last named company was organized with a capital of $10,000,000 in November, 1899, under the laws of New Jersey, for the manufacture of cigars.

By the absorption of the Havana-American company, the American Cigar company, which already controls the manufacture of cigarettes, snuff and plug tobacco, will make a big stride toward controlling the cigar trade as well. One of the immediate results promised to the smoker is a slight reduction in the retail price of cigars.

The American company was incorporated in January, 1890, and was capitalized at $70,000,000.

IN LITERATURE.

American Competition Keenly Felt In England.

New York, April 13.—The force of American competition extends even to the dry field of medical literature, says the Tribune's London correspondent. Within two or three years American books on diseases of children, pathology, surgery and medicine, have largely displaced in England similar works by English specialists. Sales of works by American medical writers have steadily increased, owing partly to the superiority of their mechanical processes of illustration. Medical literature in England is in a fair way to become thoroughly Americanized, owing to the enterprise and scientific investigations of the specialists of Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

CUBAN IMMIGRATION.

Washington, April 13.—A statement setting forth the origin and extent of immigration at the port of Havana, Cuba, for the last half of the calendar year of 1900 was made public by the division of insular affairs of the war department today. The total number of immigrants arriving at that port during the period named was 14,578.

The Chinese immigrants numbered 226, 17 from the United States, 18 from the United Kingdom, 106 from China, 16 from British North America, 62 from Mexico and 7 from South America. The Filipino contribution numbered 7, 3 from the United States and 4 from Spain. Six Japanese and 3 Coreans arrived from the United States. The most extensive immigration was Spanish, the total number of Spanish immigrants being 12,935, of whom 12,094 were from Spain, 396 from Mexico and 346 from the United States. The immigration from other of the principal nations was as follows: English 148; French, 193; Italian, 304; Mexican, 225, and German, 99.

NOTED PASSENGERS.

Buenos Ayres, April 13.—Rear Admiral Schley embarked on the British steamer Clyde for the United States. Mrs. Lord, wife of the United States minister, is also on the ship.

GOOD WORK

Done By Duluth Delegation at St. Paul.

Opinions By Some of the Members.

St. Paul, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Duluth has no occasion to feel ashamed of the work accomplished by the delegation that has spent the last three months in the state capital. The Herald, of course, cannot agree with all the partisan actions of all of them, but on all matters affecting Duluth and St. Louis county there have been no party lines, for the delegation has generally acted as one, and by that fact has gained many matters which would have been lost had there been internal dissensions among the members. One or two little clashes there have been, but in general the friction has been little and the results in some ways have been good. A few of the delegation have briefly expressed their views of the work of the session, and it may be said for them that they have served their people well, and deserve recognition not only for what they have accomplished but also for what they have prevented others from carrying into effect. Here is what they say:

MR. LAYBOURN'S OPINION.

The Thirty-second session of the Minnesota legislature has ended, and the Duluth delegation has nothing to regret or to be ashamed of or apologize for. On the contrary, the legislature and the Duluth delegation at the recent session accomplished more work, enacted more important legislation and made a better record than any previous session during the past ten years. What has it accomplished? do you ask? The record shows:

First, the election of two United States senators the peers of any in that body, elected without friction, scandal or delay, in wide contrast to the experience of Nebraska, Oregon and Montana.

Second, congressional reapportionment of the state, creating nine districts, upon the plan proposed by Senator Daugherty, the Eighth district, known as the Duluth district, being particularly satisfactory and convenient.

Third, the creation of a tax commission, to revise the tax laws and prepare a tax code and to draft such constitutional amendments as the commission believes should be submitted. The commission to report in February, 1902, and the report to be acted upon by a special session of the legislature immediately following.

Fourth, the board of control, providing for a change of administrative management of the penal, reformatory, custodial and educational institutions of the state, placing that power in a central board of three persons appointed by the governor.

Fifth, the district primary election law, one of the most meritorious and desirable laws ever enacted in any state, and one of the most important steps ever taken by the state of Minnesota—a credit alike to the author (Dunn, of St. Paul) and the legislature that placed it upon the statutes.

Sixth, the adoption of the "Torrens system" of transferring land titles indicates the advanced position which Minnesota is taking in legislation. While this law is made to apply only to Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties at this time, there is but little question that it will soon be desired by the rest of the state.

Seventh, the question of the distribution of the gross earnings tax paid by railroads, of vital importance to Duluth and St. Louis county, was by action upon H. F. 598, referred to the new tax commission, and it behooves every taxpayer of St. Louis county to exert every possible effort to have that commission investigate the proposition fully and report it favorably.

Eighth, the state tax levy, fixed at 1.3 mills, the lowest ever made in the state, is ample evidence that the administrative affairs of Minnesota are being conducted in the best interests of the people, and that the legislature has been judicious, wise and economical.

Ninth, the passage of the railroad gross earnings tax bill, increasing the rate of taxation from 3 to 4 per cent. While the importance of this legislation is conceded by its advocates and opponents, the wisdom or unwisdom of the legislature in passing the law at this time, in advance of its consideration by the tax commission, a body particularly qualified to investigate the knotty legal questions involved, remains to be seen.

Tenth, of secondary and special local importance to Duluth, the enactment of the following legislation may be noted, viz.: Bill creating board of poor commissioners; appropriation for roads in Fifty-first legislative district; authorizing "clearance tax sales," as a finale of the forfeited tax sales of 1899 and 1900; placing the sheriff of St. Louis county on annual salary of $4000; normal school appropriation; providing for appeal from municipal court of Duluth to district court.

These and numerous other bills have been passed, and the results will certainly be beneficial.

Duluth and Northern Minnesota interests have, as usual, been attacked by a few extremists and confessed enemies of Duluth, like Jacobson, of Lac qui Parle, who seem best pleased when they can retard our prosperity and cripple our mining and railroad interests. But this session their attempts have proved vain, owing to the constant watchfulness of the Duluth members.

The delegation has been active, diligent and harmonious, therefore strong and influential.

To its successors the Duluth legislative delegation of 1901 says: "We have set the pace; do better if you can."

GEORGE R. LAYBOURN.

MR. ALFORD'S VIEWS.

The tasks of the St. Louis county delegation in the present legislature have been two. The first included the passage of several bills by which certain features of our county and city government are substantially modified. Among such bills are that increasing the number of county commissioners; that creating the board of poor commissioners and the bridge bill. All the bills of this class have been fully discussed in our local papers. My own judgment is that their good qualities have not been over stated.

The other task lay in preventing legislation harmful to our local interests. Such legislation has not always been easy to detect on account of its great volume and varied character. Both St. Paul and Minneapolis, by reason of peculiar local conditions, have sought much and it has not been easy to make reasonable concessions and at the same time to avoid vital modifications of our city charter. But to the respective delegations representing those three cities we were uniformly moderate, our own has been watchful and I think as a result the winter's work will disclose no substantial prejudice to our own interests.

Of bills passed affecting the state the primary election law is a far-reaching one. Its influence upon the politics of the state will be most wholesome.

E. F. ALFORD.

MR. MALLORY'S VIEWS.

What some of the newspapers call the most important measures of the session—such as the Jacobson gross earnings law, the Torrens land title system and the primary election law—do not seem to me so important or so full of great good to the state as is claimed. I may be mistaken in my opinion. I am not infallible, but my votes throughout the session have expressed my convictions, which are as I have stated. We have had a good house and all the members have tried to do their duty to the best of their ability.

GEORGE J. MALLORY.

MR. BURY'S OPINIONS.

I find that the members of the house believe that we have had one of the best speakers the state has ever had. The members have been equal to or above the average of what I have understood the house to be in the past and the house has at all times been fair and willing to do the right thing. With only one night session the business has been done in the time allotted and during the hours between 10 and 5:30 o'clock.

I believe that more benefit would come to the people as a whole through a reduction in rates instead of by increasing taxes on railroads. If the members though the railroads were earning too much money they should have reduced the rates and not raised the gross earnings tax.

In regard to the state oil inspectorship I am satisfied to have it on a salary basis after the end of the term for which the present incumbent was appointed. If that arrangement is found to be satisfactory after a trial, then let the salary basis continue in force.

THOMAS A. BURY.

IN MICHIGAN.

Mysterious Disappearance of John Ourada of Menominee.

Menominee—Friends and relatives of John Ourada, a resident of Menominee, are greatly alarmed concerning his mysterious disappearance Friday last. When he was last seen he was crossing the Frenchtown bridge. He had left his boarding house early in the morning without informing anyone of his intentions. He had $10 in cash. The officers have been notified of his disappearance and they are conducting a search for him. It is feared that Ourada fell in the river and was drowned. He was a man of temperate habits, which makes the affair all the more mystifying.

The business of the Richardson Shoe company of Menominee has increased 27 per cent during the past fifteen months over the year immediately preceding. The annual meeting of the directors was held this week. The report of the general manager showed that 159,950 pairs of shoes had been manufactured during the year just closed, as compared with 123,490 pairs in 1899, an increase of 35,510 pairs.

Sault Ste. Marie—Bishop Frederick Eis, of the Catholic diocese of Sault Ste. Marie and Marquette, will confirm classes aggregating over 200 young people in the St. John's, St. Anne's and Espanany churches at Menominee, Sunday, May 17. It will be the bishop's second official visit to that city.

Eight members of the Soo's contingent in the Thirtieth volunteers were received home Tuesday, their arrival being attended by a notable demonstration. A monster parade was drawn up to meet the train which bore the soldier boys and after they were placed in carriages the principal streets were traversed. A reception at the Armory was a part of the proceedings.

LEGAL OBSTACLES

Will Prevent Exhumation of Cook's Remains.

London, April 13.—Legal obstacles will undoubtedly prevent the exhumation of the body of Sir Francis Cook, despite the desire of Lady Cook (formerly Tennie C. Claflin, of New York) to resort to that method of disposing of rumors against herself. While the home secretary has not officially refused her request, he has intimated that there must be more than rumor on which to grant a permit for the exhumation of the body, in face of the evidence of physicians and others of Sir Francis' natural demise.

BRAZIL BRIEFS.

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, April 13.—The Journal Do Brazil says the leave requested by the minister in Washington shows that the comercial questions pending between Brazil and the United States have been definitely settled. A dispatch from Bahia announces that the Banco de Bahia has suspended payment. The institution is one of the most important banks of Bahia.

AN APPOINTMENT.

Washington, April 13.—The following appointment by the president was announced today:

War department—Charles E. McGoon, to be law officer, division of insular affairs.

AGAIN WE SAY

That responses to our advertising justifies us in concluding that a GOOD proposition NEVER GOES BEGGING.

Here is one of our responses:

A. C. VOLK & CO.,
202 Palladio Building,
Duluth, Minn.

April 18, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Prospectus of "St. Croix Consolidated Copper Mines" at hand. After careful reading, I should say it was a valuable property. Being an old copper miner of Michigan I think I will go over and see how it looks.

Please find enclosed American Express Order, payable to A. C. Volk & Co., Duluth, for $37.50 for 250 shares of St. Croix Consolidated stock.

Yours truly,
John Gill.

The price of this stock is now 20 cents per shares—and it is selling at this figure. WHY? Because it is intrinsically worth a great deal more.

If you haven't the time to figure it out yourself—let us figure it for you.

If the company sold out all its lands today—the proceeds would be divided between the owners of about 800,000 shares—(about 700,000 shares being still unissued.)

800,000 shares at 20 cents per share—$160,000.

21,000 acres (what we now own) at $7.65 per acre—$160,650.

But lands not as good as ours, or no better, are selling at $10.80 in large tracts and in small tracts at from $25.00 to $50.00 per acre.

Figuring it at $10.00 per acre our stock today is intrinsically worth over 25 cents per share.

This is not taking into consideration any mineral possibilities whatever.

What will it be worth when we commence to develop our properties upon a large scale?

We leave you to draw your own conclusion.

Are not the elements of speculation eliminated from this venture?

Can you afford to lose this opportunity?

Our present price—20 cents per Share—subject to advance without notice.

PREDICTION—In less than six months this stock will find a steady sale at 50 cents a share.

We court the most rigid investigation. Every stockholder is invited to examine our books and title deeds.

THE DAKOTAS.

Navigation on Red River Has Opened For the Season.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Navigation opened Thursday on the Red river. The steamer Grand Forks, Capt. Peniston, got up steam and took a run down the river to Granville, Minn., a distance of twenty-four miles. The return trip was made last evening, a cargo of wood being brought up. There is comparatively little wheat to be moved this season, but a fair business is expected in lumber, farm machinery and supplies.

Jamestown—Announcement is made of the birth of twins, a boy and girl, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Genzel, north of Jamestown. Genzel is 66 years of age and has been married twice. By his first wife he had nine children and since his marriage to his second wife ten children have put in an appearance. About a year ago twins were born. Although blessed with but little of this world's goods Mr. Genzel is happy over the latest addition to his family, and it is with great pleasure that he receives the congratulations of his friends.

Fargo—Judge Pollock Friday morning announced the long expected decision in the drainage suits. The court finds that the drainage board has acted within its powers all the way through the proceedings, and orders the actions dismissed with the costs charged to the plaintiffs.

Mayville—At the last meeting of the board of education the present corps of teachers was elected for the following year. The teachers are: Principal Wallace and Misses Luckien, Walbom, Hibbard, Rutherford and Barnum.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Pierre—Drillers of the artesian well in Pearl township, Sully county, yesterday struck a strong flow of water at 1640 feet, but went several feet deeper. They will at once start on a second well in the same township.

Huron—The authorities have been advised that Alex Radisty, sent to the hospital for insane at Yankton, a year or more ago from this county, has escaped. Radisty eloped with a married woman, who took with her three children. They were found at Rapid City, brought back to Beadle county and held for their appearance at the March term of circuit court a year ago. The woman furnished bond, but Radisty was put in jail.

Vermillion—The Populists are feeling sore over the recent nominations for city officers, alleging that the caucuses were called as "citizens' caucuses" and that the secretaries have certified the nominations as Republican. As a result independent nominations are being made my petition and there bids fair to be a spirited contest in some of the wards.

Lead—Harry Tier, a resident of this city, who was arrested on the charge of murder committed in Hilliard, Wyo., in 1875, and taken to Evanston, Wyo., a short time ago, is being tried for the crime in that place. Henry Robinson, of Deadwood, and Emil Faust, Henry Schnitzel and Burdette Moody, of Lead, left for Wyoming this week to be witnesses. The three former are familiar with the details of the crime and Moody will testify as to the general reputation of Tier in the Hills for the past twenty-five years. Tier has had an excellent reputation while in the Hills.

POOR WORK

Done By the American Jockeys In England.

London, April 13.—The friends of the American jockeys now in England are so far badly disappointed at the season's work. Not a single American appeared at Leicester yesterday. L. Reiff has lost 15 out of 20 races; J. Reiff, 31 out of 36, and Maher, 16 out of 20. These failures are variously attributed to the fact that most of the English jockeys have adopted the American style of riding, or to the immature condition of the American mounts. One of the interesting results of the American invasion is the appearance on the turf of a new racing saddle with sliding stirrups, which is warranted to give a jockey an American seat without effort on his part. The stirrups' traps work on much the same principle as the V shaped American suspender fasteners, and the inventor of the new saddle claims that it automatically changes the rider's weight from the front to rear, and vice versa, giving all the advantage of the American style of riding.

PENSIONS GRANTED.

Washington, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following pensions have been granted: Original—Jesse S. Smith, of Staples, $6. Renewal—Josiah F. Clark, of Oak Grove, $12. Increase—John Pullar, of Park Rapids, $10. Widows—Jane Picken, of Browerville, $8.

HUMORS

Spring's Inheritance from Winter.

Waste matters which the kidneys, skin and other organs were too torpid, (in the cold days) to take care of, and cannot take care of now without help, there is such an accumulation of them.

They litter the whole system.

Pimples, boils and other eruptions, loss of appetite, that tired feelings, bilious turns, fits of indigestion, dull headaches and many other troubles common in spring are due to them.

REALTY CIRCLES

Building Season Will Soon Be on Full Blast.

Chicago Rental Agents Forming a Protective Association.

J. D. Stryker Reports a Successful Eastern Trip.

The building season will be on in full force within a short time, and much of it is being begun now. Therefore the architects, builders and laborers are the busiest people connected with real estate operations in any way. Some of the plans that have been announced have fallen through because the prospective builders thought prices are too high, but most of them are going on and work will be begun shortly. Real estate business is good, and the inquiry is as active as ever, with prices on the upward grade.

J. D. Stryker, of the firm of Stryker, Manley & Buck, has returned from a very successful Eastern trip on business connected with his firm. He accomplished, during his visit, everything he set out to do, and during his absence negotiated the sale of about $65,000 in securities and $22,000 in real estate. He reports that Duluth stands better than ever with the people of the East, who are looking toward her full of confidence in her future.

George W. Buck, of the same firm, returned yesterday from a Southern trip for the benefit of his health, and he is looking as though his trip was also a successful one in a marked degree. He spent a large portion of the winter at Tarpon Springs, Fla.

Chicago real estate agents have formed a mutual protective association designed to foil the attempts of crafty renters to dodge a month's rent at the end of their stay. It seems that there are people in Chicago who make a practice of moving with some regularity, and when they move they permit the last month's rent to slip their minds. Without a protective association it is impossible to guard against this, so one is being formed, and the idea is to have a blacklist for those who practice this sharp work. This idea will meet with favor among Duluth real estate agents, and it is quite possible that such an association may be formed here. This is not to be construed as indicating a suspicion that there is anybody in Duluth that would do such a thing, but the population is increasing by additions from outside as well as in the natural manner, and there is no telling when some of the Chicago rent-jumpers may make their home here. Another object of the Chicago association is to stop giving free rent for a month at the start as an inducement to renters to locate, but that will not apply here, as the need of inducements is non-existent.

It has been reported that J. J. Haley has changed his mind about moving his restaurant to the new building that is to be put up for him just west of his present location, and that he would rent the new building. Mr. Haley denies this absolutely.

A contract has been awarded for the construction of a new building to cost $15,000 on Superior street between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues west for Sarah B. Smith, of Pennsylvania. hTe contract has been awarded to George H. Lounsberry. The building will be two stories high, and will have a frontage of seventy-five feet. There will be three stores on the ground floor and six flats on the upper floor.

Plans will be here in a few days for the enlargement of the Duluth Brewing and Malting company's plant. Plans for the terrace of nine houses that Dr. J. J. Eklund is to build at the corner of Fifteenth avenue east and Second street are ready for the contractors.

William B. Phelps has sold his residence in the East End to Fitz James Hill for $9000. The property consists of the north forty feet of lots 7 and 8, block 75, Endion division.

Property owners will be greatly interested in the new forfeited tax law, a digest of which appears elsewhere in this paper. It applies to the property sold under the law of 1897, which was declared unconstitutional, and not to that sold under the law of 1899, which was upheld.

George H. Crosby & Co., report that the contract for the two 7-room houses with modern improvements, announced last week, has been let. They are to be built on Second street, just west of Twelfth avenue east.

The firm also reports the sale of a house and lot on Jefferson street, near Sixteenth avenue, to Mary A. Fitzpatrick for $2550. J. W. and A. W. Johnson have bought a lot on Third street near Eighth avenue west for $900, and Cornelia Sullivan has purchased a lot on Fourth street near Ninth avenue for $475.

MRS. RORER'S LECTURES.

Closes Her Series at M. E. Church.

Mrs. S. T. Rorer closed her lectures on cooking and good living this afternoon at the First Methodist church. The series has been very interesting to all the women who have attended. Mrs. Rorer does not devote her talks to cooking alone but touches on many branches of domestic science. Many of her ideas seem to her hearers who are trained in other ways of living and eating, rather radical but she maintains them with reasoning that seems sound and argument that is along scientific lines and based on the experience and experiments of many years. She asserts that the American people eat too much and in selecting their food always aim to please their palates rather than to take that which is richest in nourishment and best calculated to repair the waste of the body with least digestive effort. She says that the laboring people of this country do not eat properly and that that is one reason why so many men drink. If they ate differently they would not drink. She admitted the hopelessness of trying to educate them in the right direction for she says the average workingman is bound to eat what the rich man has. He says that if the rich man eats white bread and all kinds of meats he must have them and refuses to content himself with food that would give him far more strength and nourishment at much less cost.

There have been no ideas advanced by Mrs. Rorer during her stay here that have been of more general interest and that have elicited more questions from her hearers than those which she has given on the care of refrigerators. She claims they are the cause of more disease and danger than almost any other feature of the household. Any refrigerator in which a box of matches may not be placed in the cooling part and keep perfectly dry is out of order. The circulation of air is not what it should be. She condemned the practice of airing refrigerators. A refrigerator is supposed to be kept cool constantly. The door should be only allowed open an instant at a time. In hers she has a second door reaching up about half way because it is at the bottom that the cold air escapes. To leave the door of an average refrigerator open one minute means the loss of about ten pounds of ice. Never clean a refrigerator with soap and water is a solemn injunction which she gives. Add two ounces of formaldiphyde to a gallon of water and cleanse it with that.

BLASTS FROM RAM'S HORN.

The shearer makes a poor shepherd.

Faithful acts grow from active faith.

Regret cannot bring the arrow back to the bow.

There is no prit in religion where there is no loss.

What is morally wrong can never be politically right.

Sometimes God's storms are but to drive us into harbor.

Blessings will be poured in only as you pour them out.

He who is willing to face failure can never secure success.

You can afford to lose the flowers of time for the seed of eternity.

The man who revolves around himself will never get anywhere.

Reformers need to wear a stony look to be a pillar in the church.

The assets of character are in what you are and not what you have.

Sowing in pain and tears promises the reaping in plenty and triumph.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Boston Globe: The Brooklyn minister who has refused to accept a $500-a-year increase in salary until after the mortgage on his church building has been paid seems to have the strange idea that churches really ought to do business on strict business principles.

Chicago Chronicle: A Gotham minister says that "denominational relations should always be subsidiary to the kingdom of God, which is greater than all churches." The same being translated into vernacular intelligible means that he had decided to alter his creed to accept a call with a larger salary.

Boston Transcript: Rev. Minot J. Savage says that the orthodox idea of heaven is too cold. Perhaps the retort might be made that the other idea of it is too hot. For instance, in one of Dr. Holmes' hymns, we read:

Before Thy ever-blazing throne
We ask no luster of our own.

San Francisco Call: A learned philosopher of Edinburgh after mature study has come to the conclusion that Saturn is the dwelling place of Satan, so hereafter you need not tell your friends to go to hades. A polite insinuation that his natural sphere is within the rings of Saturn will be sufficient.

CONGESTION OF TRAFFIC.

New York, April 13.—The police authorities of London are vainly struggling to discover a remedy for the congestion of traffic in the streets of the British metropolis, says the London correspondent of the Tribune. The commissioner of police is doing his best, but the narrowness of most of the main thoroughfares makes his task almost hopeless.

The Human Machine

The human body is like a delicately adjusted machine. When a part is worn out, or through abuse becomes rusty, it affects the whole system. The kidneys and liver are among the most important of all the organs in the body. When they get out of order the entire system suffers. Keep them running smoothly and good health follows.

McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm

will regulate these organs and keep them in perfect health. Years of use in thousands of families have proved its value in all troubles affecting the liver and kidneys.

If your back aches; If your head aches;

If you lack ambition; If you are easily tired and worn out; It means your kidneys are out of order. Buy a bottle to-day at your druggist's. It may save you useless suffering.

ANOTHER TAX SALE

The Legislature Provides For One For June 24.

Remedy Condition Left By Illegal Forfeited Tax Law.

Lands Bid In Under Law of 1899 Not Affected.

June 24 County Auditor Talden will again have an opportunity to display his prowess as an auctioneer, for on that date another forfeited tax sale will be begun. It will be under the law passed by the legislature this winter, and it will apply to property that was sold under the forfeited tax law of 1897, which the supreme court has declared unconstitutional. The sale was therefore void, and this law has been passed to remedy the condition left by that decision.

It applies particularly to this county, though its terms are general. In most other counties, however, nearly all of the land on which taxes were due for 1895 and prior years, which land is included in all of these forfeited tax laws, was disposed of under the law of 1899, which was upheld by the courts. A sale was held here under that law of 1895, which was upheld by the courts. A sale was held here under that law, but it affected only such property as was not sold under the 1897 law. The new law, therefore, applies to a large amount of property, and it will please a large number of people in this county that are engaged in one way or another in the real estate business.

The law applies to all property to which the state has title under tax judgments for 1895 and prior years except land that was bid in for the state under the law of 1899. At any time between now and June — the property may be redeemed for 50 per cent of the original taxes, not including penalties and interest. If the property is not redeemed a sale is to be held June 24, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. The last bid that may be accepted for property is 50 per cent of the original taxes, and the certificate given by the auditor conveys a title in fee simple subject to redemption on payment of the full amount of taxes within sixty days after the purchase has filed with the county auditor proof of service of the notice of the expiration of redemption. If a redemption occurs the purchaser will get his money back with interest, and if he has paid subsequent taxes he will get those back also.

Like the laws of 1897, it is phovided that the sale cannot be attacked unless action is begun within nine months from the date of the sale.

CHURCH BENEFIT CONCERT.

Governor Van Sant to be Present.

The concert which will be given by members of the Swedish Methodist church next Friday evening promises to be one of exceptional interest. The church has succeeded in paying off a large share of its debt and has decided upon this method of wiping out the balance. The strenuous efforts made by the pastor, Rev. John A. Anderson in the interest of the church and the people have fired the latter with great zeal. The concert will be a notable one from the fact that Governor Van Sant will be present and will deliver an address. He will be introduced by Mayor Hugo. Dr. S. P. Long will also be one of the speakers. The High School Musical society will sing. The program is as follows:

Piano solo .....
Miss Ethel Christiansen.

TERRIBLE APPENDICITIS

Caused by Colds.

Doctors Say Everyone Should be Careful.

What a New York Specialist Says When Interviewed by Our Correspondent.

New York, April 13.—One of the most prominent specialists of this city was interviewed by me today regarding the appendicitis epidemic, and he gave out the following statement, but does not wish to have his name published, claiming it would be unprofessional. He says: "Colds cause appendicitis if the bowels are not kept active. Appendicitis is the most grave and serious of intestinal disorders. Keep your bowels active by taking Cascarine, which I believe to be the best laxative. If your tongue is coated with red tips, and the bowels costive, you ares ick and should be careful. Take a teaspoonful of Cascarine before you go to bed and in the morning you will be relieved and well. Cascarine is the best grippe preventive and also a preventive of appendicitis. It is known to be the very best laxative, is recommended by all physicians and will positively cure any disorder of the stomach, bowels and kidneys. Mothers should be careful and not give the children any laxative but Cascarine. It will not gripe any one and is most pleasant to take. Buy a bottle today and you will be recommending it to your friends next week. At all druggists, 50 cents per bottle. If your druggist hasn't it, ask him to get it for you of his jobber. The manufacturers of Cascarine will send to any address, absolutely free, a booklet on diseases of the stomach, bowels, kidneys and liver, and one week's sample treatment for 10 cents in stamps to cover postage. Address Rea Bros. & Co., Minneapolis, Louisville and New York.

BIWABIK.

Biwabik, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most important events of the past week was the sale of the Charlemont mine, northeast of this village, to the Biwabik Mining company, who is the lease holder of the Biwabik mine. The Biwabik mine people have been negotiating for this property for some time, but the owners did not seem to care about selling. The property comprises one forty. It is supposed to contain but little ore, but it is very valuable to the Biwabik mine, as the shaft can be used as a pumping shaft for the mine, thus saving the cost of digging a new shaft. The record of the transfer reads from the Munro Iron company to the Biwabik Mining company, and the consideration named is $15,000. There is supposed to be a great quantity of iron at the Biwabik mine that will in the near future have to be mined by the underground method, and as the shaft purchased immediately adjoins the Biwabik, it will be used as a shaft to get out this ore.

The Methodist and Congregational churches held their Easter services at the village hall, Rev. Bowen officiating. The hall was decorated with plants and flowers. A fine program was rendered and was heard by a large number of people.

The first serious accident of the season occurred at the Biwabik mine Monday afternoon, when three laborers were seriously burned about the face, neck and arms by an explosion of powder that they were opening. How the accident occurred is not exactly known, but it thought that the men were opening the can with a pick, when the powder exploded. The names of the men injured were Frank Carlson, Erick Erickson and John Bell. Although the men were all burned about the face, none of them will lose their eye-sight. Of the three men, Carlson was the most seriously injured, and although he will recover, it will be a long time before he will be able to be out. Ill luck has followed him persistently, as he was one of the men that was caught in the caveln of the village well, in which one men was killed, and a number had very narrow escapes. The three men were taken to the Biwabik hospital, where their wounds were dressed by Dr. Bray.

APPETITES

Created and Maintained by Vinol.

THAT THE FOOD IS DIGESTED IS ASLO EQUALLY NECESSARY.

We Recommend Vinol as an Appetite Creator.

WE GUARANTEE THAT VINOL WILL AID DIGESTION.

Vinol is the greatest aid to digestion that we have ever known.

It is because Vinol acts so beneficially upon the stomach that it accomplishes so much good.

Vinol contains the active curative principles that are found in cod-liver oil, without any oil or grease.

These medicinal elements act so favorably upon the stomach, that this organ obtains for itself the elements necessary for creating new flesh, muscle tissue and for making rich red blood.

When the stomach acts easily and naturally, a desire is created for good simple food and a good appetite is the sure result.

With cod-liver oil as formerly taken the medicinal elements which it contained were too often unable to counteract the harm that was done by the obnoxious grease that enveloped them.

Now that in Vinol we have those same elements separated from the vile-tasting fat, we have a tonic and rebuilder that is simply marvelous in its action.

The following is a letter that will explain itself:

"This is to certify that I have used six bottles of Vinol, and have found it of great value as an appetizer and tonic in general debility. I have received so much benefit from its use that I gladly furnish this testimonial in order that others may be induced to give it a trial and prove to themselves its recuperative powers."—MRS. ELIZABETH FEELEY, Waterbury, Conn.

We want every one in this place to know more about our Vinol, how it cures and what it cures. Certainly the greatest tonic and rebuilder we have ever sold.

We, therefore, cordially invite any one interested to call upon us; and we want all to bear in mind that we will gladly refund to any one who is not satisfied with the action of Vinol every cent they pay for it.

REMARKABLE SUCCESS

Of a New Catarrh Cure.

A large and constantly increasing majority of the American people are catarrh sufferers. This is not entirely the result of our changeable climate, but because modern investigation has clearly proven that many diseases, known by other names, are really catarrh. Formerly the name catarrh was applied almost exclusively to the common nasal catarrh, but the throat, stomach, liver, bladder, kidneys and intestines are subject to catarrhal diseases as well as the nasal passages.

In fact, whenever there is mucous membrane there is a feeding ground for catarrh.

The usual remedies, inhalers, sprays, douches or powders, have been practically failures, as far as anything more than temporary relief was concerned, because they simply dry up the mucous secretions, without having the remotest effect upon the blood and liver, which are the real sources of catarrhal diseases.

It has been known for some years that the radical cure of catarrh could never come from local applications, but from an internal remedy, acting on the blood and expelling the catarrhal poison from the system.

A new internal preparation which has been on the market only a short time, has met with remarkable success as a genuine, radical cure for catarrh.

It may be found in any drug store, sold under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, large pleasant tasting lozenges, composed principally of antiseptic ingredients, Eucalyptol, Guaiacol, Sanguinaria, Hydrastin and similar catarrh specifics.

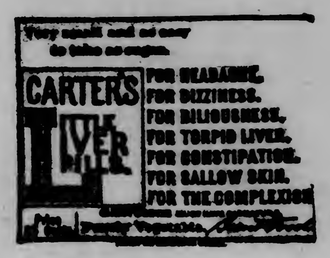

Dr. Ainslee, in speaking of the new catarrh cure, says: "I have tried the new catarrh remedy, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, upon thirty or forty patients with remarkable satisfactory results. They clear the head and throat more effectually and lastingly than any douche or inhaler that I have ever seen, and although they are what is called a patent medicine, and sold by druggists, I do not hesitate to recommend them, as I know them to be free from cocaine and opiates, and that even a little child may use them with entire safety."

Any sufferer from nasal catarrh, throat or bronchial trouble, catarrh of the stomach, liver or bladder will find Stuart's Catarrh Tablets remarkably effective, pleasant and convenient, and your druggist will tell you they are absolutely free from any injurious drug.

VIRGINIA.

Virginia, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new council took the reins of municipal government Tuesday and put a decidedly new complexion on several questions, making a clean sweep of the former police force and made all the appointments necessary to run the city the next year. Mayor Thompson called the meeting to order and spoke a few words in regard to his several wishes for the year's work. William F. Donnelly, who won the tie from P. J. Rinnert, as alderman from the Second ward, was elected president of the council and Alderman Eaton of the First ward vice president. The mayor then made his police appointments as follows: Chief of police, B. O. Wiggen; patrolmen, Patrick Sullivan and Jacob F. Matson. The appointments were confirmed by the council. The following appointments were made by the council, there being about a dozen applicants for each position and the vote on the different candidates was quite interesting to the large number of citizens who had congregated at the city hall to see the new council get action. P. A. Gannon, street commissioner; P. Byrne, chief of the fire department; A. E. Dunsmore, assessor; Dr. Brunet Bates, health officer; F. B. Rassour, member of board of health two years, and Jacob Johnson, scavenger. The old policemen, at the close of the meeting, gave up their stars and implements of protection and the

BIWABIK.

Biwabik, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most important events of the past week was the sale of the Cincinnati mine, northeast of this village, to the Biwabik Mining company, who is the lease holder of the Biwabik mine. The Biwabik mine people have been negotiating for this property for some time, but the owners did not seem to care about selling. The property comprises one forty. It is supposed to contain but little ore, but it is very valuable to the Biwabik mine, as the shaft can be used by pumping that for the mine, thus saving the cost of digging a new shaft. The record of the transfer reads from the Munro iron company to the Biwabik Mining company, and the consideration named is $5,000. There is supposed to be a great quantity of iron at the Biwabik mine that will in the near future have to be mined by the underground method, and as the shaft purchased immediately adjoins the Biwabik, it will be used as a shaft to get out this ore.

The Methodist and Congregational churches held their Easter services at the village hall, Rev. Bowen officiating. The hall was decorated with plants and flowers. A fine program was rendered and was heard by a large number of people.

The first serious accident of the season occurred at the Biwabik mine Monday afternoon, when three laborers were seriously burned about the face, neck and arms by an explosion of powder that they were opening. How the accident occurred is not exactly known, but it thought that the men were opening the can with a pick, when the powder exploded. The names of the men injured were Frank Carlson, Erick Erickson and John Bell. Although the men were all burned about the face, none of them will lose their eye-sight. Of the three men, Carlson was the most seriously injured, and although he will recover, it will be a long time before he will be able to be out. Ill luck has followed him persistently, as he was one of the men that was caught in the cavein of the village well, in which one men was killed, and a number had very narrow escapes. The three men were taken to the Biwabik hospital, where their wounds were dressed by Dr. Bray.

APPETITES

Created and Maintained by Vinol.

THAT THE FOOD IS DIGESTED IS ASLO EQUALLY NECESSARY.

We Recommend Vinol as an Appetite Creator.

WE GUARANTEE THAT VINOL WILL AID DIGESTION.

Vinol is the greatest aid to digestion that we have ever known.

It is because Vinol acts so beneficially upon the stomach that it accomplishes so much good.

Vinol contains the active curative principles that are found in cod-liver oil, without any oil or grease.

These medicinal elements act so favorably upon the stomach, that this organ obtains for itself the elements necessary for creating new flesh, muscle tissue and for making rich red blood.

When the stomach acts easily and naturally, a desire is created for good simple food and a good appetite is the sure result.

With cod-liver oil as formerly taken the medicinal elements which it contained were too often unable to counteract the harm that was done by the obnoxious grease that enveloped them.

Now that in Vinol we have those same elements separated from the vile-tasting fat, we have a tonic and rebuilder that is simply marvelous in its action.

The following is a letter that will explain itself:

"This is to certify that I have used six bottles of Vinol, and have found it of great value as an appetizer and tonic in general debility. I have received so much benefit from its use that I gladly furnish this testimonial in order that others may be induced to give it a trial and prove to themselves its recuperative powers."—MRS. ELIZABETH FEENEY, Waterbury, Conn.

We want every one in this place to know more about our Vinol, how it cures and what it cures. Certainly the greatest tonic and rebuilder we have ever sold.

We, therefore, cordially invite any one interested to call upon us; and we want all to bear in mind that we will gladly refund to any one who is not satisfied with the action of Vinol every cent they pay for it.

Of a New Catarrh Cure.

A large and constantly increasing majority of the American people are catarrh sufferers. This is not entirely the result of our changeable climate, but because modern investigation has clearly proven that many diseases, known by other names, are really catarrh. Formerly the name catarrh was applied almost exclusively to the common nasal catarrh, but the throat, stomach, liver, bladder, kidneys and intestines are subject to catarrhal diseases as well as the nasal passages.

In fact, whenever there is mucous membrane there is a feeding ground for catarrh.

The usual remedies, inhalers, sprays, douches or powders, have been practically failures, as far as anything more than temporary relief was concerned, because they simply dry up the mucous secretions, without having the remotest effect upon the blood and liver, which are the real sources of catarrhal diseases.

It has been known for some years that the radical cure of catarrh could never come from local applications, but from an internal remedy, acting on the blood and expelling the catarrhal poison from the system.

A new internal preparation which has been on the market only a short time, has met with remarkable success as a genuine, radical cure for catarrh.

It may be found in any drug store, sold under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, large pleasant tasting lozenges, composed principally of antiseptic ingredients, Eucalyptol, Guaiacol, Sanguinaria, Hydrastin and similar catarrh specifics.

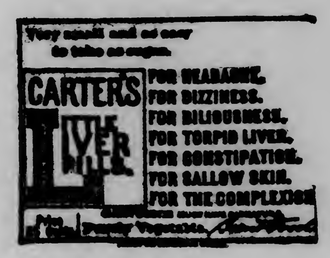

Dr. Ainslee, in speaking of the new catarrh cure, says: "I have tried the new catarrh remedy, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, upon thirty or forty patients with remarkable satisfactory results. They clear the head and throat more effectually and lastingly than any douche or inhaler that I have ever seen, and although they are what is called a patent medicine, and sold by druggists, I do not hesitate to recommend them, as I know them to be free from cocaine and opiates, and that even a little child may use them with entire safety."

Any sufferer from nasal catarrh, throat or bronchial trouble, catarrh of the stomach, liver or bladder will find Stuart's Catarrh Tablets remarkably effective, pleasant and convenient, and your druggist will tell you they are absolutely free from any injurious drug.

This is the only genuine kind

YOU CANNOT CURE PILES.

By Internal Remedies.

The only sure way to cure every form of piles is to use a remedy like the Pyramid Pile Cure, which is applied directly to the parts affected, and its wonderful healing effects are apparent from the first application, because the medicinal properties are rapidly absorbed by tissues and sensitive membranes of the rectum, and the cure is made speedily and almost before the patient is aware of it every trace of piles has left him.

This is one of the reasons why the Pyramid Pile Cure has been so uniformly successful. It is applied directly just where it is needed and where it will do the most good. Not by the roundabout way of the stomach, nor by the harsh, barbarous methods of various surgical operations and so-called systems.

Direct applications to the seat of disease is the only rational way, and this is fully accomplished by the Pyramid Pile Cure.

If the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried this remedy is worth anything, then no sufferer has any excuse for longer delaying in giving it a fair trial, knowing that when you do so the Pyramid Pile Cure will have made one more friend—the best possible advertisement we can have. The chief advantages of the remedy are: It cures without pain, the cure is lasting, it contains no poison, and lastly, it is the cheap and quickest cure yet found. Your druggist can tell you what it has done for others.

Testimonials of cures from all parts of the United States will be sent on application to the Pyramid Drug company, of Marshall, Mich.

CABLE FLASHES.

The London Daily Express says it understands the government has decided to cease sending reinforcements to South Africa.

"The police of this city," says the Amsterdam correspondent of the London Daily Express, "recently got wind of the contemplated attempts upon the life of Mr. Kruger. One of the persons arrested is said to have made a confession."

It is asserted that King Edward intends to a great extent to abolish the giving of peerage and other honors for purely political and party services.

It has now been decided that M. Delcasse, French minister of foreign affairs, will go to St. Petersburg to confer with Count Lamsdorff, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, and to see the czar.

"A seditious movement," says the Pietermaritzburg correspondent of the London Daily Mail, "is spreading among the natives. It is headed by native ministers, who preach the doctrine of 'Africa for Africans,' and incite the natives to throw off all European control. The authorities are carefully watching the propaganda, but are reluctant to interfere through fear of making martyrs of the ringleaders."

The London Daily Express publishes the following telegram from Vienna: "The Moslem population of Adachal island, near the Iron Gate of the Danube, rebelled. The troops were called out, but met with resistance. Sixteen Moslems were killed."

All the inhabitants of Nylstroom have been sent to Pretoria. Nylstroom is eighty miles north of Pretoria, on the railroad.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

Track Team Is Getting Down to Hard Practice.

Field Day Meets Are Not Yet Settled Upon.

Baseball Teams Are at It---Professors and Seniors.

The fine weather has been the means of bringing out the track athletes of the high school in large numbers and there are now about twenty in training, who go out every afternoon for an hour's hard work at Twelfth avenue east, below Superior street. The runners take the railroad tracks below Superior street and pace the logging trains for a mile or two.

At a meeting of the athletic association last week Manager Hutchinson announced the fact that the track team would go from the city on one trip and left the decision regarding the place to the association. It was decided that the choice should be left to him and the association will abide by his decision. Fred Elston '02 was elected to fill the position of assistant manager. The events for the preliminary field day were announced by Capt. Pierce and are as follows:

Runs—One mile, half mile and quarter mile.

Dashes—220 yard, 120 yard and 100 yard.

Hurdles—220 yard and 120 yard.

Bicycle races—Two miles, one mile and half mile.

The other events will consist of the pole vault, the high jump, the broad jump, hammer throw and shot put.

The events which will probably arouse the most interest will be the one mile running relay race between the four classes. A team of four men will be selected from each class and each member will run one-quarter of a mile, passing the banner to the next one, who takes it the second quarter and so on. The men will be posted on the quarters, and matters will be evened by giving the fence to each class successively. Although this plan has never been tried before it was adopted for the purpose of causing more class rivalry in the preliminary field day, a thing which has been sadly lacking in the past.

By the advice of Capt. Pierce the 120-yard dash has supplanted the 50-yard. Fifty yards is a very short distance and the man who is the quickest starter generally wins. In all colleges the 120-yard has come into favor and as it will be an event in the interscholastic meet this spring, it was thought wise to adopt it in the preliminary.

More interest has been taken in the field day here than ever before and a large crowd is expected to see the events. The proceeds of the affair will be used to pay off the outstanding debt incurred during the football season and it is earnestly hoped that this obligation can be cleared. All of the boys are out practicing and the affair cannot fail to be intresting.

Among the men now in training are Victor Rakowsky '01, Fred Mallet '03, and Bruce Ellis '01. These three are under the tutelage of Dr. J. D. Park, the man whose Pennsylvania methods of coaching brought the last year's football team through the season with such a clear record. Rakowsky is a long distance runner of remarkable staying qualities who has twice tried conclusions unsuccessfully with Haroldson, the man who holds the state championship for the mile, but is going to make a third attempt. Their chances are about even and the event promises to be the hardest contested one in the field day. Both men are hard, conscientious workers, but it is too early in the season to make any prophecies. They were both on the football team, Rakowsky at guard and Haroldson at half back. Both did some spectacular playing and the outcome is watched with much interest.

Fred Mallet will be the captain of next season's football team. As half back on last year's team he was a man who played until he dropped, and played well, and it is probable that he will use the same tactics in the spring events. When Duluth defeated Ironwood at Ironwood last year Mallet created a sensation by hurdling the line and making touchdowns, and it is in this branch of the work that he hopes to carry off the honors this spring. Dr. Park is teaching Mallet Krenzlein's (the Pennsylvania man who took all the hurdles in this country and in Paris) method and says that he cannot lose. A good many other people are of the same opinion.

Bruce Ellis, who is going in for the high jump and pole vault, was on the track team last year, but in the contest with Ironwood, sprained his ankle after he had cleared five feet in the high jump, and as the Ironwood man could go no higher the event was declared a tie. Ellis thinks that he can beat his last year's record by two or three inches and it is hoped that such may be the case. At the Y. M. C. A. athletic carnival last month he cleared eight feet four inches on the pole vault without training and it is not at all unlikely that he can go several inches more.

The two events in which the high school track athletes will participate will be the preliminary field day on May 25 in this city, and probably the interscholastic meet at Minneapolis June 8. The former will this year require certain qualifications for entrance, certain standing in studies and the like and should the latter occur, the track team members will, of course, have to qualify. Manager Hutchinson says that while he was at Minneapolis at the meeting of the representatives of the various interscholastic teams, he learned that it is not at all certain that Duluth will gain admission to the meet. The managers of the teams represented, Hastings, Red Wing, Winona, St. Cloud, St. Paul and Minneapolis will hold a meeting as soon as possible and take action on Duluth's request. If it is possible for the team to enter the interscholastic, it will probably do so. However, should this be found impracticable, a field day will be arranged with either St. Cloud, Ironwood or Ashland, preferably the former. With the men that the Duluth high school has in training it is very probable that it will carry off a majority of the prizes and too great an interest cannot be taken in these evenis by the people of Duluth.

The business men of this city will be asked to donate prizes in a few days and it is expected that these will give an added zest to the affair.

THE BASEBALL TEAM.

School and Freshmen Teams Playing Today.

Not only has the early spring helped the track team, but it has been a blessing to the baseball team at the high school, and they seem to be immunes from the all prevalent spring fever. The men are all in good condition, their batting eyes adjusted, and are, at last accounts, trying issues with the freshmen at the driving park. Aside from the men previously mentioned in The Herald, three or four bonanzas have been brought to light from the freshmen class. Harry Merritt plays an excellent game on second or third, Gabe Weber can knock the leather into smithereens in less time than it takes to tell about it, and Burg, in the outfield, is a corker. All of these men have played baseball before, and their addition to the team renders it one of the strongest, if not the strongest, amateur team in the Northwest. Al Cummings is pitching gilt edged ball, and there is not a weak spot in the make-up of the whole team. The freshmen have organized a baseball team, and expect to give the high school aggregation a run for their money. The two teams cross bats at the Driving park this afternoon in the following order:

High School.	Freshmen.
Alworth	catcher ..... Ely
A. Cummings ..	pitcher ..... Staak
G. Cummings ..	first base ..... Weber
Adams	second base .. Dash, Capt.
Peterson	short stop .... Summers
Merritt	third base ... W. Prudden
Seamans	left field ..... Winters
Congdon, Capt..	center field ..... Burg
Bradley	right field ..... Spencer
Richards	manager ..... E. Olsen

In a recent issue of The Herald appeared a challenge to any amateur team in the city by the "Tigers," Leigh Swan manager, and the high school team is anxious to know whether the Tigers didn't mean to except them in their sweeping challenge.

Manager Richards has arranged dates with Ashland for May 18 and the Blaine high school, of Superior, for May 25. He is waiting to hear from Tower, and will arrange the date sometime during the week. The subscription list, which has been circulated among the business men of the city, has met with much success, and the expense bugbear is rapidly fading.

Since the team has commenced practising the prospects for a victorious season have become particularly bright, and it is earnestly hoped that Duluth will carry off the championship of the Northwest for '01.

A BOLD CHALLENGE.

The Professors to Meet the Seniors.

A challenge read in chapel yesterday morning by Profesor C. A. Smith was the outcome of a long series of taunts which the professors of the high school have bestowed upon the senior boys, and as a return for a large number of "D's," of which the latter have been the recipients at various times during their high school course. So the seniors (not the high school team, as was announced in the News Tribune), are going to settle the score at one fell swoop and bestow upon the "profs" a long string of goose-eggs. The instructors say that they could not think of being taught anything by any scholars, and as the education of the scholars has been largely in the arts and sciences, they propose to give them a post-graduate course in practical baseball, and the two teams will cross bats at Oneota park, June 11—the professors to sustain their reputations and the students for revenge. The seniors get out to practice this afternoon, while the "colts" have been going around for the last week with blistered hands. They are all ball players, and during the time in which they have been teaching the young idea how to shoot, their baseball education has been sadly neglected, but they are confident that they can also teach the young idea how to bat and play various and sundry gilt edged ball, and the game will probably draw forth the largest crowd that was ever drawn from the high school. The faculty have a superabundance of pitchers, and also plenty of men for the other positions. The seniors elected William Rose as captain, but their team has not yet been selected.

The Sophomore Hop.

A very fine social event was the Sophomore hop at Masonic Temple last night. About fifty couples were present and danced until late in the evening. The sophomores worked hard for the success of the affair, and a most enjoyable evening was the result. Those who had the affair deserve great credit, and their efforts were crowned with success.

GOVERNOR YATES OF ILLINOIS

Yates is to Illinois what Roosevelt is to the energetic, ambitious, progressive element in the East. One of the most convincing speakers in the West, he is a man of great personal magnetism, as an incident during the president's inauguration reception at the White House showed. The Hamilton club, of Chicago, was received by President McKinley in the east room. After the introduction, Bank Examiner Lamson sang "Illinois," the last line changed to "True to Yates and McKinley, Illinois."

One source of Governor Yates' great strength with all classes is his willingness to recognize merit and to employ the best means, without fear or favor.

Needing a spring remedy for himself, and knowing Paine's celery compound by reputation, and believing it to be the best spring remedy obtainable, he used it with such excellent results that he is willing to add his name to the many others in responsible positions who have publicly endorsed Paine's celery compound.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 8, 1901.

Wells, Richardson & Co.:

Gentlemen: I have used Paine's celery compound and find it an excellent remedy.

Very truly yours,

RICHARD YATES.

The more intelligent portion of every community are the ones who best recommend Paine's celery compound. They have looked into this great remedy, followed its remarkable achievements in the cases of friends, neighbors and relatives, and know just what to expect from its use as a nerve and brain strengthener and restorer, and an ideal invigorator for a run-down system.

There is less hesitation nowadays among well-informed people in attending to the beginnings of poor health. It is well known that disease is progressive and cumulative, easy to drive out at the start, but a menace to life when allowed to entrench itself in any organ of the body. If people would consider headaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, sleeplessness, indigestion and languid feelings in their true light and as seriously as they deserve to be, and make a stand against them at once by means of Paine's celery compound, there would be a wonderful diminution in the amount of kidney, liver and heart disease.

Anyone who reads the heartfelt, emphatic letters that have appeared from men and women who owe their health and often their lives to Paine's celery compound, will be impressed by the sincerity in every line.

This great modern scientific invigorator and health-maker is doing an enormous amount of lasting good these spring days. Its success in making people well has had no parallel in the history of medicine. It has cured thousands of cases of rheumatism and neuralgia, many of long standing that have been despaired of by friends and physicians.

Compared with other remedies, its permanent cures stand out as a mountain does beside a mole hill. If all the men and women who have got rid entirely of nervous debility, threatened nervous exhaustion, sleeplessness and such organic troubles as kidney, liver and stomach diseases by its help during the past year alone could be brought together, what an army of grateful people it would make!

Paine's celery compound is the most remarkable medical achievement of the last fifty years. Take it now, 'tis spring.

The "No Home Study Theory."

Advance experiments have been conducted in three San Francisco schools on the "no home study" theory, and the results are quite interesting. A bill prohibiting the requirement of home study in certain grades of the grammar schools is awaiting the governor's signature and it may become a law. The experiments have been successful. It is stated the principal of one school, after making a careful comparison of the work achieved by the class from which home work was not required, with that of other classes, confessed his surprise "to find that the 'no-home-study' class holds its own with the rest. I have watched the work closely, and the examinations were carefully prepared and conducted. I desire to continue the experiment further." From another school there came a joint report signed by several teachers, declaring: "The work of the no-home-study section has equalled in every respect that of the home-study sections." The teachers add, that in their judgment pupils should do the greater part of their work within school hours. The principal of the third school reported that the percentages of the pupils not required to study at home were as high or higher than they had been when homework was imposed. He added that in addition to the good results shown in the lessons there was also an improvement in the deportment of the pupils under the new system. The experiments are to be continued on a more comprehensive scale, and the San Francisco papers hope that the board of education will see the wisdom of relieving childhood from one of the onerous burdens put upon it by the present system of public education.

As to the Newspaper Martyr.

A recent article in the Buffalo Express had for its theme "The Newspaper Martyr" and it contains a few thoughts that are of interest not only in Buffalo, but elsewhere. It appears the Express printed a story that the safe in the charge of the secretary and treasurer of a railroad men's organization had been robbed. The official denied that there had been a robbery, and when the police confirmed the newspaper story, insisted that "it was none of the newspaper's business," and that by giving the story to the public the paper was doing the man an injustice and hindering the ends of justice. The official a few weeks ago pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the second degree, the indictment to which he confessed guilt charging him with stealing $151.85 from the union of which he was treasurer. The application of the sermon is this: "In nine cases out of ten the man who complains that the newspapers are invading private rights has something he wants to conceal, and which, in the interests of justice, should be revealed."

Admission By a Trust Promoter.

When Charles R. Flint, who is well known as a promoter of trusts and champion of the trust movement, was testifying before the federal industrial commission a few days ago, he admitted that industrial centralization could easily be carried too far, and that this was especially so unless the factories in the trust were centralized as well as the management. This is very close to a fatal admission for the trust system, as now being developed on practically a national scale, bringing under one management plants scattered pretty much all over the country; for it is out of the question, as Mr. Flint says in effect, that these widely scattered plants can be operated as economically and advantageously as a business equally as large or much smaller, whose plants are located close together and within easy reach of each other and the central management. The trusts may overcome this defect, however, by centralizing the factories, closing those far distant from the place of management. That will impress the people still more forcibly with the beauties of the trust system.

JOURNALISTIC STUPIDITY.

Whether it is owing to British self complaisance or to the fact that American affairs are not regarded as of any consequence over the other side of the pond, the fact remains that the English newspapers show a woeful lack of common knowledge of American affairs. While the American papers are full of news of the old world, of British, French, German and Russian politics, the American in England or on the continent has a discouraging time to get any news of affairs in America. He can get it only by letter or by securing an American newspaper two weeks old.

This indifference as to American affairs is largely due to the actual ignorance of the press. It takes work and patience to gather facts and digest them into intelligent comments, and this the English newspaper writer is too indolent to undertake. He had rather expose himself and his paper to American ridicule. In this he is eminently successful.

In a vague sort of a way the Britisher learned that Senator Morgan was the great champion of the Nicaragua canal scheme and that he gave voice to some very bitter philippics on the attitude of Great Britain on the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. This the Britisher learned some time ago. The other day he got wind of the rumor that J. P. Morgan and J. J. Hill were about to negotiate for the completion of the Panama canal by a private syndicate. The name was enough to convince the astute English editor that Senator Morgan was about to get even with England for not agreeing to the amended Hay-Pauncefote treaty by proceeding to build a canal through Colombia without asking leave of England. So with becoming gravity the learned editor proceeded to mix up the greatest modern financier with the senator from Alabama whom he incated in the house of representatives.

It would be difficult to determine which Morgan will feel aggrieved by this mixing of personalities by the British press. Inasmuch as the great promoter is now in England he might take pains to set the British press right as to his part in the canal controversy in the senate. J. Pierpont Morgan does not belong to the aristocracy of England or any other worn out principality, but after he has organized a few more corporations he will be able to impress his identity upon the British industries if not upon the ossified understandings of the English editors.

A year or so on the editorial staff of an American metropolitan daily would be a first class schooling for the average British newspaper man. He would in time get in touch with the world and learn that there are other countries on which the sun never sets beside the British empire. He would learn something of the joys of the strenuous life of American newspaperdom—a life that has brought the United States to the fore-front of the world at one bound—a life of enterprise, where brains and pluck are at a premium and where the lack of either means failure.

AMERICANIZE THE CHILDREN.

Dr. Conaty, rector of the Catholic university of Washington, D. C., in an address to the Catholic educators in Chicago, sounded an alarm which will revive the old question of secular vs. religious education. Dr. Conaty announced the startling fact that in this land of free schools and universities the Catholic church had spent $25,000,000 on religious education during the last year. Notwithstanding this heavy burden carried by the church, he advised further and more strenuous efforts to retain the education of Catholic youth within the parochial schools. He counsels a unification of the church schools to combat and overcome the power wielded by the unified system of the state secular public schools.

No one will have the disposition to deny the reverend gentleman or any organization, be it church or fraternal, the right to educate the children of its members in any manner it chooses, but it seems a little strange that a man holding such a prominent position among the leaders of twentieth century thought should have lingered so far behind the procession. It seems that Dr. Conaty has missed the very spirit of Americanism. As this nation grants freedom of religious belief in its very constitution, and as the public schools are a part of the national system of culture, he who denounces the public schools as inadequate implies that this scheme of government is a failure to that extent.

The advocates of religious education in public schools confound the duty of the state with that of the home and the church. Religious instruction has no more place in the scheme of a general education provided by the state than has the church in the management of the government. When the church and the state were divorced the schools went with the state. It is charged that in our secular schools the religious training of the child is neglected. Certainly; that is as it should be. Religion is not a matter of which the state can take cognizance—that is left to the home and the church. If the church with its vast social machinery; with its weekly sermons, its Sunday schools and its co-ordinate organizations, cannot furnish the necessary religious training, especially when its efforts are supplemented with home influence, there is something the matter with the system.

Free secular education, as we know it in the United States, has given us the most intelligent, most orderly, most moral and most successful people on the face of the earth—it has given the world the American character. If the public schools are a failure, then is the American character a failure. We have but to compare the common people of Spain and Italy, where the church still holds the reins of education, with the common people of the United States, to see the comparative merits of the two systems.

The difficulty lies in the assumption that a belief in the dogmas of a church is a pre-requisite to morality and good citizenship. This premise is false, and vitiates all subsequent conclusions based upon it. The patriotic American has long looked forward to the time when the religious prejudices of all sects will be blended in one harmonious, composite whole, as the political prejudices of men from the four corners of the world are blended by the influence of American institutions. As our public schools are the strongest factor in the problem of Americanizing the thousands that come to our shores, there will be regret for the position taken by Dr. Conaty in regard to this greatest of moral forces. It would seem that it is not only the privilege, but the duty, of every citizen to patronize the public schools as he would defend the flag of his country.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The work of the Thirty-second legislature has come to an end, as far as the 1901 session is concerned. It adjourned eleven days before the time limited by statute, it having been decided to hold a special session of that length next winter. The record made at the session just closed will compare very favorably with that made by any previous legislature in the history of the state. Indeed, it may be claimed with considerable reason that it has surpassed all former legislatures in the number of important measures that have become law—most of them legislation that was demanded by the people.

First and foremost among the new measures stands the primary election law, by which party nominees will be chosen directly by the people. It is similar to the law which was tested in Minneapolis last fall and proved most successful, and it is believed that it will be satisfactory to the people everywhere.

The passage of a bill applying the Torrens system of land title registration to the three most populous counties in the state is a step forward in the right direction. The constitutionality of this measure will be tested at an early date, in order that there may be no doubt as to its validity.

Provision was made for a commission to revise and codify the tax laws of the state, and also for a commission to revise and codify the statutes. It is to receive and act upon the report of the former commission that the legislature will meet in extra session next February.

The passage of the bill to increase the gross earnings tax of the railroads to 4 per cent was accomplished after a hard fight, and credit for the victory belongs chiefly to Mr. Jacobson, the energetic member for Lac qui Parle county. The bill must be approved by the people at the next general election, when it will become a law. A bill was also passed increasing the gross earnings tax on express companies from 3 to 6 per cent.

Another measure of great importance is that establishing a board of control to supplant the separate boards in the management of the charitable, penal and correctional institutions of the state. There are many people who doubt the wisdom of this legislation, and the working of the new plan will be watched with interest. Under this law political power is centered as it has never been before, and the members of the board of control will possess the power to erect a political machine of incalculable benefit to the ruling party. Such a possibility should not exist, and the people will be agreeably disappointed if the members of the board conduct the institutions on non-partisan lines and refuse to drag them into the political arena.

A reapportionment bill was passed dividing the state into nine congressional districts. It is a rank gerrymander, and its authors openly avowed that their purpose was to create nine districts that would be fairly certain to elect Republican representatives.

Many other measures of importance were passed at this session. A summary of the leading bills will be found in another column.

The rate of taxation for state purposes was fixed at the lowest point in the history of the state. The maximum will be 1.3 mills, against 1.5 mills two years ago. This is something that the taxpayers will appreciate.

It is gratifying to know that the government will parcel out the lots in the Oklahoma reservation by means of a lottery wheel, as suggested by a senator duuring the last session of congress. Commissioner Hermann of the general land office is now engaged in perfecting a scheme which is believed to be the most practical and the most impartial that could be adopted. It contemplates a lottery wheel into which the applications of the settlers will be placed after being carefully examined. The applications will be received and when found correct, will be placed in plain envelopes and sealed, no mark appearing on the outside. The applications after being thoroughly mixed by turning the wheel will be drawn, one at each third revolution. As drawn they will be opened, the name of the settler will be read, and beginning with quarter section No. 1 in the Northwestern portion, the homesteads will be distributed in rotation. There could be no fairer way to allot lands and each one is assured of equal justice.

The term of Pension Commissioner Evans expired on March 31, but there are no indications of his putting in his resignation. The president is placed in an embarrassing position with regard to Evans. A very strong influence is at work striving for the removal of the commissioner, while on the other hand it is universally admitted that he has proved a most honorable and valuable official and has the respect of everyone excepting the pension sharks and their friends. The best thing that President McKinley can do is to name Mr. Evans as his own successor. If he does not he is quite likely to hear something drop.

The twenty-year charters of the national banks will begin to expire next year, and prompt action of congress will be necessary at the next session to avoid embarrassment to the banks. The matter was called to the attention of the last congress, and the house passed a bill to extend the charters for another twenty-year term, but for some reason the bill died in the senate. Opposition to national banks is not nearly as pronounced as formerly, and in all probability a law will be enacted that will make everything all right.

The evil effect of reading sensational literature is again manifest in the death of two at Louisville, Ky. Henry Devore had been reading two stories, one called, "Imprisoned With the Dead," and the other "The Fate of Bluebeard's Wives." In the books killing is detailed at considerable length and it so affected Devore that he got up in the night and cut the throat of his wife and then killed himself in the same manner. No cause is known for the deed other than the effect produced by the reading of the stories.

Homestead, Pa., will not be a very popular town for the women if the recent order of the burgess of the city is carried into effect. He has issued several reform orders that have been effective. His latest one reads as follows: "Women out shopping on Saturday night will not be allowed to stop and gossip on the streets in the business section of the town." Such an order is likely to cause a rebellion among the women. They will undoubtedly consider that it deprives them of their sacred rights.

An example of maternal devotion was furnished in New York the other day, which was most touching. It was at a tenement-house fire. The mother, who was slowly roasting to death, put her baby under her to protect it from the flames. When her charred body was taken from the ruins after the blaze had been put out, the baby was found untouched by the flames, but suffocated. What better example could be afforded than this of the devotion of a mother to her offspring?

The result of the election which occurred in Maine the other day for the purpose of electing a successor to Congressman Boutelle, is looked upon as revealing an anti-McKinley current that is spreading all over the country. Mr. Boutelle carried the district last fall by 10,000, while ex-Governor Powers, who was elected this week, did not get over 3000. A corresponding change throughout the country would make the house of representatives Democratic.

Now that the legislative session has ended, perhaps the patient readers of some newspapers will be spared the infliction of learning how "Laybourn made a great fight against Jacobson," and Mallory "poured a torrent of his choicest sarcasm and invective upon the head of Jacobson"—the result always being the same, Jacobson triumphant and his opponents considerably disfigured.

Whether J. J. Hill secures the Burlington or not there is one thing about the road that cannot be said of many in the United States. It is one of the few roads which have never been in the hands of a receiver. Financial disaster has been predicted for it often, but it has pursued the even tenor of its way and always came out on top.

The warning-to-passengers signs in the Brooklyn electric cars are now printed in four languages, English, German, Hebrew and Italian. The happy Brooklynites thus get a ride and an opportunity to study comparative philology all for a 5-cent fare.

The Kansas City Times sagely observes—no doubt as the result of experience—that life in a flat is not always conducive to a religious turn of mind, neither does it afford an opportunity for one continual round of pleasure.

The Des Moines News says that Iowa feels complimented by the adoption of its board of control system by the Minnesota legislature. A year hence, Minnesota may be able to say whether the adoption was a good move.

Lieut. Gen. Miles in his magnificent, brand new uniform, will attend the World's fair at St. Louis. At least that is his present intention. Such an attraction should swell the gate receipts.

The Detroit News notes that economies of management effected by the tin can trust have cheapened production to such an extent that the organiation is able to advance prices 25 per cent.

The new mint for the United States, now building at Philadelphia, will be the finest in the world and will cost about $2,000,000. It takes money to be able to make money.

Philosopher Dooley's "Archey road" is taking on an up-to-date face. The famous highway is to be paved, and the tribe of Hennessy is inconsolable.

If Mr. Carnegie sticks to his determination not to die in disgrace, he will not accept a nomination for mayor of New York.

Spring is here, and so is the northeast wind.

EASILY THE BEST.

Two Harbors Iron Trade Journal: The Duluth Evening Herald was eighteen years old Tuesday. Nine or ten years ago it was like the other Duluth papers—just living, but since Mr. Weiss was made its manager it has improved with years and is now easily the best paper in the Twin Cities.

Pay of Cuban Patriots.

Indianapolis Journal: The appointment of a special committee of Cubans to visit Washington and confer with the president relative to the Platt amendment will postpone final settlement of the question two or three weeks. As the Cuban patriots who compose the constitutional convention draw $15 a day they will prevent any settlement as long as a pretext can be found for doing so.

Jersey's Strange Dictation.

Washington Star: The New Jersey court of appeals has handed down a decision which insists that trusts must not, on acquiring new property, issue stock for an amount in excess of its value. If New Jersey can successfully assume a parental dictation as to what the trusts can or cannot do, it will become a bigger state than either New York or Ohio.

It's an Outrage.

Detroit Free Press: Capt. Carter's attorneys have applied to the supreme court for his release. It is evident that there can be no justice in imprisoning a man that succeeded in getting away with $72,000.

Too Late Now.

Baltimore American: Inasmuch as Gen. Funston's commission has been signed there is no need of paying any attention to stories of his lack of terpsichorean accomplishments.

Just to Remind Them.

Chicago News: Gen. DeWet keeps blowing up railway trains every few days just to continue reminding the British of the fact that the war is over.

DAILY STORY.

A WAR OFFICE SECRET.

BY GEORGE M. LAPHAM.

(Copyrighted 1901, William R. Miller.)

I was for a number of years not only one of the half-hundred draughtsmen employed by the war office in London, but my superiors were kind enough to say that I was one of the best. There were five of us out of the fifty who were called "confidentials." Drawings of muskets, pistols, cannon, etc., were entrusted to us alone, and now and then one of us was sent to France or Germany to steal new ideas and perhaps improve on them. On several different occasions I had drawings on hand which certain governments would have paid immense sums for, but I was trusted and proved my loyalty.

There came at a certain period, after I had been in government employ a long time, a sudden rush of business. It caught two of our staff ill in bed, and even by working overtime the remainder of us could not keep up with our work. To me had been assigned the task of preparing the drawings of a new field piece, which the government was in a hurry for, and so it came about that our chief gave his consent for me to take my work home at night and thereby gain a few extra hours.

I was then a man of 30, living in a suburb, and my old mother was housekeeper and companion. It was a distance of six miles I had to go, and I was ordered to take a cab to and fro. Drawings cannot be placed in the pocket, you know, and there was danger of carrying a roll about in my hand. It might be left behind in bus or car, or some snatch-thief might take it for something convertible into cash at the nearest pawnshop. There was a suspicion afloat that the French government had heard of the invention and was anxious to find out all about it, but no one was worried over it. I carried the drawings back and forth for a couple of weeks, and one evening at the house I completed them with a sigh of relief. When they had been carefully rolled up and tape-tied it was 10 o'clock and mother had gone to bed. I had just lighted my pipe and taken the easy chair when there came a furious ringing at the door bell. I ran and opened the door, to be almost taken off my feet by a girl who dashed in and cried out for me to give her shelter and protection from a ruffian. As I looked out into the street a well-dressed man was just turning away from the steps. He looked back and shook his fist at the house as I closed and locked the door. When I turned to my visitor I found her seated on the lower step of the stairs and sobbing bitterly. Before she had controlled her emotions and answered my questions my mother had appeared, and then the story was told to both of us at once.

The girl was well-dressed and refined-looking, and the first sight of her face gave me confidence in her. She claimed to live with an aunt in a locality at least two miles distant, that she had gone out in the evening to see a young lady of her acquaintance who was ill, and later on had volunteered to go to a certain drug store for medicine. She had procured it and was returning home when she encountered the scoundrel who had followed her to the door. His addressing her in the bold manner he did confused and frightened her, and instead of appealing to police or pedestrian she hurried along and eventually took a wrong turn and got lost. The fellow had persisted in dogging her steps, and in desperation and hardly able to stand she had at last rung my bell and asked for shelter. That was the story in substance, but she filled in all the details in such a way that there was no room for doubt.

Mother's sympathies were aroused at once, and before her tale was half told I found myself aching to punch some masher's head. It was come 11 o'clock before we faced the question of what ought to be done. The answer was plain. I must go out and get a cab and accompany Miss June Williams home. She was profuse in her thanks and apologies, and was drinking tea with mother when I left the house. The nearest cab stand was half a mile away, and I reached it to find it deserted. To reach another I must walk a mile, and as it began to rain I returned to the house for a waterproof and umbrella. It was then midnight, and as there was no certainty of finding a cab in the whole suburb mother and I prevailed upon the girl to remain until morning. I could then take her home in my cab and assist her to explain matters to her aunt.

As my hand clutched her shoulder she halted and turned.

As we had no spare bed in the house, having no relatives or intimates to occupy it, mother's nod that I should sleep on the sitting room lounge and give up my room to Miss Williams was perfectly understood. We had but two furnished rooms upstairs, and mother occupied the front one. They went up together, the girl with tears and apologies and mother speaking kind words, and I stretched out on the lounge and sought sleep. By and by when the house grew quiet, I fell into a sort of doze but at half-past one o'clock I was conscious of hearing a bell strike. It didn't seem more than five minutes later when I heard the front door softly open and shout, or so imagined. I was up and out in the hall in no time, and to my utter amazenement I discovered that the front door had actually been unlocked. I pulled it open and looked out, and going hurriedly down the street was a woman. As I made her out by a gas lamp my heart gave a tremendous jump. I seemed to recognize her as Miss Williams, and at the same instant I thought of my drawings in the room we had given her.

Hatless, coatless, vestless and in my stocking feet I dashed out into the rainy night in pursuit. The fleeing woman turned the first corner and ran like a deer, but I was soon hot after her, and she had only gone three blocks when I overhauled her. As my hand clutched her shoulder she halted and turned, and holding out my roll of drawings she laughingly said:

"Had the carriage been at the corner as agreed you would not have caught me. Here is your roll. I am much obliged to you and the dear old lady, and will now say good night."

I stood there and looked at her 'till the darkness swallowed her up. It had been a put-up job to get possession of my gunnery secret, and the alleged masher was of course her confederate. In some way they had discovered that I took the drawings home with me at night and had planned to betray me and rob me. I might have detained her and preferred a charge, but the war office prefers silence to publicity in certain things, and the man who has had a close call from being made a fool of isn't itching for newspaper notoriety.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Philadelphia Times: "And when he proposed did you tell him to see me?" inquired her mother.

"I did, and he said he had seen you several times, but that he loved me notwithstanding."

Indianapolis Press: Penelope—I've been abroad so long; tell me, whom did Jack marry?

Gladys—He married Maude Jones, her mother, father, a maiden aunt and a Maltese cat.

Boston Gazette: Mrs. Galloupe—Be sure and come, Mr. Fibble. I promise you shall meet, oh, quite a number of pretty women.

Gibble—How can I refuse you, my dear madam? It will not be for the pretty women, however, but for you that I shall come.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "You called on her father, of course?"

"Eh! Called on her father? Certainly not. She sent him to me!"

Philadelphia Record: Jack—No; I don't see May as much as I used to.

Jill—Really? Why, I heard you were engaged.

Jack—That's just it. It's dark in the parlor when I call now.

Chicago Tribune: "If I sh'd die, Mollie, ye'd buy a foine suit o' clothes f'r me, wudn't ye?"

"Ay coorse, I wud, Larry. Ye know that."

"While I'm alive, though, yo think rummage sale stuff is good enough f'r me, do ye?"

Fickle Fortune's Favor.

Chicago Post: How unequal are the favors of fortune! While the czar and the kaiser are robbed of the joys of pomp and power by ungrateful subjects, Fodey Kabba, an African chieftain, is relinquished from forty wives by one explosion.

Profits of Stamp-Licking.

Washington Post: This business of stamp-licking is liable to impart a disagreeable taste to the mouth when we reflect that notwithstanding our extraordinary expense account the government accumulated $9,000,000 of surplus during the month of March.

Opportunities For Workers.

Indianapolis Journal: Mr. Carnegie says there are more chances for the young man today than when he began at $1.20 a week, because there is more work to do. But there are so many who want chances without work that the Carnegie opinion will not meet with general and cordial approval.

Cinch of the Trust.

New York World: J. P. Morgan, in the billion-dollar steel trust, provided for the possible "involuntary" dissolution of the concern. Then he insured against the possibility by choosing Knox for attorney general.

Well Spiked, Too.

New York Herald: We don't know much about the size of Governor Odell's feet, but from the gait he has struck we judge that his own shoes fit him pretty well, and he needn't wait for Platt's or anybody's else.

Not For Him.

Philadelphia Inquirer: With nothing else to do as yet, Aguinaldo has a right to tilt back his chair and, with one of Uncle Sam's Manillas between his lips, think that the Stars and Stripes is not such a bad banner after all.

"A Blessing to all Women"

Great joy and comfort comes into every household when the virtue of "Mother's Friend" is known. No more gloomy forebodings or nervousness by expectant mothers, as all pain is prevented by the external use of "Mother's Friend," the marvelous liniment. There is nothing like it.

B. F. BROWN, of Waddill, La., writes: "Many of my wife's friends have used 'Mother's Friend' before confinement, and say they would not pass through the ordeal again without having it, even if it cost $25 per bottle."

"It was my friend twice."

Sent by express paid on receipt of price, $1.00 per Bottle. Book, "Motherhood," written especially for young and middle-aged women, mailed free.

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

Cass Lake Times: Sam Fullerton, the executive agent of the Minnesota game and fish commission, has recently discovered that a pickerel is not a pickerel after all, but a pike. We always had an impression that Sam was a genius, but never harbored the thought that he would, two hundred years after the demise of the great Isaac Walton, discover that pickerel "do come from weeds." It is unfortunate for Sam's reputation as a naturalist that he had not made this discovery before the death of the great Agassiz, who on his visit to the region of the rgeat lakes made careful examination of the different types of the genus pike, and determined that the great Northern pickerel, esox lucoides, was a distinct species, and entirely unlike the esox estor, (muscallonge) of both Europe and America.

The Northern pickerel which Sam has discovered to be a pike, differs from the true pike in all the distinctive characteristics of scientific and natural distinction; the fine rays are different, the dental arrangement is widely at variance, the gill-covers are not alike, but the greatest difference may be found in the coloring; the true pike being banded and mottled and having no indication whatever of the regular rhomboidal spots which mark the sides, form a characteristic of the Northern pickerel. We have never heard that any well-bred sportsman fed on the Northern pickerel or considered him edible; he is an omnivorous feeder, picks up all kinds of foul food and thrives upon the filth of the earth. We feel sorry that such eminent authorities are arrayed against Sam's pet theory, but "Frank Forester, LeSeur, Richardson" and many other of equal renown as naturalists as well as the great Agassiz, will all testify against him on the trial. Better turn your attention, Sam, to some other subject. The science of pisciculture is too complicated for you; how would farming do?

THE ETERNAL GOODNESS.

I long for household voices gone,
For vanished smiles I long,
But God has led my dear ones on,
And he can do no wrong.

I know not what the future hath,
Of marvel or surprise,
Assured alone that life and death
His mercy underlies.

And if my heart and flesh are weak,
To bear an untried pain,
The bruised reed He will not break,
But strengthen and sustain.

No offering of my own I have,
Nor works my faith to prove;
I can but give the gift He gave,
And plead His love for love.

And so beside the Silent Sea
I wait the muffled oar;
No harm from Him can come to me
On ocean or on shore.

I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care.

—JOHN G. WHITTIER.

He May Drop In.

Washington Times: Minister Loomis has left Venezuela for the United States, and is expected to arrive here April 20. Nobody would be much amazed if Gen. Francis V. Greene, president of the asphalt trust, were to turn up at the state department on or about the same date.

Reward For Savagery.

Buffalo Express: It pays to be really savage in the Philippines. The Taft commission has decided that natives of Mindanao are too barbarous to be ruled by white men from America, and they will be allowed to continue governing themselves just as they always have done.

Can Be Told In Advance.

Chicago Chronicle: The new McKinley attorney general is the law partner of a director of the billion and a half steel trust. The opinions to be promulgated from his office will not justify in advance profound doubts of their contents.

The hand of Time lays few wrinkles on the brow of them that take Rocky Mountain Tea this month. A great spring blessing. 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

GROWING CHILDREN.

The Period When the Nervous Activity Is at its Greatest.

The Home Doctor.

"Against the practice of giving tea and coffee to children we cannot speak too strongly. Childhood is the period when the nervous activity is at its greatest. The brain is ever busy receiving new impressions. Reflex action, coordination of muscles, and the special senses are all under a special course of training.

The nervous system is pushed to its utmost capacity, and long is the list of victims that follow its over-stimulation. In these little people nothing but harm can come from the use of such cerebral stimulants as tea or coffee. Bad, then, as this practice is, let us as physicians be aggressive in its prohibition.

Do not be satisfied by answering "No," when asked as to its use, but let us teach the families with whom we come in contact that such practice is evil. We speak emphatically, because not only among the poor and uneducated, but among the rich, who should know better, this practice is marvelously prevalent."

Children like a warm beverage for breakfast, and it is well for them to have it if the drink is a food and not a drug.

Postum Food Coffee is made to supply a rich nourishing liquid food with a crisp coffee taste, for those who cannot and should not use coffee. Analysis shows it to contain about 14 per cent of muscle forming elements and 65.11 per cent of energy and fat producing elements, which go to nourish and sustain the delicate nerve centers throughout the body and from which the vital energy proceeds.

The supreme importance of proper food in place of drugs is not generally understood, but the success of child or adult depends largely upon proper sustenance for the body. Children who depend upon the intelligence of their elders to furnish them with good food deserve our most careful attention and thought upon this subject.

Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus.

The Kansas City Times said of Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, and the lecture which he will deliver here at the First Methodist church, next Monday evening, as the closing attraction in the Star Lecture course:

"Dr. Gunsaulus brought his series of wonderful lectures to a fine climax last evening in the one on 'The Later Eloquence of Puritanism.' It was an eloquent picture of the revolt of the right against the wrong, as was exemplified in Puritanism, and which grew out of the conviction of the two great facts in the world—the existence of a God and of a soul in man. He described Abraham Lincoln the first exponent of Puritanism and followed its influence to our own time, with a powerful tribute to the strength and patriotism of Wendell Phillips, who made it possible for Grant and Lincoln to free the slave."

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.

Will Spend Over Ten Millions In Improvements.

St. Paul, April 13.—President C. S. Mellen today authorized the announcement that the Northern Pacific will this season expend $10,250,000 on betterments. The sum of $5,250,000 will alone be spent for rolling stock and similar equipment. It is the largest equipment order placed by a railroad company west of the Mississippi.

The other $5,000,000 will be spent in permanently improving the roadbed from St. Paul to Portland, in order that the line will be in perfect condition to bear the heavy strain of an ever increasing volume of business.

These expenditures are the logical result of the rapid development of the Northwestern and the extreme Western country. The business of all the Northwestern railroads has developed to such an extent, and the future shows such large increases still in sight, that the Northern Pacific feels that only by making such extraordinary additions to its equipments can it keep pace with the times. The business to keep the new equipment in active service is actually in sight, if not waiting.

VITAL STATISTICS.

Interesting Figures From the United Kingdom.

London, April 13.—Some interesting points are found in the annual report of the registrar general of births, deaths and marriages of the United Kingdom. In 1899 the marriages reached the highest number recorded since 1876, aggregating 262,334, or 16.5 per thousand. The births numbered 928,646, equal to 29.3 per thousand. There were 37,124 illegitimate children born, the deaths numbered 581,799, equal to 18.3 per thousand, and there were 2844 suicides.

This is the first year on record that not a single death from hydrophobia has been reported.

The Boer War.

The latest news from South Africa indicates a speedy and peaceful termination of the conflict that has been raging for the past two years. War is a terrible thing and has slain thousands, but stomach troubles, we believe, have slain even more. When the stomach is out of order the entire system suffers and disease takes an easy hold. To insure health and long life keep the stomach in good condition by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The next time you are troubled with dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, or any other disorder of the stomach, do not fail to give it a trial. It will cure these ailments and prevent malaria, fever and ague. Insist on having the genuine with our private revenue stamp over the neck of the bottle.

CHESS TEAMS.

London, April 13.—The secretary of the British chess club says neither the Newnes trophy nor university teams have yet been definitely decided upon. Sir George Newnes' paper says the British team will be H. E. Atkins, G. E. H. Bellingham, Herbert Jacobs, E. M. Jackson, F. F. Lee, James Mason, Mr. Mitchell, D. Y. Mills, W. Ward and it is hoped Blackburne will be able to play and complete the team.

VORBONICK FOUND.

Shamokin, Pa., April 13.—The rescuing party at Cameron colliery, where Michael Vorbonick was entombed by a fall of coal last Saturday, penetrated a spot sixty feet up the No. 9½ gangway and found Vorbonick. He was dead and the position of his body indicated he met death when the fall occurred.

RUBLEE EN ROUTE.

San Francisco, April 13.—W. A. Rublee, recently appointed United States consul general at Hong Kong to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rounzville Wildman, has arrived from Milwaukee and expects to sail for his new post on the steamer China next Wednesday.

WITH THE NEW BOOKS

An historical novel that depicts vividly some of the most exciting scenes in colonial history, and also contains a pretty love story told with much charm and unusual literary skill, is "A Soldier of Virginia," by Burton Egbert Stevenson, which has just been published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. It is an historical romance of the time of Braddock's ill-fated expedition to Fort Duquesne. The hero, a Virginian, is much in love with a girl whose guardians do not favor her suit, and so the current of his true love is anything but smooth. He enlists as a soldier under Washington, and is detained long in the field in the midst of perils and hardships. Sometimes fate gives him a sight of the heroine, but there are long stretches of hope deferred. At last he has the good fortune to be the defender against an Indian attack of a fort in which are the heroine and her guardians. His valor and resourcefulness save the fort, and he keeps the savages at bay until relief arrives. The guardians change their minds. Mr. Stevenson shows a thorough knowledge of the period to which his story relates; he draws the character of Washington admirably, and depicts him with fine historic justice; his hero and heroine are effectively presented and are uncommonly attractive; and the style of the book is worthy of the strong, high-toned, very readable story it tells. Gen. Braddock figures in the story, and the author makes clear that although this commander was a man of great stubbornness, self-willed, and overbearing, his fearful defeat was due not to his ignorance of military science, but to his unfamiliarity with the modes of warfare common to the Indians, who as allies of the French were his chief combatants. The story of the awful battle, in which less than 500 out of Braddock's force of 1500 escaped, is told with considerable power.

The Jamieson-Higgins company, of Chicago, are the publishers of Gertrude Potter Daniels' "The Warners," a book that is likely to be widely read and much discussed. The author is the daughter of a large stockholder in the billion dollar steel trust, and it is remarkable that a young lady reared in luxury should be found championing the cause of the weak and writing a story that one reviewer says is an arraignment of the money power as bitter in its way as "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was of slavery. It is the story of Cyrus Warner, a young man with a wife and child, who has purchased on the installment plan a piece of property in a small town, on which is a cottage and oil well. Anthony J. Fellows, a capitalist, arrives at the little town in his private car to look over the oil industry. He offers to buy Warner's well at the price originally paid. Warner indignantly refuses, but the capitalist, determined to control all oil wells in a gigantic trust, puts down the price of oil until small owners like Warner, who have refused to sell, are driven out of the market. The Warners, unable to compete with the Fellows' price of oil, are driven back to the city for a living. Their savings are used up. They live in a tenement, and Cyrus begins a desperate hunt for work. Warner renews his friendship with Kirby, a socialist, who is running a paper, preaching anarchy. During a serious strike he urges the idle men to deeds of violence. During a terrible riot the socialist, with his wife and one child, a delicate boy, head the mob of infuriated strikers against the police. A bomb, intended for the officers of the law, is thrown from the ranks of desperate men; it falls short and kills Mrs. Kirby and the boy. Kirby flees to the Warners for refuge, but is taken, tried and sentenced to a term of years in the penitentiary. Things go from bad to worse with the Warners. The climax comes when both father and mother lose their places, and their daughter leaves home ostensibly to take a situation in the country as a servant, really to install herself in a home provided by Teddy, the son of the capitalist Fellows. She lives so dissipated a life that her beauty fades. Teddy tires of her, abuses her brutally, and finally attempts to drive her out into the street with a whip. In desperation the girl murders him. In the meantime Warner buys a miner's outfit and goes west to prospect. During his wanderings he falls in with a man who, in turn for a kindness Warner does him, reveals the prospect of an iron ore mine. Warner, successful, returns home. He finds his wife half dead from acute poverty and overwork. On the evening following little Betty creeps into their own wretched room, dying, and haunted with the fear of the law consequent upon her deed of murder. The change in his two beloved women appalls Warner. This feeling changes into a vengeful fury when, news of his strike having spread, he is informed by a trust company, headed by Anthony Fellows, that they wish to purchase his property. He understands what that means, and the unfairness of what he has suffered makes him an irresponsible creature. Just at this stage Kirby is pardoned from prison by the governor. He finds Warner not only a tool of anarchy but a leader. The two plan Fellows' death, Kirby making the bomb. The night before it is to be placed, fearing his presence will interfer with the successful completion of their plans, he takes the bomb to Warner, then leaving the house cautiously disappears. As Warner holds the instrument of death in his hands, looking for a place to put it, his door opens and Anthony Fellows walks in.

Another book of recent publication that seems likely to have more than a temporary popularity is "According to Plato." The author is Frankfort Moore, who will be remembered as the writer of "The Conscience of Coralie," "The Jessamy Bride," "The Fatal Gift," and other stories of interest. "According to Plato" is written in Mr. Moore's wittiest and most amusing manner. It is a remarkable satire on London life, London letters and London love. Epigrammatic, interesting and diverting, it is just the sort of book to pack in a grip or read on a steamer chair. Published by Dodd, Mead & Co., New York.

A valuable book is "Oratory: Its Requirements and Its Rewards," written by ex-Governor John P. Altgeld of Illinois and published by Charles H. Kerr & Co., Chicago. The person who opens this book with the expectation of finding the same old hackneyed "exercises" for voice and gesture, with mechanical instructions for proper "delivery," will be agreeably disappointed. On the contrary, he will find a body of condensed, almost epigrammatic, fundamental principles that, whether consciously or unconsciously followed, are the only possible foundation for successful public speaking. It is a book to be studied and learned by heart, rather than simply read or retained as a book of reference. The arrangement and language are of such a character as to make the book an excellent example of the art it teaches.

There is a scene in the new American novel, "Martin Brook," (Harpers), which could almost be transferred to the stage just as it is written in the book. It is the library scene in Judge Northcote's house, where the hero, Martin Brook, takes sides against his benefactor in defence of the fugitive slave Enoch. The appeal of the trembling slave, the threatening advance of his captors, the agony in Martin's heart at the moment when his feelings are sacrificed to his principles, and the dignity of Judge Northcote upholding with tragic fidelity the law, are elements which Mr. Bates has mingled with unerring skill.

The new Conklin's Handy Manual and Atlas of the World, just issued by Laird Lee, of Chicago, is not only a revised edition of a work whose success has been phenomenal—over 2,000,000 copies sold in twelve years—but, to all purposes an absolutely new book, over 150 pages having been altered and a number of them replaced by entirely new ones. The presidential elections of 1900, and the census of the same year (as far as its results have been made public) are given in full, with classifications and comparisons peculiar to this work. The young people will find here the rules of admission to West Point, Annapolis and the vast civil service of the United States, also the conditions for enlistment in the regular army.

Professor Frank L. McVey of the chair of economics in the University of Minnesota has just added a text book upon "The Government of Minnesota" to the series of "Handbooks of American Government," published by the Macmillan company, of New York. It is an ideal textbook in may ways, and is of interest and value to many more than the student. Professor McVey has amplified, so far as possibly consistent with the limits of his concise book, this germinal idea of the promise and possibilities of our state. His idea has been to condense in a small volume such instruction in our civil government as shall give the history and general working machinery of our separate functions of control, and to leave to the teacher the task of enlarging, as may be deemed best, for more extensive work. With that end in view, numerous footnotes—explanatory, suggestive or merely references—are supplied, and an appendix at the end of the book contains other historical or statistical material. Local government in Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis naturally receives special attention, though the charter changes of these cities are not given.

The South Publishing company, of New York, has published "Newfoundland in 1900." It is a treatise of the geography, natural resources and history of the island, embracing an account of recent and present large material movements, written by Rev. D. M. Harvey and elegantly illustrated with maps and half-tone engravings. The coast of Newfoundland is rock-bound, at many points presenting bold cliffs hundreds of feet in height. In this respect it resembles Norway which has led to its designation of the "American Norway." The interior is diversified by hills, mountains, plains, forests, rivers and lakes. The forests consist chiefly of fir, spruce, pine and birch. There are good agricultural lands, as yet little tilled. The winter climate of Newfoundland is not severe, while the summers are delightful, the thermometer rarely marking over 80 degrees. The tourist seeking recreation and health, finds it a highly congenial resort, while the sportsman seeks its secluded lakes, rivers and woods in quest of the abundant fish and game. It is a charming place to visit and its manifold attractions are fast giving it fame in all parts of the world.

"Babs the Impossible," Sarah Grand's latest, has made a hit. The New York press includes it among "ten great successes" of the year. Reviewers and readers agree that the "irrepressible Babs" will create as great a sensation as the "Terrible Twins." Dramatists are being captivated by the piquant heroine and her delicious comedy, and "Babs" may yet walk the boards—a sure sign nowadays of popular favor. "Babs" ought to be as attractive on the stage as the bewitching "Babbie."

Dodd, Mead & Co. announce for early publication a novel by Professor W. H. Venable, of Cincinnati, Ohio. It deals with Aaaron Burr's audacious scheme of founding an empire in the Southwest, for the furtherance of which the famous Blennerhassett expended his whole fortune and sacrificed his beautiful island home in the Ohio river. Professor Venable is an acknowledged historical authority and in addition is thoroughly acquainted with all that portion of the country in which the scene of the story is laid.

DUN'S REVIEW

General Tone of Business Has Been Better.

New York, April 13.—R. G. Dun's weekly review of trade says: The tone of general business has been better this week. Marked activity in the distribution of merchandise is reflected in the gains of 45.3 per cent in bank clearings at New York compared with 1900 and 30.8 per cent over 1899, with gains of 13.5 and 10.8 for the same periods at leading cities outside New York. Even the textile markets show pronounced gain.

Activity in the metals division has taken pig iron production to near record figures and some dealers do not see how production of partly finished forms this year is to be made to meet the demand. hTe government report of the condition of wheat on April 1 is the surest possible basis upon which expectation of continued commercial prosperity could be founded. Stringency of money is largely local in New York and does not alter reports from most of the larger cities of favorable conditions in collections. Railroad earnings in March were 7.4 per cent larger than last year, and 32.4 per cent over 1899, according to practically complete returns. Pig iron production on April 1, according to the Iron Age, was at the rate of 296,676 tons weekly. This quantity has been exceeded twice in the history of the industry, on Dec. 1, 1899, when 295,959 tons were produced, and on Feb. 1, 1900, when the output was 298,014 tons. The remarkable feature of the situation is the decrease of 69,598 tons in furnace stocks during March in the face of this enormous production, while in six months the loss in supplies amounted to 203,656 tons. Quotations are generally steady for all forms, except plates on which $2 a ton more is demanded without restricting purchases. Contracts for delivery of pig iron do not as a rule extend beyond this month and furnace stocks cannot be expected to continue decreasing unless new business comes forward for many furnaces have gone into blast since the month opened and production on May 1 will probably be at a new high record.

Speculation has been unusually heavy in foodstuffs, the local market averaging over 2,000,000 bus of wheat daily. Prices receded sharply from the top notch of two weeks ago, wheat losing about 4 cents for spot. Realizing sales were accelerated by expectation of a high percentage of winter wheat condition in the official report. Two elements of strength appeared to check the decline and caused some recovery, insects were reported numerous in the Southwestern states and foreign buying was sufficient to make Atlantic exports, flour included, 6,775,000 bushels in two weeks, against 3,912,857 last year and 3,890,390 in 1899.

Corn received better support by manipulation and lighter interior receipts. The large increase in hog packing at the West as compared with last year's figures probably accounts for the first signs of pronounced weakness in pork products. Large producers of footwear in New England are still doing a good business with sufficient orders to insure full time at the shops for a month or more. Expected concessions in prices by smaller makers have commenced, moderately large contracts for split kip and grain boots being secured at 2½ cents reduction. Shipments from Boston continue to show a good gain over last year's figures.

In the face of recent reductions in prices of rubber goods, the raw materials advanced to 86 cents. Textile fabrics are in better position, although improvement is slight and confined to a few special lines. Since Easter, wool manufacturers have taken sufficient raw to indicate better demand and assurances are received that Western holders are going to hold for better prices than are now obtainable.

In cotton goods there has been more buying for China while spring dry goods opening make encouraging exhibits. The raw material lost most of last week's gain, speculators making no resistance to the weakening influence of larger receipts and lighter exports than a year ago. Besides the international curtailment of spinning there has been further reduction of operations by spring floods. In silk goods more activity is reported and another trifling advance occurred in raw material.

Failures for the week numbered 208 in the United States, against 193 last year, and 24 in Canada, against 41 last year.

NOT DECIDED.

Whether Wellman Will Go to Arctic Regions.

London, April 13.—Walter Wellman sailed for New York today from Southampton on board the American liner St. Louis, after a visit to Norway, where he inspected the steamer Magdalena, now being refitted at the yards, where Dr. Nansen's Fram was built. Mr. Wellman said the Magdalena will sail for the Arctic regions this year or next, "but," he added, "I do not know whether I shall command her or not."

Mr Wellman says there is no truth in the report that Dr. Nansen and the duke of Abruzzi are going on an expedition together. Dr. Nansen has no Arctic plans on hand, while the duke of Abruzzi is at present confining his ambition to the Antartic regions.

SUBMARINE MINES.

London, April 13.—Joseph Chamberlain's organ the Birmingham Post, learns that the Russian ministers of war and marine have issued joint orders for the laying of an extensive system of submarine mines at Port Arthur, Vladivostock and elsewhere in those seas. The apparatus leaves Odessa early in May.

Building

Requires a foundation. That is just as true of the building up of the body as of the building of a house. The foundation of a strong body is a strong stomach. No man can be stronger than his stomach. A weak stomach means a weak man.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food which is eaten. Thus it builds up the body and restores strength in the only way known to Nature or to science—by digested and assimilated food.

"While living in Charlotte, N. C., your medicine cured me of asthma and nasal catarrh of ten years' standing," writes J. L. Lumsden, Esq., of 221 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga. "At that time life was a burden to me, and after spending hundreds of dollars under numerous doctors I was dying by inches. I weighed only 131 pounds. In twenty days after I commenced your treatment I was well of both troubles, and in six months I weighed 170 pounds, and was in perfect health. I have never felt the slightest symptom of either since. Am sixty-five years old and in perfect health, and weigh 166 pounds. No money could repay you for what you did for me. I would not return to the condition I was in, in October, 1872, for Rockefeller's wealth."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery," when a laxative is required.

It Will Surprise You—Try It.

It is the medicine above all others for catarrh and is worth its weight in gold. Ely's Cream Balm does all that is claimed for it.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

My son was afflicted with catarrh. He used Ely's Cream Balm and the disagreeable catarrh all left him. J. C. Olmstead, Arcola, Ill.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cents or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

Excursion April 16 Via Northwestern Line.

On April 16 the Northwestern line (Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway) will sell round trip at the very low rate of one far, plus $2, to points in Western, Southwestern and Southern states. If you wish to see the country or visit friends, this is your golden opportunity. We will also sell very low one way tickets on each Tuesday during April to Western and Southwestern points.

Remember the days. Full information and tickets cheerfully furnished at 405 West Superior street, or Omaha depot.

Grand Festival

Will be given by Ladies' Society of St. Peter's Church at Columbia Hall,

20th avenue west and Superior St., Thursday, April 18, 7:30 p. m. Good musical program will be given by prominent ladies and gentlemen of the city. Rev. Dr. A. W. Ryan will deliver an address in the interest of the Ladies' Guild. There will also be an auction sale of useful articles, made by the Ladies' Society. Thereafter refreshments will be served. Admission for adults, 25c, and 15c for children.

A CHIC LITTLE TOUCH

New Choker and New Trimming On the Sleeves Will Bring a Gown Quite Up to Date.

New York, April 10.—Small touches are the keynote of the fashions of the new season. Something new in the way of the choker or chow will be the distinguishing feature of the modish spring gown. An idea upon which great stress seems to be laid is some touch of white in the choker. The turnover collar of embroidered muslin, however, has become so general that exclusive dressmakers no longer countenance it. A new conceit is a line of lace embroidery about the top of the choker and two lace points falling down in front. This choker is decidedly modish. It has first a stock of heavy lace and then a choker of the material of the gown half as high as the lace one. This has a large eyelet hole worked on each side and a soft scarf with long ends drawn through these, very sheer mull shirred into diamond-shaped puffs bordered by lines of lace entredeux is the newest style in chemisettes.

Leaves, foliage and vines are among the most conspicuous items of spring millinery. Green appears, too, in some of the new frocks. I saw a pretty design in a sage green voile trimmed with tucked taffeta of the same shade and lines of black velvet. The upper part of the skirt, with the exception of a narrow front panel, is laid in side plaits. This upper part is cut out about the bottom in large squares, and a deep shaped flounce is headed by a design done in tucked taffeta, edged with black velvet, and this design is twice repeated on the flounce.

The bodice is plaited, as if a continuation of the skirt, and over the plaits is a bolero cut out in squares and trimmed with the tucked silk and velvet. The bolero closes on the side with a fall of lace and gold ornaments holding little tassels of narrow black velvet ribbon. The sleeves are close to the elbows, where they have a very full ruffle trimmed with design of tucked taffeta and velvet. There are puffed undersleeves of white mull.

The choker is of tucked taffeta, encircled by two bands of black velvet, and with deep but narrow lace points turning over the front of the choker, one on each side. The belt is a soft scarf of green silk fastened on the side with a gold ornament and tassel of black velvet.

A high-necked evening gown of the style that is so useful for the theater or restaurant dinners is of green crepe, embroidered with silver, and trimmed with a pattern made of white panne and pompadour silk figures held together with embroidery of white cord and gold thread. The long, clinging skirt has a thick bunch of narrow tucks in the back. This skirt is really a tunic with the silver embroidery growing heavy at the edge. The underskirt is covered with green mousseline de soie ruffles on which the trimming is applied.

There are some touches of narrow black velvet in this trimming, and the whole effect is of course very odd and rich. The bodice, which fastens behind, is of the crepe gathered in a few lines of shirrs at the waist. Above is a little fancy jacket of the trimming that rises to form the choker and makes the tops and cuffs to the sleeves. At the elbows are puffs of the embroidered crepe.

A gown with a markedly long shoulder effect is very smart this spring. In rose-brown drap mousseline, a frock is given this effect by a broad band of russet guipure which crosses the shoulder blades, the tops of the arms and turns down the sides of the front to the hem of the skirt. The sleeves have puffings below the tight shoulder cap of lace, and are close from elbow to wrist. For other garniture the frock has only graduated polka dots of panne velvet appliqued upon the hem, upon the bodice front and upon the lower part of the sleeves, the belt being also of panne in a soft swist.

The soft pinkish browns and tans of this gown are relieved by a toque built of pale yellow taffeta flower petals with, for accent, a clump of black gauze loops buckled with gold.

The bolero is anything but extinct, despite its already long reign. Its prettiest forms now are those worn with princess gowns. This makes a fine effect when tailored in either cloth or peau de sole. In this last material, with stitched seams and edges, and with tiny round velvet buttons in the same shade of strawberry red, it makes a very attractive toilet for a horse show or a race course in the spring. The princess has a smoothly-fitting back, spreading out by its shape into the slightly dragging train. Down the front from bust to hem there are two rows of tiny buttons. The bolero is cut in scallops and hemmed with shaped and stitched bands of red panne, and it has little scalloped sleeves ending just above the elbows. The undersleeve is close and fastened with buttons the whole length of the outside, these buttons loosened at the wrists to show a small, soft puff of white chiffon, with a lace ruffle, suggestive of a short sleeve.

Parasols for the summer of 1901 have appeared, and lovelier were never seen. Some exquisitely dainty examples are of chiffon, used in different ways. White chiffon, for instance, is gathered over colored silk and finished with a deep ruffle of the chiffon doubled; or it may be all white, like a great snowflake, or a bright color may be toned down by black. Sometimes it is black over white, or ruffles of color are used on a white or black foundation.

Lace also is largely in evidence, and the beautiful hand-run Spanish lace so popular some years ago has returned, some superb covers being shown, both in black and white. Those who are fortunate enough to have them carefully laid away may now bring them out for renewed usefulness.

Lace is introduced also into silk parasols in many ways. Some have several straight lines of insertion encircling the shade; some have them arranged vertically, and others show incrustations of separate designs. An exquisite parasol has on each gore a spray of fuchsie leaves of white chiffon and silver embroidery, with detached fuchsias of the same delicate composition fluttering at every movement.

Jet spangles appear on many of the lace designs, and silver spangles are employed with embroidery and insertion. A bewitching example is of white silk, with a large plume design of black lace on every section, each plume being illuminated by silver spangles with charming effect.

Lovely parasols of silk in Dresden designs are seen, and many of them are bordered by chiffon ruffles. Some have brilliant flower patterns on white

NOT HEREDITARY

In the main, consumption is not hereditary; it is infectious.

Low vital force is hereditary; which gives consumption its chance. An infection starts it.

Between the two, the crop is a big one: about one-sixth of the human race.

We suppose it needn't be more than 5 per cent, if people would take fair care and Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

IN PASTEL PINK.
Panne foulard gown in a soft shade of pink, covered with black dots. Skirt made with three broad-shaped flounces, with rows of narrow black velvet ribbon. Full baby waist with guimpe.

gowns or black in stripe effects. There never were so many styles from which to choose, indeed, and one may find even the striped "watered silks" of her grandmother's days if she desires, while for those who wish absolute simplicity there are plain colors in soft satin or silk.

In handles the usual variety is seen, but many of the richest parasols have large handles of natural wood. Some, however, have slender sticks enameled in colors to match or contrast with the covering of the parasol.

Each spring the black and white striped silk commonly termed Peking appears. For some reason this seems to be a trimming particularly favored at this time of the year, for one rarely sees it in summer or winter. A neat street suit of navy blue voile has on the skirt three narrow shaped flounces that stop on each side of the narrow apron front. A fold of Peking silk goes down each side of the apron and about the edge of the ruffles, as if the lining were turned over a little. The jacket has little postillion pieces in the black, is curved upon the sides and then down a trifle below the waist line to make becoming little points. There is an open inner vest with turnover collars and revers of the striped silk and a front of ecru batiste, embroidered in gold thread. The front is a charming touch, and the choker is surrounded with lines of black velvet and has turnover points in front of white lace.

Black dots embroidered on a pale green ground make a pretty crepon. The conspicuous feature on the dress is the high corselet of black Chantilly with long lace ends falling down the side of the skirt. The bodice is laid in large loose shingles that do not go straight about the figure, but seem to curve down both in front and behind. The sleeves are made in two big puffs of the stuff that is again arranged in deep tucks and these hang over close undersleeves of black lace.

A modish way to make a black net is to shirr the skirt to the knees and then let the stuff flare out in two or three flounces. These shirrings are not divided across, only up and down by lines of black passementerie over gold ribbon. This same trimming heads the black lace used to trim the flounces. The bodice is arranged the same way with up and down lines of trimming separating rows of puffs, and this includes the sleeves. It is really marvelous the way that dressmakers are using shirrs and preserving as well the fashionable slender outline.

Weavers plainly have been expending their ingenuity of late on mercerized fabric. At least, a majority of the season's new stuffs are of that grade Though it was admirable quality when it first appeared, the newer sorts show improvement, and so much as to suggest the possibility for the near future of mercerized stuffs of art goods grade, and at corresponding high prices. Materials of this finish will be used abundantly in summer dresses, and for them will afford a fine means of effecting elaborate get-ups of artistic color schemes without great expense. Mercerized mulle promises to be the most favored of these stuffs. As to summer silks, though it is high time that the novelties put in an appearance if they are going to do so, none has come forward to make much of an impression. Imported pongees are shown, but are too costly to interest many. Embroidered bands of these materials will make handsome trimming, but the prices are always prohibitive. However, some of the waists trimmed in this fashion that are shown in the shops will be pretty sure to find purchasers because of their beauty, and, perhaps, the trimming will be done in the less expensive pongees before long. New trimmings for waists are few, probably because so much attention is given to the elaboration of sleeves. Bodices certainly show more of originality between elbow and wrists than on the body, yet a few novel trimmings for the latter should be welcome.

The coming colors won't startle any one. Vivid blue, often with silver trimming, will be worn a good deal, and several shades of much what we used to call old rose are much favored. Soft shades abound, and even blue shows this, though its vivid tones will be a majority, I think. Considering that spring is a time when one may dip into striking color schemes, there is a surprising liking for biscuit shades, all of which are to rank as newly stylish. They appear in both cloths and silks, and in simple and elaborate get-ups. My second sketch shows a gown of biscuit crepe de chine, banded with green chiffon ruffling and banding of handsome black and gold lace. Equally elaborate dresses in these shades are plenty, and the same may be said of simple tailor gowns. Aside from the bright blue of the sort that is so great a trial to the average complexion, soft colorings have the entire field. Delicate pinks abound and soft greens appear in all the stylish goods.

Gilt trimmings still are fashionable, though there is no continuance of the practice of last winter, when it seemed as if the rule was to get gilt and plenty of it on everything. The spring standards are quieter, though gold edgings and embroideries appear on about all colors of goods. The edgings are particularly handsome as used on jackets or skirts made on the layer plan. More of the gold than formerly was the case appears on cloth or satin bands. The satin usually is white or of some very delicate shade, while bands of blue, green and scarlet cloth are thus finished and then are employed on goods of somber hues.

Nervous Prostration.

A Noted Boston Woman Describes its Symptoms and Terrors.—Two Severe Cases Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

ADELE WILLIAMSON.

"I am so nervous! no one ever suffered as I do! There isn't a well inch in my body. I honestly believe my lungs are diseased, my chest pains me so, but I have no cough. I am so weak at my stomach, and have indigestion terribly, and palpitation of the heart; am losing flesh; and this headache and backache nearly kills me, and yesterday I had hysterics.

"There is a weight in the lower part of my bowels, bearing down all the time, with pains in my groins and thighs—I can't sleep, walk, or sit, and blue—oh goodness! I am simply the most miserable of women."

This is a most vivid description of a woman suffering with nervous prostration, caused by inflammation or some other diseased condition of the womb.

No woman should allow herself to reach such a perfection of misery when there is no need of it. Read about Miss Williamson's case and how she was cured.

Two Bad Cases of Nervous Prostration Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM;—I was suffering such tortures from nervous prostration that life was a burden. I could not sleep at all, and was too weak to walk across the floor. My heart was affected so that often I could not lie down at all without almost suffocating. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of inestimable benefit to me."

MISS ADELE WILLIAMSON,
196 N. Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

"I had nervous prostration terribly, caused by female weakness. I suffered everything; was unable to eat, sleep, or work. After a while I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I really began to improve on taking the first bottle. I continued to take the medicine, and am now better in every way, and feel like a different person. I am simply a well woman."

KING OF THE CORN PIT

George H. Phillips, the Chicago Grain Dealer, Whose Operations Are Now Watched With Interest By All Western Speculators.

George H. Phillips, whose daring operations on the Chicago board of trade are now on every Western speculator's tongue, is called the "big little man" of the corn pit. He is called "big" because of his nerve, and "little" because in physique he could almost be confined in a pint bottle. Then, too, he is modest, retiring, and, as compared with many of his opponents on the board of trade, poor, says the Chicago Record-Herald.

In his November, 1900, deal in corn, he is supposed to have cleared $150,000. What he has made or lost in the corn, oats and wheat pits is still a matter of speculation. Those who pretend to know his situation assert that if he defeats the bear movement now operating against him, he will be winner of $500,000.

His phenomenal rise as a speculator appears to be due to his willingness to break traditions of the board; his utter lack of speculative fear, and the almost unlimited capital which he seems to have at his command, and which is said to come from a syndicate of Middle Iowa and Central Illinois farmers, who believe in legitimate trading—that is, actual buying, selling and handling of grain. Led by Phillips, they have set themselves against the rich and poor traders of the board, who most delight in operating upon fictitious shortages or fictitious surpluses.

He is 34 years old, was born in Morris, Ill., and became an elevator boy in his father's storehouse in Morris while he was yet in school. He came to Chicago as soon as he was free from school and worked at anything his hands found to do. He preferred city life to that of the country and announced his determination never to return to Morris, except as a visitor. His father was a grain dealer, and the son showed a fondness for the business himself, so that after being in Chicago a short time he found himself working with the corn inspectors of the Alton and Burlington roads. He spent his days about the tracks of these companies and became familiar with every detail of corn inspection and the nature of the cereal.

Later he was a buyer for the house of George A. Seaverns & Co. In the corn market, and finally became a commission merchant on his own account, having a very limited capital, but a wide experience in the nature of corn. He had also the belief that through fictitious operations the bears kept the price of corn too low in the Chicago market and that it could be maintained higher if anyone dared to make the fight.

He proved the truth of his opinion by entering what has become known as the "corn deal of November, 1900," without a dollar to control the market, and yet having the entire product of corn then in sight under his thumb. Arrayed against him were men who count their millions on their fingers—men of long heads and shrewd ability as traders. He outwitted them all. His head was the longest, his nerve the greatest, his thorough mastery of the details of the business too much for his opponents.

It is a characteristic of the man in his operations—that of six months ago and the present one—that he depends upon the farmers for his guidance and not upon government or other crop reports. His correspondence with the actual producers of corn covers every state in the Union where there is a corn field or a granary. He is quoted as saying:

"I do not care a fig for the government reports or the statistics sent out by reporters. I have nothing to say about them, but I do not want them. I want to know what the farmer has to say about the supply and I want the information from him direct. Then I am ready to act."

Evidently the farmers informed him truly in the "November deal" for he caused every big corn operator on the Chicago board of trade a big loss and came out a heavy winner himself. He acted fairly in his winning, too, in the face of the fact that many of the operators whom he had at his mercy had endeavored in ways not to scrupulous in nature to ruin him by sudden calls for big margins. He did not cause a single failure on the board of trade in his "November deal," and in the present battle his conduct has been so above board that many brokers are calling those "gray wolves" who on Monday last called on him for margins of 2½ cents a bushel on oats, 4½ cents on corn and 7¼ cents on wheat. Of this last action he said at the time, with a half smile playing about his lips:

"We were called $225,000 on margins today. We have put it all up and we can do it over again tomorrow if necessary. We have been called 10 per cent quie generally in addition to having margins up in the market. We have got as much money as anybody in the business, I think. Mr. Hill and Mr. Collins, who are with me, have $500,000 apiece and we have in addition the money of the people who are trading with us. They number 300."

It is something new for the Chicago board of trade to have a man upset its calculations as Phillips has, and do it on the bald proposition that he is right and the speculators of the board not only wrong now, but wrong for years past. Not even "Joe" Leiter gave the board such a stirring up as this young and seemingly callow young man has. Leiter's deal was a tremendous speculation between him and the giant operators of the board. He had millions and they had millions, and when he quit anywhere from $6,00,000 to $8,000,000 loser there was a "gentlemen's settlement," and things went on in the old routine. Mr. Leiter had back of him in his operations the traditions of an old and respected name, and he was part of the social life of the very men he was speculating against. He had his "fling," it was expected, and everybody enjoyed it but the losers.

Not so with Mr. Phillips. Except for the notoriety he gained last fall, and his present eminence in the pit, he is not any kind of a recognized factor in Chicago. He has lived a modest, retiring, hard-working life, and but for his remarkable knowledge of corn and his faith in the corn producers, might never have been heard of outside of the small circle of his local friends.

He has a friend from Morris, by name "Dan" Hill. "Dan" is supposed to own as many acres of farm land in Illinois as the famous Scully once did. He has money and land and an abounding faith in young Phillips. It was he who helped Phillips to buy and hold until he got ready to sell a little less than 3,000,000 bushels of corn in the "November deal," and it is he who is with him today. Behind the two are many rich and influential farmers of Iowa and Illinois, and it is believed the combination has too much ready cash to be broken. Anyway, Phillips says that it cannot be routed, and he ought to know.

As to Phillips himself, he is not an enigma, although many traders walk about discussing him in most mysterious tones. He is physically fragile enough to be blown away by a breath of wind, consisting of little else than a bundle of wire and steel nerves, a quick acting heart and a mind constructed for handling details and not easily disturbed. He lives at 3908 Ridge avenue, Rogers park, almost on the edge of the northwestern limits of Chicago.

The district is so unfashionable that while Ridge avenue is legally a boulevard, it is fringed by chicken farms and truck gardens or waste land. The air is good, and the scenery fine and Lake Michigan near, but the society there is not that of the great speculators of the board of trade, nor of the "wine and horses" crowd that has millions in deals today and but a penny for lunch tomorrow. It is a pretty suburb, where sensible people take their children to grow up, where there are churches for plain people and homely ways of living. It is just on the dividing line between a farm and a city, and about as near rural life as Mr. Phillips could hope to get without leaving the town altogether.

His residence looks like that of a man who wanted comfort and very little show; a man who liked the game of life for the game's own sake, and for nothing else. Mr. Phillips leaves it every morning in a most matter-of-fact fashion, walks leisurely about half a mile to the suburban station of the Northwestern road, is carried into the Wells street station in eighteen minutes, and finds himself in the Rialto building, where his offices are, ten minutes later. The Rialto stands just south of the Board of Trade building, and is connected with the latter building by a bridge and court.

The first thing the new speculative star does when he enters his office is to attack his mail. He receives hundreds of letters daily. Many of them are begging requests. Others are from clergymen in all parts of the country, who state that they are praying for his success. It is not made clear why the clergy should be interested in corn deals, but Mr. Phillips accepts the letters and politely answers them. Many farmers write him, thanking him for what he has done, for it has enabled them to get better prices for their corn.

LONELY HOMES

A home is never complete without children. Yet many homes are childless. Many wives are desolate for the lack of a child to love. Their lives are aimless—void of the high motives of motherhood. While barrenness is causing incalculable sadness and sorrow, it exists in most cases on account of some little female trouble, which Wine of Cardui would speedily set right. This pure Wine regenerates the disordered female organs by building up the worn out nerves and regulating the menstrual flow. It restores the fallen womb to its proper place. By strengthening the generative organs, it makes pregnancy possible where barrenness exists. You can depend on

WINE OF CARDUI

Suffering women all over the land have been depending on it for seventy-five years. No more convincing proof can be given than the testimony of Mrs. Benson, who is only one of thousands of women to whom Wine of Cardui has brought a permanent cure. Many cases of miscarriage—that trouble which robs mothers of their hopes—have been avoided by timely use of the Wine. You are asked to try Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, its companion medicine. Nine out of ten cases of female trouble, barrenness included, yield to them. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

Vandervoort, Ark., April 2, 1900.

Last May I had a miscarriage, which was followed by flooding. I read your Almanac and my husband got me a bottle of Wine of Cardui and it stopped my flooding and restored my fallen womb to its place. Now I am cured after taking three bottles and have another to take which I got this morning. I am expecting to become a mother and Wine of Cardui will be my doctor.

THE APRIL MAGAZINES

The most remarkable article in the April Pearson's is a paper on "The American Members of the British Royal Academy." No foreigners, however great their distinction, are admitted to the academy unless they become naturalized British subjects, and the fact that the difference in nationality is ignored in the case of Americans is possibly due to the fact that Sir Benjamin West, one of the four founders of the academy, was born in the state of Pennsylvania. The article deals with the life and work of J. S. Sargent, R. A.; Edwin A. Abbey, R. A. (who with Mr. Sargent is painting the Holy Grail pictures for the Boston public library), and J. J. Shannon, A. R. A. Several of their most famous pictures are finely reproduced.

The April number of The Smart Set is crowded with articles and stories that command public interest. The leading novelette is entitled "The Taming of Sylvia," and is by Elizabeth Duer, who is perhaps better known to Knickerbocker society as Mrs. James G. King Duer. This story gives the author a very high place among the popular writers of today. It is light, bright and charming, and the somewhat difficult conversion of the hoyden Sylvia, the granddaughter of "the General," a millionaire "gentleman of the old school," into a proper young lady of society and a matrimonial subject, will be followed by the reader with intense amusement.

It is not in disparagement of the other contents of the Century for April that one claims priority of interest for the last of its "body" articles, "Personal Reminiscences of Queen Victoria." This very entertaining paper is unsigned, the writer merely saying of her majesty: "I saw her constantly in the summer of 1888, during my four weeks' peep into English court life, while temporarily forming part of the suite of an illustrious personage, a guest of the queen's, at Osborne house." The reminiscences include many authentic and characteristic anecdotes. Next in popular interest among the features of this number we should put the paper that immediately precedes it, on "Malaria and Certain Mosquitos." This has some of the pungency and arrestive quality of a mosquito-bite, and is certain to attract attention in every mosquito-ridden quarter of our land. The author, L. O. Howard, chief entomologist of the department of agriculture, has for many years been engaged in a war of extermination against these potent propagators of disease. Unexpected timeliness has been given by recent events in the financial world to the Century's series of illustrated papers on the steel and iron industries. In the second of the iron articles, which appears in the April number, Waldon Fawcett deals picturesquely with the transportation of the ore from mine to mill.

The World's Work, which makes the teaching of the gospel of work, progress and success its evident mission, closes its first volume with the best number it has yet put forth. The striking feature of this month's number is a remarkable article about Andrew Carnegie—of particular interest at a moment when he is startling the world with his benefactions. Nothing like this sketch in completeness and conciseness has ever been printed about Mr. Carnegie. J. Pierpont Morgan, Charles M. Schwab and Archbishop Ireland are made the subjects of that sort of intimate personal appreciation which the World's Work has been doing so well. There are numerous well written and finely illustrated general articles. Forcible, concise English and accuracy of statement characterize the magazine. Especially notable are the full-page portraits this month, including Andrew Carnegie, M. de Witte, Stephen Phillips, Prince Kropotkin, J. Piedpont Morgan, Charles M. Schwab and Archbishop Ireland.

The April "New" Lippincott Magazine opens with a complete novel, as usual. This month it is a stirring detective story by Mrs. Schuyler Crowninshield, wife of Admiral Crowninshield, which keeps the reader guessing up to the final pages. "Mysterious Miss Dacres" is the title, and Josephine Dacres, the heroine, well deserves the designation. Among other things which puzzle her landlady is Josephine's undeviating habit of walking on the grass beside the path—never on the path itself—but this is only one of many of her peculiarities, though it is a straw in the wind which points in the right direction. With a good strong plot to start with, Mrs. Crowninshield makes the most of striking situations and sprinkles plenty of humor through her diverting story. Cyrus Townsend Brady's College Tale (fourth in the series) takes up the seasonable subject of hazing at Annapolis. It is called "A Hazing Interregnum," and is as full of sport and as clever as anything which even this popular writer has published. "The Enterprise of Flora," by Francis Gribble, a leading English author, is a really brilliant little romance which opens in a dancing academy and ends—where many romances do not—but to mention the place would be to tell Mr. Gribble's story.

The most notable article in Modern Culture for April is "The Friendship of Carlyle and Emerson," by Johnson Brigham, librarian of the Iowa state library, and one of the brainy men of the trans-Mississippi region. No more scholarly paper has been printed in a recent magazine. "Native Life in the Philippines" is the concluding paper of Mrs. Sara Denton Wilson's interesting series. The article on "American Landscape Painters," by N. Hudson Moore, is in her best vein, and its interest is much heightened by beautiful reproductions of noteworthy paintings. "Holy Week in Sevilla," by Andre C. Fontaine, and "The Lily in English Poetry," by Anna H. Wikel, are suggestive of Easter, while the three bits of verse, "The Piny Woods," by Minnie L. Thomas; "The Maid We Love," by Bessie May Tobin Montague, and the dainty lines on April by Mary Mapes Dodge, with their effective illustration drawn by E. O. Peets, of Cleveland, are all appropriate to the season.

That dynamic monthly, Success, in its April issue, seems to be hidden under Easter flowers of art. The spirit of the glad festival runs through the number as a dominant note, it is true, but still there vibrates a chord of inspiring music—the inspiration of aroused endeavor which has been the keynote of this magazine's life purpose. The Easter features are musical, poetical, religious and discursive in character, with Bishops Potter and Vincent, Ernest Neal Lyon, Lillian Blauvelt, Marcella Sembrich, Johanna Gadski, Charlotte Maconda, Charles Dennison Kellogg, Louis Bradford Couch, Hezekiah Butterworth and J. Herbert Welch as the writers. John Milton Stoddard and Robert Mackay contribute two interesting stories of fiction.

The story in the Argonaut for April 8 is entitled "An Adaptation of Exodus: Why There Were Many Plagues in the Captain's Quarters," and is from the pen of Gwendolen Overton. Miss Overton has written many good stories for the Argonaut, and the friends made among its readers will be glad to know that her first novel, "The Heritage of Unrest," recently published, is already an assured literary success.

Scribner's Magazine for April, in addition to articles of travel, adventure and art, by Walter A. Wyckoff, John Fox, Edwin Lord Weeks and others, contains six short stories, three of them by new writers and three by writers whose work is familiar in this magazine. On its art side this number is also rich and varied. It has a colored cover by Foringer. It contains eight pages of illustrations by Frederick Dorr Steele, reproduced in color in a novel way to illustrate the story of a "Blue Ribbon Horse." The frontispiece, which is a very delicate pen and ink drawing by Peixotto, is reproduced with tint; Edwin Lord Weeks, the traveler and artist, contributes a very elaborate illustrated article on "Two Centers of Moorish Art," which reveals his wonderful skill as a painter of Oriental subjects. Among the other artists are Christy, Yohn, Will H. Low and Henry McCarter. Altogether, both in the beauty and richness of its illustration and in the variety of its contents, this is a spring number of extraordinary attractiveness.

There is a short story, "The Point at Issue," in the April number of Harper's Magazine, by William Farquhar Payson, author of "John Vytal." Since the publication of Mr. Payson's book the publishers have received a number of letters expressing satisfaction that Raleigh's lost colony on Roanoke island had at length served as material for the novelist, and expressing surprise that it had not done so before, in view of the romantic charm of the subject. Mr. Payson is a young man who has two previous novels to his credit, but "John Vytal" is his most ambitious and successful effort.

Increased in size to 128 pages, and with a table of contents excelling in interest and variety, the April issue of Everybody's Magazine sets a high standard and indicates the characteristics which may in future be expected of this publication. The leading features may be summed up as follows: Vivid nature articles, entertaining expositions of science, virile studies of Western life, high-class fiction, together with an authoritative treatment of some subject of contemporary political or social interest. Among the contributors to this issue are Neltje Blanchan, Edward Scott Grogan, Owen Wister, Mary E. Wilkins, Charles Major, J. P. Mowbray, George Iles, Bishop Potter, Rev. Walter Laidlaw and Maximilian Foster.

Richard Harding Davis' "The Princess Aline," in dramatized form, illustrated by Charles Dana Gibson, is a feature of the April Ladies' Home Journal. "The Beautiful Jewess Who Was Called the Princess of Her People," and "The Lovers of a Cheerful Giver," are two other articles of interest in the same issue. Miss Griscom, the American woman golf champion, shows "How Golf is Played" in a series of photographs. Edward Bok further emphasizes the value of simpler living, and Helen Watterson Moody offers guidance through "The First Tragedy in a Girl's Life." "A Stucco Country House for $7500," "A Shingled Country House for $2500," and "Some Artistic Little Homes" have a practical value to those planning to build homes.

Current Literature for April is crowded with literary gossip, advance excerpts from forthcoming books and very frank and refreshing comment on the current ones. No such mass of reading—not to speak of its brightness, timeliness and human interest—comes in any other form. Current literature is an invaluable record not only of letters but of life.

The April number of Table Talk has much in it that relates to Easter and its customs. Its illustrated dishes are timely, tempting and practical, with full instructions about their preparation. Table Talk is the exponent of good living, and it is a valuable assistant to the housewife in that it helps her to solve the perplexing problems of housekeeping. Its Housekeepers' Inquiry Department is always filled with recipes and information asked for by its readers. "The Much Misunderstood Biscuit of the South" is a valuable contribution by Leonora Beck Ellis, an able Southern writer.

April brings the Easter issue of the American Queen to us brimful of Easter fashions, fancy work, fiction and all sorts of useful and home-life suggestions. The fashions show not only simple styles, but suggest materials, trimmings, linings, etc., to be used in their make-up. The fancy work is inviting, and as all the patterns of the various designs shown are for sale, at nominal prices, it is a most practical department. The fiction is excellent, consisting of short, complete stories by celebrated and well-known writers. Five prize articles are also published in this issue on the interesting topic, "What Does a Woman Admire Most in a Man?"

Industrial topics are prominent in the editorial discussion which occupies the opening pages of the April Review of Reviews. The editor's comments on the formation of the "billion-dollar" steel company, and on the threatened strike of the anthracite coal miners are pointed and instructive. There are also several suggestive paragraphs on the recent railroad consolidations, the question of government ownership in Canada and modern transportation problems in general, including an exposition of the American canal policy. W. T. Stead contributes an illustrated character sketch of England's new queen, Alexandria, of whom comparatively little is known in this country. Mr. Stead draws an attractive picture of the queen's domestic graces and substantial womanly qualities.

Besides four full-page reproductions of great paintings, the April number of the Woman's Home Companion contains features of special interest. Leslie Carter writes of "The Actress and Her Rewards," Edward Page Gaston of "England's New Queen and Her Hobbies." Timely articles treat of Easter customs in various parts of the world, and there is an abundance of seasonable verse. The number is also rich in fiction—Onoto Wafanna's fascinating serial, "The Japanese Nightingale;" "The Memoirs of Santa Claus," by John Kendrick Bangs, and short stories by Robert C. V. Meyers, Poultney Bigelow and I. McRoss.

The Popular Science Monthly for April, which completes the fifty-eighth volume, opens with an article on Malpighi, Swammerdam and Leeuwenhoek, by Professor W. A. Locy of Northwestern university. To these three men we owe the foundations of biological science—the first description of the minute structure of plants and animals and of the development of the chick's egg, the discovery of animalculae and much beside. The article is elaborately illustrated with portraits and reproductions from the original works. Havelock Ellis continues his interesting studies of "British Men of Genius," discussing in the present number heredity and parentage.

Two of the special articles in the April number of McClure's Magazine are very fitting to this season when the new life of nature in the spring draws our thoughts from cities, merchandise and men to field and wood. The first of these is a wonderful story of the beaver, written by William Davenport Hulbert after a long study of the animal in its home amid the woods. The author's account is made complete by a series of pictures drawn by A. Radclyffe Dugmore, an artist sent into the beaver country for this purpose by the Magazine. The second article is by Martha McCulloch-Williams, and in it she gives us a georgic on "Ploughing." The reader is borne by the magic of her sympathetic art into a day's life on the farm, with scent of clover, song of birds, glint of sun and sweet smell of fresh furrows. The illustrations of the article are as delightful as they are distinctive.

The April North American Review might be called a Tolstoi number, the name of the great Russian novelist appearing on the title-page in connection with the three leading articles. The first is a powerful paper by Count Tolstoi, entitled "The Root of the Evil," in which he discloses what he regards as the fundamental cause of the inequality which characterizes the circumstances of different classes of men under the existing constitution of society; the second is a "Message to the American People" from the venerable Russian thinker, and the third, "Tolstoi and Resurrection," by Constance and Edward Garnett, is a thoughtful study of Tolstoi's theories, especially as these are set forth in their latest development in his last publication, "Resurrection." Mark Twain contributes a scathing reply "To My Missionary Critics," in which he deals with the objections made in various quarters to his comments upon missions and missionaries in China in his recent article, "To the Person Sitting in Darkness."

"How to Spend Other People's Money" is a striking article in the National Magazine for April, advocating the endowing of individuals—artists, authors and inventors—by wealthy philanthropists in preference to libraries and institutions. "The Brothers of Silence" is the title of an article telling in an entertaining way of the daily life and occupation of the Trappist monks in America, who are vowed to perpetual silence. "Hadassah," the fourth in the series of Old Testament romances, lends new beauty to the ever entrancing story of Queen Esther and Mordecai the Jew.

Carle J. Bjenner supplies a study of a beautiful head for the cover of Ainslee's for April. The main article, by Edwin Emerson, Jr., is entitled "Automobiles Today," and is illustrated lavishly. This is a valuable contribution as an account of the exact state of automobile invention and accomplishment at the present time. "Chinese Children's Blocks," by I. T. Headland, and "Queer Uses of Common Things," by Harvey Sutherland, are both good samples of the variety characteristic of Ainslee's. The first of these contains some curious sidelights on the intimate life of the Chinese, while the other article is in Harvey Sutherland's best vein—a combination of common sense and uncommon humor.

The solemn rites which marked the end of the wonderful reign of Queen Victoria have made a deep impression upon Americans as well as Englishmen, but innumerable descriptions of them have crowded out of our newspapers and magazines any satisfactory account of the no less historic ceremonies which marked the accession of Edward VII. The day when "Long Live the King" was shouted in London for the first time in sixty years was a day that will live in history. In the April number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly appears a most interesting account of the inauguration of the new king, written by its special correspondent, Curtis Brown, and illustrated with sketches drawn on the spot by a clever artist, especially to accompany the article, as well as by a number of unusual photographs. The paper is one to keep and to remember.

A picture of the statue of Ethan Allen by Larkin G. Mead forms the frontispiece of the April number of the New England Magazine. It accompanies a valuable illustrated article, by George W. Perry, upon Ticonderoga. The article is both descriptive and historical, taking us through the ruins of the old fort, as they stand today, overlooking Lake Champlain, and taking us back also through the long history of Ticonderoga, with its many Indian, French and English chapters. There are surely few more beautiful or more historical places in America, and Mr. Perry has done his interesting subject justice.

G. W. Anderson, a distinguished ex-member of the Boston school board, opens the April Atlantic by discussig freely and fearlessly "Politics and the Public Schools," showing the most important work—next t othat of the courts—intrusted to the government is suffering through insufficiency and corruption.—Dr. Talcott Williams contributes a thoughtful study of the 'Anthracite Coal Crisis," apropos of the approaching wage readjustment in this great industry, which occurs April 1, when all schedules expire; and momentous interests will be at stake with world-wide consequences. Ex-Governor Chamberlain treats of "Reconstruction in South Carolina."

Purity vs. Lard

CHOWDERS.

These preparations are not as well known as they deserve to be. They are frequently served as soup, but do not rightfully belong to that class of dishes at all, as they are in reality stews. They may, however, be served at the beginning of the meal when cold meats are served, and the chowder is composed of fish or vegetables or both. They are especially enjoyable for luncheon on cold days, but equally as palatable and suitable during the early spring and first approach of hot weather, if substituted for the heavier meat dishes, being lighter and not so rich as ordinary stews.

ORIGINAL FISH CHOWDER.

This sailor's stew is a very ancient dish that has undergone considerable change in the hands of the "landsman."

The following is probably the oldest recipe we have for fish chowder, and is given in rhyme:

"To make a good chowder and have it quite nice,
Dispense with sweet marjoram, parsley and spice,
Mace, pepper and salt are now wanted alone.
To make the stew eat well and stick to the bone,
Some pork is sliced thin and put into the pot;
Some say you must turn it, some say you must not;
And when it is brown, take it out of the fat,
And add it again when you add this and that.
A layer of potatoes, sliced quarter of an inch thick,
Should be placed in the bottom to make it eat slick;
A layer of onions now over this place,
Then season with pepper and salt and some mace.
Split open your crackers and give them a soak;
In eating you'll find this the cream of the joke.
On top of all this, now comply with my wish,
And put in large chunks all your pieces of fish;
Then put on the pieces of pork you have fried,
I mean those from which all the fat has been tried.
In seasoning I pray you don't spare the cayenne;
'Tis this makes it fit to be eaten by men.
After adding these things in regular rotation,
You'll have a dish fit for the best of the nation."

TUNNISON CLAM CHOWDER.

For this dish take half a peck of either hard or soft-shelled clams; remove from the shells separate the soft part from the hard, chop the hard part fine and put into a deep saucepan with just enough cold water to cover them, and cook gently until the clams begin to grow tender. Peel and cut six potatoes into dice, and throw into cold water. Soak a pound of sea biscuit or Boston crackers in milk. When the clams are tender, remove from the saucepan with a skimmer. Put a layer of the potatoes in the saucepan from which you have removed the clams. Then a layer of the clams, soft and hard part, then a layer of tomatoes, then of crackers or biscuit, seasoning each layer with salt, pepper, a little powdered thyme, marjoram and minced onion. When all are in add enough cold water to just cover the ingredients. Cover the saucepan and cook gently until the potatoes are just tender. Add a little more seasoning if necessary, and serve.

LOBSTER CHOWDER.

Heat one quart of milk in a double boiler, mix two tablespoonfuls of butter to a smooth paste with two tablespoonfuls of flour; pour the hot milk over the paste until it is dissolved, then return to double boiler. Have the meat of a 2-pound lobster cut into cubes. Add this with the green lobster fat to the milk, season with salt, pepper, cayenne and a little minced parsley. When the chowder reaches boiling point, add the beaten yolks of two eggs—cook a moment longer and then pour over toasted square crackers.

POTATO CHOWDER.

Pare and cut into dice five medium-sized potatoes. Throw into cold water. Dice quarter of a pound of bacon or fat ham, and fry a golden brown with a small onion chopped rather coarsely. As soon as done remove from the fat in the pan. Drain the potatoes and cover the bottom of a saucepan with a layer; season with salt and pepper, sprinkle lightly with the ham, onion and a little minced parsley. Alternate materials in this way until all are in then cover with a pint of boiling water, cover and cook gently until the potatoes are beginning to get tender. Rub two level tablespoonfuls of butter with two level tablespoonfuls of flour. Pour over this paste a pint of hot milk; stir until smooth, then add to the chowder; let boil up, season to taste and serve.

CORN CHOWDER.

Slice two small onions and fry for five minutes in two level tablespoonfuls of butter or bacon fat, but do not let brown; skim out the onion, rub two tablespoonfuls of flour in the fat until smooth, add one quart of hot milk and cook in a double boiler for a few minutes. Scald one pint of potato dice with boiling water, and cook until potatoes are tender. Add the hot milk and a quart of corn chopped fine. Season with salt and pepper. Boil for five minutes if corn is canned and ten minutes if it is new corn. Raw pork or tomatoes may be added to this chowder.

GERMAN CHOWDER.

Cut quarter of a pound of fat pork into cubes and fry a light brown with two tablespoonfuls of minced onion. Add two quarts of boiling water, a cupful of finely-shredded carrot, half a cupful of finely-cut celery, and cook until vegetables are done, then add a pint of potato dice, a teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of pepper. Cook until the potatoes are nearly done; add three pounds of haddock, skinned, free from bone and cut into cubes; a little powdered thyme, sweet marjoram, a small bay leaf and a quart of milk. Thicken slightly with flour and butter rubbed together. Boil for twenty minutes and serve with pounded crackers.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

(No attention paid to inquiries not giving name and address of writer, plainly written).

Miss Amelia Snook writes: Will you kindly publish a recipe for blackberry jam cake where the cake baked in layers and the filling is also of jam. I have seen the cake, but do not know how it is made. I would like very much to have the recipe. I see a number of recipes appear in the papers so I thought I would ask for the above.

BLACKBERRY JAM CAKE.

Take half a cup of butter, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of jam, two cupfuls of sifted flour, two eggs, two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder; mix the sugar and jam together; add the butter melted, but not oily. Add the eggs beaten light and the flour and baking powder sifted together. Beat to a smooth batter the consistency of sponge cake; bake in two layer tins in a moderate oven. When done and cold spread jam between the layers.

TOMATO SOUP.

Miss Sadie Parsons writes: Please give us a recipe for tomato soup and tell us how to make it without curdling.

Cream of tomato soup, also called mock bisque, is made as follows: Put one pint of tomatoes, canned or fresh, in an agate stewpan with a small blade of mace, small piece of bay leaf and sprig of parsley and let simmer for fifteen minutes. Put one quart of milk in a double boiler over the fire. Rub two tablespoonfuls of flour with two of butter until smooth; pour enough hot milk over this to dissolve the paste and pour into the remainder in boiler; stir and cook until it thickens. Rub the tomatoes through a sieve and when quite ready to serve the soup, add a teaspoonful of sugar and quarter of a teaspoonful of baking soda to the tomatoes and the hot milk together into the tureen and serve at once. This soup must not stand after being mixed, especially if the tomatoes are quite acid. The amount of sugar and soda added must depend on the acidity of the tomatoes. Do not use very acid tomatoes for this soup, and observe the rule about mixing and you will have no trouble.

KISSED THE PUPILS.

Now the Teacher Has Developed Smallpox.

Grafton, W. Va., April 13.—This town is in the midst of a smallpox scare. There are eleven cases. The local board of health has dissolved, and Dr. T. F. Lanham, of the state board, is fighting the disease single handed. The dissolution of the city board of health is the result of differences between the city and county authorities as to which should pay the bills, and Dr. Lanham is working under state authority. No quarantine precautions have been taken.

Wednesday it was announced that Miss Nettie Bender, a teacher in the public school, has the disease. She has seventy pupils, and when she announced to them Tuesday that she was ill and would not be back the next day, every pupil in her school kissed her goodby. Miss Bender had no idea then that she had smallpox, and she, as well as the remainder of the community, is horrified at what her affectionate farewell to the students may result in.

MAY LOSE EYESIGHT.

Woman's Eyes and Face Scalded By Steam.

Delaware, Ohio, April 13.—Mrs. O. D. Burnside, while preparing dinner, tightly fastened down the lid of a vessel so that the steam could not escape. When she went to pry the lid off the imprisoned steam exploded, throwing the scalding liquid in her face. The flesh on her face was literally cooked, and it is probable that she will lose the sight of one and perhaps of both eyes.

COMIC OPERA

"Grand Duchess" at Lyceum Monday Night.

"Because She Loved Him So" On Tuesday Evening.

North Bros.' Comedians at the Sixth Avenue Theater.

The comic opera, "Grand Duchess of Geralstein," which is to be given next Monday night by local talent at the Lyceum for the benefit of St. James' Orphan home, is a satire on the small principalities existing before the formation of the German empire. The opera is full of humorous situations, complex tangles, and has an interesting plot, which, it might be remarked parenthetically, is so sadly missing in our modern comic operas. The object for which the opera is to be given will doubtless fill the house to the doors.

The performance will be one of which many cities larger than Duluth would be proud, and the fact that the participants are all well known, and that they have worked so untiringly and diligently, will be appreciated on the night of the performance. In the third act of the opera two charming numbers will be introduced—"Good-bye" (Tosti), by Miss Hector, and "The Swallows" (Cowen), by Miss Smith. The duet in the first act between Miss Smith and Mr. Tyler is a beautiful number and the young artists sing it admirably. Gen. Boum's "Piff, Paff, Puff" song will please everybody. Miss Hector's "Say to Him," the gruesome "Horrible Tale," by the "Terrible Trio," Boom, Puck and Prince Paul, are all musical gems and thoroughly suggestive of Offenbachian opera-bouffe. The chorus work will not be one of the least important features, for right here much hard work has been put in, and it will tell on the night of the performance.

The full orchestra and dress rehearsal will take place at the Lyceum next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Otto Muhlbaur, the musical and stage director of the opera, "Grand Duchess," is not unknown to Duluth's music-loving public. He is now a resident of West Superior, and is also director of the orchestra in that city. Mr. Muhlbaur was for several seasons musical director in the Thalia theater in New York city in the palmiest days of Manager Amberg. He studied in Weimar, Germany, coming to America in the capacity of chorus director for the famous prima donna and actress, Madame Gerstlo. He has put on several operas in Duluth, and his capacity for this especial line of work is too well known to need further comment.

"BECAUSE SHE LOVED HIM SO."

"Because She Loved Him So," a three-act play, will be presented at the Lyceum next Tuesday evening. The principal personages in the new piece are a young woman who is so very fond of her husband as to drive him nearly to distraction with her jealous suspicions; the husband, whom Mr. Gillette represents as the most blameless and amiable of men, and the young woman's two old parents, who have been billing and cooing for thirty odd years and have never exchanged a harsh word.

It occurs to these two foolish old folks that if they pretend to quarrel for jealousy's sake, they can set a pretty and useful object lesson to the youngsters which may cure them. This they proceed to do, with disastrous results, for presently the old lady, who, it seems, has exactly the same sort of disposition as her daughter, is jealous in earnest and is packing her belongings, while she talks about divorce.

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

After passing through the vicissitudes and misfortune caused by the pollution of worthless and often indecent stage exhibitions within and the consequent drenching by public censure from without, the Sixth Avenue theater seems to have once more righted itself and is apparently launched safely upon a wave of prosperity, propelled by an attraction of sterling worth and piloted by honest motives. The present management decided that fourth rate, a third rate or a mediocre attraction of any kind would not do to open the season. It must be first class. In seeking such a combination the papers from Eastern cities and also from Western cities were watched. Finally negotiations were entered into with the managers of North Bros. comedians and by hard work and many concessions this company was induced to cancel other engagements and come to the Sixth Avenue for a run of several weeks.

The choice made by Manager Wilkes H. McKenny seems to have been a wise one. The North Bros. company came highly recommended and at once proceeded to sustain the reports that had preceded them. The managers of the company, Harry and C. C. Chapin are young men who have been successfully in the show business through their own strenuous efforts. Hard work, a good show and unlimited advertising is the motto of the North Bros. From the time the curtain rose on the first act of "Princess Virgie" last Monday night it was apparent that something better than its predecessors was on the boards at the Sixth Avenue. The company and the play won instant favor, and from that time to this the place has been crowded at each performance.

Virginia Goodwin, leading lady, and Harry Chapin, the leading man, are exceptionally clever people. They have played everything in repertoire from farce to Shakespeare. Miss Goodwin has made a splendid reputation as Camille, as has Mr. Chapin in Ingomar. C. C. Chapin, the principal comedian, is very natural, very droll and always funny. F. C. Carter, character actor, is a painstaking stage manager and every production thus far has been carefully looked after. The company gives a continuous show with specialties between the acts introducing splendid features by Martyn and Davenport, dancers; the Holmans, comedy sketch artists; Mitchell, male prima donna, and A. N. Borden, travesty artists and singers; the Imperial quartet; Baby Ruth, Genevieve Stynel and C. C. Chapin. Baby Hazel has proven herself a wonderful child actress and a splendid example of what a 5-year-old brain can accomplish.

During the coming week the company will present "Our American Cousin," "The Tenderfoot" and "Caraille." Miss Goodwin will wear some beautiful gowns in the last mentioned play. The Saginaw News, of Saginaw, Mich., says:

"Miss Goodwin was superb. One of the very best attractions of the season." The Muskegon, Mich., Recorder says: "Miss Goodwin's death scene in the last act of 'Camille' was the most realistic bit of stage work seen here for many seasons." A Bay City paper says: "Such acting as Miss Goodwin did in the last act of 'Camille' has seldom been seen in this city."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Something About the Plays For Next Season.

New York, April 13.—All that is positively known as to next season's plans at the Metropolitan Opera House is that the opera season will commence at the Metropolitan during Christmas week and continue until April 1. Previous to this the company will make a long tour, extending as far west as San Francisco, where a stay will be made for two weeks. It is promised that many small towns hitherto visited by such a large organization as the Maurice Grau Opera company, will be included in the circuit.

Richard Mansfield's out-of-town tour will extend to Portland, Me.; Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, St. Paul and Kansas City, during which Mr. Mansfield will play "Henry V" exclusively.

The new burlesque at Weber & Field's, entitled "Capt. Jinks of the Horse Marines," a skit on Miss Barrymore's play, owes its success entirely to the inimitable manner in which Fay Templeton burlesques her charming contemporary in the legitimate. So clever is Miss Templeton's caricature that she now may be classed easily as the first in burlesque in America at the present time.

The loss which the Empire company will sustain by the fact that Miss Jessie Millward and John Mason will be missing from it next season, is considered by some critics a subject for regret. Their places will be taken by Miss Margaret Anglin and Mr. Faversham.

Daniel Frohman is making arrangements for an early production here of a new romantic comedy of the time of Louis XV and Mme. du Barry. The play has been written by James McArthur and Max Pemberton and Miss Julia Neilson, the English actress, who is now playing the star part in Paul Kester's "Sweet Nell of Old Drury," has secured the English rights.

M. Emil Moreau's dramatization of Sienkiewicz's noted novel, "Quo Vadis," which was recently put on at the Porte Saint Martin theater, Paris, promises to be one of the most popular adaptations made. The play is divided into five acts and ten scenes and an idea of the magnificence with which it is presented can be gleaned from the fact that over $30,000 has been spent on the staging and costumes. The receipts on the first night amounted to $2,500. The most successful scene was that of Eunice kissing the statue of Petonius. M. Dumeny played the part of Petronius with great effect.

Great expectations are raised in connection with the new play "Ulysses," which Stephen Phillips is to write for Beerbohm Tree. The scenery is to play a very important part in conjunction with the clever grouping and expression of the playwright. The story is to start with the assembling of the Olympian gods as they determine to free the hero from the witchery of Calypso. The play then passes to Ithaca, where Penelope with Telemachus is the center of an admiring crowd of suitors. The next scene will reveal the arrival of Ulysses in the realm of shades and will be a most elaborate spectacle. Then the the scene shifts to Phaeacia and Ulysses is given an opportunity to recount his adventures, which are to be illustrated panoramically. The closing scenes are to be at the home of Penelope.

Holy week was not a money maker for the managers, and it was almost as much of a failure in matters of interest. The one new production was "Are You a Mason?" at Wallack's, and it fell flat—awfully flat. What will be done with it, no one seems to care. For the first time in some years considerable attention was paid to the religious sentiment of the community. Daly's, of course, was closed, but, then, Chauncey Olcott laid off the whole week at the Fouteenth Steet; and Oscar Hammerstein has abolished his Sunday matinee concerts. The latter's conversion to the cause is remarkable, and is the work of memebrs of two churches near the Victoria. First one pastor told Hammerstein his class leader had mistaken the open door of the theater for the vestibule of the church, and the ensuing scandal was frightful. Oscar promised to put up the loudest posters he could buy. He did, and one daring boy, the pet of the Sunday school, was missing the next Sunday, and was finally found at the stage entrance trying to flirt with one of the performers Hammerstein could not stand the storm that followed, and so he has shut up shop on Sunday afternoons.

James K. Hackett's break down is so compete that he will appear no more this season. Miss Bertha Galland, his leading lady, will continue on the road with "The Pride of Jennico." Hackett and his wife, Mary Mannering, are guests of the Duponts, near Baltimore, and he will return to their Newport home just as soon as the doctors deem this advisable.

Miss Gertrude Coghlan, too, has been forced to give up "Vanity Fair," and she has returned to Fort Hamilton ill and almost disheartened. A series of injunction suits brought by Mrs. Minnie Madden Fiske brought the tour to an end.

Plans for next season are rapidly materializing. E. H. Sothern will open in New York at the Garden theater on Sept. 9 in a new play by Justin Huntley McCarthey, Jr. He will also produce a play by Laurence Irving and will revive "Hamlet." His engagement will continue until the holidays. His wife, Virginia Harned, has given her hubby a chance to rest this week by producing "Camille" over in Brooklyn.

Julia Marlowe will conclude her present engagement in "When Knighthood Was in Flower" at the Criterion on June 3, and she will spend her vacation in Germany. She will return in September, reopen in the same play, and, after a brief tour, return to the Criterion in a new one.

A. H. Chamberlyn will next produce "The Roll of the Drum," and the star will be Thomas Q. Seabrooks. The new opera is by A. Tonnae, the adapter is Harry B. Smith, and the music is by Aime Lachaume, composer of "The Prima Donna." Chamberlyn is having hard luck with the latter. Mabelle Gilman's illness has postponed the initial production one week, and, although she managed to get out to a couple of rehearsals this week, she has had a relapse and it may be necessary to put it off again.

George A. Blumenthal, who formerly managed the Harlem Opera house, will give the uptown folk a chance to hear opera without riding on "L" cars. He says he is also going to give opera in four parks in New England owned by trolley companies, and will put a light opera company into Samuel Shubert's Empire theater at Albany.

There promises to be plenty of opera during the summer. William Parry, stage manager of the Metropolitan, has secured the Lexington Avenue Opera house and will give a season of comic opera there. Fred Eustis, at present in charge of the orchestra with Frank Daniels, will be associated with him. The principal comedian will be Richard Carroll and Eddie Foy, Otis Harlan, Hugh Chilvers, Richard Lee, Harry Kelly and Lee Harrison will be in the cast. There will be feminine roles, of course, but the names Perry is guarding with profound secrecy. A new opera by an American composer will be followed by revivals of "The Pirates of Penzance," "Wang," "Patience," "The Chimes of Normandy" and "Evangeline."

When Edna May sailed for England on Wednesday she took with her as understudy one of the cleverest and prettiest girls Kentucky has given to the comic opera stage. Miss Margaret Sayre came rapidly to the front with Weber and Field, and her work there attracted the attention of Charles Frohman. hTe latter preceded his star just one week, and will personally conduct the opening of his season in London. Edna May will give "The Girl From Up There" at the Duke of York's theater, and at the Vaudeville Seymour Hicks and Ellalaine Terliss will be seen in "Sweet and Twenty." These will be followed by "On the Quiet" and a new comedy by George Broadhurst. Before he sailed Mr. Frohman said: "Irving and Terry and Charles Hawtrey are the English attractions I shall bring over. Their plays are unsettled as yet. As to the American season I have already contracted for plays from Paul Potter, Edward Rose, Madeline Lucette Ryley, William Gillette, Clyde Fitch and Augustus Thomas. The dramatization of novels has been very profitable to me, and I hold the rights of 'Eben Holden' and 'The Gentleman From Indiana.'"

With Frohman sailed Charles B. Dillingham, Paul Worter and the Australian manager, J. C. Williamson. Potter's adaptation of Ouida's "Under Two Flags" will probably be produced abroad this autumn. Williamson carried away with him the rights to "Lovers' Lane" and "Way Down East" for Australian production.

William A. Brady is wondering how he would do as a "come-on" for any overworked banco steerer who needs a real good thing. When he heard that the Manhattan building, in which the theater he and Ziegfeld control is located, was to be torn down shortly to make room for a big office building, he expected a visit from the owners about his lease. The owners called all right and asked him what he would take to let go. The rent of the Manhattan theater is reasonable, but as it was doomed Brady just put a figure on that lease that he was sure would scare the landlords. They quietly said "Done," and the money was paid over. Now, Brady and Ziegfeld have got to move on May 1, but all the other tenants have had their leases renewed. It is rumored that Maurice Campbell, the husband of Henrietta Crosman, is the new lessee of the theater, but it is as yet unconfirmed. It is understoon that Brady and Ziegfeld will part company as soon as they leave the theater.

One pair of red socks, one photograph of William Gould, fifteen more pairs of socks, three suits of pajamas, two suits of clothes, two over coats, one pawn ticket, an assorted collection of socks, a bunch of other pawn tickets, a gingham dress and a bonnet are all the worldly goods of Lee Harrison, who would rid himself of $676 in debts, which is all he has left to remind him of the days when he was an "angel." He was led by Eugene O'Rourke into sending a show out West and it ran into a blizzard in more senses than one. He has asked the United States district court to wipe it all off the slate.

W. G. Smyth, manager of Willie Collier, will never again agree to a professional matinee; that is, not if he can help it. He got up one last week at the Madison Square theater, and thus he tells his woes: "I didn't know what theatrical management was until I ran up against this matinee. It looked easy, but when all the applications were in I found I was 1493 orchestra seats short, and about as many boxes. I wouldn't do it again for anything."

Word comes from Berlin that Marie Halton is up to her old tricks of leaving her managers in the lurch. When she was playing for Rudolph Aronson at the Casino her disappearances were frequent and always unexplained. Then she later appeared at Koster & Bial's, and again she disappointed her managers. Recently she has been singing the prima donna role in a German version of "San Toy," and one evening announced that she would sing no more at that theater. "The Tyrolean" was quickly substituted, as there was no understudy ready. Miss Halton's place has been filled, and she will return to the United States.

The removal of Maurice Barrymore to the Amityville Sanitarium was safely accomplished, thanks to the efforts of Gus Thomas, who was the unfortunate actor's best friend. The playwright is practically the only one Barrymore now recognizes, and his influence is still strong with him. The doctors give no hope; although since Barrymore has been in the Long Island retreat his lucid intervals have been longer and more frequently.

Under the direction of Arthur Collins of the Drury Lane, Jessie Milward will produce "The Climbers" in London and the provinces. Miss Milward will rest for a few weeks after the revival of "Diplomacy" at the Empire, and will then leave for England.

Madame Sembrich managed to spend a couple of days in town very quietly before she sailed for Europe. She declared that her illness in San Francisco was only a bad case of bronchitis, and that she is in no danger of losing her voice permanently. She will return to this country next season.

Maurice Hewitt's "Forest Lovers" is the latest dramatization to be planned for next season. It is asserted that Miss Bertha Galland will have this play for her starring tour.

Wagenhals and Kemper have secured an option on Archibald Clavering Gunter's "Tangled Flags," and are thinking of producing it in the autumn. Just who will be cast in it is not known. Henry Miller will not be under their management after this season, and will join Hackett, Goodwin and Mansfield in looking after his own interests.

Edwin S. Tarr, who died in Scranton last week, was one of the original cast of "Evangeline," with Henry E. Dixey, Nat C. Goodwin and J. Cheever Goodwin. Prior to that Tarr had played with the Booths, father and son, Charlotte Cushman, the elder Sothern and the old Boston Muscum Stock company. He played the old miller in "Adonis," and recently had been stage manager of "The Belle of New York" company.

Eddie Foy will tour in George V. Hobart and A. Baldwin Sloane's musical comedy. There will be twenty in the company. The tour will be under the direction of David C. Henderson. Before starting on it Foy will appear in vaudeville for a month.

In "The Price of Peace" strenuous efforts are making toward the top notch of stage realism. The managers have now provided a new ending for the melodrama. Heretofore the final curtain has fallen on the picture of Baroness Blanco and little Mary Vince clinging to the masts of the sunken yacht. Two tableaux now follow this. The first shows a lifeboat coming alongside, into which are helped the two in peril, and the other shows the return trip of the boat to the shore.

The success of Jim Corbett in his monologue has certainly been remarkable. Koster and Bial's has been crowded to hear him, and he has made the hit of the past couple of weeks. Corbett's stories are naturally all about his own experiences, but they are also chiefly on himself, so that he escapes the charges of egotism. The one that never fails to bring down the house is about a small town where Corbett inquired of the local manager, who did not know him, whether they had ever had any pugilists there.

"Any what" said the manager.

"Any pugilists—any Fitzsimmonses, Ruhlins, Jeffriess, Corbetts or—"

"Naw," ejaculated the local magnate, "but we've got the best windmill in this country."

It is on May 1 that the Star will close its doors forever and one of the landmarks of New York will speedily be replaced by a monster office building. As Wallack's in the old days, the stage was trod by Booth, Barrett, McCollough, Modjeska, Bernhardt, Boucicault, Crane and Jefferson, besides the great Wallack Stock company. In recent years Wallack's had a revival of glory when Crane played "The Senator," supported by George Drew Barrymore. It was there Boucicault had scored in "Con, the Shaugraun," and Irving, Terry and Bernhardt had made their New York debut. Lester Wallack moved ahead of trade uptown, and later the theater fell into the hands of the Astors, and Lower Broadway will no more boast of a playhouse. There has been a great rush of collectors for souvenirs. Young Arthur Wallack has offered to buy the portrait of his father which has adorned the arch over the stalls since the opening night. Aubrey Boucicault, too, has begged the present management to be allowed to purchase for his mother the portrait of his father as "Con."

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Herne won't give up the stage.

Gillette has earned $40,000 this season.

E. S. Willard is to have a London theater.

E. M. Holland may appear in "Eben Holden."

Sandow is again appearing in London music halls.

"At Valley Forge" is the title of a new melodrama.

Miss Horton Barker, a 'Frisco blind girl, is to go on the stage.

Beerbohm Tree may do the "Merchant of Venice" next season.

The Passion play was acted in a Havana theater on Good Friday.

Mrs. James Brown Potter recently produced "Nicandra" in London. Not a hit.

Angela McCaull, daughter of the impressario, is a member of Cincinnati's stock dramatic company.

Lulu Glaser is to sing the title role in "The Prima Donna," a place that illness prevented Mabel Gilman from assuming.

Cecelia Loftus will be E. H. Sothern's leading lady next season. Sothern will produce "Hamlet," a play by Justin Huntley McCarthy and one by Lawrence Irving.

Edgar L. Davenport is having for vaudeville several condensed versions of his first successes written, and will soon be seen in "Fedora," "Theodora" and "Cleopatra."

The Clayton White-Marie Stuart company in "Dickey," unquestionably the vaudeville comedy hit of the year, is to appear in London, using "Dickey" as a curtain-raiser.

David Belasco has discovered anew star whom he expects soon will adorn the theatrical firmament. This latest recruit to the Belasco forces is Madame Kalisch, of the Thalia theater, New York.

Mascagni, the Italian composer, says that he has a libretto which he fancies setting to music and which treats of the Italian war in which Garabaldi figured. The part of Garabaldi is baritone, Victor Emanuel is a tenor and Pope Pius IX is a bass.

An interesting instance of Cupid's capers comes from Turin, Italy. The engagement is announced there of the once famous actress, Adelaide Ristori, now the widow of the marquis del Grillo, to the mayor of Turin, Senor Casana, who is also a member of the Italian senate. The bride-elect is in her 82nd year.

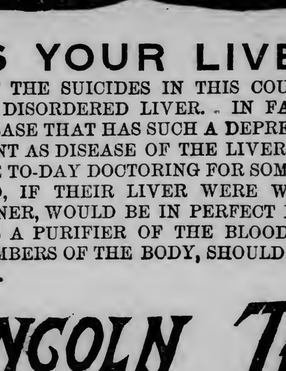

The latest shrewd project in the theatrical world involves the starring of Lillian Russell and De Wolf Hopper, but neither of them has the faintest intention of leaving Weber & Fields' at present. Indeed, they are both bound to remain with the burlesque stock company throughout next season. Their contracts, however, will expire simultaneously in the spring of 1902, and it is in the autumn of that year that they meditate a co-starring tour through the principal cities.

CONCERT TOMORROW.

Young Oliver Colbentson Is the Promoter.

Tomorrow afternoon a concert will be given at the Armory by Oliver Colbentson, a promising young violinist of this city. The young man is but 14 years of age but has the courage and determination of one of many more years than that. He has been studying with Mr. Bradbury for some time and a fine future is predicted for him. The concert which will be given tomorrow has been arranged by him and his friends are anxious that it shall be a fine success. The program is as follows:

"I have been to the theater for years," said a play-goer in the Atlantic Monthly, "and have seen many actors, but only three times have I seen acting. Once it was Duse in Camille; again it was that Yiddish woman—what is her name?—in one of their strange plays, and lastly Mrs. Fiske in Tess."

THE SPORTS

The Northwestern Baseball League Is Weak.

Hansell Will Organize a Duluth Team.

After making a promising start the Northwestern league movement seems to have developed a streak of weakness. If the league is killed it will not be from over enthusiasm or anything like that. Duluth and Superior stand ready with good financial backing and promsing teams to launch the proposed league on a season of fast, clean ball playing about the latter part of May. There is still time for the south shore, iron range and other towns to get together. Local promoters would like to hear from Ashland, Bradnerd, Washburn, Bayfield, Two Harbors, Eveleth, Virginia, Tower, Chippewa Falls, Rice Lake or Eau Claire. Letters or other inquiry as to the proposed league will receive prompt attention if addressed to the sporting department of The Herald.

Enthusiasm and harmony prevailed at a small meeting of the fans held in the St. Louis hotel Wednesday evening for the purpose of discussing affairs in connection with the Duluth team. Nothing definite was accomplished in the way of organizing a stock company, as many of the fans seem to be sublimely indifferent when it comes to the question of pawning their jewelry for the sake of the sport. Manager Hansell will go ahead with his team organization furnishing the money required but any person desiring to purchase an interest in the club may do so.

The Des Moines club of the Western league looks like the 1901 edition of the Superior team. Five of last year's Superiors have signed with this team. Thiery, the red-topped pitcher and all round player, has signed with Des Moines as a catcher; Lippert, the scrappy first baseman, has signed as an outfielder; Glendon will do part of the pitching providing the Chicago Americans do not want him; and both Pease and Cline are with the Des Moines aggregation. Here's two to one that it's the scrappiest outfit in the league.

Jack Kevoir, who pitched such fine ball for the south shore towns last season, is doing excellent work with the Chicago American league team, in practice. He is the second star pitcher that Comiskey has secured from the head of the lakes in two seasons.

There is every indication that the two great horses, The Abbot, 2:03½, and Boralma, 2:08, will meet on the track at Lexington, Ky., in October. The match is for $10,000 offered by the association and half the gate receipts for the day, guaranteed to be at least $10,000.

Kentucky seems to have produced a coming fighter in Marvin Hart. The most noticeable thing about Hart is that he has shown improvement in all of his fights. His greatest victory was, of course, in defeating Tommy West decisively in sixteen rounds, and it takes a good man to do that trick. It is an especially good performance for a youngster. Hart has been classed in the middleweight division, and he may be able to fight at that notch, but he weighs 165 pounds when he met West, and on that basis is a full-fledged heavy weight.

Visiting French cadets on the ship Duguay Trouin, off Annapolis, challenged American cadets to a meeting with foils. The Americans accepted. Fifteen bouts were held, the Americans winning eleven and the French four. This gives the foreigners another chance to say that Americans are unsportsmanlike.

So much fault has been found with the changes in the baseball rules made by the National league, that it will not be at all surprising if the magnates are compelled to cut out the obnoxious points before the championship season begins. The American league, the Eastern league and nearly all of the leading college teams have refused to accept the changes and will play under the rules that prevailed last year. The two clauses that have caused no end of unfavorable criticism are those relating to foul balls and batsmen hit by pitched balls. Rule 41 has been amended as follows:

"A strike is a foul hit ball not caught on the fly, unless two strikes have already been called."

In other words, a batsman can come to the plate, hit the first two balls pitched into foul ground, for which two strikes are called on him, and can then have the third pitched ball called a third strike by the umpire if it cuts the plate. Another batsman can hit a ball over the left or right field fence. When the ball leaves the bat it looks as if it would go over the fence inside of the foul line and therefore be a home run. But the wind blows it outside of the foul line by a foot or so and the umpire is compelled to call a strike. The rule was originally intended to prevent such players as Jennings, Thomas, Hamilton and others from indulging in the practice of "fouling off the good ones," which has served to delay many games. But as it turns out the rule will handicap the majority of batsmen. The rule last year called bunted fouls and the foul tip strikes, which was a handicap in itself; but the change now in vogue has been found to be so much of an obstacle to successful batting as to be generally tabooed. The other rule relative to the "hit by pitcher" has also been severely denounced. In the same manner as the foul ball rule it serves to weaken the batting. Pitchers are bound to take advantage of the fact that a batsman hit cannot take his base and deliberate intimidation may be a common occurrence. Incidentally the National league rule makers have forgotten to take out the old rule whereby a batsman hit by a pitched ball was not charged in the score with a "time at bat."

As the rules read now the batsman must have a "time at bat" deducted whenever he is hit by a pitched ball, though he doesn't receive his base. This laughable condition of affairs is well illustrated by the assertion that a batsman, hit by a pitched ball and then receives a base on balls, can have two "times at bat" taken off his record, or he can be hit by a pitched ball and then make a base hit without having a "time at bat." Bungling of this kind by the rule makers is inexcusable. Baseball players all over the country are ridiculing the changes and there is a widespread demand for their immediate withdrawal. As an excuse for instituting such radical reforms, the magnates say that they were trying to make the game faster in response to the outcry against the long-drawnout contests of last season. There is little logic in such a statement for the reason that the American league made all of its games quicker by an average of thirty minutes, though they were governed by National league rules. The solution of this problem was simply the fact that President Johnson's umpires were allowed to enforce the rules against rowdyism. The American league players were not permitted to waste any time in wrangles. Kicking was reduced to a surprising minimum. In the National league on the other hand, hoodlumism prevailed as usual and the games dragged because of it. It is significant that while the National league magnates have been trying to hurry the games by the enactment of senseless rules, they have studiously avoided any reference to their policy regarding disorderly conduct on the diamond. With the case before the public, it would seem to be up to the National league to rectify those curious errors of judgment.

Arthur Duffy, of Georgetown university, holder of the English 100-yard championship, it is announced, will visit England this year to try for that title again. He will travel at the expense of the university, where a movement has been started to supply him with funds for the trip. The challenge cup, which Duffy won last July arrived at Washington a few days ago, and its appearance in the Coleman Museum caused such a furor among the students that it was decided Duffy should receive another try for it. This cup was presented to the English Amateur Athletic association by H. H. Prince Hassan in 1871 and is valued at 100 guineas. It is a perpetual challenge trophy and can be held only for one year, but the athlete winning it three times in succession receives a duplicate. Only three men have fixe won duplicates: W. P. Phillips, L. A. C., 1880-81 and '82; J. M. Cowig, L. A. C., 1883, '84 and '85, and C. A. Bradley, L. A. C., 1892, '93, '94 and '95. The names of all the winners are emblazoned on the original, among whom are three Americans, Fred Westing, Manhattan A. C., 1888; L. H. Carey, of the same club, 1891, and Duffy, 1909.

When lovely woman precipitates herself into the midst of a baseball conflict decisive results may be looked for. Pittsburg possessed a third baseman named James Williams, whose masterful playing had endeared him to the hearts of patrons and managers. In an evil hour Williams listened to the dulcet tones of the voice of Manager McGraw, of the Baltimore American League club, and deserted Pittsburg. He felt jubilant over his performance, but he reckoned without Mrs. James Williams. That active young woman did not approve of his action and told him so in a lecture without the aid of a curtain. The ballplayer, who cared nothing for the threats or demands of imperious magnates, settled when the baseball law was laid down to him by his superior half. She told him in language his field captain did not dare to use that he had made a blue burro of himself, and the best thing he could do was to hustle back into the Pittsburg club with the speed of a base stealer. When caught off the bag by his wife Williams was inclined to crawfish.

He claimed he did not sign with Baltimore; that he only agreed to do so, and that he took no money at all from McGraw.

Dreyfus, president of the Pittsburg club, was very much upset by the desertion. But while he was shouting about his bad treatment in Baltimore, Mrs. Williams slipped into Pittsburg by a late train with her husband, penitent and very meek, in tow. She fought against her husband going to Baltimore, and when he did get away she dragged him back.

Mrs. Williams will now see to it that her husband returns to the Pittsburg fold. She sees a greater certainty of Easter hats and turkey by continued association with the National league.

Delaney, the trainer of Champion Jeffries, has arrived in California. Delaney was traveling with Jeffries on the road and says the champion declared just before he left for the coast that he would close in Kansas City in too weeks and would either go to San Francisco or Hot Springs.

"Jeffries wants to come to the coast and is anxious to fight Ruhlin in San Francisco, if a fight can be arranged," said Delaney. "He likes San Francisco and likes the people. No negotiations are now pending for the big fight. A couple of weeks ago Groom, of the National club, was corresponding with Brady about the match, and the percentage he offered was entirely satisfactory to both Brady and Jeffries. Madden, Ruhlin's manager, was not satisfied with the offer, and that ended the matter. I would not be at all surprised if the men fight here.

"If Jeff should come to this city I am inclined to think that Madden and Ruhlin, rather than be idle, would soon be on their way here, ready and willing to clinch a match."

Grain dealers address him because he has brought about a most rigid inspection of grain and indirectly secured the indictment of one operator for alleged "doctoring" of corn.

While his mail is disappearing he is receiving advice from all parts of the country as to the state of the market, and also information as to the plans of his opponents. He is said to be one of the first big speculators in the West who has made it a point to know in one way or another what the opposite side of the market is preparing to do to him. He is ready for his operations of the day by 9 o'clock, an a few minutes later may be found in the pit or over at the bulletin boards, one of his favorite resorts, or hidden away in his private office, directing the proceedings of his confidential agents.

He is inaccessible to visitors (except those who are directly interested in the market) until about 3 o'clock. He goes to lunch at 1:30 and is in his office again at 3. Then the general public may see him if it has legitimate business. His manner of greeting is affable and open. He seemingly nas nothing to conceal nor anything to boast of.

"I believe," he says, "in a legitimate market. If corn or oats are not in sight the market should be a rising one. The farmer is entitled to the best prices possible, and the traders' aims should be to deal on the facts as they are. Nothing extraordinary has ever happened in my life. I have worked, and worked hard, and I have gained some knowledge. I am in this business as a business man dealing with facts. I like legitimate speculation, and see no reason why I should not continue in it."

On the board of trade those who admire him the most say:

"He has done more than five or ten of the old-time operaters to bring outside trade to the Chicago market. He has a big line of customers buying corn on its merits, and he ought to be helped instead of injured."

He may be a deposed "corn king" in time, but it is not going to disturb his full and greatest enjoyment of one thing in life—his wife and three children. He hates notoriety. He avoids it in every way possible. He does not wish to be interviewed or held up to public view in any way. He has worried more over newspaper articles about himself during the last six months than over his business affairs. To himself he is nothing more than plain:

"George H. Phillips, corn dealer."

PLANT HINTS.

Good Advice For Duluth People Who Have Gardens.

As the spring sun warms us up again the old gardening instinct is waking up in my old customers and friends and they are wanting me to give a few hints as to gardening operations each week for awhile. The florist, who is in the business and is always planting something, is apt to forget that the amateur does not plant often enough to remember from year to year, and needs a slight reminder of what and how to grow the various things that go to make life happy or miserable, as the case may be. Each season is somewhat like all the others, and we must travel over the old course again. We gain a new experience each year, however, and we must change our methods to suit our new experiences. Each year teaches us more and more the lesson not to disturb our heavy Duluth soil too early, or rather in too wet a condition to work well. If we do we make a mud ball of it, and when the dry summer comes it bakes like a brick and a failure is the result.

Those who have well drained land, and those who were wise enough to spade their gardens up last fall, can plant hardy things at once. Sweet peas had better be planted right away. Furrow deep, say six inches; sow the seed in bottom of the furrow, cover with two inches of soil, then scatter two inches of rotted manure on top of that and leave the balance of the soil to be filled in when the peas are six inches high. This method leaves the roots in the cool, moist soil, and they stand the drouth and bloom the whole season.

Sow lots of gay, frolicsome poppies at once. The seed will germinate without covering now. Simply press it into the ground with your feet. They can go in any old place.

Sow mignonette and candytuft, and in the vegetable garden sow lettuce, plant onion setts, beets, parsnip and carrot seed. Cover lightly at this time but press firmly what you do cover with your feet. No harm can ever be done by treading in the seed when the soil is in good working condition. This especially is true in the case of onion seed, and, by the way, more than half the failures in raising this tear-producer from seed is because they are not sown early enough.

Get a packet of asparagus seed and sow it in a long row, where it can stand forever. I know you have been going to get some plants for the last four years, but you have not got them yet, and you won't get them this year, so sow some seed and then you will stand a chance of having a nice bed some day. I tell you to put in a long row where it can stand. Then if you are too lazy to transplant it you can have some to eat anyway. Loosen the covering on the wintered over plants but do not take it off yet.

WEAK, WASTING STRICTURED MEN CURED

While You Sleep in 15 Days.

There is no question that you feel like you look; despondent, weak, nervous and despairing. Your sleep is disturbed by unpleasant dreams and you awake tired and with your mind filled with evil forebodings. You know that you are seminally weak, and you also know from sad experience that all of the drugs that you have poured into your stomach have left you worse than they found you.

NOW LISTEN TO ME!

Not one drop of internal medicine that you ever did or will put in your stomach will cure you. Why? Because your ailment is not in your stomach, or liver, or kidneys, but in the urethral canal. It is a local disease, and as such requires local treatment; it can not be reached efficiently by internal treatment.

This is the St. James method of preparing treatment:

The medication is compressed into the form of crayons (as above), narrow, smooth and flexible, which slip into the urethral canal without effort, where they dissolve in three hours, which is sufficient time to penetrate, dissolve and dislodge STRICTURE like snow beneath the sun, allay inflammation and reduce enlargement of the PROSTATE GLAND, contracting the SEMINAL DUCTS, FOREVER STOPPING DRAINS and EMISSIONS, curing while you sleep—a direct, positive, common-sense and curative method of LOCAL TREATMENT which reaches the spot and ACTS INSTANTLY.

"Home Treatment" Can Be Used As Successfully By the Patient As By Ourselves.

Space will not permit a complete description of the incomparable St. James Treatment in urethral diseases. Every sufferer from Stricture, and its offspring, Prostatitis and Seminal Weakness, should write to the St. James Association, 71 St. James Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, for their wonderful illustrated work, showing the parts of the human system involved in urethral ailments, which they will send securely wrapped in plain package, prepaid..... WINTER BILE

Causes bilious head-ache, back-ache and all kinds of body aches. Spring is here and you want to get this bile poison out of your system, easily, naturally and gently. CASCARETS are just what you want; they never grip or gripe, but will work gently while you sleep. Some people think the more violent the griping the better the cure. Be careful—take care of your bowels—salts and pill poisons leave them weak, and even less able to keep up regular movements than before. The only safe, gentle cleaner for the bowels are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS. They don't force out the foecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action—buy them and try them. You will find in an entirely natural way your bowels will be promptly and permanently put in good order for the Spring and Summer work.

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Liverpool Very Weak and Causes Weak Opening Here.

Northwest Receipts Small and Fair Buying at Chicago.

The Rally Was Brief and Close Was Weak.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 13.—The wheat market started out weak and lower this morning, the depression being caused by the bearish cables, which showed a drop of 1s6¾d at Liverpool, which was more than equal to the decline in the American markets yesterday. The Northwest receipts showed a falling off and on moderate commission house buying at Chicago, prices rallied.

The market eased off again to near the opening prices and closed ⅜c lower than yesterday here, and ½c lower at Chicago for the May option.

Trading in futures was fairly active on the Duluth board. May wheat started ½c lower at 71⅞c, sold at 72c at 9:50, advanced to 72⅝c at 10:05, eased off to 72c at 10:20, recovered to 72-⅝c at 10:36 and dropped again to 72c at 11:12, closing at those figures, ⅜c lower than yesterday. Cash sales were 30,000 bus, at ½c under May for wheat to arrive and 1c under for wheat in store. Oats and corn were unchanged. Rye declined 3c. Cash, to arrive and May flax advanced 1c, while September and October flax closed unchanged.

At Chicago, May wheat opened 3⅝@¾c lower, sold at 70⅝c to 70¼c, but recovered to 70⅝c.

May wheat closed at Chicago at 70⅜c, a net decline of ½c for the day.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 215 cars, against 498 last week, and 760 last year. Chicago receipts, 69 cars, none of contract grade.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. hard, cash, 73c; to arrive, 73½c; May, 74c. No. 1 northern, cash, 71c; to arrive, 71½c; May, 72c; July, 72⅝c; September, 71⅛c. No. 2 northern, 65½@69¼c. No. 3 spring, 70@653c. Oats, 27@28½c. Rye, 49¾c. Flax, cash, $1.58½; to arrive, $1.58¾; May, $1.60; September, $1.17; September, Northwestern, $1.19½; October, $1.16. Corn, 45¾c; May, 41c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 47; corn, 2; oats, 7; rye, 1. Receipts—Wheat, 15,533 bus; oats, 3976 bus; flax, 1819 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 6933 bus; barley, 688 bus; flax, 182 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Lower Prices In Liverpool Weakened Wheat.

Chicago, April 13.—A drop in prices at Liverpool more than equal to the decline here yesterday, weakene wheat at the opening today. May selling ⅜@⅝ lower at 70½c to 70¾c. A moderate commission house demand resulted in a recovery to 70⅝c. Local receipts were 60 cars, none of contract grade, while Minneapolis and Duluth reported 215 cars, against 498 last week and 760 a year ago.

May later worked off to 70¼@¼c and closed easy ½c lower at 70⅜c.

Corn was quiet but firm, despite improved weather. May opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 43⅝@⅝c, touched 43½@⅝c in sympathy with wheat and then, on local buying, rallied to 44c. Receipts were 142 cars, 20 of contract grade. Country offerings were practically nil.

The close was easy, May ⅜c down at 43¾c.

Oats were dull. May opened a shade lower at 25⅛c, in sympathy with wheat and sold to 25⅜@¼c later under the influence of the firmer tone in other cereals. Receipts were 158 cars.

Provisions were dull but firm in sympathy with higher hog prices. May pork opened 2½c higher at $14.50; May lard with a like advance at $8.30, and May ribs unchanged at $8.30.

Close: Wheat—April, 70½c; May, 70⅜c; July, 70⅝c. Corn—April, 42⅝c; May, 43⅜c; July, 42¼@⅜c. Oats—April, 25½c; May and July, 25c. Pork—April, $14.32½; May, $14.42½; July, $14.32½. Lard—April, $8.37½; May, $8.27½; July and September $8.15. Ribs—April and May, $8.27½@8.30; July, $8.02½; September, $8.00. Flax—Cash, Northwestern, No. 1 and May, $1.58; September, $1.15. Cash: Wheat—No. 2 red, 71 @73c; No. 3 red, 69@71½c; No. 2 hard winter, 71½½c; No. 3 hard winter, 70@71c. No. 1 northern spring, 71½@73½c; No. 2 northern spring, 71½@73½c; No. 3 sprin, 68½@72c. Corn—No. 2, 43¼@½c; No. 3, 42½c. Oats—No. 2, 25¾@27c; No. 3, 26½@¾c. Rye—April, 48¾c; May, 48¾c; July, 48¾@49c. Barley—Cash, 38@56c. Timothy—April, $4.00; September, $3.20. Clover—April, $10.75.

WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, April 13.—Having worked wheat values to a point representing very closely the flattering conditions intimated by both government figures, the wheat situation has simmered down to a question now of the maintenance of present condition, or deterioration brought about by the appearance of insect life in the growing crop which the government experts say is excessively prevalent and may be for many weeks put a very different construction upon the condition today which promises a yield of winter wheat approaching 450,000,000 bus. Reservations which the experts made in regard to Hessian fly caused very extensive covering of short lines and today speculatively the wheat pit is not in as healthy a condition as it was when the short lines were more numerous and in greater volume. For some time there has been a tendency towards extravagance on both sides of the market, unfounded fears of manipulation and shortage of contract grades, creating a range of values disproportionate to merit, and on the other hand the sentiment of the bears tending towards a level disproportionate to monetary prosperity now prevailing, consequently in the neighborhood of these figures one may see a happy medium for wheat prices, as long as conditions remain as they are at present, but a tendency towards further damage to the growing crop and a continuance of the very remarkable outward movement of our wheat, showing it to be sufficiently attractive to our customers at these prices, should in the natural course of events bring about a higher level. But if damage does not develop and stocks at the moment more than adequate to take care of demands, it seems inevitable that moderate declines may be realized and if the sentiment increases in its bearishness, wheat values may be pressed to an immediate level. At the moment we see more money in taking the short side of wheat on these reactionary bulges than in buying wheat on moderate declines, but should the market show a speculative weakness which at this time of the year is not warranted, we would most certainly feel like going and keeping long of the July option. The scalping side is always the best money-maker, in the long run.

The corn market has quieted down to a rational condition, where the trade is inclined to play a waiting game, and where changing orders are dominating fluctuations. The primary motives which prompted the recent strength have not altered materially, but the approaching expiration of the May option has temporarily at least, checked inordinate advances. The interest naturally is transferred to the July and to September, the latter while not regular, is getting a large share of trade, and the bulls are evincing considerable faith in that option. Barring the possibility of a very heavy crop of corn this year, the chances are that by September, if general opinion is correct, supplies of cash corn will be very limited and the danger of manipulation consequently more pronounced. It is looking a long way ahead, but as we view it, corn has an inherent merit which cannot very readily be withdrawn until the new crop be assured, and for that reason we are bullish on this cereal, and believe the long side on all breaks to be logical. You will likely see corn for sale on rallies, unless new ground be reached.

Unfavorable seeding weather and cash demand has infused new life into the oat market and prices have reached a point which in our judgment very closely represent these conditions, an improvement in weather and letup in cash inquiry would leave the bulls with but little argument, but the market is more healthy in that heavy holders are not now on top of it and considerable liquidation has been indulged in. We don't look for anything radical in the oat market, but should advances be scored, we would sell the July and September and stay short.

Provisions—There has been a short run of hogs which tended to steady prices, but as an offset, there has been very light speculative business. Lard stock and ribs will not increase proportionately to the good demand prevailing for the cash market, and both these products are in very strong hands. While not feeling bullish on pork we do think lard and ribs will both score good advances and speculatively pork on breaks is also a good purchase.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Prices Started Higher, Relaxed But Had Another Bulge.

Publication of Bank Statement Followed By a Spurt.

A Lively Selling Movement to Take Profits Occurred.

New York, April 13.—Prices rose on the opening sales on the stock exchange, gains extending from 1 to 2 points in Burlington, Consolidated Gas, Rock Island, the Chicago Terminal Transfer stocks and People's Gas. Ten thousand shares of Erie sold at 35⅝ to 38⅞, compared with 38¾ last night. Prices relaxed after the opening, but scale buying orders were met on the decline and the market recovered to well above the opening prices. The grangers an Northern Pacific showe the most strength, the advances extending to 3⅜ in Rock Island. Realizing in Burlington wipe out its 2-point gain before 11 o'clock an somewhat unsettle other stocks.

The speculation showed constraint pending the appearance of the bank statement. There was arise of 2½ in Sugar, 2⅝ in North American and 8 in Colorado Fuel, but the general market was inclined to sag. The publication of the bank statement was followed by a spurt to 156½ in Rock Island and advances of 1 to 2 in a number of miscellaneous stocks. A lively selling movement to take profits met the advance and carried back Colorado Fuel 5, and Rock Island, Sugar, Burlington and some others from 1 to 2. Rock Island was pushed up again by pool manipulation to 156¾ and room shorts covered elsewhere, making the close active and irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 13.—Cotton opened steady and unchanged to 2 points higher and then worked slowly unward until May reached 8.03 and July 7.96 on covering and scarcity of offerings. The chief cause for worry in bear circles was fear of a summer month "squeeze," more particularly July in which the short account was believed to be extensive.

Cotton spot closed quiet 1-16c higher. Middling uplands, 8 5-16c; middling gulf, 8 9-16c; sales, none. Futures closed quiet and steady, April, 7.88; May, 8.01; June, 7.92; July, 7.93; August, 7.60; September, 7.40; October, 7.34; November, 7.28; December, 7.25; January, 7.25.

LONDON MONEY.

London, April 13.—Further borrowings from the banks have relieved the stringency somewhat. Discounts were steady. Business on the exchange today was quiet. Funds were higher and high class securities were fairly steady. Dealings are not expected to broaden until the budget statement. Americans were in better demand, in sympathy with Wall street, and closed firm. Grand Trunks rallied slightly. Kaffirs were strong, being supported by professionals.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report that the good line of buyers on the market with the large receipts of good quality farm horses and drivers gave strength and life to the trade. Demand centered almost entirely on good farm horses; drivers were next leading in demand and sold freely to local men. North Dakota trade was very light, and comparatively little has been shipped to that country thus far this spring. Values:

CAT EXHIBIT.

Decision In Interesting Contest at I. Freimuth's Store.

A gentleman in Duluth has probably the most unique collection of cats ever seen in this country. There are cats and Cats and CATS, but luckily they are not alive or it is to be presumed that Freimuth's would be the center of all the available and historic boot-jacks for miles around. Some time before Easter, I. Freimuth, to advertise the "Black Cat" brand of children's stockings, offered prizes for the funniest, the most artistic and the ugliest black cats that were drawn by the children of Duluth, between the ages of 2 to 5 years, and the flood of cats that has poured in from all parts of the city since that time has certainly done its work well. Between 250 and 300 pictures have been the result and Mr. Freimuth now owns a more metropolitan aggregation of felines than has ever graced a prize cat show.

The cats are of all kinds and conditions; some are big and some are little, some are done in ink and some with pencil. There are not more than a half a dozen sheets of the same kind of paper used in the whole collection, but they are all original, no two alike, and show a great deal of artistic ability in the school children of Duluth.

Miss A. M. Cook, art instructor in the public schools, Miss Georgie McIntosh, of the Jackson school, and William F. Henry, of The Herald, were the judges in the contest. They met Thursday evening, looked over the 300 cats, and selected the three prize winners. For the funniest black cat, Carl Berine, of the Jackson school, wins the prize of $2. For the most artistic one, Millie Fawcett, of Duluth Heights gets $1.50. For the ugliest one, Lena Black, of 1421 West Superior street, takes $1. The three prize winners are admirably executed, the one drawn by Millie Fawcett being a pen and ink sketch of a very cute kitten, and the ugliest one is depicted reclining on a back fence disturbing some poor mortal's slumber with fiendish glee, while the funniest picture is of four cats dancing.

The prize winners were not announced until this morning and the store was filled with children, each eager to see whether or not he or she would be the lucky one. The affair has been an educational one and has developed a great deal of originality in some of the children. The cats are on exhibition at Freimuth's and can be seen at any time.

LUMBER MARKET

Considerable Activity Expected Within a Couple of Weeks.

Some Important Deals Which Have Been Negotiated.

All of the Mills Are Ready to Begin Sawing.

The indications are that there will be "something doing" in the local lumber circles at the head of the lakes within the next ten days or two weeks. The lumber market for the week has been a little quiet and the sales have run up to about 4,000,000 feet, but these have been at the highest prices, the manufacturers say, and they appear to feel confident and satisfied with the outlook. There will not be a very active market before the first of May, when there is little doubt now but that navigation will be fully opened. The ice at the Sault is weak and rotten and there is very little ice in this end of the lake to impede navigation. The harbor is opening rapidly and there is already considerable open space, even up to some of the outside mills.

Some very important deals have been closed, and some still more important are pending, but will probably be closed within a week. One deal closed last week was that of the Bayfield & Western railway, through D. M. Sabin, which has closed a contract with the Street-Chetfield Lumber company, of Chicago, for the delivery at the harbor here of 5,000,000 feet of logs, to be sawed at the Scott-Graff mill. The Chicago concern has about 70,000,000 feet of standing pine in towns 47 and 48, ranges 10 and 11, in Douglas county, Wis., and this present deal is very likely to be followed by a further contract to put the entire quantity in at this port. Looking at it in this light, it is one of the most important deals concluded for a long time, for the cost of logging, delivering and sawing the whole block cannot be much less than $600,000, and it is said to have been figured on about that basis. To cover such a deal Mr. Sabin will have to extend his line of railway north and east from his present terminal at Poplar station for a distance of ten miles. The Scott-Graff company will do the logging on the deal just closed, and already has a camp started.

The Edward Hines company has a lot of standing pine southeast of Poplar and is said to be figuring on building a road to it, using the ties and rails now in an extension of the Bayfield & Western into its choppings of the past winter, northeast of Poplar. The Hines company has a big bunch of timber in that territory that it expects to get out. In all, it is estimated that there is 200,000,000 fee of pine in the vicinity on which Mr. Sabin can figure that his road will have the hauling, the greater part of which will come to this city. Some will go to Ashland and some will be sawed at interior mills.

Arpin, Scott & Co., of Grand Rapids, Wis., have purchased of the American Realty company, of Milwaukee, $17,000 worth of pine on Pigeon river, northeast of Duluth. The buyers now have interests in timber along the boundary amounting to about $100,000, some of which is under the name of the Pigeon River Lumber company. The company is logging there now for the recently purchased mill at Port Arthur. Those well posted on the situation in the Pigeon river district say that more logs will come out of the district this year than ever before. The whole amount is figured as being close to 35,000,000 feet, of which Alger, Smith & Co. will saw the bulk at their mill here.

The Alger-Smith company will stock its own mill and the related interests of the company will stock the West Superior Lumber company's mill up to its capacity. The cut of the two mills will be more than 75,000,000 feet this season. The Scofield mill at West Superior will cut logs belonging to the Hines Lumber company, also the logs recently sold by the Soper Lumber company. The Peyton, Kimball & Barber mill has 6,000,000 feet of logs in sight, all of which are yet on the Duluth side of the bay, and the company does not expect to get them for sawing before May 1. The logs belong to the firm. The amount of logs is less than one-fourth the capacity of the mill. The Scott-Graff mill will soon be through with its Richardson & Avery cut and is likely to be filled with sawing for the Street-Chetfield company.

The Hubbard & Vincent mill has some of the logs of F. L. Gilbert, enough for day running for a time. The Duncan & Brewer mill has a full season's cut, day and night, for the Pilsen Lumber company, which has purchased its entire product. The Murray mill will cut day and night all the season for W. H. Gilbert. The Mitchell & McClure mill will have pretty nearly a full day-and-night cut for the season. The Merrill & Ring company has a full cut. The Lesure Lumber company has full day runs. The St. Louis mill has less than day runs, and the Nelson-Jackson company has a full day-and-night cut. These are all the mills on the harbor front.

In the surrounding country the mills of the Fall Lake Lumber company and St. Croix Lumber company at Ely will have full stocks for day-and-night runs, as will the Tower Lumber company at Tower. The Nolan Bros. & Laird mill at St. Louis will start up soon with plenty of stock for both day-and-night runs part of the season. The W. T. Bailey mill at Virginia will have a day-and-night stock of logs. The C. M. Hill mill at Drummond will have a full stock. The Tower Logging Railway company at Allen will have enough for a full season's cut. The mills at Cloquet will be busy with the biggest stock of logs that they ever had. The Brooks-Scanlon mill below Cloquet will not start up until late, but when it does it will saw heavily day and night. The mills at Lake Nebagamon are running steadily and will continue to do so. The same condition is true of some of the mills at Iron River and interior points. The four or five small mills in the woods back of Duluth, most of which have been running through the winter, will be quite busy this summer.

W. S. Cochrane and Simon Anderson, of Carlton, have formed a partnership and will erect immediately near Thompson a shingle mill with a capacity of 100,000 per day. The mill will employ twenty-five men and will be new throughout.

This week has finished the logging operations and all the men are now down from the camps and are scattering in every direction. Hundreds of horses have been coming into the city and are being shipped to the farming lands of the West and South for summer's work.

Kicked a Car.

Frightened horses nearly kicked a freight car to pieces down near the Union depot last evening. The horses were brought in from the woods recently and were being shipped to Dakota. The car was coupled to an engine and already to pull over to West Superior behind the Twilight Limited on the Omaha. The passing of the limited frightened the horses and they began kicking. There was a ripping of timber and considerable damage was done to the car before the animals were quieted.

FOR THE PACIFIC.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 13.—The Globe Navigation company will be incorporated at Trenton, N. J., to own and operate steam and sailing vessels, sailing from Seattle to Pacific coast, Alaskan, Hawaiian, Australian, Japanese and Chinese ports. The capital, $1,000,000, is all subscribed. Three 3000-ton steamers in Atlantic ports have been purchased and will sail for Seattle within ten days. The officers are William Nottingham, Syracuse, president; J. W. Clise, of Seattle, vice president and resident manager; Lyman C. Smith, of Syracuse, treasurer, and W. W. Brown, of Toledo, secretary. The other stockholders are H. S. Holden, W. A. Holden, W. L. Smith, A. T. Brown and H. S. Wilkinson, of Syracuse, and C. H. Babcock, of Rochester.

Schlitz

Next to purity, the yeast used in brewing is of the utmost importance in beer. Perfect beer requires a perfect yeast, and rarely does a brewer find it.

The Schlitz brewery introduced chemically pure yeast in America. It has made Schlitz beer the most palatable, healthful beer that is brewed.

The original mother cells form a priceless asset. All the yeast used in Schlitz beer forever will be developed from them. As a result Schlitz beer will never vary, and there'll never be another beer like Schlitz.

Mass Mine Likely To Be a Large Producer Soon.

Champion To Build Fifty New Dwellings For Employes.

Sale of the Old Hancock Mine Being Negotiated.

Houghton, Mich., April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new management of the Mass mine is taking hold of its work with great vigor, and there is an excellent prospect of the mine becoming a large producer within a short time. The Mass has been known for many years, to miners, as the richest mine in the lake district, where it is rich, and the only question about the future of the property has been whether a sufficient amount of the high grade ground could be opened to permit the working of the mine on a large scale. This seems answered in the affirmative, judging from the recent developments at the property. The mine proper is in charge of Capt. James Wilcox, late of the Arcadian, while the mill and general surface superintendency is in the hands of C. H. Krause, late of the Osceola and Tamarack mills. Some heavy new machinery is on the ground and will be started by May 1. This includes a powerful Fraser & Chalmers' hoist, good for six-ton loads to a depth of one half mile, and a 50-drill Rand air compressor. At the two new shafts on the Knowlton lode there are Nordberg hoists, and work will soon be resumed at these shafts, which are merely started. Capt. R. R. Trezona, the retiring mining captain, estimates the mine capable of furnishing 700 tons of selected stamp rock daily, while Capt. Wilcox, who has just taken charge, is more conservative, but thinks the mine is good for 500 tons daily. This will feed one stamp, which will soon be set at work in the new mill. It is Capt. Wilcox's intention to get out rock that will return an average of about 1 per cent ingot at the mill, in addition to the heavy copper, of which the mine is usually prolific. A number of large masses have been uncovered of late, and at present there are on surface at the mouths of the shafts about forty tons of mass copper and about twenty tons of smaller masses in barrels, with thirty-five to forty tons of heavy masses in sight in various underground drifts and crosscuts.

The intentions of the management of the Champion mine are pretty effectively shown by the letting of contracts for the building of fifty-two new dwellings for employes. The Champion is very highly regarded by all practical mining men who have seen the property, and there is much regret that its shares are not obtainable in the open market. Half of the capital stock is owned by the Copper Range company and half by St. Mary's Canal Mineral Land company, and neither will sell a single share, as the loss of that share would insure control to the other corporation.

The burning of No. 3 engine house at the Baltic mine on Monday of this week will hamper production for a few weeks, as No. 3 is the principal producer at the mine, but the machinery was only slightly damaged and the net loss will be small.

Disappointment is felt over the March production of the Franklin, which was much smaller than had been hoped. The local management believes a better product will be secured as soon as the conglomerate shafts at the Franklin Junior are got into commission.

Negotiations are now in progress for the sale of the old Hancock mine, located just west of the city of that name and to the southwest of the Quincy. This property was originally set aside by the Quincy company, in 1859, the Quincy reserving the right to mine the lode on which that mine was opened, but transferring all other mineral rights to the Hancock company. Recent developments on the so-called "West Lode" in the Quincy and Franklin mines are decidedly favorable to the Hancock, and there is yet another amygdaloid, lying 112 feet west of the "West Lode," which is well charged with copper. In addition to its mineral possibilities, the Hancock property is a highly valuable one for its surface realty alone, about thirty acres of its original 160 having been built over, the company retaining all mineral rights underneath the lots so sold.

The Atlantic has contracted for a new fifty-drill air compressor, which is to be delivered by July 1.

The Mohawk mine now has in sight between surface and the second level about $400,000 worth of mohawkite ore, and taken into consideration the widening of the fissure noted on the third level, there must be a nearly equal value between the second and third levels. While it is unsafe to pin too much faith on fissure veins, the chances are strongly favorable to the theory that this fissure vein will hold to the depth of at least a quarter mile, which would give millions in value, and mostly net profit, to this promising young mine.

Good progress is being made in the preliminary work at the millsites of the Mohawk and Wolverine, on Traverse bay, south of the mouth of the Tobacco river.

The amygdaloid lode of the Victoria mine, the only active property, west of the Ontonagon river, is widening and growing richer with depth. At the bottom level it averages nearly thirty feet wide, and is well mineralized. The prospects of this mine are much brighter at present than they have ever been in the past, and there is a considerable reserve in the treasury for future development.

The parallel amygdaloid struck some months since in the crosscut west from the third level of No. 1 shaft, Rhode Island, is continuing a good showing of copper, and bids fair to prove workable deposit.

The pumps in the Michigan mine are unwatering the old Minnesota at an average rate of 150 feet per month, or five feet per day.

The new hoist at "D" shaft of the Atlantic is to go into commission next month. It will raise six-ton skips and will permit a material increase in the production of the mine.

The Isle Royale may start one stamp next month. Everything about the mine and mill is in an advanced stage and in apple-pie order.

The promoters of the Belt Consolidated have dropped the attempt, and it is now past history. The public refused to become interested to a sufficient extent to render the flotation advisable, as to attempt the reconstruction of the property without a substantial treasury fund would have been to invite disaster. The favorable showings now being made at the Mass and Adventure render it altogether probable that within a comparatively short time the Belt will be reopened, though by whom, and under what conditions, it is impossible to predict.

The Quincy is contemplating the installation of two new stamps to replace two of the older stamps now running. Such a change would result in increased efficiency through a simultaneous lowering of stamping charges and increase of production.

The Osceola is opening a new and promising mine in the South Kearsarge. This is at present a heavy charge on the parent company, as no expense is being spared in pushing development and equipment, but within eighteen months will begin returning the cash which is now being diverted from the treasury.

The structural steel for the new Osceola mill is all on the ground.

Work on the Baltic and Mass mills is nearing completion, so far as the structures are concerned. There have been many annoying delays in the erection of both mills, but these are practically at an end.

The Adventure has contracted for two double-cone hoists, to raise sixteen loads.

Construction of the new six-stamp mill of the Calumet & Hecla is proceeding satisfactorily. This mill is to treat the rock from the amygdaloid openings of the Calumet & Hecla company on the Osceola lode.

The Champion is erecting its new steel shaft houses. The shafts are all solidly timbered, from collar to sump, and underground work is well advanced throughout the mine.

NOW THEY ARE LAWS

Important Measures Enacted By the Minnesota Legislature.

Brief Summary of the Provisions of Leading Bills.

Legislature Will Be Remembered as a Business Body.

St. Paul, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The thirty-second legislature can be placed in the history of the state as a business body, for it has accomplished more in the way of good results than many more pretentious predecessors. While many minor measures have taken the time of members, there have been a number of laws enacted which will have much to do with the future conduct of affairs in Minnesota. A brief summary of the most important measures is given below:

The Jacobson law, increasing the tax on railroad gross earnings from 3 to 4 per cent; a constitutional amendment to be submitted to a vote of the people at the next general election in November, 1902.

The Laybourn tax commission law, creating a commission of three to revise the tax laws of the state and report to the governor, who is expected to present such report to an extra session of the legislature.

The Torson board of control law, placing all state institutions, except the Soldiers' home, under the supervision of a new board of three members, a revolution in the management of the penal, charitable and educational institutions.

The congressional reapportionment into nine districts, Duluth being the center of the new Eighth district.

A drainage commission is established which shall see to the proper disbursement of a $50,000 appropriation to drain and reclaim state swamp lands.

Oil Inspector salary law, dispensing with the payment of $25,000 or more in fees to the inspector and creating a state oil inspection fund, operative on Jan. 1, 1903.

Side path law for county system of cycle paths in counties having over 50,000 inhabitants.

The Vicksburg commission law, authorizing a commission of four, named by the governor, to locate the positions of Minnesota troops at Vicksburg and permanently mark the same.

Nichols express tax law, fixing at 5 per cent on gross earnings the taxes to be paid by express companies on business in the state.

H. K. Nelson grain terminal extension, providing for the extension of the terminal point privileges and state grain inspection and weighing service to any elevator or grain warehouse in the state upon the petition of the owner or agent of such elevator or warehouse and upon his agreement with the railroad and warehouse commission to meet the expenses of such special service.

Buckman law, making it a misdemeanor for employes who have obtained transportation or other advancements, to be paid in labor, to refuse to perform the labor.

The free employment office bill, which was introduced in the senate by E. E. Smith. This law authorizes cities of over 50,000 inhabitants to establish and maintain free employment bureaus.

Law for the organization of the Fourth regiment of the National Guard.

Benson—For appeal from the action of county commissioners in organizing new school districts or refusing to organize the same.

Dobbin—The governor to set aside a suitable room in the new capitol building to be used as a permanent headquarters for the Minnesota department of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Jackson—For the summary disposition of cases appealed from the probate court.

Morley—For the establishment, in addition to the grades maintained, of kindergarten schools in any school district managed by a board of education or board of directors. The kindergartens are to be supported by taxation in the same manner as the other departments.

Alford—Common school districts, public schools in hamlet, or village, or township, graded schools not entitled to state aid as high schools, or state graded schools, but complying with the requirements of state semi-graded schools, may receive for each school building the state aid granted semi-graded schools.

Hurd—A joint memorial to congress, praying that a United States warship shall be named "Minnesota."

Laybourn—County commissioners to allow the treasurer of St. Louis county $9000 annually for clerk hire in lieu of $6000 as under the present law.

Peterson, J. A.—A state board of deposit, consisting of the state auditor, state treasurer, secretary of state, attorney general and public examiner.

Phillips—Appointment of truant officers in ungraded school districts and authorizes school boards and boards of education to file informations or complaints in justice courts against incorrigibles for commitment to the state training school.

Barker—Amending the general law relating to banks of discount and deposit by allowing them to loan money on warehouse receipts without requiring a fire insurance policy.

Young—Providing that the names of the presidential electors of each party shall be enclosed in a scroll or bracket on the ticket, and that hereafter a vote for one elector shall be counted as a vote for each of the others included in the group.

The "lazy lawyers' bill." It provides that every ruling and decision of a judge shall be deemed excepted to by the aggrieved party, whether notice is given or not, and that the points on which the exception is taken shall be reviewed upon a motion for a new trial.

Lord—Wills executed outside of the state, if made in accordance with the laws of the state where they are drawn, or the laws of Minnesota, shall be in full force and effect here.

J. D. Jones—Reserves to the state all minerals hereafter found on any state lands sold after it becomes a law. It was suggested by the sale of the Mountain Iron mining property that occurred before mineral was discovered. The state unwittingly lost $12,000,000 by the transfer. The act requires that a clause reserving all minerals and mineral rights to the state shall be inserted hereafter in all deeds to state lands.

Chilton—Regulating lying-in homes and other similar homes and providing for their supervision and licensing by the state.

Daugherty—Prohibiting the sale of any malt or fermented liquors containing any drug or ingredient, poison or deleterious substance. The act is aimed at "knock-out" liquors that have been frequently used for criminal purposes in the Northern woods during the past few years.

Hospes—Providing that certified copies of county records of deeds, filed not more than twenty years ago, shall be admissable as prima facie evidence of the filing of the deed.

Snyder—Requiring the proper authorities in cities of more than 50,000 to return to the taxpayers any funds in excess of the actual expenditures collected by taxation for special public improvement purposes.

Snyder—Providing that before lands bid in by the state shall become forfeited, any person can secure them by paying delinquent taxes, etc., and also the amount of all taxes for previous years in judgment not barred by the statute of limitations, together with costs and interest remaining due and unpaid.

Baldwin—Legalizing sheriffs' certificates that are defective by reason of not having been filed within the 21-day limit provided by law. The act does not apply to pending litigation.

Snyder—Providing for permanent allmony for divorced wives, where the ground was not adultery on her part, and allowing a judge to set aside not exceeding one-third of the husband's estate for that purpose.

Judiciary committee—Allowing county officials to give surety bonds instead of bonds with personal sureties.

Baldwin—Providing for the perpetual incorporation of private cemetery and crematory companies, and allowing them to deposit funds for the care and improvement of their property, not exceeding $10,000, in any state savings bank.

Horton—A codification and revision of the insurance laws of the state. The act re-enacts all the old laws and contains an immense number of minor changes and improvements. The revision was made by Insurance Commissioner O'Shaughnessy, and is for the purpose of bringing the insurance laws up to date.

Wilson—Giving district courts jurisdiction over violations of the state laws regulating the practice of dentistry.

Young—Making the manufacture and sale of imitation butter a misdemeanor instead of a felony. The act places violations of the butter laws within the jurisdiction of justices of the peace, and aids the dairy and food department in its prosecution.

Horton capitol law, increasing the limit of cost to $3,000,000, adding $1,000,000 to the amount available under the old law, but limiting the letting of contracts to April 2, 1902.

The Grandrud law, providing for the sale of the old capital lands in Kandiyohi county.

The Swanson law fixing the limit of the tax levy for the next two years at 1.3, a decrease of two-tenths of a mill, the lowest levy in the history of the state.

IN LABOR WORLD

Gordon O'Neil Chosen For Fourth of July Committee.

Meetings next week are:

Plasterers' union, meets Monday evening, in Kalamazoo block.

Licensed Tugmen's association, Monday, in Kalamazoo block.

Stonemasons' International union, Monday, in Burrows' block.

Carpenters' union, meets Tuesday evening, Kalamazoo block.

Cigarmakers' union, Wednesday evening, 21 East Superior street.

Electrical Workers, meet Thursday evening, Kalamazoo block.

Building Trades' council, Friday evening, in Kalamazoo block.

Lathers' union, meets on Friday evening, in Kalamazoo block.

At the regular meeting of the Federated Trades' assembly, in the Kalamazoo block, last evening, there was an unusually good attendance. Enthusiasm seems to be working up again, and although the session was devoted very largely to routine work the meeting was of more than ordinary interest.

One of the most important actions taken at the meeting was the selection of Gordon O'Neil, of the 'Longshoremen's union, to represent the assembly and organized labor generally on the committee to be chosen for the approaching Fourth of July celebration. This action was at the request of Mayor Hugo, who is promoting the scheme to have a memorable celebration here on that date. Organized labor joins heartily with the mayor and other citizens in this movement, and the selection of Gordon O'Neil meets with favor on all sides. He has the benefit of experience in handling labor day celebrations and labor conventions.

The Cigarmakers' union is now circulating a letter among the business men of the city asking their patronage for Duluth made cigars. This circular letter was referred to in these columns some weeks ago, when it was shown that there were more foreign manufactured cigars smoked in this city than those made here. Duluth cigars are pronounced by experts as being of the highest grade, in both workmanship and quality of tobacco. The wages of cigarmakers amount to $1000 a week, practically all of which is spent in Duluth, and if local union made cigars were in greater vogue, more money would be put in circulation by the craft.

John W. Richardson, delegate from the Carpenters' union, was last evening elected one of the members of the board of trustees of the Federated Trades' assembly.

John Paulson has been selected as the assembly's representative in the Building Trades' council.

The meeting of the marine engineers next Friday evening is likely to be of some interest, providing the strike is not settled before that time. During the past week there has been little change in the situation. It is reported on good authority that President Ryan, of this city, head of the Licensed Tugmen's association, is ready to call his men out and join the engineers should President Uhlers of the engineers' organization request it. But Mr. Uhlers seems to ignore the licensed tugmen entirely.

At the meeting of the Butchers' union on Tuesday evening it was announced that Foultz's shop has been unionized.

The Carpenters' union turned out in a body last Sunday to attend the funeral of John Nelson, of West Duluth. At the meeting of the union on Tuesday suitable resolutions of condolence were adopted and forwarded to the members of the bereaved family.

The coal heavers of this port are talking seriously of organizing. There are a large number of men following the work on the coal docks, and the union could be a strong one if organized.

* * *

The tug firemen held a meeting on Monday evening and decided to ask for a scale of $45 a month for the coming season of navigation.

LABOR NOTES.

Unions are multiplying in Japan.

New York state has 243,000 unionists.

Germany has 18,502,000 agriculturists.

Philadelphia bookkeepers are organizing.

There are 24,000 union railway telegraphers.

Reading union brass polishers have organized a band.

Birmingham, Ala., linemen struck against working with negroes.

The paper-hangers of Atlanta, Ga., got a raise of 40 per cent by striking.

All the women employed in the bindery department of the government printing office, at Washington, are now members of the Women Bindery Workers' union.

The postal savings banks of Great Britain, after paying 2½ per cent interest on deposits during the year 1900, which in amount exceeded those of any others in the world, declared a dividend amounting to $7,500,000.

The London county council, moved by the progressive spirit of a majority of its members, has decided to buy 225 acres of land and to build on it working people's dwellings to accommodate 42,000 tenants. The estimated cost is $7,500,000.

In consequence of the reduction of the selling price of iron, wages throughout the North of England in the manufactured iron trade were reduced 7.5 per cent Monday, April 1, the largest reduction since the adoption of the sliding scale in 1880.

Only two of the thirteen bills introduced into the Kansas legislature at the request of organized labor became laws—one providing for the establishment of free employment agencies throughout the state, and the other requiring seats for women employed in factories and stores.

The Journeymen Marble and Sandstone Cutters have increased their demands from 42½ to 45 cents per hour for an 8-hour day, and the Cement Finishers' union has asked for 40 cents per hour instead of 35 cents for an 8-hour day. Both these schedules have been practically agreed to. Last year the latter union worked ten hours per day.

In Philadelphia among the new demands made four unions are in the lead. The Structural Iron Workers have asked for an eight-hour day at 40 cents per hour, and there will be no trouble in getting it. Only a few days ago the American Bridge company, the largest single employer of this class of mechanics, signed the scale, as announced in "The Evening Telegram." That fact means that all the smaller firms will necessarily have to sign the agreement, as the last argument they had against signing has been taken away. This union has made rapid progress since its formation. In January, 1900, the members struck for 27½ cents per hour, to take effect on May 1, last; the latter having been won without trouble. The Plaster's union has reached an agreement with the masters for 45 cents per hour for an eight-hour day. Saturday to be a half holiday. Overtime will be allowed on light jobbing work, where it is absolutely necessary, and then time and half time is to be paid. This schedule goes into effect May 6 and will continue until the first Monday in June, 1902.

Miss Sarah S. Whittlesy, of New Haven, has thus summarized the benefits of the "labor laws" of Massachusetts, which have also withdrawn much of the child labor from factory and workshop; given a general guarantee of education to working youths; granted added leisure to the great body of workers, which means the opportunity to advance the standards of living; lessened casualties by protecting dangerous machinery, requiring escape ways from fire, etc.; insisted upon cleanliness and generally good sanitary conditions in workrooms, with a perceptible influence upon the health and the homes of operatives; somewhat extended the common law of the employer's liability to an employe for bodily injuries sustained in service making more adequate provision for recovery of damages; recognized the rights of labor under the labor contract and as an incorporated body; accorded some workers the privileges of weekly payments and fine exemptions; established a board of arbitration to which labor disputes may be referred for amicable settlement; established a bureau of labor, whose duty it is to collect statistics and to investigate labor conditions throughout the state; evolved the most efficient inspection force in the United States.

MEN CURED

Without Drugs or Electricity by Our

VACUUM ORGAN DEVELOPER

No Cure No Pay

75,000 IN USE NOT ONE FAILURE NOT ONE RETURNED

Our Vacuum Organ Developer cures where everything else fails and hope is dead. It restores small, weak organs, lost power, failing manhood, drains, errors of youth, etc. Stricture and Varicocele permanently cured in 1 to 4 weeks.

No Drugs to ruin the stomach. No Electric Belts to blister and burn. Our Vacuum Developer is a local treatment applied directly to the weak and disordered parts. It gives strength and development wherever applied. Old men with lost or failing manhood, or the young and middle aged who are reaping the results of youthful errors, excess or over work are quickly restored to health and strength. Our marvelous appliance has astonished the entire world. Hundreds of leading physicians in the United States are now recommending our appliance in the severest cases where every other known device has failed.

You will see and feel its benefit from the first day for it is applied directly at the seat of the disorder. It makes no difference how severe the case or how long standing, it is as sure to yield to our treatment as the sun is to rise.

The blood is the life, the fertilizer of the human body. Our instrument forces the blood into circulation where most needed, giving strength and development to weak and lifeless parts. The Vacuum Organ Developer was first introduced in the standing armies of Europe a few years ago by the French specialist, De Bousset, and its remarkable success in these countries led the Local Appliance Co. to secure the exclusive control of its sale on the Western Continent; and since its introduction into this country its remarkable cures have astonnded the entire medical profession. It has restored thousands of cases pronounced incurable by physicians. It cures quickly, harmlessly, and without detention from business.

Remember there is no exposure, no C.O.D. or any other scheme in our dealing with the public.

FREE HELP FOR WEAK MEN

"CALTHOS"

Prof. Laborde's Marvelous French Cure for Lost Manhood.

FIVE DAYS' TRIAL TREATMENT

Sent Absolutely Free by Sealed Mail To All Sufferers.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

The only preparation known to science which really cures Lost Manhood is "CALTHOS," the marvelous French remedy discovered by Prof. Jules Laborde. It is controlled in this country by The Von Mohl Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a concern which occupies a high and honorable place in the world of medicine. It is one of the largest and most responsible houses in Cincinnati, as anyone who is acquainted in that city will testify.

The Von Mohl Company invites all men suffering from Lost Manhood, Spermatorrhoea, Varicocele, Small Parts or Weakness of any nature in the Nerves or Sexual Organs, to send their names and receive a five days' treatment. This will prove the wonderful vitalizing powers of "CALTHOS." After using it five days the sufferers will find new vigor in their organs, new force in their muscles, new blood in their veins, new ambition, and rapid progress toward the buoyant feelings and sensations of younger days.

This liberal free offer is genuine. There is no swindling C. O. D. or Deposit Scheme connected with it. The five days' treatment is sent by sealed mail to all on request, wrapped in a plain package, and full printed instructions accompany the medicine, so that each patient becomes his own doctor and cures himself at home.

It doesn't make any difference what caused the weakness—whether bad habits in youth, or excess, or overwork, or business troubles. "CALTHOS" will effect a cure, no matter what big name the disease may be called by doctors.

The Von Mohl Company treats all correspondence in perfect confidence. Under no conditions will it make public the names of the thousands who have written testimonials telling of their restoration to robust manhood after other medicines and appliances have proved worthless. "CALTHOS" is regularly used in the French and German armies, and the soldiers in those countries have come to be perfect models of strength and vitality. Cures are effected at all ages from twenty to eighty years. There is no case (except where the stage of epilepsy or insanity has been reached) which it will not radically, quickly and permanently cure. Sexual weakness does not cure itself. It grows worse from week to week. Each day aggravates the mental and physical anguish.

Send today for the free five days' trial treatment. If it helps you, more of the medicine can be purchased. If it does not help, no harm is done and no money has been paid out. You can send your name in the full knowledge that it will be kept from all. The "CALTHOS" department of our business is strictly confidential. Address applications for trial treatment, etc., to MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—Default having been made in the payment of the sum of five hundred seventy-two and 64-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Angus R. Macfarlane and Catherine H. Macfarlane, his wife, mortgagors, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of June, 1898, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Saint Louis and state of Minnesota, on the eleventh day of June, 1898, at 2:20 o'clock p. m., in Book 102 of mortgages, on page 529.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said William E. Lucas, mortgagee, to Anna E. Seeney by written assignment dated the second day of July, 1898, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds, on the third day of July, 1898, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 108 of mortgages on page 43.

Which said mortgage, together with said debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Anna E. Seeney the assignee and holder thereof, to Emma M. Emerick by written assignment dated the nineteenth day of July, 1899, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the twentieth day of July, 1899, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 151 of said mortgages page 417, said Emma M. Emerick being now the owner and owner of record thereof, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All of lot numbered three (3), in block six (6), in Hunter and Markell's Grassy Point Addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said Saint Louis County, Minnesota, said premises being situated in Saint Louis county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Saint Louis County, at the front door of the county court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state on the first day of May, 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of five hundred seventy-two and 64-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 13, A. D. 1901.

Missionary Union.

Tuesday was Missionary Union day. The meeting was held at the Second Presbyterian church. The devotional hour was conducted by Mrs. Milne, of the Second Presbyterian church, and was made interesting by careful preparation. Mrs. Feetham outlined the missionary work of the Methodist denomination. Mrs. Helm, of the First M. E. church, led the discussion on "How Best to Introduce Missionary Literature Into Society." Some excellent suggestions were made and it is hoped that profitable results will follow. Mrs. Whipple talked entertainingly on "Life In Persia." Late news from Mr. Whipple, who is now in that country reports encouraging in schools. Mrs. Whipple emphasized the fact that those who have a knowledge of medicine are most cordially received by the natives and gave incidents to prove her statement.

MRS. DAY BETTER.

Canton, Ohio, April 13.—Mrs. William R. Day, wife of the former secretary of state, who was taken seriously ill late yesterday, was greatly improved today. She regained consciousness to an extent as to recognize those about her. Judge Day, who was en route to Washington, was reached at Oakland, Md., and immediately started back to Canton.

TRIMMINGS.

Famous Hat Trimmings Cases In Process of Settlement.

Washington, April 15.—The attention of the treasury officials today was called to the dispatch from Philadelphia to the effect that the famous hat trimmings cases were being settled with the result that the $20,000,000 claimed by the importers had been cut down to about $4,000,000. Assistant Secretary Spaulding said that these cases had been in process of settlement by the courts for a long time and he had understood that the end was drawing near, but he did not know how much the government would be compelled to refund to the importers. The amount claimed, however, he said, was far in excess of the actual figures. The cases before the New York courts had been settled and paid from time to time during the last several months and the Philadelphia cases, he thought, had many of them been paid. The cases arose under the tariff act of 1883. Goods classed by importers as "hat trimmings" dutiable at 20 per cent, were appraised by the government as dress goods, etc., which, under the tariff act, were assessed at 50 per cent. The larger duty was paid under protest, and proceedings were at once begun in the courts to compel a refund with the result that although the government has not compromised a single case, the courts in the case of some fabrics, have decided against the importer, and in others against the government. The total amount to be paid by the government will be but a fraction of the amount claimed.

DRIVEN OUT

Mrs. Nation Ordered Out of Kansas City.

Left For Kansas Within Fifteen Minutes.

Kansas City, April 15.—Mrs Carrie Nation, arrested yesterday charged with obstructing the street, was arraigned before Police Judge McAuley this morning, fined $500 and given until 6 o'clock this evening to leave the city. The judge warned Mrs. Nation if she was found in the city after that hour she would be arrested and placed in jail. She agreed to leave town, and fifteen minutes later boarded a street car for Kansas City, Kan. Mrs. Nation appeared in court early, accompanied by her brother and a woman friend. The court room was literally jammed by a curious crowd. Several cases were called before Mrs. Nation's, and she watched the proceedings with manifest impatience. When Judge McAuley finally asked Mrs. Nation what she had to say to the charges, she delivered a tirade against police and court. She pleaded that she was merely waiting for a car when arrested, and was making the best of her time meanwhile by talking to the crowd that had gathered.

A policeman testified that several cars had passed without Mrs. Nation making an attempt to board any of them. Mrs. Nation flatly denied this statement. Judge McAuley then gave his decision, and warned Mrs. Nation not to come to town again. "Missouri atmosphere," said he, "is not adapted for long-haired men, short-haired women and whistling girls."

The fine was suspended.

The crowd applauded the decision and followed the "joint smasher" to a car bound for the Kansas side of the river.

The fine will be held over Mrs. Nation in case she should return, and, until she is released from the court's order, she is practically barred from visiting Kansas City.

Mrs. Nation pleaded that she wished to go to Liberty, Mo., within a few days and asked if she would be permitted to pass through Kansas City en route. Judge McAuley answered in the affirmative, but warned Mrs. Nation not to stop off here.

BARON FAVA RETIRES

Has Been Italian Minister at Washington For Twenty Years and Is a Diplomat of Remarkable Experience.

Washington, April 15.—The state department has been advised through the American ambassador at Rome and the Italian foreign office that Baron Fava will be succeeded as ambassador from Italy to this country by the Marquis Obizzo Malispina Di Carbonara, at present minister to Italy at the Argentine Republic. The marquis has had a wide diplomatic experience and served in Washington as one of the attaches of the Italian legation about ten years ago. He will receive a substantial promotion by his new appointment, rising from the rank of minister to that of ambassador.

Baron Fava, the retiring ambassador, is a man of remarkable diplomatic experience, his service in behalf of his country covering some of the most exciting periods in the Italian history. He is about 65 years of age, and began his diplomatic career as secretary of legation at Trieste, in the kingdom of Naples. He subsequently took a prominent part in a successful effort to federate the Italian states, and re-entering the diplomatic service under the famous Cabour ministry, he became first secretary at Berne. Thence in turn he went to The Hague, to Constantinople, to Roumania, and finally to Buenos Ayres, where he was minister, just as his successor is today. Baron Fava came to Washington in 1881, so he has seen twenty years continuous service at the American capital. In 1893 he was dean of the diplomatic corps, and only relinquished the position through the failure of his government to act as promptly as the British government in the matter of raising their minister to the rank of ambassador.

During his diplomatic experience here the baron has exhibited great tact, and has passed through some trying conditions. During the incumbency of Secretary Blaine at the state department occurred the killing of the Italians in New Orleans, which caused a serious strain upon the relations between the United States and Italy and incidentally led to the recall of Baron Fava by his government for a considerable time. Since that event others of a like character have occurred, but they have all been disposed satisfactorily, in large part owing to the tact of the ambassador.

MAY CUT THEIR CLAIMS

Considered More Than Possible In Pekin That the Powers Will Reduce Claims Against China For Indemnity.

New York, April 15.—Reports received here as to the amount of indemnity claimed by the powers from China vary to some extent, says the London correspondent of the Tribune. For instance, France is stated by the Mail correspondent in Pekin to be asking for £13,000,000, whereas dispatches from Washington put the amount of France's claim at a much less figure. It is considered more than possible in Pekin that the powers may jointly agree to reduce their bills pro rata, particularly if China will guarantee certain commercial concessions. One difficulty in the way is that some of the powers will have honestly spent the sums they demand. Russia may be expected to abate her claim, which is considered quite unjustifiable, considering the relative ease and cheapness with which she was able to mobilize. It should not be forgotten that Russia is making separate demands for territorial and commercial privileges, and, besides, the rolling stock and railroad material must be worth something.

DOUBTS IT.

Arthur Does Not Believe Engineers and Firemen Settled Trouble.

Cleveland, April 15.—Grand Chief Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers stated today that he had received no official information concerning the reported settlement of the grievances of the engineers and firemen on the Central Railroad of New Jersey. "If the newspaper reports are true," said Mr. Arthur, "and the engineers and firemen have settled, leaving the trainmen and telegraphers to shift for themselves, a great mistake has been made. The chiefs of the five organizations represented on the road entered into a written agreement to work together in the matter. In other words, all the organizations were to be included in any adjustment of grievances. As a result of this agreement, the engineers and firemen could not settle without the consent of the other organizations."

FISHY STORY

Is That Concerning Discovery of the Manhattan Bonds.

New York, April 15.—Capt. Titus, chief of the detective bureau, was asked today whether there was any possibility of the return of the securities stolen from the Manhattan Savings institution in 1878. Capt. Titus said:

"I think the story rather a fishy one. At all events I have not taken any action in the premises, and I will not on the basis of this story. No communication has been had relative to the matter. This is an old story and bobs up often. I don't believe there is anything in it. I do not know who this person is who claims to have the bonds, and no one else does. I have not been informed of the matter by the bank officials or anyone else. In the first place the bonds are worthless, duplictes having been issued and besides the bonds have matured."

STRIKERS' WIN.

DIVORCE DECISIONS

United States Supreme Court Makes Some Important Rulings.

On Validity In One State of Divorce In Another.

Is Valid Where Legal Residence Has Been Obtained.

Washington, April 15.—The United States supreme court today decided a number of cases involving the validity in one state of divorce decrees granted in other states. The court held practically that in cases in which the decree is granted in states where the husband and wife have made their legal residence it is valid in any part of the United States, but that in other cases in which there is no legal residence in the state in which the decree is granted they are invalid. The opinions were handed down by Justice Gray and involved the cases of Atherton vs. Atherton, Bell vs. Bell, and Streilwolf vs. Streilwolf. In the Atherton case the husband obtained a decree of divorce in the state of Kentucky, where they had resided as husband and wife, after the wife had left the husband and gone to the home of her parents in Clinton, N. Y. In his opinion Justice Gray called attention to and laid stress upon the fact that Kentucky was the place of their marital residence and he also brought out the fact that notice of the husband's petition for divorce had been forwarded to New York and that she had made no response. The Kentucky court thereupon had granted the decree. The question involved was, he said, whether the decree was valid in New York, the question having been raised by a counter proceeding of the wife for divorce in New York. He concluded that owing to the fact of her former residence in Kentucky and the fact that due notice had been given her, Mrs. Atherton was as much bound by the Kentucky decree as if she had been present in the court when it was granted. Hence the decision of the New York supreme court in favor of the wife and against the validity of the Kentucky decree, was reversed.

The other two cases also came from New York. In the Bell case the question of the validity of a decree granted to the husband in Pennsylvania was raised and in the Streilwolf case the same question was raised concerning a decree granted to the husband in North Dakota. In both these cases the decrees were held to be invalid because neither the husband nor the wife had domicile in the state in which the divorce was granted.

"Therefore," said Justice Gray, "the decrees are not entitled to credit. In these cases the findings of New York courts were affirmed.

In the Atherton case Justice Peckham dissented upon the ground that the husband had himself been responsible for the wife's change of residence.

AMERICANS.

Li Hung Chang Wants Them Left For Police Duty.

Pekin, April 15.—Li Hung Chang has applied to Gen. Chaffee to leave behind, when he departs, Capt. Tillson and a sufficient number of men to police the Chinese city, as the Chinese earnestly desire their retention fearing that the district will not be well looked after when controlled by other foreigners.

An expedition, consisting of 5000 German and 3000 French troops, will leave Pao Ting Fu tomorrow to drive from the province several thousand Chinese who refuse to obey the order of Li Hung Chang to keep to the boundaries already arranged.

TRANSPORTS.

Active Movement Between San Francisco and Manilla.

San Francisco, April 15.—The transport Thomas, which arrived last night, brought back from the Philippines the headquarters and the First and Third battalions of the Thirty-fifth volunteers, consisting of twenty-nine officers and 533 men, and all of the Twenty-eighth volunteer regiment, comprising thirty-three officers and 1035 men. The remainder of the Thirty-fifth regiment is on the transport Roscerans due here in a few days.

The Lawton left Nagasaki a day ahead of the Thomas, and is expected to reach San Francisco today. Nothing was seen of the transport Garonne by the Thomas, although the Garonne left Nagasaki five days ahead of her with the Twenty-sixth regiment on board.

The transport Logan will sail for Manilla today with two companies of the First infantry, the Third squadron of the Ninth cavalry, the Second squadron of the Tenth cavalry and a battalion of the Eleventh infantry. hTe animal transport Thyra is scheduled to sail today for Manilla with several hundred horses and 1300 tons of supplies. The Ohio is to sail at noon tomorrow with troops.

CAPTURED

Report That Boers Have Taken Gen. French.

Five Hundred British Troops With Him.

London, April 15.—It is said that a private telegram has been received here to the effect that Gen. French, with 500 British troops, has been captured by the Boers while his force was enveloped in a mist on the hills. No confirmation of the report can be obtained.

The war office here knows nothing about the rumored capture of Gen. French and entirely discredits the report.

OUTLOOK NOT PLEASING

Although Organized Opposition to British Forces Is Practically Over the War Drags Wearily On.

New York, April 15.—Military men do not regard the outlook in South Africa as entirely satisfactory, although organized Boer opposition to the British forces is practically at an end, says the London correspondent of the Tribune. It is felt that so long as the irreconcilables persist in their determination to fight to the bitter end the war will drag wearily on, with here and there a little British success to chronicle, and occasionally news of some trifling achievement on the part of the guerrillas. Meanwhile Kitchener's huge army must be maintained, and English taxpayers must be content with the knowledge that the war is costing the country nearly £1,500,000 every week. The question of alien immigrations is again forcing its way into prominence. A good many people fear that, following the colonization of South Africa on a large scale by men and women of Anglo-Saxon blood at the close of the war, there will be an invasion of this country by impoverished middlemen, peddlers, money lenders and tailors from Jewish centers of population on the continent. The feeling among the working classes of the east end of London with regard to the immigration of destitute aliens is very strong. Whitechapel is largely inhabited by Hebrews of the very lowest class, whole streets formerly occupied by industrious and struggling Englishmen being now occupied by an undesirable population from the Ghettos of Western Russia, Germany and Austria. Lord Salisbury, Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain have at different times insisted on the necessity of preventing destitute aliens from taking up their abode here, but the colonization of the country with people who are undesirable from every point of view, except that of the sweating employes, still goes on. The fact of the matter is the government has dropped the alien immigration question because it is anxious not to lose the political support of the Hebrews in the big cities.

CLASH WITH THE TRUST

The First Conflict Between Organized Labor and Big Steel Corporation Developed In a Strike at McKeesport, Pa.

Pittsburg, April 15.—As a result of the dispute that for a week past has involved the employes of the W. Dewees Wood plant of the American Sheet Steel company, at McKeesport, and the company, about half of the men are on a strike today and the operation of the plant is badly crippled. The cause of the trouble was the recent discharge of several men, who, the men claim, were dismissed because they were members of the newly organized lodge of the Amalgamated association. The strike was ordered at a meeting of the local lodge yesterday afternoon and went into effect at 1 o'clock this morning. All is quiet about the works today. None of the discontented workmen are loitering about the mill, and there is no prospect of trouble. The members of the firm say that they will continue the operation of their plants, and that if they are troubled by the strikers at McKeesport, they will ship their material elsewhere for manufacture. The mill employs about 800 men, and about half of them are now out.

The event is looked upon as momentous throughout the iron and steel trade of the country, from the fact that it is the first conflict between organized labor and the new United States Steel corporation, and because of the announced intention today of President T. J. Shaffer, the head of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and tin Workers to tie up every plant of the new combine, steel, tin, tube, structural iron, wire and all, if necessary to win the fight. As to the chance that the men in all the mills of the United States Steel corporation will be called on to come out, no one connected with the management of any of the organized plants in the new corporation will consent to be quoted. The only underlying companies in the new corporation whose mills are entirely independent of the Amalgamater association are the Carnegie interests and the National Tube company. The mills of the American Steel Hoop company, the American Tinplate company and the Republic Iron and Steel company and a few of the National Steel, American Steel and Wire and American Bridge plants works under the Amalgamated association. Most of the American Steel and Wire plants are controlled by the Rodmill men.

RIGHTS OF EMPLOYERS

Decision By the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania Concerning the Enticing of Apprentices to Labor Unions.

Philadelphia, April 15.—The supreme court of Pennsylvania, in an opinion today, holds that members of the American Federation of Labor have no right to entice apprentices working in a factory to become members of the Glass Workers' union. The case upon which the opinion is based is an appeal of P. J. Skelly and others, members of the Glass Workers' union, from the judgment of the Allegheny county court restraining them from interfering with the apprentices of Charles L. Flaccus, a glass manufacturer of Tarentum, Pa. The supreme court dismisses the appeal at the cost of the members of the union. The opinion says, among other things, that the manufacturer had the right to employ workmen who were independent of any labor union, and he had the further right to adopt a system of apprenticeship which excluded his apprentices from membership in such unions, and no one had a right to interfere with it to his injury. The court found that the interference was injurious to him, and if allowed to continue would ruin his business.

DENMARK.

Will Be No Change In the Cabinet For Some Time.

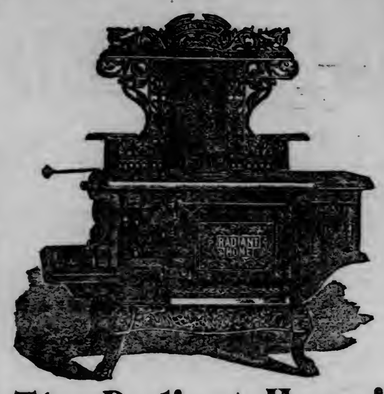

Copenhagen, April 15.—Despite the rumors of the resignation of the Schested ministry consequent upon the signal defeat at the recent elections, there will be no change in the cabinet for at least six months and possibly for a year, when elections for the landsthing will be held. This decision was reached at a council of state at which the king requested the ministry to remain in office. Some of the members desired to retire, but it was ultimately arranged that the cabinet should retain power.

When a change is mdae it is expected that a ministry of the Left will be formed, thus introducing parliamentaryism into Denmark for the first time.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Tax on Export Bills of Lading So Declared.

Washington, April 15.—In the United States supreme court an opinion was handed down today in the case of Fairbank vs. United States. The case involved the constitutionality of the war revenue law imposing a tax upon export bills of lading. The court decided against the government, holding that provision of the law unconstitutional. The opinion was handed down by Justice Brewer and Justices Harland, White and McKenna dissented.

The Radiant Home!

You can't get along without a range and you ought to have a good one. A poor range is a mighty poor investment—it will consume 30 per cent more fuel than a first-class one. The Radiant Home is rightly celebrated as the best baking and fuel-saving range made in the world. Hundreds in use today by Duluth's most economical housewives who will gladly testify to their merits. Let us quote you prices and convince you of the superiority of the Radiant Home over other ranges.

BOYS' MILITARY BRIGADE.

Marched to City Headquarters Saturday Afternoon.

That the Boys' Military brigade, under the command of Capt. Boyd, is doing good work, was proven Saturday afternoon, when about fifty members met for a route march from Garfield avenue to city headquarters and back. It had been the intention of the mayor to inspect the brigade, but business called him away and the boys returned home after giving a little exhibition drill in the presence of quite a delighted audience.

Professor Hanaker, of the Y. M. C. A., who witnessed the performance of the fancy drill squad, complimented Capt. Boyd on the smartness of the company, and Detective Troyer, who also inspected the company, remarked creditably on their appearance. The boys behaved and acted more like a band of well-trained soldiers than a lot of school children, and it is to be hoped by the projectors that from the ranks of the brigade shall rise many who shall, in the years to come, prove to the city that the training now received has made splendid youths and noble characters. Within the next month about thirty members will be in uniform, and Capt. Boyd claims that the brigade will then make a very creditable showing.

Plans are being formed for raising the chapel on Garfield avenue and using the basement for a gymnasium and drill hall, with one of the upper rooms for a reading room. In connection with the reading room a library will be started and Capt. Boyd requests the public, who may have suitable books to donate this cause, to drop him a card at 722 Garfield avenue, and he will call and explain the purposes of the organization and receive the donation. Such prominent men as Mayor Hugo, John Miller of the board of trade, Congressman Morris and even the governor have been approached with regard to the movement and have promised to aid as far as in their power the work of the Boys' Military brigade. Any further information will be cheerfully given by Rev. A. C. Manson, major and chaplain of the brigade, or by application to the captain at above address. Roster for the week:

Drill—B company, Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m. A company, Monday and Friday at 6:30 p. m.

Route march—Saturday afternoon, at 2 p. m., from Garfield avenue to Twenty-ninth avenue east, on Third street, and back to headquarters.

Bible classes at the usual time and places.

TROUT SEASON.

It Is Now Open In Wisconsin.

The trout fishing season for the state of Wisconsin opened at midnight last night and a goodly number if Duluth nimrods, who could hardly wait until the season opened in their own state, on May 1, left last night and this morning for fishing grounds along the various little trout streams in the neighboring state not far from this city. While the season for legal angling opens in Wisconsin today there are no doubt many persons, particularly among those living in the vicinity of the streams that "try their luck" a few days before they should, according to law, and it is understood from them that it is yet a little too early for the speckled beauties, that they are not running. There is still considerable snow in the woods on the lands that feed the neighboring trout streams, and still a little ice in some of them, and persons that have been inspecting some of the trout streams for a considerable distance say that the early fishermen are likely to be disappointed. Most of the anglers do not look for good fishing at an earlier date than May 1, when the season opens in this state.

The Miami's Master.

Capt. John Hartman has been selected as master of the steamer Miami, which is to run between Duluth and Mackinac island in conjunction with the Northern Steamship company's passenger boats. Capt. Hartman ran the Northern Light last year, and he was in command of the North West while Capt. Minar was running the yacht Wacouta.

Succeeds Dr. Weston.

Dr. Clarence Taylor, of this city, has succeeded Dr. Weston as physician in charge of the Emergency hospital. Dr. Taylor has had considerable experience in handling contageous disease, having been in charge of the Lake county emergency hospital for some time past.

MORE WAGES

Will Be Asked If Strike Is Not Settled.

Chicago, April 15.—President Peck, of the Chicago lodge of marine engineers, who are on a strike on the great lakes for an increase in wages, said today:

"If the marine engineers' strike is not settled by tonight our demand for wages will be increased 10 per cent. If the strike is not settled by May 1, we shall demand an increase of 15 per cent more. I expect, however, to receive word today that President Uhler, now in Cleveland, and the vesselmen, have come to terms. Whether the tug men will follow our lead is a matter that will be known only when they are put to work towing vessels which have non-union men aboard."

RALLIED SOMEWHAT.

Camden, Ohio, April 15.—Mrs. William R. Day, wife of Judge Day, former secretary of state, passed an unfavorable night, according to the attending physicians, but rallied somewhat during the morning.

PENSIONS GRANTED.

Washington, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following pensions have been granted: Original—Anthony Grethen, of Little Falls, $10. Additional—John L. Howard, of Brainerd.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

STIR IN MUSEUM

Former Duluth Young Lady Creates Sensation In Minneapolis.

Found to Have Smallpox at Dime Museum.

Doors Closed and Everybody In the Place Vaccinated.

Miss May Wilson, formerly of this city, created quite a stir in a dime museum in Minneapolis on Saturday evening. Miss Wilson left here about two weeks ago, accepting a position as piano player in the house of cheap amusement.

During the entertainment Saturday night some person noticed that she had the "polka dot" complexion, and telephoned police headquarters. The health officer, backed by policemen and deputies, went to the museum to investigate. Dr. Hall pronounced Miss Wilson's facial eruption genuine smallpox, and there was wild excitement in the big crowd.

Miss Wilson was removed to the Emergency hospital, the doors of the museum were locked, and every person present was vaccinated. A number of people were so opposed to the vaccination, however, that they insisted that the health authorities first vaccinate the mountain lions and tigers in the menagerie, and then vaccinate them afterward. The authorities did not feel that the wild animals needed the injection of virus and declined to enter the cages.

NEW UNIFORM

For German Field Service Inspected By King.

London, April 15.—King Edward received Gen. Von Moltke, nephew of the former field marshal, and Lieut. Usedom at Marlborough house today. The German officers were accompanied by a sergeant wearing the new German field service uniform sent by Emperor William for King Edward's inspection. The uniform differs little from the usual colonial equipment. The knapsacks are arranged that their weight falls entirely upon the wearer's back, and the whole equipment can be released whenever required by unclasping a single buckle.

King Edward expressed warm appreciation of the uniform and made Gen. Von Moltke a knight commander of the Royal Victorian order and Lieut. Usedom a commander of the same order.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

A Couple of Big Ones Just Incorporated.

Trenton, N. J., April 15.—These companies were incorporated here today:

The Northern Commercial company, capital $2,750,000, to acquire, appropriate store and furnish water for all uses. Also to do a general contracting business. The incorporators are Leon Sloss, Isaac L. Cebes, George H. Higbee and Williiam Thomas, all of San Francisco.

The Northern Navigation comany, capital $1,750,000. The aims and objects are the same as the above company, and has the same incorporators.

IS RECOVERING.

Wright, the Alleged Murderer, Is Getting Well.

Pittsburg, April 15.—Edward Wright, who is charged with having killed Detective Patrick Fitzgerald last Friday while resisting arrest for the alleged murder and robbery of Groceryman Kahney, is still confined in the Mercy hospital. He is rapidly recovering from his wounds, but refuses to admit that he is getting better and seems to dread confinement in jail. Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Wilcox and the two men, Robert Wilcox and John Wright, who were captured with Edward Wright, are still in jail.

"ROLAND OF BERLIN."

New Opera For Emperor Completed By Leoncavello.

Rome, April 15.—The Italia says Leoncavello has completed an opera, ordered by Emperor William in February, 1894, entitled "Roland, of Berlin," taken from the history of the Margrave Frederick of Brandenburg. Old Prussian accounts are interwoven in the music of the opera, which will shortly be placed in rehearsal at Berlin.

GEN. McCLURG DEAD.

Well Known Chicago Publisher Dies In Florida.

Chicago, April 15.—A private telegram announces the death today, at St. Augustine, Fla., of Gen. A. C. McClurg, head of the publishing house of A. C. McClurg & Co.

Gen. McClurg was widely known both as a business man and as a factor in public affairs. He served through the civil war from 1862, entering as a private and coming out as a colonel, with a brevet rank of brigadier general. He was born in Philadelphia and studied law under Chief Justice Lowry of Pennsylvania. He came to Chicago in 1859.

Gen. McClurg's health began to fail a year ago, and during last winter he went to Palm Beach, Fla., later removing with his wife to St. Augustine, where his death occurred.

You cannot enjoy perfect health, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes if your liver is sluggish and your bowels clogged. DeWitt's Little Early Risers cleanse the whole system. They never gripe. Max Wirth.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets

Give Perfect Digestion, Sound Sleep, Strong Nerves.

A Popular Remedy For Dyspepsia Which Has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

The spring of the year is the time for blood purifiers. It is the season when we think we must dose ourselves with sarsaparillas, bitters and the endless list of so-called blood purifiers and nerve tonics.

As a matter of fact there is but one possible way in which to purify the blood, and that is, through the stomach and bowels.

Pure blood results from wholesome food thoroughly digested. Impure blood results from poor digestion and assimilation. When the stomach refuses to work properly the food remains too long a time, fermenting, forming gases, shown by sour, bitter taste in the mouth, bloating and belching of gas and distress and discomfort generally. Poor blood, weak nerves, sleeplessness and a general don't care feeling can always be traced to imperfect digestion.

This is the reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to all other spring medicines and blood purifiers. They give perfect digestion, the food does not lie in the stomach for hours. They give a vigorous appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves, and wholesome food well digested makes pure blood, and in no other way can the blood be purified. The idea that a medicine, in itself, will purify the blood when the stomach and digestive organs are out of order is nonsense. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by thousands in preference to "bitters," "after dinner pills" and "blood purifiers," because they remove the cause of the impure blood, and you do not have to take them forever to get results. Dyspepsia is an obstinate disease to cure, and a remedy must be designed especially for it and nothing else. Cure-alls will not cure dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not claimed to cure everything or anything except Dyspepsia and stomach troubles, and for that it stands alone among patent medicines. Anyone suffering from any trouble with their digestion will find these tablets will give immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are prepared by the F. A. Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. No dieting nor change of habits is required, they digest the food.

NAVIGATION OPENED.

Steamer Goes Through the Straits of Mackinaw.

Chicago, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Portland passed through the straits of Mackinaw at 8:40 a. m. Sunday, bound down. The straits were full of ice, but soft and the steamer had no trouble in getting through. The ice jam at the mouth of St. Clair river broke at 4 p. m. Saturday, and the ice is reported running freely.

PAINTERS STRIKE.

Difficulty In St. Paul Not Expected to Last.

St. Paul, April 15.—About 200 members of St. Paul union of the Brotherhood of Painters, Paper Hangers and Decorators are not at work today.

The painters quit work because the agreement offered the master painters by the journeymen's union on Saturday has not been accepted.

About one-third of the masters have signed the agreement and are employing 100 union men.

J. W. Gammon, business agent of the union, stated that all indications seemed to point to a rapid settlement of the trouble which has been pending for several months between the masters and journeymen's union.

MAJ. MONAGHAN'S DEATH.

Washington, April 15.—Gen. MacArthur at Manilla today informed the war department of the death of Maj. William Monaghan, volunteer paymaster, who died from heart disease on April 13. Maj. Monaghan was a soldier of the civil war, serving in an Ohio regiment and was appointed from Ohio to his present position in June, 1898.

AT WEST DULUTH

William J. Springstead, formerly of West Duluth, who was enlisted into the regular army hospital corps last winter as a hospital steward is now in Manilla. Mr. Springstead was in Honolulu, H. I., en route for the Philippines in March, and the following is an extract from an interesting letter written to a friend in Duluth under date of March 28:

"I left the Zenith City on Friday, Jan. 15, and arrived in St. Paul the following morning. There orders were awaiting me to proceed to the Presidio of San Francisco, Cal., with 18 recruits. We left St. Paul in the afternoon of the same day. The journey to California was a very pleasant one; we had furnished us sleepers and tickets for mess in the dining car or at stop-over restaurants. We arrived on the following Wednesday in Frisco and went to the Presidio. There I received orders to report at Fort McDowell, where I remained until March 18, when the United States transport Meade sailed for Maulila, P. I. Our trip so far has been a pleasant one, only that for the first few days it was a trifle rough and some of the men had to accommodate the old man in 'Father Neptune' and feed the fishes. Aboard the Meade are the headquarters band, and First and Second squadrons of the Fifth cavalry, Troops A and B of the Fifteenth cavalry, a hospital detachment of 18 men and a number of cabin passengers. There are in all 697 enlisted men of the Fifth cavalry and 199 of the Fifteenth cavalry. Among the passengers are Gens. Ludlowe and Wade and staffs, who are going to the Philippines for active service. They will relieve two generals who are now in the service there, Probably Gens. Lloyd Wheaton and Bates will be relieved, the latter having been in command of the Department of Northern and Southern Luzon.

"The first we saw of land since leaving 'Frisco was the island of Leprogg, which we sighted on the morning of March 26. We then passed several volcanic islands, coming in sight of Honolulu about 10 o'clock a. m. and did not dock until 2 o'clock p. m. In the meantime the United States army transport quarantine officer came aboard to inspect the crew of the ship to see if there was any contagious disease aboard. Then we took the harbor pilot aboard, who guided us safely into the harbor to the pier. As soon as we tied up, I went ashore to look around a little. I visited the palace of ex-Queen Lil, which is now used for a court house and government building. Among the cities I have ever visited, Honolulu is one of the most beautiful. Of course most of the population is made up of moneyed Americans who have fine mansions with gardens of cocoanut palms and banana trees, flowers of various kinds. I returned to the ship about 6 o'clock in the afternoon after tramping about the city. On the morning of March 27, I left the boat at 10 a. m. went to the Y. M. C. A. rooms and wrote letters. At noon, took dinner in a cafe, and paid $1 for a meal that would cost 25 cents in Duluth. In the afternoon I took a car on the Pacific Electric Incline railway to Pacific Heights and had a birdseye view of the harbor and the city. Going up the incline a vision of the Duluth boulevard came to mind which seemed to correspond to the scenes I visited yesterday. From there I took a horse car to the Waikiki bathing resorts, with a fine beach, of course, and had a swim. Then to the Pali (precipice), a pass of some 1200 feet elevation between mountain peaks of 2800 and 3300 feet respectively, a charming view of grassy and sugar plantations, from the point. It was here that a great battle was fought between Kamehamha and the natives of Oahu, when the latter were driven with great slaughter through the pass and over the precipice of 500 feet in height.

"From this point I went to the Kapiolani park, a beautiful drive from which can be obtained a fine view of extinct volcanoes of Diamond Head, which soars aloft from the road to a height of some 675 feet. These are all the places of interest that I visited yesterday. On the morrow I expect to visit a Pal plantation. The Pal or Poy is anative vegetable, the root being the part used for food. It is prepared in the form of a meal and looks very much like starch. The natives eat it with their fingers, using the first and second fingers of each hand. They eat with great skill, and whenever a stranger visits them they get forks to eat with, as they are somewhat ashamed to eat with their fingers before others. I suppose this is because they are getting civilized.

"We will remain here until Monday, coaling and making preparations for the rest of the trip."

MRS. S. J. NYGREN DEAD.

There is a wide felt sorrow in West Duluth over the death of Mrs. S. J. Nygren, which occurred yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock, after a three weeks' illness with cerebral meningitis. From the very first her condition was regarded as serious, but until the very last all hope was not given up, as Mrs. Nygren was a young woman of splendid constitution, who had never before been sick. Mrs. Nygren was a woman very popular among the young folks and entertained in a social way many times during the winter just passed. She had a host of young girl friends who feel the loss of their friend very deeply. Mrs. Nygren's maiden name was Emma O. Joynton. She was born in Pembina, N. D., in 1871. The family moved to Duluth from Fergus Falls, Minn., about ten years ago. Three years ago the coming summer, she was united in marriage to Swan J. Nygren, the well-known and popular druggist of West Duluth, who is left to mourn her loss together with her mother, Mrs. Minnie Joynton and three sisters, Mrs. F. O. Gross and Mrs. Max Gross, of this city, and Mrs. J. H. Premo, of Minneapolis. The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon from the West Duluth Congregational church, Fifty-fifth avenue and Bristol street, and burial will be made at Forest Hill cemetery. Relatives are expected tomorrow morning.

BALL SEASON OPENED.

The baseball season in this city was opened yesterday by a red hot game at the West End park between the West Duluth Juniors and the Eagles, a team from up town. The game ended with a score of 10 to 9 in favor of the West Duluth team. The latter team is out this season for all comers and issues a challenge to any amateur team in the city. A. V. Young is the captain-manager and his address is 323 West Superior street. The ball team will soon hold a dance for the purpose of raising funds with which to purchase uniforms and equipment. The batteries yesterday were Young and Robinson, for the West Duluth Juniors and Nelson and Comes for the Eagles. Another game is scheduled for next Sunday.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Mrs. Edith Phelps and Joseph Wege of New Duluth, were united in marriage Saturday morning, Rev. P. Knudson performing the ceremony before a large number of friends of the couple. They will make their home in New Duluth.

The Amusement club met Friday evening at the home of James Kirkwood.

The Senate club will meet this evening for a business session and to initiate a few new members.

The funeral of Mrs. Ell Moen, of Twentieth avenue west took place from the Mission church yesterday afternoon.

Harry Ross, of the Great Eastern, has resigned to learn the saw filing trade with his father. He has been succeeded at the store by Alfred Holder.

The remains of the 5-year-old daughter of F. C. Dubois, which have been in the vault for some weeks, will be shipped tomorrow to Mr. Dubois' former home in Portland, Mich.

Charles and Joseph Lauerman returned this morning from a visit at Aberdeen, N. D.

Mr and Mrs. John Mathison, of 10 Cody street, are rejoicing over the arrival of a daughter, born this morning.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. William Chesney.

Emil Zauft has the contract for remodeling the big boarding house on Fifty-fourth avenue west, belonging to the Building and Loan association.

George Thaldorf, has resumed his duties as clerk at the Phillips hotel after a winter's absence from the city.

Four cars of electrical equipment for the new double truck street cars have been unloaded at the spur track of the Northern Pacific company at Oneota street.

D. R. McKinlay, while walking on Fifty-fourth avenue between Gosnold and Bristol streets on Friday night, fell and broke his ankle, also two ribs, which were struck by a box that he was carrying.

A delightful party was given on Saturday evening at the home of J. J. Jorgenson, 427 Fifty-seventh avenue west. Mr. Jorgenson being surprised by a number of friends who dropped in to celebrate his fortieth birthday anniversary. Refreshments and dancing were in order until a late hour.

The condition of George Penhale, who has been threatened with pneumonia for some time, is very much improved today.

Mrs. N. C. Hendricks is reported much improved from her illness.

The home of Eugene Smith, at Proctorknott, was burned last night. There was no loss of life, but the loss on the house and contents was almost total, only a few pieces of furniture being taken out.

Edward J. Filiatrault has accepted a position with the Burgess Electrical company, and will not move to Chicago, as stated a few days ago.

A SCHEMER.

Phillip Connors Is Tricky But His Plan Miscarried.

In police court this morning Phillip Connors, a well known young West Duluthian, was bound over to the grand jury for passing a fraudulent check on C. Erickson. The check amounted to $54.

Connors was one of the two Clever Bowery men captured a week ago when the police arrested C. O. Swanson, of 209 Sixth avenue west. Swanson was wanted for robbing Harker's saloon opposite the Union depot.

On Feb. 23 while Swanson was a bartender in the Harker saloon a railroad man named Murray dropped a check on the floor. Mr Harker gave it to his bartender with instructions to put it in the money drawer until the owner called for it. Swanson gave it to his pal, Phillip Connors, instead, and Connors after forging Murray's signature passed it at Erickson's clothing store.

In passing this check Connors bought a necktie and a couple of shirts. The shirts were found by the police in searching Swanson's house. This morning young Connors sought to break up the state's evidence by wearing a necktie very similar to the one he bought at the time he presented the check. He evidently expected Mr. Ericson's clerk to identify this tie as the one he sold him and then prove that he bought it elsewhere, but the clerk was too shrewd and detected a slight difference in the two ties.

This afternoon the examination of Swanson was taken up. He is charged with larceny, having, the police allege, taken about $7 worth of cigars from Harker's saloon.

LEASE IS FILED.

Transfer of Elba Mine Formally Made.

The lease of the Elba mine by the Minnesota Iron company to Pickands, Mather & Co. was noted in The Herald a few days ago. The lease runs from the Elba Iron company to the Hobart Iron company and was filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds, dated Feb. 23, 1901. The lease runs for thirty years, and it covers the el½ of the se¼ and the sw¼ of the se¼ of section 13-58-17. The royalty is 30 cents per ton, and the lease provides that 50,000 tons shall be produced this year and 100,000 tons each year thereafter.

It is provided that all the ore shall be shipped over the Duluth & Iron Range so long as that road's freight rates are the same as those charged in good faith by competing lines of road.

The Corsica Iron company and the Hobart Iron company both filed amendments to their articles of incorporation fixing their capital stock at $100,000 each.

Residence Damaged.

Fire early this morning partially destroyed the residence of Mrs. Annie McKeever, 1625 East Fifth street. The blaze was first discovered on the second floor and burned clear through to the roof before the fire department could get it under control. The loss was estimated between $300 and $400, well covered by insurance.

A second fire early this morning caused a small loss in a supply store at 1423 West Superior street. The fire was discovered within a short time after starting and easily put out.

The Colbentson Concert.

The concert given at the Armory yesterday afternoon by Oliver Colbentson, assisted by a number of musicians, was largely attended and was a success musically as well. Master Colbentson is but 14 years of age, but is a violinist of much promise. He plays in the Flaaten orchestra and is doing fine work. His solo numbers and his duets with Mr. Bradbury were all fine and indicated the possession of large talents and excellent spirit. Those who took part besides the young man were Mrs. Berryman, of Superior; Miss Thiel, Mr. Ostergren, Mr. Rice, George Tyler, Mr. Bradbury and Mr. Borch. Mrs. Hoelscher was accompanist.

KING'S MONEY

Garnishment Proceedings Is Now Under Way.

W. A. Wagner was under examination in the office of the clerk of district court this morning in the garnishee proceedings brought against him in the case of Marie M. Owsley and others against King & Steele. It will be remembered that during the latter part of March it came out that George R. King had a lot of cash on his person and lost part of it. The plaintiffs in this suit against King and his partner began garnishment proceedings against Mr. Wagner, who had part of the money that was not lost, and he came up in those proceedings this morning.

Before the testimony was begun, R. A. Benson objected to any testimony because the summons was served on Mr. Wagner before the filing of the affidavit of garnishment in the clerk's office. Mr. Benson also served notice that the money in Mr. Wagner's hands, $1900, belonged to him and not to Mr. King.

Mr. Wagner testified that on March 25 Mr. Benson handed him $1900 in currency for safe keeping, and he gave a receipt for it. He did not know whose the money was but Mr. Benson said that if Mr. King asked for it and produced the receipt he was to have it. The witness told him that he would do nothing of the kind, but that he would return it to the party that gave it to him and to none other. The money is now in the First National bank. Mr. Wagner admitted that the receipt he gave Mr. Benson had a "proviso" that the money belonged to George R. King.

Mr. Benson claims the money by virtue of a certain bill of sale, the nature of which is not given.

AND STILL ANOTHER.

A Forfeited Tax Sale Next September.

There will be two forfeited tax sales this year in Duluth. Besides the one covering property in the forfeited tax law of 1897, which was described in The Herald Saturday afternoon, the legislature passed another one covering property bid in for the state in the forfeited tax sale under the law of 1899. Under this law a sale will be held next September. The one correcting the 1897 law will be held in June.

The law provides that up to Sept. 1, 1901, owners of property bid in for the state under the forfeited tax law of 1820 may redeem for 50 per cent of the taxes for 1895 and prior years, providing taxes are paid in full up to date. The sale is to be held on the second Monday in September. As in the other sale, title cannot be assailed unless suit is begun within nine months after the sale.

MAY ESTABLISH ONE.

Discussion of Y. W. C. S. at M. E. Church.

A number of women met at the First Methodist church this morning to discuss the formation of a Young Women's Christian association in this city. Miss Mary Ward, state secretary, has been here for a few days agitating the subject. The feeling was expressed at the meeting that there is strong need for such an institution here. A resolution was adopted providing for looking up the conditions and as soon as it is deemed wise by those best situated to judge, to take steps to establish an association here. A boarding home such as a number of the large cities have, it is believed, would fill a want here.

ENDORSED BY MRS. RORER.

Brings Big Demand For Wesson Oil.

All the grocers of the city report a greatly increased demand for Wesson cooking oil since last week. Mrs. S. T. Rorer, the famous cook and food scientist used it altogether in place of fats for frying and for material for shortening and she recommended it very strongly when asked by the women as to what she thought of it. She spoke of it especially as having no odor and of its cheapness because fish, meat, dough, etc., may be cooked in the same oil and yet not one have the trace of a taste of any other.

A few days after she had been here a lady in the East End called up a grocer and asked if he kept Wesson oil. She heard a hearty laugh through the telephone and the grocer remarked:

"You have been attending Mrs. Rorer's lectures haven't you?"

She responded that she had and he said that he had more orders for Wesson oil since she had been here than he had in a long time previously.

DENIES KILLING

Joseph Beauchamp Walks Into Police Headquarters.

Claims if He Shot Wife It Was Accidental.

He Tells a Very Peculiar Story of the Affair.

Joseph Beauchamp walked excitedly into police headquarters this afternoon and nervously denied that he had tried to kill his girl wife at Crookston last evening. He says that the shooting was an accident, and he did not even know that the bullet had touched his wife until he arrived here this morning. The police are holding him, however, until the authorities at Crookston can be communicated with.

Beauchamp says that he went out to Crookston on Friday to visit his wife. She was stopping with a relative about a mile and a half out of town. Last evening he started back home and she said she would walk into Crookston with him. They were walking the railroad ties side by side, when the woman felt something hard in his pocket and inquired what it was. Beauchamp said that he did not care to tell her it was a revolver, for fear of frightening her, and evaded the question, intending to shift the revolver to his hip pocket at the first opportunity.

As they were passing a car on the track Mrs. Beauchamp stepped ahead, and the young man tried to change the gun to the hip pocket. He says that he must have been very nervous, for in some manner the gun went off. His wife turned and threw her arms around him, and both fell to the track, but he says that his wife told him that she was not hurt. She then asked him to throw the gun into the river, and he did.

Beauchamp says that his wife walked into Crookston with him and he hired a livery rig for her to drive back home with. That was the last he saw of her and he claims that she was apparently all right then.

Beauchamp is but 22 years of age and his wife is only 18. Her parents live at 22 West Second street, in this city, according to Beauchamp's disconnected story. He said that he had been living with them for six or seven weeks, but did not know their names.

The couple were married last summer. A few weeks after the marriage Beauchamp was taken with paralaysis and spent fifteen weeks in St. Mary's hospital. The Catholic Order of Foresters looked after him for that period, but not having any money he was soon compelled to go to the poor farm. He stayed out there for two months, and then coming back to the city he says that he went to live with his father-in-law at 22 West Second street.

He explained that he got money to make the Crookston trip by raffling off a watch, which netted him $115. Then he bought the revolver at a gun store in this city last Thursday, intending, as he says, to raffle it off and make more money.

The young man seems to be under a great nervous strain and tells his disconnected story with difficulty.

TO BEAUTIFY.

Thomas E. Hill Will Tell How to Do It.

This week Secretary Thomas E. Hill of the Duluth Improvement association will start a movement that is of special interest to the people having homes in the city, or who expect to some time have them here. It will begin on Thursday evening with the establishment of a local improvement society on Duluth Heights. Mr. Hill will visit the Heights Thursday afternoon with a of looking over the land and gathering material for a lecture that he will deliver in the evening to the people on the matter of beautifying the Heights. The lecture will touch upon the planting of shade trees, the kind best suited for the climate, the best manner of planting the trees, and how to take care of them after they are set out. He will also talk along the line of beautiful lawns, how to acquire them and how to keep them up. Flower gardens will also be treated of in an interesting manner, and various other topics that have for their object the beautifying of a neighborhood.

Another matter that Mr. Hill will bring up for the consideration of the people will be roads, how to construct and keep up roads in the suburbs and in small villages. The matter of curbing will be treated of, and Mr. Hill will show how a fine even curbing of sod can be constructed and maintained.

Another topic that will be of general interest in some neighborhoods is that of fencing of lawns. Mr. Hill does not believe in it, and will tell why. He will also take up the matter of domestic animals running about the streets and how to suppress the evil. In general it will be a general lecture on the science of beauty and its practical application in the city of Duluth.

The meeting will not be taken up entirely by Mr. Hill, for citizens are asked to come and take part. They will be asked for suggestions that they may have along the line of beautifying their property, and an exchange of ideas will be encouraged.

On Friday evening a meeting of a similar nature will be held at Lakeside, and on later dates meetings will be held at the West End and at West Duluth.

It is Mr. Hill's desire that every citizen that has any interest at all in this subject will turn out to aid in the movement that means a beautiful city and an increased valuation of property.

Owing to the illness of Rev. D. W. Macheal, service was not held in St. John's English Lutheran church yesterday. Rev. Macheal was taken ill very suddenly Saturday morning and was unable to secure another pastor to occupy his pulpit. His illness is not considered serious, however, and he expects to be out again in a few days.

Judge Ensign Saturday afternoon signed an order confirming the sale of the property interest of O. W. Saunders by the assignee, H. A. Wing. The assignee is directed by the order to give the purchasers title to the property.

A marriage license has been issued to Isabelle McCaffrey and William E. Jones.

The lists of jurors for the May term of district court were drawn today, and placed in the hands of the sheriff for service. The May term will begin May 1.

C. d'Autremont, Jr., left this afternoon for Calumet to attend a meeting of the Calumet and Arizona Copper company. The stock has not yet been issued, but it is expected that it will be prepared for at this meeting. There has also been some over-subscription of the stock, and this will be settled up at the meeting.

For a delicious smoke ask for the Tom Reed cigars.

John H. Hunter, of Chicago, will speak at the Lake avenue Bethel tonight, subject: "How We Got the Bible." Special singing.

Edmund Andrews has begun suit in district court against Emily Jordan to recover $654.50, alleged to be due as rent for the house at 123 West Second street. The rent was $25 per month until May 1, 1900, when it was raised to $35, and it is claimed that no rent was paid from July 1, 1898, to Feb. 1, 1901. Crassweller & Crassweller are the attorneys.

C. H. Thornton has purchased through Little & Nolte the T. B. Hawkes house at the corner of Third street and Fifteenth avenue east. The consideration was $6000.

Fred C. Wigginton, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. McGindley, of this city, died at Minneapolis Saturday of typhoid fever. He was about 35 years of age and had lived in Duluth for a number of years before going to Minneapolis. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity of this city.

W. J. Olcott has returned from Ann Arbor, Mich., where he was called by the death of his father. Mr. Olcott was in the East at the time of his father's death. Mrs. Olcott was present at his end.

F. H. Abbe, of Soudan, mining engineer at the Minnesota mine, has been placed in charge of the mine, succeeding Capt. Edward Ball. Mr. Abbe is a son-in-law of O. D. Kinney.

The Duncan & Brewer sawmill will start sawing tomorrow morning. It was planned to start the mill this morning, but owing to necessary delay the date was set for a day later.

PERSONALS.

Mrs. D. A. Cone, of the Zenith Fur company, has gone East to buy furs for the fall trade. She will be gone six weeks.

S. R. Payne has returned from New York.

H. G. Gearhart has gone to Wausau, Wis., on a short business trip.

Edward Hansen returned yesterday from an extended trip through Germany, Switzerland and France.

J. O. Dalzell, general agent of the Northern Pacific road, left this afternoon for a short visit in St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Boettcher and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Boettcher, of Evansville, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. John Manss, of Cincinnati, Ohio make up a party of visitors in the city that are at the Spalding today.

J. C. Eden, traffic manager of the Eastern Minnesota road, came up from St. Paul this morning.

G. A. Tomlinson left this afternoon for St. Paul.

J. L. Greatsinger, the new president of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, left this afternoon for Brooklyn to take up his duties there. He did his last work as president of the Duluth & Iron Range and of the Minnesota Iron company today.

Temporary Loan.

Judge Lochren has filed an order permitting the receivers of the Commercial Light and Power company to make a temporary loan of $8250 from the First National Bank of Duluth, in order that they may issue a certified check to the city in connection with a bid on the street lighting contract. They represent in the petition that it is in the highest degree important to the preservation of the property that they get this contract, and that if they do the property in their hands will sell for much more at the foreclosure sale than it would otherwise.

TO MEET AT MILWAUKEE.

Columbus Ohio, April 15.—The Amalgamated Association of Sheet Metal Workers, after a spirited discussion, decided to hold their next bi-ennial convention at Milwaukee.

TO FIX AMOUNT

United States Makes a Direct Proposition To Powers.

Placing Chinese Indemnity at Two Hundred Million.

Would Require a Heavy Scaling of Various Claims.

Berlin, April 15.—It is officially confirmed here that the United States has made a proposition to the powers to fix the total Chinese indemnity at £40,000,000 ($200,000,000) coupled with the condition that the payment be made at once. German officials point out that the amount named would require a heavy scaling of the different claims, but that the proposition is practicable and open to discussion, owing to the clause requiring cash payment. But if it is contemplated to divide the indemnity mechanically, it is doubtful whether it will be acceptable, since Russia says her government claims alone will amount to £17,000,000; this is aside from private claims. The proposition would give Germany only £5,000,000, whereas the China expedition has already cost her £12,000,000. The claims of Great Britain amount to less than £5,000,000. Officials, therefore, argue that the amount should be apportioned according to the expense borne by the different powers. The representative of the Associated Press gets the impression that Germany is ready to discuss the proposition in a conciliatory spirit, influenced by the belief that China is unable to pay all the claims demanded.

Paris, April 15.—The correspondent here of the Associated Press is informed from a trust worthy source that the outlook for an early settlement of the Chinese indemnity question is less promising than a week ago.

Negotiations between the powers are bringing out conflicting ideas and interests and are likely to be very protracted. The roposition of the United States to limit the total indemnity to $200,000,000 is the only one under discussion and is not regarded with favor by more than one government, which considers the sum too small and are disinclined to reduce their claims to the figures the United States desires.

A Washington dispatch, published in London, affirming that the United States proposes that the indemnity be divided between the powers in proportion to the number of troops which participated in the actual relief of the legations at Pekin is regarded as incorrect. No such proposal has reached the French government which considers that the entire expenses incurred as a result of the whole operations carried out, must be taken as the basis for indemnity.

It is believed that the claims of individuals will be first presented and paid. This matter will be expedited as much as possible in order to allow an early resumption of commerce and work on other foreign enterprises.

Nothing is known here of the reported intention of the emperor to return to Pekin without the dowager empress and no faith is placed here in the reported hostility between Russia and Japan. The French information indicates that conciliatory negotiations are proceeding between those two countries with the prospect of a thorough understanding regarding the position of both toward Manchuria and Corea.

LOCKOUT.

Three Hundred Union Carpenters Are Idle at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, April 15.—The lockout of the union carpenters by the members of the Master Builders' association became effective this morning, and 300 men are idle. The association has forty-four members, all of whom are standing by the agreement. Work on all the large contracts is at a standstill, but the outside work, house construction, repairs, etc., are not yet affected.

COUNTERFEITER.

Man Arrested at Sioux Falls With Outfit.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 15.—A house was raided here last night by the federal authorities, and a complete counterfeit outfit, consisting of dies, metal and tools, was confiscated. Levi Clark, alleged counterfeiter, was arrested. Officers are hot on the trail of others. Much spurious coin has been passed recently in this and adjoining counties.

SUSTAINS THE CITY.

Decision In the St. Paul Gaslight Case.

Washington, April 15.—Justice White of the United States supreme court today handed down an opinion in the case of the St. Paul Gas Light company vs. the city of St. Paul, Minn., in the matter of the proceedings of the city to compel the Gas company to remove its posts in view of the introduction of electric lighting. The company resinsted the city's demand on the ground that the ordinance requiring removal was an impairment of contract. The case was decided in favor of the city in that it was dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Justice White also remarked that the ordinance does not necessarily effect a breach of contract.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

New York, April 15.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed today in the United States district court against the Deer Park rBewing company, of oPrt Jervis, N. Y., the petition alleging claims aggregating $32,465. Attached to the petition is an affidavit of the firm's inability to pay its debts, made by Kurt Rudolph Sternberg, president.

CORBIN TO MARRY.

Will Wed Miss Edyth Patten of Washington.

Washington, April 15.—Mrs. Patten today announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Edyth Patten, to Adjt. Gen. Corbin of the United States army. The news of the engagement is received with deep interest in society here, although it cannot be said to have come as a surprise, as Gen. Corbin has been paying marked attention to Miss Patten for some time. Miss Patten is a very attractive brunette and has long been an acknowledged leader in Washington's social circle.

NOT LIABLE.

Christian Scientists Not Answerable to Medical Law.

Milwaukee, April 15.—Judge Eugene S. Elliott, in the circuit court today, decided that Christian Scientists are not liable to prosecution under the state medical law. The court ruled that the Scientists can no more be held for practicing medicine when their means of healing is by prayer, than a minister who prays at the bedside of the sick, and receives therefore a fee either directly or indirectly. The case was that of the state against Crecentia Arries and Emma Nichols, Christian Scientists, who treated a child named Grosenbach afflicted with diphtheria and who died from the disease.

FAILED TO OBEY.

Coal Miners Refused to Strike as Ordered.

Louisville, April 15.—Coal miners to the number of 3000 in Hopkins, Christian and Webster counties, this state, who were ordered some time ago by officials of the United Mine Workers to strike today, failed to obey the order. Only about 2 per cent of the men are said to have struck and the mines are operating as usual. There appears to be a difference of opinion between the miners and union officials, this being the second occasion on which the former have disregarded on order to strike.

RIPLEY TESTIFIES.

He Denied Acquaintance With the Conspirators.

Frankfort, Ky., April 15.—When the trial of Capt. Ripley was resumed this afternoon, the defendant took the stand and denied personal acquaintance with any of the alleged conspirators, except Taylor, whom he had met on only two occasions prior to the shooting of Governor Goebel. As to the conversation with ex-Governor Taylor, he quoted Taylor as having said: "These are horrible times and some irresponsible crank is liable to kill Goebel and me, too."

TO THE COAST.

Hill and Others Make a Hurried Trip.

St. Paul, April 15.—President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern railroad left this afternoon for Seattle and the Pacific coast, accompanied by other railroad officials and Edward Tuck, of Paris, and A. T. French, of New York, who are heavily interested in various railroads. Mr. Hill denied himself to all callers, and would have nothing whatever to say about the Burlington deal.

The present trip is a hurried one, and the party will immediately return.

WAS PRESENTED.

Petition From Porto Rico Given to President.

Washington, April 15.—Santiago Iglesias, a representative of the Federation of Labor in Porto Rico, who came to this country recently with a petition signed by 6000 Porto Ricans, praying for relief from the distressing conditions alleged to exist on the island, presented the petition to the president today. He was accompanied by Frank R. Morrison, secretary of the Federation of Labor. Mr. Iglesias told the president that the destitution and distress existing in the island could be relieved if the government would expend liberal sums in the building of roads. The president said that he was very much interested in the welfare of the people of the island and promised to look into the matter.

ONE KILLED.

Point Pleasant, W. Va., April 15.—A south-bound freight train on the Ohio River railroad ran through a temporary trestle near here today. The engine and five cars went through and were destroyed. Engineer Pennick, of Parkersburg, was killed. Several trainmen were slightly injured.

ELECTED ARCHBISHOP.

Montreal, April 15.—At a meeting of the Anglican bishops here today, Bishop Bond, of Montreal, was elected archbishop and metropolitan of Canada.

Tar Macadam Street Paving.

City Engineer Patton has suggested that "tar macadam" be used for the paving of Nineteenth avenue east, and it is stated that this material may be adopted. It has been used with considerable advantage in various localities, notably in Hamilton, Ont., and St. John, N. B., the latter place being noted for its fine coal tar sidewalks, many of which have been down for a long term of years and are still in fine condition. The composition and mode of laying this material is shown by the specifications prepared for the city of Hamilton by its board of works department. In the first place, all earth or other material above the sub-grade is excavated so as to conform to the level of the sub-grade, which is ten inches below the finished surface of the roadway. After the sub-grade is formed to the proper "camber" of the road—generally one-half inch per foot, or six inches for 24-foot roadway—it is thoroughly rolled with the steam roller. If soft spots are revealed they are filled with good solid material. In regard to size of stone, the first six inches are the same as for a macadam or Telford roadway, thoroughly rolled. If so required, it may be made of hard broken stone, furnace clinkers, or bricks rolled smooth. Upon this is placed the tarred stone—the first layer being three inches of hand-broken stone to pass through a two and one-half inch ring; then a two-inch layer of machine broken stone, the whole smoothed off with a roller, and after top-dressing is applied, thoroughly rolled with a steam roller. On this a layer composed of fine gravel and quarry clippings, mixed in equal proportions, three-fourths of an inch thick, is placed and well rolled in so as to fill the interstices. Before finishing, a dressing of stone screenings for the purpose of coloring is scattered broadcast, to be worked in by the traffic—all layers, including the coloring layer, to be thoroughly compacted by rolling. The work must be done in the summer months and all work suspended during wet weather. This process is said to give a remarkably fine and durable roadway at low cost. It is more especially adapted to the residential portions of the city, or to sections where the traffic is not particularly heavy. It is not recommended for heavy traffic streets, or where there is a car track in the center of a street of ordinary width.

Another Good Crop Is Promised.

The government crop report and also the one put forth by the American Agriculturalist, agree that there is every indication at present that one more will be added to the long series of good crops with which the country has been favored. All this means much to the farmers of the country. The wheat crop of the United States in 1900 was 522,229,505 bushels, a falling off from the crop of 1899 of 25,074,341 bushels; but the average farm price of wheat in 1900 was 3.5 cents per bushel higher than in 1899. This made the smaller crop of 1900 worth nearly $4,000,000 more than the larger crop of 1899. The corn crop of 1900 was one of the four largest ever gathered, being 2,105,102,516 bushels. The price was 5.4 cents per bushel more than in 1899 and the aggregate value of the corn crop was $122,000,000 more last year than in the previous year. The oat crop of 1900 was one of the largest on record, being estimated at 809,125,989 bushels. The barley crop was 58,925,833 bushels; rye, 23,995,927 bushels; potatoes, 370,926,897 bushels, and hay, 50,110,906 tons. The hay crop was the smallest, with one exception, since 1888, but the average price was $8.89 per ton, as compared with $7.27 per ton in 1899, so that the value of the hay crop in 1900 was $445,538,878, or $33,600,000 more than the larger crop in 1899. The total value of the eight staple farm products in 1900 was $1,861,466,582, an increase of $248,430,298 over the value of the same eight products in 1899. Our exports of wheat in 1900 were about 10,000,000 bushels less than in 1899, and less in value by about $11,000,000. But in wheat flour there was a gain in value of over $2,000,000, and the gain in exports of corn was about $2,500,000.

THE BOOM IN STOCKS.

The townsite boomer of fifteen and twenty years ago has vanished from the face of the earth. The places that knew him once will know him no more forever. He has disappeared with the peculiar conditions that made him possible. In his place has arisen another, not less powerful, not less interesting. He is named the trust promoter. Like his predecessor, while he makes millions, he assists others to make billions.

As the corner lots in the boom towns of the eighties doubled in value in a week under the brilliant manipulation of the boomer, so stocks jump 50 to 100 per cent in a fortnight under the mesmeric power of the promoter.

The man of fifteen years ago who had dreams of quick wealth bought city real estate, the man of today who would be rich buys stocks. Stocks in anything, it matters not. Anything that may come within the sphere of the promoter's influence is liable to double in a night. Wonderful tales are told, and they are true just now, of thousands made on Atchison common, on Union Pacific, or on any other of a dozen leading lines. Holders of the Consolidated Iron Mines stock, who would have thanked a friend to take it at 40, saw it move up from one notch to another until they shut their eyes for fear of selling at 200.

The whole country has the fever, and all the spare money is going into stocks. No wealth is being created, yet the available assets of the United States are doubling every six months. Where will it end? There must be an end to this some day. Will there be a financial explosion that will startle the world? The pace set by the movement during the last ninety days cannot be kept. It is the pace that kills—the lambs. When a promoter makes $7,500,000 commission in the organization of one combine, somebody must pay the fiddler.

The country is going through the speculative spasm that attacks the people every twenty years. For a few years there will be castles built in the air by many and castles built on the Hudson by a few—and then will come the awakening. It is a glorious thing to indulge in these financial champagne suppers, but we must not forget the next day. It is all right to take fortune at her word. Although all know she is a jade, she may be constant. But some one always holds the bag.

SUICIDE AND WEATHER.

The current number of the Popular Science Monthly contains an article by Edward G. Dexter, of the university of Illinois, on the subject of suicide. Its principal feature is refutation of the very general impression that inhabitants of gloomy and foggy countries are more prone to kill themselves than those who live in regions of sunshine and pleasant skies. He demonstrates that Montesquieu's statement that "Great Britain is the classic land of suicides" is pure fiction, and shows that there are fewer suicides committed in "that cold and cloudy clime" than in any country in Europe.

Day by day for five years Professor Dexter tabulated the suicide and weather records of New York city. In 1826 days there were 2946 suicidal attempts, of which 1962 succeeded. He discovered that suicides are more numerous when weather conditions are pleasant and exhilarating. On clear, dry days suicides are in excess of those committed on wet, cloudy days. The favorite period for their commission is between April and August. While excessive heat or cold raises the suicide percentage, the largest number of suicides are committed when the weather is most agreeable. More persons kill themselves when the thermometer ranges from 45 to 70 degrees than do when it registers below 45 and above 20.

High humidity and high winds are also accompaniments of suicide. The connection is explained by the statement that, while humid weather lowers the vital forces, high winds increase the strain on the nervous system and thus diminish self-control. All these explanations, however, do not entirely account for the fact that suicide is less frequent in gloomy than in bright weather.

Professor Dexter tries to unravel the paradox by advancing the theory that on bright and pleasant days the contrast of others' happiness with the misery of the person contemplating self-destruction—of the outer sunshine with his inner gloom—overcomes the struggle that he has long waged against a terrible temptation and forces him to yield to a long-restrained impulse. Of course this is merely a theory, and it does not appear that Professor Dexter has demonstrated that the number of suicides and the character of the weather have any relation whatever.

There is a school law in the state of Connecticut which says that the children in the educational institutions shall be taught that tobacco is a poison which no human being should ever take into his system in any form. Connecticut tobacco plays an important part in the industries of the state and the quality and quantity of the crop are the pride of citizens. Recent experiments in growing the leaf have been so successful that the governor in his inaugural message urged the continuance of the experiments as they mean much to the growers in the future. For the governor to advocate the indefinite development of a substance which the school laws say is a poison and should never be taken into the human system is rather a peculiar position to take, and from which it would seem evident that he does not agree with the makers of the law. As a matter of fact, but few people of the state do. The leading newspapers ask for the repeal of what they term a foolish piece of legislation and one of "arrant hypocrisy." They certainly have good grounds for such an arraignment.

Tom L. Johnson, the new mayor of Cleveland, is doing things. Elected as a Democrat, he has shocked par-- friends by making Gen. Meyer, a Republican, his director of law. He is enforcing strict business rules and standards in the drawing up of all papers connected with the transaction of the public business. He has started out on a campaign against the blockading of the sidewalks by merchants and dealers. Against a report that his administration is to be "wide open," he has instructed the chief of police that no gambling houses are to be run during his term of office, and to "impress this with the aid of the patrol wagon;" "there is to be no selling of baseball pools. Pull the men who attempt it, and pull them often;" "prepare a list of the dives and close them also. Raid them early and often;" "in a word, enforce the laws and ordinances to the letter, and remember that all offenders look alike."

As an index of prosperity the movements of the railroads rarely ever fail to serve as a faithful guide. For the past three months the purchases of rolling stock and other supplies of the different roads have been enormous, and as railroads are not in the habit of buying things unless they expect to have a use for them, it may be taken as an indication of what the country is doing. During January 11,979 cars and 329 locomotives were ordered as against 5524 cars and 165 locomotives in January of last year. February orders were for 21,953 cars and 240 locomotives as compared with orders for 10,543 cars and 185 locomotives in February 1900. During March the orders for cars were 11,439 and for locomotives 414. March of last year recorded orders for 9382 cars and 380 locomotives.

It used to be a common saying at Washington that few government clerks die and none ever resign. This statement will have to be amended to comply with the conditions as they now exist. Last year 199 government clerks at Washington resigned and in the service at large there were 340 resignations. The secret of the great number of resignations is that those who voluntarily retire from government employ find better positions in private establishments. It is getting to be a common thing for young men to go to Washington and secure positions in the scientific and technical departments, and after obtaining a thorough professional education in certain lines, resign and go into a private position with a big salary.

At Winstead, Conn., there are twenty young ladies who are very much interested to know who secured the dime that was hidden in a cake which was served by the hostess at a function given in honor of three Smith college students. A cake in which had been placed a ring, a thimble and a dime was served. When it had been eaten amid much jollification, the hostess requested the holders of the prizes to announce themselves. One had the ring, another the thimble and then followed an ominous silence, during which the young ladies covertly moistened their lips to see if a taste of the money clung there. The question of general concern remains as to who got the dime.

The "common law" marriage bill referred to a short time ago as pending in the New York legislature has been passed by both houses and will go into effect Jan. 1, 1902. By its terms there can be a marriage by agreement as at present, but the contract must be written and witnessed by two and recorded in the town or city clerk's office within six months. The principal objects of the bill are to do away with blackmail which has become quite prevalent and to secure to women their just property rights to which they may be entitled under that form of marriage.

It would be interesting to know just what the exact conditions in Porto Rico really are. Governor Allen says the natives are getting along very nicely, while the newspaper correspondents say that the natives are in great distress. On the one hand the import trade of the island is increasing which would seem to bear out the statement of prosperity, while on the other hand the emigration from the island is enormous, which would go to show that the people are either unable to find work or are thoroughly dissatisfied.

It has developed that ex-Capt. Oberlin M. Crater, who in connection with some close friends of Senator Platt, of New York, robbed the government of about $1,700,000, "soaked" his share of the plunder, about $700,000 in bonds and real estate, which may be recovered. He has been whining or raging ever since his conviction over his imprisonment, and demanding or imploring his release—so as to enjoy his stolen property while he is yet young. But what about his co partners in crime? They have never been touched yet, and probably never will be.

Rope skipping as practiced by thousands of little girls throughout the country becomes, like any violent exercise, a dangerous pastime when indulged in to excess. A 9-year-old New York school girl, during her recess at the public school, skipped the rope 406 times. A short time after she was found in her seat unconscious, and when taken to her home was found to be suffering from paralysis. No hopes were entertained for her recovery.

Included in the list of claims against China on account of losses and injuries received by reason of the Boxer outbreak, among other things, are those for manuscript sermons destroyed. The sermons are charged at $100 each. Just how the clergy arrived at the estimate it would be hard to determine. It is certain that they did not allow any of their flock to set the value.

Among the debts of a New Yorker who went into bankruptcy last week, two items were $28 for pew rent in a church, and $20 for beer. The Portland Telegram says this is some evidence that he was trying to serve two masters. But why should beer drinking be incompatible with church membership?

M. E. Ingalls, of Cincinnati, is a corporation man, but this is what he says of the income tax: "I have always believed in an income tax, and have thought that the decision of our supreme court against the constitutionality of such a tax was one of the most unfortunate occurrences of the age."

Out of 30,000 women entitled to vote at a recent school election in Toledo, Ohio, only 590 registered for that purpose, thus again indicating that the majority of women care little about the elective franchise.

It is said that in Iceland there are few laws, no jails and no thievery. It is also too cold a place for missionaries.

A WEDDING.

St. Cloud Politician Met His Fate at Convention.

The friends of James R. Bennett, Jr., the St. Cloud attorney and politician will be interested to hear that he is to be married within a few days at Kansas City. The Duluth Democrats who attended the convention at Kansas City last summer, remember well the indefatigable manner in which Mr. Bennett worked for the nomination of Charles A. Towne for the vice presidency. He seemed to be working day and night and to think of nothing else. Their surprise will therefore be pardonable at learning that a romnance was started there at that time and that Mr. Bennett at that time first formed the acquaintance of the young lady who will become his wife. The marriage will take place next Tuesday at the Bonaventure hotel in Kansas City. Among the guests will be ex-Senator and Mrs. Charles A. Towne, of Duluth. The Journal Press of St. Clould says of the coming wedding:

"The bride-to-be is Rosalie Ownby Flournoy, daughter of the late John T. Flournoy, for many years a prosperous and successful business man of Linneus, Mo. She is at present, however, living in Kansas City, where the wedding service will be read by Dr. George H. Combs, of the Christian church of Kansas City, the beautiful wedding ceremonial of the Episcopal church being used. The bride will have as her maid-of-honor Miss Anna Otey, of Carrolton, Mo., her niece, and the best man will be Z. H. Austin, of Minneapolis, former state insurance commissioner of Minnesota. A number of Minnesota friends of Mr. Bennett will be present at the marriage, including Senator and Mrs. Charles A. Towne, of Duluth.

"The happy couple go after the ceremoany to Chicago and Grand Rapids, Mich., with possibly two or three days spent with Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Forman in Minneapolis. Upon their return to St. Cloud they will go to housekeeping at No. 397 Third avenue south, where they will be at home to their friends after May 10. There will be no cards.

"Miss Flournoy is a highly accomplished and lovely woman and her future husband will be congratulated upon his good fortune in her choice of him as a life's companion. They will be given a warm welcome to their home in St. Cloud."

CONFIDENT.

Capt. Reed Believes In Prospect For His Road.

Capt. A. H. Reed of Glencoe is working as confidently as ever for the building of the Duluth, St. Cloud, Glencoe & Mankato railroad, of which he is president. This is the north and south line which is to run from Albert Lea to Duluth, if it is ever built. Capt. Reed was in Mankato a few days ago and said, with reference to the plans of the company:

"Our preliminary surveys are all made south from St. Cloud through the city of Mankato to Albert Lea. The road from this city to Albert Lea will run via St. Clair, Vivian, Freeborn and Cream. Our maps, plats, profiles are all made up and the prospectus has been issued. As a starter Winsted has voted $10,000 bonds.

"The directors held a meeting at Glencoe on March 12 last, and decided on putting the whole force in completing matters between Mankato and Albert Lea purchasing the right-of-way and securing bonuses. As soon as this work is finished we are promised that the line between Mankato and Albert Lea will be constructed, and that the other portion will be built later.

"We have assurances that one of the trunk lines that now enters Albert Lea will operate the road as soon as it is completed and ready for operation. We have every reason to believe that the Illinois Central will take control."

The road is to start from Albert Lea and go through Freeborn, Vivian, Cream and St. Clair, and will come into Mankato on the southeast, pass through the city, and cross the Minnesota river, six miles down. It will then go up what is called Seven Mile Creek Run, cross the C. & N. W. track, near Oshawa station, and go through Lake Prairie, Rush river, Arlington and Glencoe, and thence north to St. Cloud. It is expected that the road will cost $19,000 a mile—at least this is the engineer's estimate. This includes depots, telegraph lines, fences, etc.

It is expected that the line north of St. Cloud will run to Little Falls and through Morrison county, providing the people of Little Falls make the right kind of donation. Between St. Cloud and Duluth the road will pass through a rich farming country. At Little Falls the lumber mills will furnish the road with a good deal of business, and the quarries in Mankato will find markets for their product. St. Cloud would be benefited to the extent of a wider field for the high grade granite that is quarried here.

Collins & Co., of Chicago, offer to take the bonds of the company at 89 cents on the dollar, provided they get 51 per cent of the stock, but do not guarantee anything. Director A. E. Clark went from Mankato to Chicago to present a counter proposal on the part of the company. He offered to allow the company to take the bonds at 80 per cent, and also allow it to have 51 per cent of the stock, but it must guarantee to build the road from Albert Lea to Mankato between June 1 and Oct. 1. It will receive a proportionate amount of the stock when each ten miles has been completed, so that it will not secure a controlling interest until the road has been completed.

Capt. Reed says that he expects that the road will be built ready for operation this year from Albert Lea to St. Cloud. The preliminary surveys have been made, and as soon as the right-of-way is secured and the bonuses guaranteed between Mankato and Albert Lea the contract for the construction of that section will be awarded. Some of the right-of-way has already been secured, and Capt. Reed intends to put more men at work at this. He also wants $1000 a mile in bonuses assured, or $52,000 for the Mankato-Albert Lea section. He wants St. Clair to raise $12,000, Vivian $12,000, and Freeborn $15,000. Mankato, having reached the limit of its bonded indebtedness, cannot raise a bonus, but he expects a free right-of-way through that city.

THE COAL SITUATION.

Early Shipment Matters Shrouded In Uncertainty.

The coal shipping situation to the head of the lake is still very uncertain. Opening freight rates have not yet been announced, but shippers and vesselmen are said to be negotiating and a rate of 40 to 50 cents to start with is anticipated, both to the head of the lake and to Chicago. Vesselmen are asking 50 cents, but the shippers are offering 40 cents, believing that the latter price is nearer the right amount. Just when the fleet will begin operations depends upon so many contingencies that speculation at this time is considered by some to be inopportune.

DAILY STORY.

THE THOUSANDTH NUN

BY GEORGE K. STILES.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

Out of a great green hill rose a yellow tower, many windowed and star cornered, while at its base crouched the Nunnery of the Thousand, and each was a virgin woman and beautiful as the heart of man could desire.

Yet the face was banished, and the creature himself, an accursed thing inside the walls of the Thousand, where Buddha Amida was lord and master, and the love of him usurped all earthly passions.

Now, a nun is a woman, and this one was as fair as the moon god; and the fortune of Cheng Sing was that of one man only and favored by fate; for as he wandered through the woodland, thinking nothing and merely seeking a rhyme for T'weng, which every man knows is a thing not to be had, he spied a wall and a ladder and ascended it, and straightway saw the glory of San Tung, the chosen of Buddah and the flower of the Thousand, who called on his name. Then Sang Tung wore the white of the maiden, sunshed across with the purple sash of the Buddhist nun, and over the gloom of her hair was the dragon shaped headdress peculiar to her order.

Cheng Sing say all this, but the girl herself knew nothing of his presence, for a gnarled pear tree rose over the wall where the ladder rested.

San Tung had never seen a man since babyhood, and her pure thoughts were intent on her devotions, for she was holy in her ways and longed to be well beloved of the gods. So the nun prayed sweetly and Cheng Sing bowed his head; but presently he could not restrain raising it so that his eyes rested on the beauty of San Tung, and he hoped Buddha would understand, since he had been a man once, although a most devout and holy one.

And the prayer of the girl was one most usual with young nuns, for the elder ones mostly ceased from disappointment.

"Oh! Buddha!" she exclaimed, "grant me thy presence; let the eyes of San Tung behold thy wondrous, as thou didst to the woman of Ghamma;" for it seems that a woman of that place claimed to be visited by the god, and she was held in great honor because of this very thing.

The strength of a prayer in its repetition, and after San Tung had murmured hers over five times she heard a strong, deep voice command:

"Bow thy head, O woman, for lo! I am here at thy summons," and San Tung held her head low and clasped her little hands in worship.

"What would you have?" demanded the god, adding gently: "Be not afraid, for thou are beautiful in my eyes and shall have great favor at my hands;" and the heart of Cheng Sing rejoiced over his ready wit in appearing as Buddha in answer to the nun's beseeching.

"You have desired to see me as a man, oh! San Tung," and his knowledge of her name confirmed her belief in his divinity, though she had uttered it herself in the prayer "Behold!" and striking his most impressive attitude, Cheng Sing stepped out before the girl, who gazed at him with admiring eyes; for, although she knew nothing of men's looks, yet, none the less, her inherited instincts informed her that he was good to look upon.

"I, Who Am Buddha, Command You To Love the Man Who Buddha Is."

For this bachelor of Pei Chow was barely 29, and his physique was excellent and his features were good.

"Listen, little one," said Cheng Sing, "as a sign of my favor I will lay aside my divinity and be even as a simple man, and as such you must treat me," for he perceived that the girl was so overcome by her reverence that she could do naught but kneel before him.

"Tell me, oh! great one," ventured San Tung, after they had walked deeper into the garden, "were you a simple man when you appeared to the woman of Ghamma?" and her great eyes gleamed and lowered before the face of this latest incarnation of Buddha Amida.

"The woman of Ghamma was a liar," returned the other, "and shall be punished; but for the present let her be, and tell me, oh! San Tung, whether thou lovest me or not?"

"It is the duty of all to love Buddha," she answered.

"No," he replied vexedly, "not Buddha the god, but I, myself, who am at present a man. Can you love me?" and he slipped his arms about her, but she drew away in great perplexity at such behavior on the part of the greatest of all gods. "I do not know, oh! high one," the girl said.

"Listen, then," said Cheng Sing. "I, who am Budha, command you to love the man who Buddha is truly. You must obey me. Is it not so?"

"It is so," she answered.

Presently the dusk of the nightfall crept down between the trees, and Cheng Sing realized that he must invent some way or else he would lose the girl forever, for he understood that the older nuns would hear with scant belief of the favoring San Tung the beautiful by Buddha in the guise of a young man.

"You must go with me," he told her. "One who has been with Buddha, as you have, can never return to the companionship of the human kind. Tell me," he asked, as a spasm of terror seized upon the girl at this sudden leaving of earthly things, "can you not be happy with me—that is, with Buddha?" and presently San Tung thought she could.

So Cheng Sing carried off the loveliest of the thousand nuns and took her to his home, some distance away; and the wonder and distress in the convent was frightful, but was hushed by the head ones for fear of scandal.

Now, when three days later, Cheng Sing mustered his courage and told San Tung that he was but a man most earthly and a bachelor of the second degree, entitled to two gold buttons and the yellow scarf, her surprise was great, but none the less has it been asserted that she knew it all the while.

But who may tell, for a nun is a woman, and a woman is a thing which no man has comprehended. Nor did Cheng Sing know the heart of San Tung even after ten years of married life.

DOCTORED.

Mrs. Rorer Gets Cream Dosed With Formaldehyde.

It is evident to those who have heard Mrs. S. T. Rorer, the famous cook and scientific food expert, on her visits here that there is scarcely any article of food in which she cannot detect adulteration if any exists. Last year when here she discovered that meat which she bought in a Duluth butcher shop had been doctored so as to appear fresh and bright by the use of some chemical. Saturday afternoon she found some cream that had been treated in some way, and her experience quickly told her what had been done to it.

She was making a form of dessert, and took up some cream and began to whip it. She remarked as she did so that an order had been twice sent to an establishment here and had not been filled.

"When dealers fail to send me anything, I am generally suspicious that they are afraid I will find them out," she remarked.

She said that she had bought the cream at a stand near there. As she proceeded with the operation of whipping it she found that it would not respond. She remarked that it was pretty expensive milk at 30 cents a quart, if that was all it was. After a few moments she turned a little gelatine into it, remarking that that would thicken it a little and make it more liable to whip. In a few moments she pulled her beater out and some stringy stuff adhered to it. A light seemed to dawn upon her.

"What is that, Mrs. Rorer?" asked one of the women.

"I don't know," she responded, but with an air which indicated that she thought she did.

She turned quickly to the stove and poured some boiling water in the cream. Then she gave it a few beats and pulled her beater out. Attached to it was a stringy substance that seemed to be all through the cream.

"That is caused by formaldehyde," she declared. "Do they allow the use of that in this city to preserve milk?" she asked.

She then went on to say that while it is not poisonous in the ordinary sense of the term, it is a deadly foe to good digestion and will bring the stomach to a deplorable condition if used. She said that she did not believe the dealer from whom she bought the milk was responsible, but said plainly that she thought there was great need for rigid inspection of food supplies in this city.

FINN THE WINNER.

Superior Shot Again Captures Diamond Medal.

J. D. Flinn, of Superior, won the diamond medal at the Central Gun club shoot yesterday. He has held the trophy oftener than any other man at the head of the lakes. Thomas Storey, of this city, who has been shooting remarkably well, won the Wells-Annis medal. On Tuesday evening the members of the Central Gun club will hold their annual meeting, electing officers and transacting other important business. This meeting will be held at John Nelson's gun store.

The score for the diamond medal event was: Finn, 47; Graham, 46; Loud, 45; Nelson, 44; Wojeck, 44; Cap, 43; Beyer, 42; Marx, 41; Kennedy, 40; Storey, 39; Berry, 38.

The score in the Wells-Annis event was as follows: Storey, 23; Graham, 22; Cap, 21; Field, 21; Robinson, 19; Berry, 17; Bernie, 16; Salter, 16; Doc, 15; Beyer, 15; Travers, 8.

The Boer Lectures.

Next Thursday evening at the Lyceum theater will be delivered an illustrated lecture on "The Boer War" by Messrs. Wessels and Viljoen, special commissioners of the South African republics to this country, who are laboring in the interests of their struggling countries. The proceeds of these lectures are devoted to the fund for the benefit of the widows and orphans of the victims of the Boers who have fallen in the war. Many of the families of the prisoners of war are also suffering. Both these gentlemen will give a clear statement of the case of the South African republics and it will be interesting to all.

ACTION NEEDED

No Time to Delay In Getting Mine Assessments Corrected.

Much Work Necessary to Get at the Valuations.

Step a Most Important One For City Interests.

Though the showing made by The Herald that the mining properties of the county are assessed at ridiculously low rates has aroused a great deal of interest, and there is no question that steps will be taken to see that they are assessed properly. It is also true that there is no need of immediate action. This is due to a mistaken conception of the matter. It is true that in no event can any returns be made from the increased assessment before January of 1902, but before any returns can be had at all there is considerable work to be done, and it is important that it be begun at once.

There is no more than ample time to do what is necessary before the corrected assessments can be turned over to the county auditor. A lot of investigating must be done before adequate assessments of the iron properties can be arrived at, and that must be the duty of the commissioner that the governor will appoint when the complaint is made to him that the mines are assessed too low.

Therefore the quicker this complaint is made the better. All that is necessary to set the ball rolling is for some interested taxpayer to file written complaint, under oath, with the governor, to the effect that the mines are not paying their due share of taxes, and it is then the executive's duty to appoint a commissioner, not a resident of this county, to do the work. There is ample information for such a commissioner to work upon. There are many leases on file that show somewhere near the estimated body of ore in different mines, and its value. There are also many deeds that will help him in arriving at the proper value of some of the properties. It will take some time to make the investigation, but if it is started soon it may easily be concluded and a report made in time to get the properties on the lists next year at their proper valuations.

If the commissioner finds that the properties have been under-valued for former years, it is the duty of the authorities to charge up the difference between what they did pay and what they should have paid for such year or years. As they have been undervalued always, such corrections will go back as far as the law allows. So not only will the mines pay their proper share of the taxes in future, if the investigation is properly made, but their arrearages will amount to a large sum for back years.

Some idea of the difference that will be made in taxes in the city of Duluth may prove of assistance in setting forth the need of this action. The total amount of county taxes raised last year was about $125,000. Of that amount the city of Duluth paid in the neighborhood of $70,000. If the mines were increased to $75,000,000 the share of the city of Duluth would be decreased to about $28,000, a saving of $42,000. And that includes nothing for the saving in state taxes which the increase of $65,000,000 in the state valuation would bring about. At the present state tax rate of 2.82 mills that increase would amount to $183,950. But instead of bringing in that much additional money to the state, the state would get no more and the other taxpayers would save that much.

The present county rate is 2.72 mills. If the proposed increase were made this would be reduced to 1.19 mills, and the arrearages for former years would amount to so much that practically no county levy would have to be made for several years.

There are a large number of people who are interested in the reduction of taxes in Duluth. Some of them have formed themselves into associations or federations for the purpose of watching public affairs to see what can be done toward lowering taxes. Surely there is nothing more directly in their line than this. More will be gained for the taxpayers by this move than any possible reduction of the school expenses. A cut of $42,000 in school expenses would probably work great injury to the school system. Yet here it is proposed to save the city that amount without harming any interests whatever, public or private. All that is necessary is that the iron mines should pay the same proportion of taxes as other property, and the saving of $42,000 a year to the city of Duluth would be accomplished.

That is the least amount possible, for besides the saving in state taxes, which is difficult to figure, it is very improbable that a proper investigation will result in a valuation on the mines so low as that proposed, $75,000,000. A larger valuation means a greater saving to the general taxpayer. Any small saving means that while some relief has been afforded, the miners are getting the best of it still.

No time should be wasted in setting about this measure for the relief of the general taxpayers of St. Louis county, and it should be made certain that the increase is at least as great as that suggested by The Herald, $65,000,000, making the total $75,000,000 instead of $10,000,000 as at present.

Catarrh

Is a disease of the mucous membrane or inner lining of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach, bowels and other organs. It is caused by a cold or succession of colds irritating the delicate surfaces, and is promoted by scrofulous taints in the blood.

It is especially dangerous in persons having a predisposition to consumption.

In these and all other catarrhal cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla so thoroughly renovates the blood and restores strength that it permanently cures.

In fact, because of the character of the disease, and peculiar merit of the remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only common sense treatment for catarrh.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

WIFE IS SHOT.

Joseph Beauchane of Duluth Uses Gun at Crookston.

Associated Press dispatches last evening announced a rather sensational shooting affair at Crookston, in which Joseph Beauchane, of this city, sought to kill his wife because she refused to live with him.

Local authorities knew nothing of Beauchane when the shooting was first heard of, but immediately set about looking up his record. The Crookston dispatch says that the Beauchanes were married but six months, and that for the past two months the husband has been in a hospital here. When he was taken to the hospital, Mrs. Beauchane returned to the home of her mother in Crookston. On Saturday Beauchane went to Crookston and was informed by his wife that she preferred taking care of herself to living with him. This so angered the husband that he decided to kill his wife, and early last evening shot her at close range. The bullet penetrated the stomach, passing clear through the body.

The last reports were that Beauchane had made his escape immediately after the shooting.

Local hospitals report that Beauchane has not been on their books at any time within the past two months.

IS OUT OF OFFICE.

John D. Brady Leaves Surveyor Generalship.

This morning John Brady, who has been surveyor general of logs for the Duluth district for the past two years, stepped out of office and G. Fred Stevens, his sucessor, assumed his duties. Mr. Stevens has established his office in a fine suite of rooms on the fifth floor of the Palladio building, where he will also conduct his lumber shipping business in connection with his duties as surveyor general of logs. Mr. Stevens will have twenty-five deputies at work this spring and summer. About ten scalers will be employed at the Cloquet mills. Scalers will be sent into the Rainy River district in a few days. There will be scalers on two other chartered streams.

MARKING CRIB WRECKS.

The Barrel Buoys Placed In Lake St. Clair.

Notice has been given by the light-house inspector concerning the establishment, on the opening of navigation, 1901, of barrel buoys to mark the wrecks of the crib structures in Lake St. Clair and St. Clair River, Mich.:

Lake St. Clair 20ft. Channel—The wrecks of the four cribs in this channel (which will have gas lighted buoys, numbered 1, 8, 13 and 20, respectively, placed abreast of them on the edges of the channel) will be further marked by placing over each, as near as possible, a barrel buoy painted half red and half white and marked with the name and number of the crib.

St. Clair River—The wreck of the crib at the head of Russell Island will be marked by placing over it, as near as possible, a barrel buoy painted half red and half white and marked "St. Clair River Crib, No. 12."

Similar buoys were established in August, 1900, and referred to in the Light-House Board Bulletin, No. 112, of Sept. 1, 1900, paragraphs 76 and 77. This notice affects List of Beacons and Buoys, Northern Lakes and Rivers, 1901, pages 55, 56 and 59.

A DINNER PUDDING

Of Grape-Nuts Is Charming.

It is a known fact that many people fail to properly digest the starchy parts of bread and other food and ordinary puddings are especially hard on the "internal machinery."

The pudding described on the package containing Grape-Nuts is very delicious and unusually digestible.

Grape-Nuts food is made of the grape sugar which results from preparing the starchy parts of the cereals, in the same way artificially as the body should do by natural processes. Therefore this food furnishes food already for immediate assimilation into blood and tissue. The food is ready prepared, requires no cooking whatever. Grape-Nuts will be found most valuable by athlete, brain worker or invalid.

ALL IS ADJUSTED.

M. M. Gasser and Creditors Settle Differences.

The litigation in which M. M. Gasser has been involved for some years over a deficiency judgment has been finally closed and satisfactorily adjusted by both sides. The bankruptcy proceedings through which Mr. Gasser has been going will be dismissed and he will start again with credit clear and nothing to embarrass him.

"GRAND DUCHESS" TONIGHT.

Tonight, at the Lyecum theater, the comic opera, "Grand Duchess," which has been in rehearsal by home talent for a long time, will be produced for the benefit of St. James' Orphan home at the West End. Yesterday afternoon a very satisfactory dress and orchestra rehearsal was held in the theater. The costumes are very rich and beautiful, and are correct to the smallest detail. The opera will be given in a manner that will satisfy even the most skeptical. The advance sale of seats has been large and it is predicted that every seat in the house will be taken.

There is no more worthy charitable institution in the city than the St. James' Orphan home in the West End. It is a new institution, conducted by the Sisters of St. Benedict, and it houses, clothes and educates about sixty orphan children all the way from 2 to 12 years of age. The demands on the home are constantly increasing, and this is the first time the charitable public has been asked to come to its aid.

The entertainment, too, will be of a very high order. The participants in the opera comprise much of Duluth's best talent, all well selected, drilled and trained and no pains and efforts have been spared to make the opera satisfactory in every point of view. There is a chorus of over fifty voices and Flaaten's augmented orchestra will assist.

There's safety. There's strength. There's happiness. There's an all-year's pleasure and health if you take Rocky Mountain Tea this month. 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

SINGULAR.

Odd Accident Happens to Man Stealing a Ride.

A peculiar accident happened on the Carlton branch of the Eastern Minnesota road Saturday morning, the result of which is that Hugh Morrison, who was stealing a ride from Grand Rapids to Swan River, on the local which leaves Cass Lake in the morning, has a broken leg and is otherwise badly bruised. Just before the local pulled out of Grand Rapids, Morrison and a friend jumped on the front of the engine, unperceived by the train crew. While the train was running at a pretty good rate of speed the other side of Swan River, a cow attempted to cross the track, and it took just about two seconds for the engine to scatter big pieces of beef to the four winds. It happened the Morrison man was in line with the cow when the engine and the animal came together, and he was pitched over and over into a ditch. This was the first intimation that the engineer had that there was a human cow-catcher on the front of his engine, and the train was hastily stopped while Morrison was picked up and brought to St. Mary's hospital in West Superior. To the railroad officials he frankly stated that he was stealing a ride and was unable to dodge when he saw the cow coming his way.

"MYSTERY OF THE FALL."

Rev. Harry White Discusses Clough's Poem.

At the Unitarian vesper service yesterday afternoon Mr. White spoke on Clough's "Mystery of the Fall." He said in part:

This poem of Clough's which I wish to discuss with you this afternoon is a poem which he never completed. But notwithstanding the imperfect form in which it is left to us, is a poem of great power and of considerable psychological insight. Clough has taken Adam-and-Eve-Cain-and-Abel and has created four characters of marked personalities and of distinct temperaments, and at the same time has written a poem of great interest on the old but ever important problem of sin and repentance and penance. The poem is cast in a dramatic form, but, like the dramas of Browning, all the dramatic incidents are incidents of the inner world, incidents in the souls of the characters, not of the external world.

"The characters of the poem are divided into two general classes. One is passive, mystical, emotional; the other is active, intellectual and practical. Eve and Abel belong to the first class; Adam and Cain to the second. And I may say in the beginning that the interest centers in Adam and Cain, and especially in the latter. It is Cain, in the poem, who faces the problem most fairly and courageously, and comes nearest to the true answer.

"The drama opens with a dialogue between Adam and Eve. The time is after the 'fall.' Adam is struggling toward moral self-consciousness. He begins by analysizing the facts that were involved in his sin; and finds in his analysis that they were four:

"One, two and three and four—the appetite,
The enjoyment, the aftervoid, the thinking of it—
Specially the last two, most specially the last."

"With this incipient moral consciousness Adam sees that the last two facts involved in sin, the 'aftervoid' and the 'thinking of it' are the most significant. Then from his analysis, Adam turns to the world of fact, and says:

"Come let us go and work!"

"But this very act of turning to the world of fact discloses to him another fact which had escaped him in his first analysis. 'What,' he says 'is there three, four, five?' Thus in his completed analysis he has now five facts, the appetite, the enjoyment, the aftervoid, the thinking of it and work. And, as the working out of the poem shows, it is no longer the fourth fact which is most important, but the fifth and new fact, namely work.

"But Eve is by temperament altogether unable to enter into sympathy with Adam's speculations or to comprehend them. Adam is intellectual, Eve emotional. She is not thinking; she is feeling; she is overwhelmed by the sense of what she has done and can only cry:

"'Oh, guilt, guilt, guilt.'

"And later when Cain has killed Abel, and she is again confronted by this same problem of sin and the reconciliation of the sinner with the moral order, she has nothing to offer him but an emotional solution, a solution which Cain unhesitatingly rejects.

"But Adam is not emotional as Eve is. He is human thought learning to think. He must find a way out by reason. He is unable to be crushed as Eve was by an overwhelming sense of guilt, because he sees far more deeply than she into the meaning of the fall, and is continually gaining insight as he goes on. He sees and thinks. And, as he thus examines the incident, he saw that after all the fall was a necessary step in their growth. He saw that they were in a state of innocency, a state without any real moral worth, and that to reach the higher state of real ethical consciousness, they had to go through something like the 'fall.'

"'Tis done, it was to be done; if indeed,
Other way than this there was, I cannot say:
This was one way, and a wey needs be found,
That which we were, we could no longer remain
Than in the moist provocative mould
A seed its succrs close and rest a seed;
We were to grow. Necessity on us lay
This way or that to move; Necessity, too,
Not to be over careful this or that,
So only move we should.'

"Thus Adam at last discovers the secret to the situation. He was made to grow; could no more keep from growing than a seed in 'the moist provocative mould,' and growth involves the sense of sin in the reconciliation of the sinner through work. But this is a way out which Eve is unable to appreciate Her refuge is not in work but in the almost sensual luxuriousness of remorse. This is what she urges on Cain after he has killed his brother; but Cain sees even more clearly than Adam that the way of growth and salvation lies not in the rich luxury of feeling, but in the toil and hardship of work and duty. This he brings out in the dialogue with his father at the end of the poem with words that are charged with tremendous power and force.

"'Only I feel
That this one thing
And this one word in me must be declared:
That to forget is not to be restored;
To lose with time the sense of what we did
Cancels not that we did; what's done remains—
I am my brother's murderer. Woe to me!
Abel is dead. No prayers to empty heaven,
No vegetative kindness of the earth,
Will bring back warmth into his clay again.
Then welcome Fact, and Fact's best brother, Work;
Welcome the conflict of the stubborn soil,
To toil the livelong day and at the end,
Instead of rest, reparve into my brow
The dire memorial mark of what still is.
Welcome this worship which I feel is mine;
Welcome this duty—
That which I did, I did, I who am here.
There is no saftey but in this; and when
I sall deny the thing that I have done,
I am a dream.'"

Harbor Lights to Start.

The harbor lights will be started up this evening for the first time this season. There are no boats running yet to take advantage of the lights, but Capt. Con Flynn is figuring on starting the E. T. Carrington any day, while the White Line Transportation company's Mabel Bradshaw will start on a north shore trip very shortly. The present trestle runway on the south pier will be replaced this year by a more ornamental iron one.

Dr. Gunsaulus' Lecture.

This evening Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus will lecture at the First Methodist church on "The Later Eloquence of Puritanism." This will close the Star Lecture course, and will be one of the finest of all the attractions the course has presented this year. Dr. Gunsaulus is a man of commanding ability, easily the leading preacher of Chicago, and gifted with a fine voice, handsome physique and a richly stored mind.

Company C at St. Paul.

The contracts have been entirely closed for the exhibition of Company C's grand military spectacle in St. Paul on the evening of June 11. The company is already preparing to reproduce the entertainment on a more elaborate scale and costumes are being made by the tailors now. Miss Georgie Alexander will accompany the party and will sing during the Arabian drill. Professor George Tyler will also sing. The company will have the City band along and the entertainment will be distinctly Duluthian. Company C will probably reproduce the entertainment at the Pan-American exhibition in Buffalo during the summer.

THERE is one thing we emphatically insist upon—and that is that every statement in our announcements shall be truthful.

PANTON & WHITE
THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE
DULUTH, MINN.

MLLE. Ulmonier formerly with the Louvre, Paris, has personal charge of our pleating, pinking, and shirring dept. Orders entrusted with us carefully and promptly executed at very reasonable prices.

"Push on; keep moving!"

THIS is the slogan of the Glass Block. It's push, energy and intelligent watchfulness that wins in business. We have more special sales than all other merchants in Duluth combined. Our sales are genuine, too—our bargains are not myths. You find the goods just as represented—our ads tell the truth as vividly as we possibly can. We insist that everything shall be just as represented. Do you see the result? Have you been watching where the great crowds are this Spring? People exclaim, "My how busy you are—what crowds you have." More people are found on our floors at any hour of the day, any day of the week, than are in all the other dry goods stores in the city combined. You never hear Panton & White complaining of "dull" business. It's a truism as old as Rome that people will trade where the best bargains are to be had.

REMEMBER—that goods advertised as specials for certain days cannot be bought for the same prices on days after the sale closes. We say this for the benefit of many of our customers who come in on, say, Saturday and expect to get the same bargains that were advertised for Friday. Please watch for the day of the sales.

ADVANCE IN WHEAT

Market Starts Out Fairly Firm and Ruled Active.

Large Increase In World's Shipments Had Been Discounted.

Cables Were Steady and the Northwest Receipts Moderate.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 15.—The wheat market started out fairly firm this morning, despite the report that the world's shipments last week amounted to 10,165,000 bus, and that the amount on passage increased 3,480,000 bus. This news had been expected and was thoroughly discounted. On the other hand there was a good-sized decrease in the wheat visible supply at home, the Northwest receipts were light, and the cables were fairly steady, Liverpool closing unchanged to ¼d lower. Antwerp closed unchanged. A sale of 100,000 bus of wheat to the continent was reported from Chicago. Primary receipts were 563,163 bus, against 389,-168 bus. Shipments 289,961 bus, against 264,178. Clearances of wheat and flour were 883,000 bus. The visible supply decreased 2,017,000 bus. About 600,000 bus of this decrease was caused by the fire in St. Louis a week ago. The decrease presents about what had been expected. The English visible showed a decrease of 691,000 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 354 cars, against 411 last week and 406 last year. Chicago receipts, 46 cars, none of contract grade.

Trading in futures was active on the Duluth board. May wheat opened ¼c up at 72¼c, sold at 72c at 9:33, advanced to 72½c at 10:01, reacted to 72¼c at 11:09, recovered to 72¾c at 12:05 and closed at 72⅝c, an advance for the day of ⅜c. Chicago showed the same advance and Minneapolis was ½c up.

Cash sales were active aggregating 75,-000 bus. The price at which most of the wheat was sold was ½c under May for wheat to arrive and ½c under for wheat in store. At the close wheat to arrive advanced to ¼c under.

Corn was very steady. Primary receipts were 343,800 bus, against 983,995 bus a year ago. Shipments, 189,433 bus, last year 805,-724. Clearances of corn were 424,000 bus. The visible supply increased 29,000 bus.

Cash, to arrive and May flax were all off 1c, while the September and October options were up 1c. Other coarse grains were unchanged in price.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard cash, 73⅜c; to arrive, 74⅛c; May, 74⅝c. No. 1 northern, cash, 71⅝c; to arrive, 72¼c; May, 72⅝c; July, 73¼c. No. 2 northern, 65⅝@67¾c. No. 3 spring, 66⅝@65¾c. Oats, 27@27½c. Rye, 49¾c. Flax, cash, $1.57½; to arrive, $1.57½; May, $1.59; September, $1.1⅝; September Northwestern, $1.15½; October, $1.17. Corn, 40½c; May, 41c.

Car Inspection—Wheat, 55; oats, 9. Receipts—Wheat, 21,240; oats, 13,131; flax, 98. Shipments—Wheat, 1736.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat and Corn Were Firm and Steady.

Chicago, April 15.—A bearish set of world's statistics were at hand today as had been expected, but so thoroughly had they been discounted that a liberal decrease, coupled with moderate receipts and fairly steady cables sufficed to give a firm market early. May opened ¼c lower to a shade higher at 70¾c to 70⅝@¾c and on covering advanced to 70⅞c. Local receipts were 46 cars, none of contract grade, while Minneapolis and Duluth reported 354 cars against 411 last week and 406 a year ago. World's shipments, according to a cable to the board of trade were 10,165,000 bus. The amount of wheat and flour on ocean passage showed an increase of 3,480,000 bus.

May wheat, helped by an improved shipping demand advanced to 70⅞c and closed firm ⅜c higher at 70¾c.

Corn was quiet but firm. May opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 43⅜@43½c and sold early to 43¾@⅞c on damage claims, light receipts and steady cables. July sold at ⅛c discount. From portions of Kansas and Nebraska came reports that the wet weather had been detrimental to farm work and would decrease the acreage. Receipts were 105 cars, 8 of contract grade.

The Close was firm. May ¾c up at 42⅜c.

Oats were dull but steady in sympathy with wheat and corn. May opened unchanged at 25c, touched 24⅝c and reacted to 25@25⅛c on covering. Receipts were 171 cars.

Provisions were dull and easier on a weak hog market. May pork opened 17½c lower at $14.25; May lard 2½c down at $8.25 and May ribs 2½@5 depressed at $8.25. Liberal selling of July lard by a local long was the only incident of early business.

Close, wheat, April, 70½c; May, 70¾c; July, 70¾@71c. Corn, April, 43½c; May, 43⅝c; July, 43½c. Oats, April, 25¼c; May, 25½c; July, 25c. Pork, April, $14.17½; May, $14.27½; July, $14.40. WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, April 15.—The wheat market has been firm, the lowest prices being at the opening and although the market has been bare of commission house business, there has been a strong undertone, the outcome of a changed local sentiment. The foreign news is weak. On passage increased 3,480,000 bus. World's shipments were 10,165,000 bus and the cash demand was not what it has been early, but later on developed considerable strength. No. 2 hard winter sold at May price. Local sales 50,000 bus, 25 loads at New York, with the Southwest, especially Texas complains of insect damage. Public quotations were resumed, but the effect was not noticeable. Market is now subject entirely to cash and crop conditions. Is oversold locally and consequently all the more responsive to any bull news. At the same time, statistically the bears have the best of the argument, making advances necessarily very moderate and unless damage developes on a large scale, making sales on all such bulges the most profitable action.

The corn market has been firm. Trade has been light. Phillips has supported the market considerably. Country offerings were small. Good weather is reported, but snow and rain is predicted for Kansas and Nebraska. Cash demand flat. Local stocks increased 440,000 bus. Trade moderate and mostly changing.

The oat market has also been a changing one and bare of special features. Local stocks decreased 81,000 bus. Cash demand is very good; local sales 90,000 bus. Prices have held steady.

The provision market has been dull in the pit. Prices early were weak, but regained on scattered demand. Hogs West 54,000, last year 68,000. Outsiders appear entirely indifferent to our provision situation at present and this dullness is doing more than anything else to hold prices within narrow limits.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report that the demand for desirable farm horses remained the principal factor in the movement of stock today. The market was well supplied with the best quality of horses, aiding the buyers in speedily securing their kind. Speculators and dealers were in better attendance, and an active buying spirit seemed to prevail in the buying. Values:

TO USE ORDERS.

Chicago, April 15.—Owing to the refusal of certain New England roads to sell colonist tickets Tuesdays to Pacific coast points, Western roads probably will resume the use of prepaid orders in getting Eastern business. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Great Northern and the Burlington have announced this as their intention.

ACTIVITY IN STOCKS

Gains at the Opening But the Close Was Easy.

Northern Pacific at Par For First Time In History.

Revival of Interest In Specialties and Large Trading.

New York, April 15.—There were good gains shown all through the list at the opening which extended from 1 to 2 points in some of the specialties and in Rock Island. The coalers were in good demand and Sugar, Tennessee Coal, Chicago Terminal stocks and Metropolitan Street Railway showed conspicuous advances. The purchase of 8000 shares of Northern Pacific carried it from 99½ to par for the first time in its history.

There was a marked revival of interest in the specialties owing to the buoyancy of Colorado Fuel and Amalgamated Copper, which showed advances at the highest of 7 and 4½ respectively over last week's close. Amalgamated Copper opened at a spread of from 117 to 120 on purchases of 12,500 shares. A further advance to 120½ met enormous profit taking sales, and it reacted to 118. The Tobaccos, Sugar, Pressed Steel Car, Leather pref., preferred, Metropolitan Street Railway, Consolidated Gas and Tennessee Coal gained 1@4, the last named leading. Railroad stocks were feverish and the grangers and Pacifics were alternately above and below Saturday's close. At 11 o'clock the market was highly irregular. Many of the specialties were rising while the railroads were losing ground, Rock Island leading with a 2-point reaction.

Trading was on a very large scale, but fluctuation were moderate aside from the gas stocks and Metropolitan Street Railway. These properties rose steadily despite large offerings. Brooklyn Union Gas gaining 10, Consolidated Gas 6½, People's Gas 3¾ and Metropolitan 3¾. Railroad stocks held fairly well above the lowest and the market in general was steadier, until midday, when the grangers fell sharply again, Rock Island declining 3¼ and Burlington 2½ from the best. Bonds were strong with an especial demand for Mexican Central incomes.

The Chicago Terminal Transfer stocks became buoyant, the common rising an extreme 7⅛ and the preferred 8. Glucose suddenly rose 5¾ and National Lead gained 1⅝. Amalgamated Copper was rushed up to 124¾ on very heavy buying. Prices in the railroad list continued to show a dropping tendency, some of them declining to the lowest of the day. Burlington receded to 158. The many buoyant rises in specialties were nowhere maintained, profit-taking causing wide reactions running from 1 to 3 points. The closing was active and rather easy except for the spurt in Amalgamated Copper.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 15.—Cotton opened steady 1 to 5 points lower on weak Liverpool cables and better weather reports from the South. Shorts appeared to have lost rather than gained confidence during the over-Sunday adjournment and particularly feared "trouble" in July and August. Covering in those positions rallied prices several points after the call and within the first half hour had caused a net gain of 2 to 3 points. May was relatively easy owing to neglect. Liverpool weakened near the close and this reaction led to scattering sales in near months here under which prices fell back to the opening level.

NOT TRUE.

An Improbable Story About Railroad Commissioner Miller.

The Minneapolis Tribune of Sunday said: "Railroad Commissioner Miller went to his home in Two Harbors yesterday, and during his absence will take under consideration a flattering offer from the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company to take the position just vacated by General Manager Greateinger, at a salary of $8000 a year. In event Mr. Miller decides to accept he will tender his resignation as railroad commissioner at once, and there is considerable speculation as to his successor."

Some person must have been playing a joke on the Tribune. There is no one in Duluth among those in a position to have information on the subject who believes there is any truth in the story.

IS SAFE.

Steamer Virginia Lake Is Frozen In the Ice Floes.

St. Johns, N. F., April 15.—News has at last been received from the sealing steamer Virginia Lake, which sailed over five weeks ago and should have arrived here before this, having secured a good catch of seals in the early days of the fishery. It is now learned that a portion of the crew succeeded in reaching shore over the ice floes and then made their way to a telegraph station. They bore dispatches from the captain of the Virginia Lake reporting that the vessel had been frozen in the floes off White Bay (an inlet of the Atlantic, on the north coast of Newfoundland, about sixty miles long and fifteen miles wide at the broadest part) since March 27. He added that up to Thursday last the steamer was safe, that all the crew were well and that there were 30,000 seals on board. The anxiety in regard to safety of the Virginia Lake has now been relieved.

POPE IS SAD

Over Revival of Hostilities Toward Church.

Paris, April 15.—A dispatch received here from Rome says the pope at today's consistory, expressed great affliction at the simultaneous revival in several parts of Europe, of hostilities against the church. He also spoke of the badness of the law against religious associations in France, which had not deserved such a calamity. The pontiff also dwelt upon the inconsistency of a country which proclaims liberty for all while refusing even the existence of associations whose members made a profession of practicing the precepts of the Gospel. He spoke of the recent tumultuous demonstrations in Spain and Portugal, which had aroused apprehension that even worse events were in store for Italy.

TO AWAIT RULING.

Rice Will Contest Postponed to Wednesday.

New York, April 15.—Surrogate Fitzgerald decided today to adjourn the two William Marsh Rice will contests until Wednesday in order to await Magistrate Jerome's ruling on the charge of murder against Patrick.

Lawyer Moore, for Patrick, said he intended to apply for a writ of habeas corpus during the day for Short and Meyer, who have been held by Recorder Goff on a charge of forgery. The lawyer says their committment was made on insufficient evidence and that the bail in which they were held, $20,000, is excessive and should be reduced.

SERVICE RESUMED.

Price Movements Again Sent Out By Telegraph.

Chicago, April 15.—After several months' interruption, board of trade quotations showing the price movements of the leading speculative grains and hog products were sent out by the telegraph companies today. Where desired the quotations are continuous, but the customers are required to do their utmost in keeping the figures from bucket shops.

The resumption of the service caused no noticeable increase in the volume of business here, the market early being dull rather than otherwise.

The San Francisco, Boston, Detroit, Philadelphia and New York consolidated exchanges received the quotations today, but the New York produce exchange and the exchanges at Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Louis have not yet applied for them.

GETS THE RED HAT.

Archbishop Martinelli Is Made a Cardinal.

Rome, April 15.—At the consistory held today Archbishop Martinelli, the papal delegate in the United States, was preconized a cardinal. Eleven other cardinals were created.

NO INJUNCTION.

Judge Gibbons' Ruling In Chicago Traction Case.

Chicago, April 15.—Judge Gibbons, in the circuit court today, declined to issue a temporary injunction, or to appoint a temporary receiver in the case of Sutro Bros., of New York, against the Chicago Union Traction company, arising from a financial agreement entered into between the latter company and the Consolidated Traction company a year ago.

Sutro Bros., in asking for the injunction, claimed the agreement for the consolidation of the Union Traction company and the Consolidated Traction company was unfair to stockholders of the latter company, and advanced allegations of fraud. Judge Gibbons in his decision said fraud had not been shown.

WILL NOT YIELD.

Genoa, April 15.—At a meeting of the ship owners held here today it was decided that the owners preferred to lay up their vessels rather than to yield to the demands of the strikers.

PETITION REGULAR

No Flaw In Request For More Commissioners.

The Committee Will So Report To the Board.

Tomorrow People Must Appear To Oppose Scheme.

The county board will have another wrestle with the redistricting of St. Louis county tomorrow afternoon. It is altogether probable that the matter will be long and interesting, perchance even fierce.

The committee appointed to look over the petitions, consisting of Commissioners Kauppi, Kugler and Patterson, put in this morning attending to the duty to which it was assigned. With the aid of the board's counsel, Wilson G. Cowle, the committee scanned the petitions very thoroughly, with the result that a favorable report will be made upon them tomorrow. This is only as to their form, for that was all the committee had to report upon.

Now the issue comes on how the county is to be redistricted. Under the law with the petitions in due form, the board has no power but to change the commissioners' districts so there shall be two more commissioners, making the total membership of the board seven instead of five as at present. The board has to redistrict and appoint two more commissioners. The question is as to how the redistricting is to be done.

The bill was designed for the ranges, and it was intended to stave off the cry for county division by giving the ranges two more members on the board, both of them from the Mesaba range. The plan is to have Commissioner Morcom's district divided into three districts, of which Capt. Morcom shall retain the one containing the Vermilion range. The Mesaba range is to be divided into eastern and western districts.

This plan is not unopposed, however. When the matter was brought up at the regular meeting of the board Commissioner Kugler asked for time in order that the people of Duluth might have a chance to be heard. Some of the people of Duluth were there and seconded his request, and if the opposition to the plan of giving the ranges three commissioners is pronounced in Duluth, it is likely that there will be a very neat little fight over the matter. If there is no opposition, the plan will go

DRAWN BY TELEPATHY

He Heard His Mother Calling Him Over and Over.

Then Went to the Bedside of His Dying Parent.

Incident Affecting Inmate of an Ohio Soldiers' Home.

St. Louis, Mo., April 15.—Mrs. Elizabeth Mueller, of Belleville, Ill., summoned her son to her bedside by telepathy, and died happy with the sound of his voice in her ears.

The incident is one of the most striking in the annals of thought transference, and affords a good study for the Society of Psychical Research.

It was thought by the Mueller family, all except the mother, that the son Paul, who had wandered away from home eighteen years ago, was dead.

No word had come from him for ten years. Efforts to locate him were fruitless, and the father died confident in the belief that he would meet his son in the next world.

But the mother was not convinced. She said that something told her that Paul was still alive. She longed to see him and made efforts to locate him by writing to the authorities in different cities.

In her last illness, which commenced two weeks ago, the longing to be with her missing son was intensified by the near approach of death. In drowsy moments she would call, "Paul, Paul!" When her mind was clear she would express the wish that she could see her son. She said that she believed that he was alive.

The son, Paul Mueller, had buffeted about the world for eight years after he left home. His letters grew less frequent, and then none at all. He drifted out of the lives of the little circle back in Belleville, and floated into the Soldiers' home at Dayton, Ohio, which offered a refuge ten years ago.

One night two weeks ago, on the evening that his mother became sick, he could not sleep. It seemed to him that he could hear his mother's voice calling to him to come home. He asked himself if it could be possible that the old folks were alive. No sleep the next night nor the next, and that voice, his mother's, constantly in his ear. The family had almost passed out of his mind. He could not understand why he was haunted with such a visitation as his mother's voice, which had become only a dimmed memory, but which had awakened into a keen remembrance. He became convinced that something was wrong at Belleville.

There was a terrible dread at his heart. He resolved to go. His roommate told him it was only fancy; that he had better write; that he was probably getting insomnia. But Mueller knew that he ought to go. Obtaining a permit from the institution, he set forth for Belleville, arriving there yesterday. He was directed to the Mueller home. When he entered he saw the family gathered about the bedside. He heard his mother's voice calling his name. Then he realized that it was his mother's wish which had summoned him by some mysterious force over three states and compelled him to obey the call. She died happy and smiling, with her son's hand in hers.

MME. YALE'S HAIR TONIC

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

It affords me great pleasure to call the attention of the public to Mme. Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic, which is the first and only remedy known to chemistry which positively turns gray hair back to the original color without dye. It has gone on record that Mme. M. Yale—wonderful woman chemist—has made this most valuable of all chemical discoveries. Mme. Yale personally indorses its action and gives the public her solemn guaranty that it has been tested in every conceivable way and has proved itself to be the ONLY Hair Specific. It STOPS HAIR FALLING immediately and creates a luxurious growth. Contains no injurious ingredient. Physicians and chemists invited to analyze it. It is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary, it makes the hair soft, youthful fluffy and keeps it in curl. For gentlemen and ladies, entirely gray and with bald heads, it is especially recommended.

A SCIENTIFIC MEDICINE.

March 30, 1900.

Dear Madame Yale:—I wish to say a few words in regard to your Excelsior Hair Tonic and Hair Cleanser. I have used both with the best possible results. My hair had been falling out for some time. I had used various remedies with little or no avail. Finally my attention was called to your Excelsior Hair Tonic. I purchased a bottle and began using it. The result was beyond my expectations; after the second application my hair had ceased to fall out, and as I continued my hair seemed to have more life and vigor and new hairs began to come in. After using the second bottle I was surprised to see that my hair is no longer tinged with gray but had returned to its natural color.

Your Excelsior Hair Tonic is certainly a scientific medicine and I believe the only one that treats the hair as a sick member and feeds and nourishes it until it is restored to its natural and normal state of health. I cheerfully recommend it to any one who is in need of a Hair Tonic or Restorer, as I have the utmost confidence in the efficacy of all your remedies. Respectfully,

MRS. C. L. BROWN,
51 Harper Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Madame Yale's Hair Tonic is sold throughout the world at $1.00 per bottle.

Manufactured only by Madame Yale, 189 Michigan avenue, Chicago.

We carry a full line of Madame Yale's remedies at all times.

HIS TONGUE REMOVED.

But the "Preaching Policeman" Will Still Talk.

New York, April 15.—William H. Crampton, the "preaching policeman," who talked into a phonograph in the belief that he would never be able to talk again, due to a cancer on his tongue, may still live to address his audiences directly by the help of an aluminum tongue.

Science has done its best for the man, and physicians who cut out part of that member in the Seney hospital, Brooklyn, hold out hopes that the patient will live to talk and to relinquish his claim to be known as "the silent lecturer."

It is possible that he will have an aluminum tongue, a French savant having perfected an artificial tongue which is almost as useful as the original member.

The patient withstood the operation very well, and is in good condition.

PRECIOUS STONES.

Alone and Unguarded In Woman's Home.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 15.—The death here of Mrs. Robin Iche reveals the fact that alone and unguarded in her house was great wealth in jewels and precious stones. The husband of the woman is in jail awaiting trial for insanity and the sheriff has taken charge of the jewelry, the estimated value of which is not less than $50,000. Mrs. Iche has a sister in Brimingham, England, the wife of a great coal operator.

The little folks love Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Pleasant to take; perfectly harmless; positive cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma.

TO COST HALF A MILLION.

Great Store to Be Built By Rockefeller.

Cleveland, April 15.—John D. Rockefeller is said to be negotiating to secure the equity of the Weddel heirs in their hotel property at Superior and Bank streets. He purposes to erect on the site the largest department store in the country.

The project calls for the erection of a 10-story business house to cost $500,000. It would have the largest ground area of any building in the city, as the lot is 322 by 550 feet and contains over three acres. According to the plan on foot the store would be owned by a corporation in which some of the most prominent business men in the city would be interested.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

Scrofula

Scrofula is an unwelcome legacy, but one which the children of blood poisoned parentage must accept, with all its humiliating consequences. It is an inheritance that makes one poorer; that brings wretchedness and disease instead of health and riches, for the child whose ancestral blood is tainted with Scrofula or the loathsome virus of Contagious Blood Poison is unfitted for the arduous duties of life so long as any of the transmitted poison remains in its veins. Scrofula manifests itself in various forms; swollen glands about the neck and throat, catarrh of the head, weak eyes, hip bone disease, white swelling and offensive sores and abscesses are familiar symptoms, attended usually with loss of strength, poor digestion and pale or bloodless complexion. The skin is sometimes most dreadfully affected, eruptions breaking out on all parts of the body. Scrofula destroys bone, tissue and flesh; no part of the human system escapes its withering, benumbing touch. Parents whose blood is poisoned by their own misdeeds, or who themselves may be suffering for the sins of some remote ancestor, must restore their own blood to its normal purity and strength, or they cannot expect healthy, robust children. S. S. S. cures Scrofula, like other diseases of a deep-seated, constitutional character, by restoring life and purity to the profoundly poisoned blood, and the rich, strong blood that is carried to the swollen and diseased glands absorbs and destroys the tuberculous deposits, and the painful, disfiguring sores and other evidences of Scrofula disappear.

When nineteen years old, and about one year after the birth of my first child, the glands on the left side of my neck began to swell. Four of the places were lanced and became open running sores; risings came under my left arm, and the discharge was simply awful. The doctors said I had the worst case of Scrofula they had ever seen. I took iodide of potassium, but this nor the other drugs given for this disease brought relief. When the physicians advised me to have the glands removed, I decided to try S. S. S. A few bottles cured me completely; no signs of the terrible disease are left.

MRS. RICHARD WASSON,
Golden Corners, Ohio.

S. S. S. should be began immediately upon the appearance of the first symptoms, or where there is a known predisposition to Scrofula. Our medical department will be found of great help to those who are struggling with this wasting disease of heredity or any other blood trouble, and we invite you to write us. Should you or any member of your family need advice, our physicians will cheerfully give the information you desire, for which we make no charge. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

IS GIVEN A WATCH

President Greatsinger Receives Beautiful Watch From Employes.

Present It In an Unostentatious and Delicate Way.

Watch Is a Beauty, as Fine as Any Made.

President J. L. Greatsinger, of the Duluth Iron Range road, who has recently been elected president of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, was the victim of a big surprise, and the recipient of a beautiful gold watch on Saturday afternoon, a token of appreciation for past kindnesses to the employes of the road he is about to leave. For some weeks past there has been a conspiracy brewing among the employes of the road which resulted in the gift of yesterday, but so quietly had they worked it that Mr. Greatsinger had no inkling of what was coming.

It was first planned to have Mr. Greatsinger in Two Harbors on Sunday and the office force from the local offices was going up there early Sunday morning, where a presentation was to be made before as many of the employes of the road as could be present, but the idea was abandoned for fear Mr. Greatsinger would suspect what was coming.

The plans were changed and, accordingly, Saturday afternoon, when Mr. Greatsinger stepped out of his office into the auditor's office a few moments and returned, he found on his desk a small oval shaped box placed on top of a letter.

Mr. Greatsinger touched a spring opening the receptacle and the cover flew open, revealing in a bed of plush one of the most beautiful watches that has ever been seen. The timepiece is a split second minute repeater, and was made by the celebrated firm of watchmakers, Patek-Philippe company, of Geneva, Switzerland. It is openfaced, and Mr. Greatsinger's monogram is beautifully executed on the back. It will chime the hours, quarters and minutes. To the watch was attached a green gold chain of the latest pattern. The watch and chain are said to be valued at $650, and E. D. Day & Co. pronounce it the finest thing that is made.

Mr. Greatsinger opened and read the following letter:

"The undersigned employes of the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company, learning with profound regret that Mr. J. L. Greatsinger has severed his connection with the company, after managing its affairs for many years, during which time his many acts of kindness have endeared him to them, desire to tender him, on the eve of his departure, the accompanying token of their appreciation and regard with their best wishes for his welfare and success in his new relations.

"April 12, 1901."

Mr. Greatsinger made diligent inquiry about the offices to discover what person or persons entered and left the package and letter during his absence, but the surprising part of it is that none of the office force, not even J. H. Chandler, general counsel of the road, who was actually in the room all the time, saw anybody enter or leave the room.

The popular railroad president then performed an act that his former employes declare is characteristic of him. Taking from his pocket the valuable watch that he already carried, Mr. Greatsinger called in Charles Colby, a colored man, who for years has been porter on the president's private car, and handed him the timepiece with the remark:

"Take this watch, Charlie, my employes have given me a better one."

It is almost unnecessary to say that Mr. Greatsinger appreciated the token of esteem from the employes that he is about to leave, and he says he will treasure it among his most valued possessions. He also expressed his appreciation of the delicacy with which the affair was handled so that he would not be called on to face the embarrassment of a formal presentation.

RUN DOWN.

Train Killed Three and Seriously Injured Another at Wilkesbarre.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 15.—A party of four people, while crossing the tracks of the Lehigh Valley railroad at South Wilkesbarre Sunday morning, were run down by the Buffalo express going north. Three of the party were killed and one injured. The dead are:

MORRIS O'CONNELL.
MRS. MORRIS O'CONNELL.
MRS. FRANK CRAMER.

Injured: Frank Cramer.

O'Connell and his wife were entertaining the Cramer couple, whose home is in Bradford county. During the evening they visited in this city and at 10:30 yesterday morning started to return home. When they reached the crossing at South Wilkesbarre a freight train was blockading it. As soon as the freight train moved out the party started to cross the tracks but did not notice the approaching passenger train from an opposite direction. The engineer of the express failed to see the people on the track until the locomotive had ploughted into them. The two women were hurled a great distance in the air and when picked up were dead. Both bodies were badly mangled. Mr. O'Connell had both legs and one arm broken. Mr. Cramer was able to step back from the track before being struck with full force and escaped with slight injuries.

MORGAN'S VISIT

To Europe Possibly In Interests of Mexico.

New York, April 15.—The Times says: It is reported among Wall street men that the visit of J. Pierpont Morgan to Europe has something to do with the interests of Mexico. It is even suggested that President Diaz has commissioned the New York financier to sound powerful foreign interests upon plans that may lead to the establishment of a new Mexican government financial policy—even a movement along conservative lines toward the gold standard.

LITTLE BOY

Stolen By Mother Located By Means of a Letter.

Chicago, April 15.—A registered letter written by one schoolboy and receipted for by another has solved the mystery which followed the kidnapping of John Bernard Moffitt last August from the house of his foster parents, 5228 Adams street. The 9-year-old boy, for whom detectives have been looking in vain ever since his mother, Justina Willman, carried him away from Chicago, received and receipted for the letter himself at the residence of an uncle in Altoona, Wis.

The employment of a registered letter to locate the missing boy was suggested to Attorney Moffitt by an examination held recently in the school to test the pupils in letter writing. When Frank Moffitt, 13 years old, mentioned that he had to write a test letter, a lucky idea occurred to his father.

"Write a letter to Bernie," said his father. "Perhaps the little fellow might get it. We will send it to Eau Claire, Wis., as that is the last place we heard he was at."

Frank wrote the letter and it was sent by registered mail. On the same train went another letter, this from Mr. Moffitt to the postmaster of the town, directing him to deliver the first to no one but the boy himself, and to make him sign for it. If he did not call for it, the postmaster was directed to forward the letter to Altoona. The boy was not found in Eau Claire, but at Altoona the plan succeeded.

Young Moffitt signed the receipt. The return slip was sent to Mr. Moffitt in Chicago. Mr. Moffitt then consulted an attorney at Eau Claire and secured a writ of habeas corpus.

When the child was brought into court the defendant, Anton Willman, the uncle, secured a continuance till next Monday. The boy was placed in the custody of Justice of the Peace James J. McMahon.

John Bernard Moffitt, or "Bernie" Moffitt, is the son of Justina Willman. When the child was an infant it was taken, with its mother, to Mr. Moffitt's home. The county record shows that on June 29, 1895, Gusta Willman consented to waive all rights and claims to her child. Last August she took the boy out for a car ride, and this was the last seen of him until he was found in Wisconsin. His mother is supposed to have died in Washburn, Wis., last November.

KILLED HIM.

Letter of Dismissal to an Old Minister Caused Death.

Medford, N. J., April 15.—Strange, indeed, it was near to him.

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

It was Rev. John W. Frambes singing his own requiem. The life of the poor old preacher ended with the second line of that old hymn, "Let me hide myself in Thee."

His hand was closed around a sheet of letter paper, his death warrant. It read: "Your age—infirmities—lack of personal magnetism—compel us to ask for your resignation—younger man needed—excite renewed interest—religious fervor—sorry, but you must go."

He went, but to his Maker.

Of course the trustees of the Medford Baptist church had no idea of killing the old man. They paid $200 a year for a preacher, and they wanted a good one—a man full of "religious fervor, enthusiasm, ideas, personal magnetism," and all that sort of thing—a lusty young man, who might marry one of the rich girls of the town and stir up things. They wanted something for their $200 a year, but they hardly expected the life of their old pastor. The letter of death came in the morning, just as the old man had mapped out his day's work—a dozen sick to see, some old folks to comfort, two babies to bless and a widow to bury. That was all—for $200 a year.

He read the letter, and then he prayed a bit. "Give us this day our daily bread," was all he said aloud. His aged wife, a woman past three score years and ten, thought he was praying for some poor soul, some one poorer than they. Then he took a walk in their little garden, and came around by the porch where she was resting.

She heard his trembling voice: "Rock of Ages, cleft for me." She heard him mutter, "After these forty years—yes, forty years," and then she saw him drop dead.

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

The deacons say the trustees killed him and the trustees say it was the Young Women's Society for Christian Endeavor. A number of foolish old women, some of them upward of 80, say "the hand of God—judgment," and the like, but they are old and do not know. Of course, the trustees and the deacons and the beauties in the Young Women's Society for Christian Endeavor will turn out at the funeral in Philadelphia, and the choir, just to oblige the widow, will sing "Rock of Ages, Cleft For Me."

And then they will all come home and thank God for the true Christian spirit that moved them to show so much consideration for the poor old man who served them for forty years at $200 a year.

Omega Oil

FOR CHILDREN—If your little boy or girl comes home from school or play with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Omega Oil. There isn't a bit of danger in using it freely, for there is no turpentine or ammonia in it. A whole barrelful of it would not burn or blister the tenderest skin. Children like to have their mothers rub it on them, because it smells so nice and is such a beautiful green color. It is a pure vegetable oil liniment, which does not evaporate, and you must keep rubbing it in until it is all taken up by the pores. Mothers ought to remember that "a stitch in time saves nine," and keep a bottle of Omega Oil in the house all the time. A bottle of it on the shelf is a necessity in every home. It is a protection and safeguard, much the same as a lock on your door. You may not need it very often, but when you DO need it, you need it bad.

Your druggist sells Omega Oil, or can get it for you of any wholesale druggist. The Omega Chemical Co., 257 Broadway, New York, will mail a bottle, prepaid, for 50c. in cash, money order or stamps.

MANHOOD RESTORED "CUPIDENE"

BEFORE AND AFTER

This great Vegetable Vitalizer, the prescription of a famous French physician, will quickly cure you of all nervous or diseases of the generative organs, such as Lost Manhood, Insomnia, Pains in the Back, Seminal Emissions, Nervous Debility, Pimples, Unfitness to Marry, Exhausting Drains, Varicocele and Constipation. It stops all losses by day or night. Prevents quickness of discharge, which if not checked leads to Spermatorrhœa and all the horrors of Impotency. CUPIDENE cleanses the liver, the kidneys and the urinary organs of all impurities.

CUPIDENE strengthens and restores small weak organs.

The reason sufferers are not cured by Doctors is because ninety per cent are troubled with Prostatitis. CUPIDENE is the only known remedy to cure without an operation. 5000 testimonials. A written guarantee given and money returned if six boxes does not effect a permanent cure. $1.00 a box, six for $5.00, by mail. Send for FREE circular and testimonials.

THE DAKOTAS.

Solid Block of Lignite For the Buffalo Exposition.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Wilton—Traffic Manager A. H. Walker, accompanied by R. J. Turner, manager of the North Dakota exhibit at the Pan-American exposition, and Assistant Manager W. F. Cushing, arrived from Bismarck and superintended the loading of a solid block of lignite citi containing thirty-four cubic feet and weighing 2500 pounds, which will be shipped to Buffalo to represent the coal industry of North Dakota. Several flash light photographs were received of the chamber and bank from which the block of coal was taken. These will be reproduced on canvass and used as a background for the display.

Fargo—The officials of the local land office have decided the contest case of Thomas McCreary against Michael Murphy in favor of the contestant. The tract of land involved is a valuable quarter section in Foster county Murphy was an 80-year-old man and the contestant declared he made his home with a son instead of on the homestead.

Grand Forks—C. C. Allen, who served for a year with the Canadian Mounted Rifles in South Africa, arrived in the city on his way to Minneapolis, where he expects to enlist in the cavalry service for duty in the Philippines if opportunity presents.

Devil's Lake—Attorney John C. Adamson has received the appointment as private secretary to Congressman Thomas Marshall.

Stanley—Socialists are organizing in Richland county. James Nelson, postmaster and merchant of Homestead, has a club organized in his township with a membership of thirty.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—A telegram has been received by H. M. Avery, a prominent resident of this city, notifying hinm of the accidental death of his nephew, Dallas Ashley, who was a Chicago-Great Western railroad between Debuque and Chicago. The young man had many acquaintances here, and formerly had a run as brakeman on the Southern Minnesota railroad between Jackson, Minn., and Madison, S. D.

John A. Bowler, warden of the Sioux Falls penitentiary, was decapitated by the state board of charities and corrections, as organied under a recent decision of the state supreme court. O. S. Swenson, chairman of the Republican committee of this (Minnehaha) county, was elected as successor to Mr. Bowler.

In the United States court, Alva L. Towne, Council Bluffs, Iowa, who was recently indicted by the federal grand jury for stealing a mail sack from the postoffice at Piedmont, S. D., appeared before Judge Carland and pleaded guilty to having a mail sack in his possession. He was permitted to enter his plea and was fined $25, which he paid.

Aberdeen—The United States land office was the scene of lively competition over isolated tracts of land in McPherson, Walworth and Campbell counties. Fourteen tracts were sold and the prices run up until one piece, forty acres, in McPherson, brought $6.50 per acre, although it is considered as poor a piece as there is in the county. Others sold for $5.50 and down to $1.25.

Milbank—Improvements of a substantial order are being made in this vicinity. H. Chrisman, of Iowa, bought 5000 acres of land near Stockholm, where a creamery is located. He is dividing the land into stock farms, and stocking them with cows, which he lets out on shares. He also established a bank at South Shore.

CASS LAKE TOWNSITE.

Status Will Be Determined at Early Date.

Washington, April 15.—The status of the Cass Lake townsite will undoubtedly be determined before many weeks. Ever since Secretary Hitchcock revoked his famous order, giving the settlers on a portion of the orginal townsite a certain number of days to pull up stakes, there have been substantial improvements going forward on that portion of the site which is claimed as an Indian allotment by Mrs. Lydeck. The whole question of title will depend on the outcome of the situation now pending in the supreme court of the state of Minnesota against Secretary Hitchcock and Land Commissioner Hermann.

It is said that Hitchcock's famous backdown in revoking his drastic and arbitrary order against the settlers will be urged by the state in its contention for section 16, upon which a portion of the town is located. It is also understood that the very exhaustive and strong argument submitted by Senator Knute Nelson orally before Secretary Hitchcock, Commissioner Hermann and Indian Commissioner Jones will be used in the case as showing that the federal government had no right to exercise its authority in evicting citizens.

Marion Kooke, manager for T. M. Thomson, a large importer of fine millinery at 1658 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, says: "During the late severe weather I caught a dreadful cold which kept me awake at night and made me unfit to attend my work during the day. One of my milliners was taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a severe cold at that time, which seemed to relieve her so quickly that I bought some for myself. It acted like magic and I began to improve at once. I am now entirely well and feel very pleased to acknowledge its merits." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

Long Standing Trouble at Laurium Comes to Head.

Calumet—The trouble between the members of the Laurium village council came to a climax at the last meeting, when President Fliege and Alderman Faucett handed in their resignations. Trouble has been brewing for some time over the appointment of a board of public works. The remaining members of the council met Saturday afternoon to make arrangements for a special election to fill the vacant positions.

It was rumored that Mrs. William Andrews came to her death by her own hand. Dr. McQueen held a postmortem which did not substantiate the report.

Bessemer—A baby boy about two days old was found in the creek inside the city limits. It was tied in a coffee sack and its throat was cut. A stone was fastened to the bag to sink it. School boys found the body, and it is supposed it had not been in the water more than a day.

Escanaba—One morning recently a dog was noticed in the street with an object which attracted the attention of a business man, who, upon investigation, found it to be a human skull, on which there clung a small portion of dried flesh. It looked as though the owner had received a blow over the eye and nose. During the latter part of the winter a young man from Perronville came to this city and never was heard from after that.

Marquette—Word has been received that the death of W. W. Richardson, formerly of Marquette, occurred at Spokane, Wash., after an extended illness, during which the deceased suffered from a complication of dropsy and Bright's disease. Mr. Richardson was father-in-law to George W. Hoag, who left for Washington a couple of years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson followed Mr. and Mrs. Hoag about a year back.

A gang of 100 Italian laborers, brought to copperdom for the purpose, has commenced the work of laying the street car tracks on the extension to Calumet. The grading is already complete for a distance of three miles, and work in all branches will be pushed with still greater vigor until the cars are running to the county metropolis.

Trimountain—The Methodists of Trimountain are considering the building of a church; in fact, steps in that direction have already been taken. A society was recently organized which has fifteen charter members, with promise of more, and plans for the raising of funds are now in preparation. Rev. Mr. Gillingham, of the Atlantic, is prominent in the movement.

A QUEER SITUATION.

Bartender Is President of an Epworth League.

Owosso, Mich., April 15.—Byron has a curious anomaly in the shape of John Fritz, aged 19, who is the son of the Byron saloonkeeper. He is president of the Epworth league, and at the same time serves as bartender in his father's place of business.

Young Fritz attended revival meetings last winter at the Methodist church and became converted, although he could not harmonize his occupation with the new condition of his heart. The evangelist advised him to stick to his job, as his first duty was to his father, and do the best he could. He attended church regularly on Sunday, dispensing drinks during the week and the people became so convinced of his sincerity and his ability was so apparent that he was almost unanimously elected president of the Epworth league last week.

The members of the society admire John Fritz's obedience to his father and respect his loyalty to the church. The matter has now ceased to be a subject for unfavorable comment.

ELOPERS MET BY A MOB.

Some Talk of Applying Tar and Feathers.

Moundsville, W. Va., April 15.—When Mrs. Della Hicks eloped last March from here with Lindley Long, who left a wife and daughter, both sick abed, she was one of the most popular women in town. Mrs. Hicks left a husband and bright boy. Long was also highly respected. When it became known how heartless had been the desertions, and that Mrs. Hicks was charged with having forged her husband's name to get all the money he had saved in years, sentiment changed.

Last Friday Marshal Evans brought them back from Muncie, Ind. They were met at the train by half the town's poulation, who hooted and jeered them, and talked of tar, feathers, rails and ropes. The long march to the jail was between close-packed lines of former neighbors and friends, who kept up a running fire of jests, threats and con-

TO CONTINUE FIRE.

Glass Works May Run Until June 15.

Pittsburg, April 15.—Window glass manufacturers are arranging a meeting for next Wednesday, to consider the extension of the fire, which it has been announced will end May 11, according to the understanding between the manufacturers and the National Jobbers' association.

Many of the independent concerns are anxious to keep the factories open until June 15, and the general belief is that this will be done, as many requests have come in recently for the extension, and the feeling of the workmen is general that the fire should not be suspended until a month later.

MILLIONS

Stolen By Capt. Carter From Government.

How the Swag Was Divided By Carter.

Washington, April 16.—Solicitor General Richards today filed with the United States supreme court a brief in opposition to the application for bail filed about ten days ago in behalf of former Capt. Oberlin M. Carter, now confined in the United States penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., upon conviction of fraud in connection with harbor improvements, etc., at Savannah, Ga. After reviewing the history of the case the solicitor general says in part:

"The validity of Carter's conviction and sentence by the court-martial, which alone could try him for crimes committed as an officer of the United States army, in violation of the articles of war, has been sustained by three civil courts and five judges, not counting this court, before which the matter is now pending for the third time. Carter now applies for the suspension of the just sentence of this 'lawful tribunal,' and asks to be released from imprisonment pending the hearing of this second appeal, upon the following grounds:

"First—Because he is suffering from neurasthemia and is on the verge of nervous collapse by reason of mental anguish, owing to his imprisonment.

"Second—Because he is innocent of the charges on which he was convicted by the court-martial, and the only way he can establish his innocence, so he says, is by pressing to trial the charges embraced in the Georgia indictment, which, he asserts, cannot be tried because of his absence from Georgia."

As to the first ground, the solicitor general submits an argument tending to show Carter's sound mental condition, and files with the court the affidavits of five physicians who examined Carter and affirm in closing that 'Carter is not now suffering from neurasthenia; that he is not on the verge of nervous collapse; that his nervous condition is not greater than we would expect to find in a healthy person of said Carter's standing confined in a prison. Affiants further say that said Carter is now physially and mentally scund." This affidavit is supplemented by affidavits from the warden and physician of the prison.

As to the second ground for release on bail the solicitor-general says, in part:

"Since Carter has dragged into this case the fact that he is under indictment along with Greene and the Gaynors, and has sworn that the criminal case cannot be tried because of his absence from Georgia, and asserts that he wants to be released so he may demand a trial by jury in Georgia, and prepare for it, it is proper for me to call the attention of the court to the fact that if the criminal case cannot be tried without Carter, neither can it be tried without his co-conspirators, Greene and Gaynors. Yet, ever since the indictment was found, in December, 1899, the government has been strenuously endeavoring to secure the removal of Greene and the Gaynors from New York to Georgia for trial."

Mr. Richards says that the investigations of the government reveal the loss of an aggregate of $2,169,159 through Carter's operations of which he (Carter) receiver one-third with traveling expenses added. In view of these facts, Mr. Richards asks: "Is it any wonder that Carter wants to get out on bail? Is it any wonder he desires to be put in a position where he can personally handle the sinews of war which he obtained by fraud from the government that educated him and gave him his standing and reputation? What bail could the court fix that would be sufficient inhis case, if he has sent his securities out of the country and made up his mind that the best thing he could do would be to follow them?"

Describing the method of Carter's operations Mr. Richards says: "The division of this 'swag' was attended to by Carter personally. When the time came to make a payment under the contract, Carter, who was located at Savannah and had charge of the work on behalf of the government, would give to the representatives of Greene and the Gaynors locally in charge at Savannah, a government check sufficient to pay for the labor and materials which actually went into the improvement, and then he would draw a government check for the excess of the contract price, representing what gamblers would call 'the velvet,'—the fruit of the fraudulent conspiracy—and, putting this in his pocket, would go to New York. There he would meet Greene and the Gaynors. Then the division would take place. Carter would be specially allowed out of the amount $75 for traveling expenses, and the balance would be divided into thirds, one-third going to Carter, one-third to Greene and one-third to the Gaynors. In this way Carter drew out of the conspiracy $729,523.02, and of this amount the records of stock brokers in New York show that he invested in stocks and bonds $650,201.85. For his traveling expenses Carter received $155. He made twenty-one trips to New York on this mission and at the time was in excellent condition financially to be appointed military attache at the court of St. James.

BASIS OF PROSECUTION

What Governor Taylor Said the Day Before the Goebel Shooting Is Strong Point In Ripley Case.

Frankfort, Ky., April 16.—Capt. Garnett Ripley, on trial for alleged complicity in the shooting of Governor Goebel, resumed the stand today and was further cross-examined. His answers were clear, and it became evident that the Bradley-Yost evidence as to what Governor Taylor said the day before Goebel was shot is the point on which the prosecution hinges its case.

Ripley told of his movements after the arrival of his company here the morning of Jan. 31. His company was stationed near the executive mansion and penitentiary, and had nothing to do with preventing the meeting of the legislature. Ripley then was asked by counsel for the prosecution if he had not said in substance to J. B. Matthews, in April of last year, the following:

"Matthews, I am going away soon, and I want to tell you confidentially that I know Caleb Powers is innocent, and can tell enough to clear him if it becomes necessary for me to tell it. Now is not the proper time, but I am going to New York and later possibly to California. I will keep you advised of my whereabouts, as I know you are a friend of Powers, and whenever it becomes necessary to tell it, in order to save Powers, I will do it, but if you ever tell what I have said to you before then, I will deny that I had this talk with you?"

Matthews, who was referred to, was Powers' assistant secretary of state.

Objection was made to this question by the defense, on the ground that it was "testimony in chief," but the objection was overruled. Ripley then replied that he might have said such a thing to Matthews, but if he did, he had in mind then what he had heard implicating Henry Youtsey andtheoccurrence of seeing Youtsey come out of Taylor's office, Jan. 29. He was not positive, however, whether he said this to Matthews or not.

Ripley could not remember whether he also told Mrs. Matthews anything of the kind, but admitted he had asked Matthews to go away with him, and suggested that their wives go to his home in Henry county. He could not remember whether he referred to Taylor as a coward, but did remember that he commented on the fact that he left his family alone at the executive mansion too often. Cross-examination was completed shortly before noon. Redirect examination, which followed, developed nothing new.

FRANK MAJOR HANGED

Executed at Meadville, Pa., For the Murder of a Police Officer---First Hanging There In Eighty Years.

Meadville, Pa., April 16.—Frank Major, alias Daniel J. Keloe, was hanged in the county jail yard at 2:06 o'clock this afternoon. Death resulted in six minutes from strangulation. The condemned man met death unflinchingly and without making any statement on the scaffold.

Major's crime was the murder of Chief of Policeman Daniel McGrath, of Titusville, Pa., Nov. 11, 1899. He was a member of a gang that blew open the safe and robbed the Titusville railroad ticket office and later went to a house on East Spring street, where they intimidated and robbed the inmates. They were tracked to this place by Chief McGrath and Policeman Sheehy. The gang opened fire at once and Sheehy fell dangerously wounded. McGrth grappled with the man at the door and after he had received his own death wound, shot and killed one of the burglars. The other two escaped, but Major was captured the next day. The dead burglar was never identified, and a Philadelphia medical school got his body. Major, it is said, comes of a good family residing on Grant avenue, Brooklyn. The execution today was the first in Crawford county in over eighty years.

POLICE WATCHING

For an Anarchist on Way to Germany.

New York, April 16.—A dispatch to the Journal and Advertiser from Berlin says: The entire body of German police, especially those stationed at seaport towns and the Berlin political police, is eagerly watching for an anarchist named Romagnoli. It has trnspired that Romagnoli who recently lived in South America, is now on his way to Germany, intrusted by the Buenos Ayres anarchist club with the task of assassinating the kaiser. Romagnoli so far has evaded the police. It is conjectured that he left the ship at some intermediate port.

TO BUILD A THEATER.

San Francisco, April 16.—The Examiner says a syndicate of New York financiers has been formed to build a theater in this city. The proposed structure will seat 3500 persons and be devoted to vaudeville performances. It is said $500,000 will be invested.

OPPOSED TO UNION

Managers of Wood Plant Will Never Recognize Association.

No Change In the Situation at the McKeesport Mill.

Men In the Other Mills May Be Called Out.

Pittsburg, April 16.—The strike at the W. Dewees Wood plant of the American Sheet Steel company, at McKeesport, is still on. The mill is being operated in a crippled condition with about the same number of men working as yesterday. The strikers are patroling the streets for the purpose of inducing the men to remain away from the mill, but they are keeping away. President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated association, said he probably would call the national advisory board together tomorrow to consider the action of calling out the men in the other mills of the United States Steel corporation.

Samuel J. Cooper, general manager of the Wood plant, is opposed to the recognition of the Amalgamated association. In an interview he said:

"This mill will never recognize the union. The Wood mill has been opposed to the Amalgamated association for over forty years and the men at the head of the mill now are just as much opposed to the association as the former proprietors were. I have received word from headquarters that the company will never recognize the union."

London, April 16.—J. Pierpont Morgan informed a reporter of the Associated Press today that he has not received any word regarding the strike at McKeesport and does not believe it is likely to assume serious proportions.

Several of the English papers this morning prominently printed an item giving the idea that the strike will become general throughout the steel plants.

Mr. Morgan characterized as absurd the cabled report that he is working for the re-establishment of the gold standard in Mexico.

BLIZZARD.

Another Bad Storm Prevails on the Colorado Prairies.

Denver, April 16.—Reports from Northern Colorado are to the effect that another storm has prevailed on the prairies for the past twenty-four hours and still continues. It began with a misty rain and developed into a veritable blizzard. The loss of stock will be great as they have become greatly weakened by exposure to the storms of the past two weeks and lack of sufficient food. The snow is drifting badly and railroad traffic is delayed.

EXPENSIVE.

Boer War Has Cost England More Than Crimean Affair.

New York, April 16.—The war in South Africa, says the London correspondent of the Tribune, has already lasted nearly as long and cost more than that against Russia which was waged at the outset of the period of expansion such as England never experienced before, and it was eleven years after the cessation of hostilities of the Crimea, before the treasury even with the aid of Mr. Gladstone's financial courage, was able to obliterate the effects of the crisis.

THE NEW MAINE.

Will Be Launched on Memorial Day.

Philadelphia, April 16.—It has practically been decided by the Cramps' Shipbuilding company to launch the United States battleship Maine on Memorial day. Survivors of the original Maine and the widows and orphans of the sailors killed in Havana harbor will probably be invited to attend the launching.

TWO BURNED.

Loss of Life at Saloon Fire at Batavia.

Batavia, N. Y., April 16.—Louis Miller's saloon and bowling alley on State street, were burned this morning, and George Lawrence, the bartender, aged 24 years, and Fred Hack, a laborer, aged 51 years, who slept in the building, were burned to death.

A GOOD SHIP.

Wisconsin Highly Praised By Her Commander.

San Francisco, April 16.—The new battleship Wisconsin has returned from her maiden cruise. She went to Magdalena bay for target practice. Capt. Reiter, her commander, speaks highly of the vessel's seagoing qualities and of the good marksmanship with the big guns, displayed by the men.

Brussels, April 16.—The Petit Bleu says that Prince Louis Napoleon has married the Grand Duchess Helena, daughter of the Russian grand duke, Vladimir.

WANTS MUCH

Big Claim of France For Indemnity.

Would Cover All Catholic Institutions.

Washington, April 16.—In the discussion of Chinese indemnities, which is going on at Pekin and also at the various foreign capitals, it has been developed that the French government is desirous of looking after not only those claims of a distinctly national character, relating to France and French subjects, but also the extensive class of claims of Catholic institutions and missionaries. In making known this desire, the French authorities have made it clear that they look upon the non-military claims as quite worthy of consideration as those connected with the equipment of military expeditions. The extent of these depredations to Catholic persons and property in China is said to be very large, owing to the number of Catholic missions maintained throughout China.

It is said that 30,000 persons, directly and indirectly connected with the missions, many of them native converts, have been killed or injured during the course of the disturbance. Beside this, much property has been destroyed and damaged.

As the Catholic authorities have no official status in the negotiations at Pekin, they have naturally looked to the French government as most likely to render them euch aid as might be proper in the circumstances. This assistance has been readily granted, and as a result the various governments have been advised of the desire of the French authorities to see that these non-military losses receive suitable attention.

As far as possible it is desired to separate this class of claims from those of a purely national and military character, and to leave them for subsequent adjustment. The claims refer not only to French Catholic missions and missionaries, but include also practically the entire range of claims in which Catholic missions have suffered.

COURT HOLDS PATRICK

Justice Jerome Finds the Testimony of Valet Jones Sufficient to Warrant Holding Lawyer Patrick For Grand Jury.

New York, April 16.—Justice Jerome today held Albert T. Patrick for the grand jury on a charge of murdering the late Texas millionaire, William Marsh Rice.

Justice Jerome, in his decision, said he was satisfied that the testimony of Jones, Rice's valet, was adequately corroborated "within the meaning of section 399 of the code of criminal proceedure, by evidence tending to convict defendant with the commission of the crime charged."

COPPER DEAL DETAILS

Arrangements For Transfer of Montana Mining Companies Stock to Amalgamated Copper Company Are Made Public.

New York, April 16.—The Tribune says: It can be announced on the best of authority that all the preliminary arrangements have been made for the transfer of the Boston and Montana Copper and Silver company, and the Butte and Boston Mining company by the Amalgamated Copper company.

Rumors of the impending deal have filled the air of Wall street for several days, but it was not until late last evening that the details of the project became known. The proposition now made is that the stockholders of the Butte and Boston deposit with the trustees 135,000 shares of the outstanding 200,000 shares. The shares are of the par value of $10 and will be exchanged for Amalgamated stock or paid for in cash at $92.50 if the deal goes through. Ten days from April 25 will be allowed in which to carry out the plan. In the case of the Boston and Montana, a deposit of 100,000 shares is required out of 150,000 outstanding of a par value of $25 each. These shares are to be exchanged for Amalgamated shares or for $375 in cash if the deal is accomplished within ten days.

There is a general belief among those well informed on the copper situation that the foregoing are only preliminary to a much larger expansion of the Amalgamated company, which aims to take in eventually the rich mines of Northern Michigan and Arizona, as well as those of Montana.

This would give the company a practical control of the copper situation in this country, with the exception of the Heinz holdings in Butte. Senator W. A. Clark and his sons are believed to be in on the new deal.

Boston, April 16.—Kidder, Peabody & Co. announced that they have been requested to arrange a consolidation of the Boston & Montana Copper and Silver Mining company and the Butte & Boston Mining company with the Amalgamated Copper company upon some equitable basis. They will require, before undertaking to arrange the terms, a deposit of 135,000 shares of Butte & Boston and 100,000 shares of Boston & Montana. The directors of both companies recommend the deposit of holdings upon the following terms:

Deposit of stock must be made on or before April 25. In case the arrangement is not completed within seven days after that date, the stock deposited will be returned. Depositors will have ten days after the announcement of the terms to accept either of the following propositions:

To receive such number of shares of the Amalgamated Copper company as may be called for under the terms of the agreement, or to receive $375 per share in cash for Boston & Montana and $92.50 per share in cash for Butte & Boston, or to withdraw the stock deposited without expense. In case any underwriting is necessary, Kidder, Peabody & Co. agree that all holders who elect to exchange for Amalgamated stock may share in pro rata.

IN GRASP OF OCTOPUS

Morgan Syndicate Is Negotiating For the Purchase of the Leading Locomotive Works of the United States.

New York, April 16.—The World says: Negotiations are said to be in progress for the purchase of the Cooke locomotive works in Paterson, N. J., by a syndicate headed, according to report, by J. Pierpont Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and leading men in the billion dollar steel trust.

The Cooke company has one of the best equipped locomotive plants in the country.

Negotiations by the syndicate to secure the Cooke plant are said to be the initial steps in the formation of a locomotive combination which will be closely allied with the United States Steel corporation.

It is reported that the syndicate proposes to absorb all the locomotive building companies east of the Mississippi, and that negotiations are in progress for the purchase of the Baldwin locomotive works at Philadelphia, the Schenectady locomotive works and the Portland locomotive works of Maine.

It was said yesterday that the deal with the Cooke had been perfected, but Charles Cooke, head of the company, denied last night, in Paterson, that the sale had been made. He admitted that negotiations had been going on for four weeks.

The price offered is said to be $1,750,000, and the Cooke family intimated last night that such a sum would be considered. Fifteen hundred men are employed by the Cookes, and the shops are going night and day.

The company has been so busy that the furnaces have not been cool for months. Orders are far in advance of the capacity of the plant, and the works will have to be kept running night and day for several months.

At the office of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. it was denied that the purchase of the Cooke works had been made.

RICE INDUSTRY.

An Expert Will Investigate Important Matters.

Washington, April 16.—Secretary Wilson has decided to send out an expert to scour the rice growing countries of the world and thoroughly investigate important matters connected with the industry. Professor Knapp will probably be in charge of the expedition. The start will be made about next July. Secretary Wilson believes that the future will find this country in the first rank of rice growing countries and the coming mission to the east with a view to gathering information on the whole subject, is expected to yield good results.

IS VERY ILL.

Alexander McKenzie Said to Be In a Serious Condition.

St. Paul, April 16.—Alexander McKenzie, recently receiver for numerous mines in the Nome, Alaska, district, is lying dangerously ill at the Alameda county jail, California, where he is serving a year's sentence for contempt of the United States circuit court of appeals.

McKenzie's health has not been good since he returned from Nome last fall, and on several occasions he appeared in court against the advice of his physicians, who told him that he was endangering his life by such exertion.

After the contempt cases had been decided against him, he bore up under the belief that the United States supreme court would release him. Immediately following the decision of that court that it could not act in the matter, McKenzie's nerve gave way and he took to his bed, where he has steadily been growing weaker. His physician now says that his condition is most serious, and believes that he will not live to finish the sentence, as the confinement appears to have robbed him of all his energy.

A petition for the pardon of McKenzie was presented to President McKinley, but the president declined to consider it until after it had been passed upon by the court which had inflicted the penalty. The petition is signed by many United States senators and congressmen and by several judges of United States courts who are acquainted with McKenzie, and who express the opinion that from their knowledge of the man they do not believe that he would intentionally violate the law or refuse to obey a court order.

McKenzie is still reticent regarding his punishment. He says that he has been the victim of circumstances over which he had no control. He was between two fires, and could not have done otherwise than what was done. He was an officer of the United States district court of Alaska and was under heavy bonds. He was ordered by the Alaskan court to turn the money over to the United States marshal, and did so, and had no power to obey the order of the court of appeals. He followed the orders of the Alaska court and the advice of his attorneys, and feels that his punishment is unduly hard and unmerited. McKenzie is suffering from intestinal troubles brought on by the hardships endured in Alaska, and since his confinement in the Alameda county jail he has lost about 25 pounds in weight.

CASE OF INFANTICIDE.

Infant's Body Found Near the Mohawk Mine.

Calumet, Mich., April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of a fully developed male child was found last evening near the Mohawk mine location. The identity is unknown. A coroner's inquest will look into the matter. The doctor who examined the child states that it died soon after birth. The body was in a box and was wrapped in a woman's skirt and night gown.

$3.50 UNION MADE SHOE

Men's $5 Shoes For $3.50

I make and sell more men's $3.50 shoes than any other two manufacturers in the world. The real worth of my $3.50 shoes compared with other makes is $5.co. My large business permits me to buy the high grade leathers used in $5 shoes, at a less price than small manufacturers. This combined with my system of selling at one profit through my own stores, enables me to place my $3.50 shoes on the feet of thousands of men who have been paying $5 for their shoes believing they could not get a first class shoe for $3.50. I have convinced them that the style, fit and wear of my $3.50 shoes is just as good as the $5 shoes—placed side by side it is impossible to see any difference. Try a pair.

AT WEST DULUTH

Another unfailing sign that summer is near at hand is any action that has for its object the opening up of the fountains about the city. West Duluth will be one of the first portions of the city to be in line for the season, for a resolution was introduced and passed last evening, at the council meeting, authorizing the board of public works to open the drinking fountain at the corner of Grand avenue and Central avenue. The water has been cut off from this fountain ever since cold weather set in last fall, but it will be in operation in a day or two, a fact of which the teamsters of this end of the town will be duly grateful.

City Engineer Patton and force have been busy for a few days past in surveying the new site of the West Duluth park, recently purchased from the Norton estate. It is expected that the survey will be finished today or tomorrow, when the city engineer will make an outline, afterward a topographical sketch of the park, and make such recommendations as he deems best in the way of improvements this spring.

FITZGERALD-KELLY.

The St. James church in West Duluth will be the scene of a very pretty wedding service at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. At that time Miss Lucy Fitzgerald, daughter of James Fitzgerald, superintendent of machinery at the Mountain Iron mine, will be united in marriage to Francis Kelly, of Proctorknott, a popular engineer of the Missabe road for some years. The marriage ceremony will be performed by Rev. John Keoh, of Ironwood, Mich., an uncle of the groom, and will be assisted by Rev. Father Feehely, of the St. James parish. The bride will be attended by her sisters, Misses Agnes and Lucy Fitzgerald. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will make their wedding trip to Chicago, Ishpeming, Marquette, Milwaukee, and will be at home in Proctorknott after May 1.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION.

Duluth, Minn., April 15, 1901.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership heretofore existing between the undersigned under the name of Johnson & Borgstrom has this day, by mutual consent, been dissolved, William Johnson retiring.

The business of the firm will be continued under the name of A. J. Borgstrom & Co., all accounts due the firm of Johnson & Borgstrom being payable at the place of business of said A. J. Borgstrom & Co., No. 320 Fifty-fifth avenue west.

The firm of A. J. Borgstrom & Co. having assumed all the liabilities of the firm of Johnson & Borgstrom, the same will be paid upon presentation to the latter, at the above named place of business.

WILLIAM JOHNSON.
A. J. BORGSTROM.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

This evening Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Keefe, of 714 Fifty-eighth avenue west, will give an informal reception at their home in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Richie, of St. Paul, who will arrive in West Duluth this afternoon on their wedding trip en route for California. The marriage took place in St. Paul at 8 o'clock this morning. The bride is a sister of Mrs. Keefe.

Mr. and Mrs. Strom, of Fifty-eighth avenue west, were very pleasantly surprised by a number of their friends on Saturday evening. The time was passed with music, cards and dancing, and the party broke up at a late hour, everybody reporting a delightful time.

The body of Duncan Forbes, who died March 28, will be shipped on Thursday to the decedent's former home in Grindstone City, Mich., for interment. Alexander Forbes, the son, will accompany the remains.

On Sunday last Mrs. M. H. McMahon, Miss McMahon and Miss Lucy Shannon, of Duluth, were entertained at the home of P. H. Martin.

William Barley, who has been in the Red Cross hospital with pneumonia, is able to be out again.

Miss Clara Towner, who has been quite sick, is reported able to be out again.

A stock show company from West Superior, with the letters W. S. P. H. W. attached to its name, pulled off an event in the Great Eastern hall last evening, entitled "The False Friend." The West Duluthians that attended, except the man that went to sleep during the first act and slumbered through the whole agony, are wondering what West Duluth has done to be punished as it was last evening.

Yesterday was pay day at the Clark-Jackson company's mill.

M. M. Clark will leave today for a three weeks' visit at his farm near Alexandria, Neb.

George Showers will leave tomorrow on a business trip on the range.

M. P. Doyle broke up his camps along the Cloquet last Saturday and has returned to West Duluth.

Mike Haley has gone to Ashland.

Robert Mosher has returned to Houghton to resume his position as government inspector of the harbor work there.

Charles Petruske has a lame foot, the result of contact with a nail Sunday last.

West Duluthians wishing to attend the Boers' lecture at the Lyceum on Thursday evening can procure tickets at Wieland & Wade's, Spencer's drug store or Nygren's drug store.

Grand Concert!

AND INFORMAL DANCE,

Given by the Minnesota K. P. Band (30 pieces.)

Armory Monday Night, April 29 Concert 8 to 10. Dancing 10 to 12.

ADMISSION, 25 CENTS.

HE STOLE A MARCH

Adjutant General Libbey Drops In on Company G's Drill.

Not a Man of the Company Was Present.

This Probably Settles the Mustering Out Question.

Adjt. Gen. E. D. Libbey stole a march on Company G last night. Undiscovered and unannounced, he slipped quietly into town about 7 o'clock, maneuvered from the depot to the Armory, unobserved; reconnoitered every nook and corner of the big building, hoping to see a Company G man, but notwithstanding the fact that it was the regular drill night not a member of for Company G.

The adjutant general was not discovered until he was leaving the Armory. Later he called on one or two officers, but left for St. Paul again at 1 o'clock without even leaving his card card for Company G.

This stroke of the adjutant general will probably remove any doubt that may have existed as to the future of G company. There is scarcely any question now but that the company will be speedily mustered out.

Gen. Libbey declined positively to discuss the company's affairs when seen last evening. When asked how he found things at the Armory, he simply said:

"Just as I expected to find them."

The head of the state guard remained in the Armory some time, but being a comparatively new man in the affairs of the guard the members of other companies that strolled into their company rooms passed him by as being an ordinary citizen.

It is understood that the political influence that has been brought to bear on the governor to keep the company in the state service, has been much greater than has appeared on the surface. But against this is the request of Col. Van Duzee and the recommendation of the local court of inquiry, that the company should be mustered out.

Gen. Libbey, who, as major of the battalion of artillery, had served with Col. Van Duzee on the examining board, felt that the request of the commanding officer of the Third was not without justification, notwithstanding the political pressure, and so planned the flank movement which he executed last night. He also made a close examination of the names on the petition recently sent the governor for the retention of the company, and found that only sixteen out of thirty were members of the guard.

In justice to the enlisted men of the company, however, it must be said that they most sincerely regret the mustering out. It has been suggested, and the suggestion meets with favor, that a new company be organized to be composed of old Company G men and veterans of the Spanish-American war. Duluth can easily support three companies and a new company would undoubtedly receive the hearty support of every officer and enlisted man in the city.

THE CHAIN GANG

Will Soon Be Started At Work.

The county chain gang, which has been having an easy winter of it because there are no arrangements by which it is possible to work during the months of frost and snow, is getting uneasy, because the time is drawing near when the sentences to "hard labor" that most of the county prisoners get will mean what they say. As soon as the frost is out of the ground, which will be almost any day, the gang will be put to work on county roads near the city of Duluth. It cannot work too far from the city to be brought to and from its work mornings and evenings.

Last summer, though the chain gang was not started until rather late in the season, it accomplished a lot of work. A large tract of land on the poor farm was cleaned of stumps and stones and fitted for cultivation. After that was done the gang put in some work on roads, and a good deal was accomplished along this line.

The Boer Cause.

The Boer war, which has attracted the attention of the world for the past eighteen months, will be thoroughly explained and also the causes which led to it, by Messrs. Wessels and Viljoen, special envoys of the South African republics to this country, at the Lyceum Thursday evening. The object of their visit here is to place the cause of the Boers in its true light before the American people. The lecture will be illustrated with stereopticon views, showing the Boers in peace and war, and will be very interesting. The proceeds of the entertainment go to the Boer relief fund for the widows and orphans of the fallen burghers.

Sale of State Lands.

State Auditor Dunn will hold a big sale of state lands here May 23, when about 23,000 acres of lands that have been sold before and payments become delinquent will be resold. Purchasers must accompany their purchases with 15 per cent of the price of the land and the interest on the unpaid balance up to June 1, 1902. The balance may be paid at any time within forty years, but it draws interest at the rate of 5 per cent.

Sales will be held in other adjacent counties, including one in Carlton county May 24, and one in Cass county June 4.

UNIMPORTANT.

Washington, April 16.—The cabinet meeting today was unimportant. No questions of public interest were discussed.

MANSION BURNED.

Havana, April 16.—The Abreu mansion at Cerro has been burned involving a loss of $300,000.

GREAT FIRE.

Bonds Amounting to a Large Sum Are Destroyed.

Fire in the basement of the city hall last evening, destroyed bonds amounting to $295,000. The building was heated most expensively for about five minutes and the horrible order of burning wealth, led some to believe that the health department was fumigating the entire city.

The smell of burning bonds is not so bad if the burning is in installments of about $10,000 each, but when more than a quarter of a million dollars in beautifully engraved lithographs are touched off with an iconoclastic lucifer, the odor is something awful.

The bonds burned last evening were a part of the issue of $1,250,000 engraved two years ago for the purpose of exchange for a like amount of old Duluth Gas and Water company's 6s. The exchange dropped through and the bonds were declared useless for the reason that they bore the signature of Henry Truelsen.

The finance committee, consisting of Alderman Krumsieg, Johnson and Haven, burned the bonds and City Clerk Cheadle assisted. They went about this financial incendiarism with an air of supreme indifference and nonchalance that would have led a stranger to believe that they were in the habit of burning up vast fortunes two or three times a day.

TO GO BACK.

Sheriff Will Take Joseph Beauchamp to Crookston Tonight.

Joseph Beauchamp, the young Duluthian accused of attempting uxoricide at Crookston on Sunday evening, and who gave himself up to the local police yesterday afternoon, will be taken back to Crookston this evening.

There seems to be little doubt but that he tried to kill his girl wife, notwithstanding his vague statements that it was all an accident. Deputy Sheriff Gonyeau arrived from Crookston early this morning and tells the story of the shooting, practically as Beauchamp tells it up to the point of shooting. The deputy sheriff says that Beauchamp threatened to shoot his wife again on a bridge soon after he fired the first shot, but that the plucky wounded woman took the revolver out of his hands and threw it into the stream.

Beauchamp weaves his story with the ingenuity of an insane man, saying that his wife, fearing that he might shoot again, asked him to throw the gun into the river.

The Crookston Journal says that Mr. and Mrs. Beauchamp were out walking near an old planing mill, when Beauchamp drew the revolver and shot her through the abdomen. He then helped her as far as the bridge across the Red Lake river, and turned on her again with the revolver in hand, but she succeeded in taking the gun from him and throwing it away. They then walked to a livery stable, where Mrs. Beauchamp ordered a hack, saying that she was not feeling well, and Beauchamp ran away.

THE BOARD MEETING.

Redistricting Scheme Expected to Carry.

The meeting of the board of county commissioners to discuss the redistricting of St. Louis county to provide for two more commissioners, began at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and it was still in progress at a late hour. While it was expected that the arguments for and against the range plan of redistricting would be warm, indeed, the chances seemed to be that it will go through, and that the Mesaba range will have two commissioners, the Vermilion range one and the city of Duluth four, making a total of seven.

At this meeting also A. F. Rockwell, former overseer of the poor, was to appear and make a settlement with the county as to certain property that the board claims he took with him when he left, and that the board asserts belongs to the county instead of to the former overseer.

THE HEALTH BOARD.

Ordinance Operative as Soon as Published.

The new health ordinance passed last evening, re-establishing the board of health abolished by the adoption of the Greene charter, will become operative as soon as published. The new health board will then, probably, be appointed next week.

However, the new board succeeds the old board only in name. As a matter of authority the health commissioner is paramount, subject only to control by the council. The new board is simply advisory.

A new feature about the ordinance is that tenants of property on which unsanitary conditions prevail, are held liable. Under the old ordinance the health authorities could not hold a person responsible for throwing tin cans and garbage on lots, streets or alleys, without catching the person in the act.

Is Insane Again.

Harry Lensy, an insane man, made things lively on Lake avenue last night. He is the same man that created such a sensation down among the elevators a few weeks ago by attacking a night watchman. At that time he was sent to Fergus Falls but was paroled from there about a week ago.

In jail this morning he was intensely religious at times and again he thought he was playing ball. An uncle in Chicago has been notified of his condition and wired the police that he would come up and take charge of him.

Stole an Overcoat.

Charles Anton is under arrest at police headquarters today for stealing a fine overcoat from W. L. Johnson, porter at the Merchants saloon. Anton and a friend entered the saloon yesterday and after partaking freely of Mr. Johnson's free lunch, Anton walked back into the buffet and stole the colored man's $30 spring coat. Detectives captured him and this morning Anton told them all about the stealing and where he had hidden the coat in a Bowery saloon. The coat was recovered and a warrant issued for the thief.

HARD ON JOE.

Mrs. Richard Chamberlain Attacked the Secretary.

London, April 16.—Discussing the South African war at a meeting held at Canningtown, last night, Mrs. Richard Chamberlain made a lively attack on colonial secretary, Joseph Chamberlain. "It is all very well," she said, "for men like my brother-in-law Joe to say that farm burning is all right, but how can he know about farms or farming? Who was his father? He was a little screwmaker, a very respectable profession, but it does not teach much about farms. It is no good sending out screwmakers or anything of that sort. The war was not made for England, but for Johannesburg capitalists who could not speak English."

Mrs. Richard Chamberlain went to South Africa early in the war and returned to England towards the end of last summer.

TO GRANT FRANCHISE.

St. Joseph Will Allow Tracks Through City.

Detroit, April 16.—A special to the Evening News from St. Joseph, Mich., says: Tonight the city council will grant a franchise to the Chicago & Southeastern Michigan Electric railroad for tracks through this city. A stock company is building the road, the present factors in which are C. L. Clark and J. T. Barhoff, of Cleveland and W. F. Sesses, of St. Joseph. The road will run from Chicago to St. Joseph, tapping the Michigan fruit belt, a distance of ninety miles, and its estimated cost is $2,000,000. Right-of-way has been secured through a majority of townships the road will traverse, and a portion of the road has been stocked. When completed it will be the longest electric line in the West.

A CONSOLIDATION.

Indianapolis Press Merged With the News.

Indianapolis, April 16.—The Indianapolis Press will make its last appearance today. Tomorrow it will be merged into the Indianapolis News. The Press was first published Dec. 3, 1899. W. J. Richards had sold his minority interest in the Indianapolis News to the present owners—Delavan Smith and Chas. R. Williams, and, associating with him John H. Holliday, former proprietor of the News, established the Press. The latter today published the following card:

"Believing that there is room in Indianapolis and its territory for only one complete two cent afternoon newspaper, and that the News amply covers this field, John H. Holliday and William J. Richards, the editor and manager of the Press, have consolidated their interests with those of Delavan Smith and Charles R. Williams, owers of the News. Mr. Holliday becoming a member of the News co-partnership. Maj. Richards retires by preference from the newspaper field to devote his attention to his private affairs.

"Mr. Williams will continue as editor and Mr. Hilton U. Brown as the general manager of the paper."

DISAPPOINTING.

Was the Performance of Whitney's Volodyovski.

London, April 16.—Col. H. McCalmont's bay colt St. Maclou by St. Simon-Mimi, won the forty-second Newmarket biennial stakes at the Newmarket Craven meeting today. Arthur James' Magic Mirror was second and William C. Whitney's Volodyovisk, ridden by Lester Reiff, third. Seven horses ran. The performance of Volodyovski was a distinct disappointment, and showed a need of preparation should he meet the expectation of those who have held him a favorite for the English derby. The biennial stakes are 25 sovereigns each, with 500 sovereigns added for 3-year-olds, over the Rowley mile.

BUYS TIMBER.

C. M. Hill Is Back From a Western Trip.

C. M. Hill, of the C. M. Hill Lumber company, returned last evening from a trip to Washington state for the purpose of picking up timber lands. Mr. Hill says it was not his object to secure timber with a view of beginning lumbering operations, but to hold it for speculation. He says that his visit has been satisfactory in every way. Mr. Hill said today that he found the great trouble in making purchases of timber claims in the state of Washington is that the people that have been located there have, in a large majority of cases, been gulled by the professional locators, who for the sum of $100, perhaps, would agree to locate a person on a claim having 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 feet of timber on it. In many instances the person that located will wish to sell his claim and ask the price for 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 feet of timber. The prospective purchaser will find that it will scale up to sometimes less than 1,500,000 feet.

The idea is no, said Mr. Hill, that the person on the claim is attempting to defraud, but as a rule he is some man that knows nothing about timber and the locater simply misled him into believing that he had more timber. The purchasers are having a lot of trouble in chasing down these facts regarding the true extent of the timber, and are beginning to find out that the total amount of timber has been in many cases very much over-estimated.

Mr. Hill says that he finds most of the best things in the way of timber claims have been taken up, and that many of the claims remaining are not desirable. The mills out in Washington are running to their full capacity, and a great deal of lumber is being cut. Lumber is very cheap, but on the other hand stumpage is so much cheaper than it is here that the lumbermen can afford to sell cheap and still make a good profit. Stumpage that in this vicinity would sell from $5 to $6.50, says Mr. Hill, will sell at prices in Washington all the way from 50 cents per thousand to $1.50. The latter price is the top notch for timber in Washington. Mr. Hill says it is possible to buy somtimber for 25 cents a thousand, while there is a lot of it being sold for 50 cents.

Mr. Hill says the cities of Seattle, Everett and Tacoma are simply booming. Houses are going up fast all over them. In Seattle there are 200 families that are now waiting for houses to be built to accomodate them. Mr. Hill firmly believes that Seattle is destined to be the Chicago of the far Northwest, and will in time outstrip San Francisco.

TRIED AGAIN.

Cloquet Company Seeks to Cut Mr. Shea's Timber.

W. H. Shea, the Cedar Island lake settler, who has been having no end of trouble to save the timber on his land has had another episode in the struggle which he is making. Last week Mr. Shea was arrested on the charge of threatening to break the peace and was put under bonds of $200 to keep it, his hearing to be held next Wednesday in this city. The threat which he was alleged to have made was to prevent the cutting of timber on his land by violence if necessary.

He went back home and Monday morning found men on his land beginning to cut the timber. He remonstrated with them and they left. Then Peter Campbell, the foreman for the Cloquet Lumber company and with whom he had the original trouble, came on and began work and refused to get off. Mr. Shea then went to Eveleth and got out warrants. They were arrested and were taken to Eveleth and were put under bonds to appear Friday. Thus the matter stands now.

The general land office has detailed one of the special agents at Duluth to look into the matter.

MORGAN AFTER IT.

The Financier Wants Famous Gainsborough Picture.

London, April 16.—It is announced by Onlookers (a society paper) that it is practically settled that J. Pierpont Morgan will secure for £25,000 the Gainsborough picture, recently recovered in Chicago. The Agnews, however, deny that the sale has been made, adding that it cannot be definitely closed until the return here of Sir Thomas Agnew, who is abroad. J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., said to a reporter of the Associated Press today:

"My father considers that, should the negotiations for the Gainsborough be completed, it will be time enough to talk about it then. For my part, I am not delegated to confirm or deny the report."

ENGAGEMENT REPORTED.

London, April 16.—The afternoon newspapers here today report the engagement of Spencer Eddy, second secretary of the United States legation at Paris, and Miss Daisy Leiter, sister of Lady Curzon of Kedleston. Mr. Eddy was here last week on his way to Paris. Intimate friends who saw him then discredit the report.

MOTHERHOOD

Is a natural instinct which shows itself in the girl as soon as she is big enough to play the mother to her doll. Unfortunately the womanly health does not always keep pace with the motherly instinct, and when real motherhood comes it often comes to mothers who suffer intolerably during maternity and who are unable to nurse the weakling child which frets and moans in their arms.

Motherhood is prepared for and provided for by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures nausea, tranquilizes the nerves, gives a healthy appetite and promotes restful sleep. It makes the baby's advent practically painless, and gives the mother abundant strength to nurse her child.

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription." There is nothing "just as good" for weak and sickly women.

"Two years ago I was very sick and began taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mrs. Ed. Hackett, of Chardon, Geauga Co., Ohio. "When my baby boy came he weighed twelve pounds and a half. Have had good health ever since, until about three weeks ago, when weaning my baby, I contracted a heavy cold. Am taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I am thankful that poor sufferers have such a grand chance to regain their health by using Dr. Pierce's medicines. It would take pages to tell the good it has done in our family, and in a great many more families under my observation.

"I thank you for your kind medical advice."

THEY ARE ANXIOUS

Saloon Men Worried Over Proposed Limitation Ordinance.

The District Idea Proposed By Alderman Johnson.

Outlines Three Districts ---Cochrane Provision For Transfer.

Many people in the liquor business are anxious about the proposed amendment to the saloon restriction ordinance now pending in the council. It was first thought bad enough to limit the number of founts of liquid joy to 169, but now it is proposed to divide the saloon business off in patrol districts, and even prevent the transfer of title or location when a saloon is once established, except by unanimous vote.

The patrol district idea originates with Alderman Johnson of the Fifth ward. The anti-transfer proposition with Alderman Cochrane of the Eighth ward.

Mr. Johnson's plan is to prevent the selling of liquor outside of three districts. The first district has boundaries running from the lake shore, at Eighth avenue east to Superior street, thence to Second avenue east, up Second avenue to First alley, thence to First avenue west and up to Second alley; then over to Third avenue west and down to First alley, and out First alley to Twenty-seventh avenue west, down that avenue to the bay front and around the dock line to the point of beginning.

The second proposed district includes practically all of West Duluth, except that portion lying north of Cody street. The western limit of this district is One Hundredth avenue west, which is the main thoroughfare of New Duluth. The dry spots in West Duluth are only in the high places.

The third proposed district is only a little over half a block on the upper side of Fourth street, between Fourth and Sixth avenues east.

Many of the saloons now in the 169 would be put out of business under this system of patrol limits, and if the amendment goes through it will probably be changed somewhat so as to include practically all the saloons now in existence.

As for the non-transfer of title or location of the established saloons, there seems to be little doubt but that this feature of the ordinance will meet with strenuous opposition. Under it a saloon keeper would have to retain his present location or go out of business in case the landlords should raise the rent beyond his means.

Mr. Cochrane, recognizing this, has extended the scope of his amendment somewhat, so as to provide that a change can only be made when authorized by the council with a unanimous vote of all members present. This is regarded as too slim a chance by the saloon interests, especially when Alderman Moore, of the present council, never votes in favor of a saloon.

Under a unanimous vote clause it would be easier to amend the ordinance in case a change of location or title was desired. The ordinance could be amended with simply a majority vote instead of a unanimous vote.

PROMOTIONS

WALKING MATCH.

Score of the Peds In Columbus Contest.

Columbus, Ohio, April 16.—Of the seventeen men who started in the six-day (72 hours') walking match, which began yesterday morning, sixteen still remained at the end of the first twelve hours. Sam Myers, of Cambridge, Mass., after a wonderful exhibition of speed, gave up during the night.

Score at 1 p. m.—Golden, 79 miles 1 lap; McClelland, 69:1; Hart, 74:8; Barnes, 66:5; Richardson, 66:9; Tracy, 53:10; Stokes, 64:10; "Kansas City Kid," 1:9; Taylor, 57:9; Graham, 67:6; Sachs, 67:10; Porter, 61:1; Day, 64; Loslein, 52:3; Bender and Moss also dropped out.

NO FRIARS.

They Will Not Return to the Provinces.

Cebu, Island of Cebu, Philippines, April 16.—Judge Taft, president of the Philippine commission, says that Monsignor Chappelle, the papal delegate to the islands, told him the friars were not to return to the provinces and that only a sufficient number of them were now in Manilla to act as instructors in the colleges. This disposes of the troublesome "friar question."

Cebu is the first island to be visited by the commission upon which the insurrection is still active. It is unsafe to leave the city of Cebu without an armed escort. The delegates from the towns of the island, who are now here, are anxious for the establishment of a provincial government, which, they believe, would assist in ending the insurrection in Cebu.

Capt. C. P. Bragg has been called to Ohio by the sudden death of his mother at the advanced age of 85 years.

Automobiles In War.

Automobiles are to be used as army transport wagons. Trial experiments in France have proved convincing. It is odd to note the different uses to which nature and science are put. On the battlefield they fight for the destruction of life, while throughout the country Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, one of nature's most scientific medicines, fights to preserve it. For fifty years the Bitters has been making strong stomachs and curing dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation and biliousness. In the spring when the system is usually run down this wonderful medicine will be helpful in restoring your health and strength. It will also prevent malaria, fever and ague and as an appetizer it is unequalled. See that our Private Revenue Stamp is over the neck of the bottle.

NO INFORMATION

Concerning Manilla Frauds Is Given Out.

Washington, April 16.—Officials at the war department would not discuss the reports from Manilla concerning the frauds in the commissary department, but it is known that Gen. MacArthur has cabled some information regarding the developments from time to time. Maj. George B. Davis, whose name was mentioned in the dispatches yesterday, is now in Washington on leave. He was at the department today, but declined to make any statement for publication.

Manilla, April 16.—A court-martial has been convened and will meet tomorrow to try Lieut. Frederick Boyer, who is charged with the embezzlement of commissary stores. Capt. Frederick J. Barrows, of the Thirtieth volunteers, who was arrested under similar charges, will be tried later.

THE BURLINGTON

Annual Meeting Will Be Held on Wednesday.

Boston, April 16.—President Harris of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad arrived here today to attend the regular meeting of the directors, which is to be held here tomorrow, and at which it is generally understood the question of the consolidation of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific is to be taken up. No one officially connected with the Burlington road will say a word about the deal which is believed to be in hand, nor will they admit that any proposition will be considered tomorrow.

CHAFFEE'S BIRTHDAY

Gives a Farewell Dinner In Honor of the Occasion.

A Most Notable Gathering of Foreigners Was Present.

Field Marshal Von Waldersee Makes a Congratulatory Speech.

Pekin, April 16.—Gen. Chaffee's birthday dinner yesterday was also a sort of formal farewell by the Americans to Pekin. There was a notable gathering. Field Marshal Von Waldersee and all the generals with their staffs were present, as well as all the ministers and their first secretaries. In all there were fifty guests. The field marshal made a speech in English, in the course of which he said it was an occasion of congratulation and sorrow—the first on the occasion of Gen. Chaffee's birthday, and the second owing to the Americans' departure. Every foreigner in China bade Godspeed to Gen. Chaffee and the brave men under him, for none had made themselves more generally popular. For Gen. Chaffee personally he felt admiration and esteem, and all present must feel the same.

Senor Cologan, the Spanish minister to China, made similar remarks in behalf of the diplomatic corps.

A force of 1100 Germans and 1000 French troops leave here tomorrow to join the Pao Ting Fu expedition against Lieu Kuan Ting.

At a meeting of the ministers this morning the situation generally and Field Marshal Von Waldersee's report were considered, but nothing definite was decided upon. The Chinese court has reppiied to the recommendations of Japan on the subject that it is impossible for the emperor to return to Pekin until the country's guests leave.

METAL WORKERS.

Annual Session Is Being Help at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, April 16.—The Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers and Brass Workers' Union of North America, opened its annual convention at the St. Charles hotel today, with about fifty delegates in attendance. The first session was devoted to the reading by President J. J. Lynch, of Boston, of his annual report, which was followed by the appointment of committees.

SWITCHMEN STRIKE.

Freight and Coal Traffic Completely Tied Up.

Scranton, Pa., April 16.—Two hundred switchmen in the Lackawanna yards here, at Tyler and Clark's Summit, struck this afternoon at the discharge of two men by the yardmaster. There is a complete tie-up of freight and coal traffic here, and word has been sent down the Bloomsburg and other divisions to hold all trains. Three miles of coal cars are already blocked on the Bloomsburg division between here and Pittston Junction.

SHOT HIS BROTHER.

Robert F. McFetridge Fatally Wounds His Brother.

Chicago, April 16.—As a result of hatred due to business differences, Robert F. McFetridge today shot his brother William S. McFetridge, in the presence of several hundred persons, at North Clark and Maple streets. The wounded man probably will die. Both were dealers in ice. Robert, who was arrested, claims William attacked him with an ax.

A SEARCHING INQUIRY.

Chicago, April 16.—Members of the special committee, appointed by president Hamberg of the county board to investigate the management and conduct of attendants at the Cook county hospital, held their first meeting here today, and made plans for a searching inquiry. Charges which are to be sifted were made by Gen. O. L. Mann, who commanded an Illinois regiment during the civil war. Nurses and others employed at the hospital are alleged to have beaten patients.

Schlitz

For fifty years Schlitz beer has been brewed at Milwaukee. From this city it goes to the remotest parts of the earth. The sun never sets on Schlitz agencies. Civilized men do not live where Schlitz beer is not standard.

Schlitz beer has made Milwaukee famous. It has given Milwaukee beer the distinction of purity, and purity is everything, but all Milwaukee beer is not Schlitz beer. People now demand a beer that is healthful, and that demand calls for Schlitz.

Schlitz purity is absolute. Every process is cleanly. Every drop of the product is cooled in filtered air. Every barrel is filtered—every bottle is sterilized.

A beer that is aged and pure is healthful. That is Schlitz.

THE BEER THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS

PROF. ROULAND DEAD.

Was Prominent at Johns Hopkins University.

Baltimore, April 16.—Professor Henry A. Rowland of the Johns Hopkins university died suddenly at his home in this city today. He was born in Honesdale, Pa., in 1848. In 1876 he accepted the chair of physics, with charge of the laboratory at the Johns Hopkins university, which he held until his death. He was a member of the electrical congress that met in Paris in 1881, and served on the jury of the electrical exhibition there in that year, and for his services was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

About five years ago he gained world-wide reputation by his large diffraction gratings, which are ruled by a method of his own, directly on concave mirrors. The photographs of the solar spectrum that he succeeded in making with these gratings surpassed anything else of the kind ever done. In 1889 he was chosen president of the American Physical society.

TO CONTRADICT.

Statements of Gov. Allen Concerning Porto Rico.

Ponce, Porto Rico, April 16.—The chamber of commerce met yesterday, in response to a special call and discussed the commercial and general conditions of the island. The administration of Porto Rico was criticised, and it was resolved to cable to Washington, denying the statements of Governor Allen and Secretary Hunt in regard to the prosperity of Porto Rico. The chamber of commerce of Ponce also telegraphed to the chambers of commerce of San Juan and Mayaguez to co-operate on similar lines.

SAIL FOR NEW YORK.

San Juan, Porto Rico, April 16.—G. W. Fishback and Jose Gomez Brioso, the commissioners of Porto Rico to the Buffalo exposition, sailed for New York today, on board the steamer San Juan, with the exhibition from here. Brioso is the first native member of the council to visit the United States officially.

IN FEAR OF DUTY.

Liverpool, April 16.—The influx of sugar from the continent has been so enormous in expectation of the imposition of a duty on that commodity that 87,829 tons are now in stock here, against 33,850 tons for the month of April, 1900. About 6,500,000 Havana cigars have also been taken out of bond.

HIS CREDIT IS POOR.

London, April 16.—In the Westminster county court today, an order for committal to prison was made against Sir Rupert Peel for non-payment of a judgment debt. The warrant, however, was suspended for a week and it was announced in court that a settlement would be effected in the interval.

IS A CANARD.

Lisbon, April 16.—In the best informed circles here it is declared that the story that the queen of Portugal will enter a convent is absolutely fanatical.

BISHOP ESHER DEAD.

Was Senior Bishop of the Evangelical Church.

Chicago, April 16.—Bishop J. J. Esher, after a protracted illness, died in this city today, aged 78 years. Bishop Esher was the senior bishop of the Evangelical church, having continuously occupied the office since 1863. He served in the active ministry since 1845 and was the oldest minister in active service in his church. He was born in the province of Alsace in 1823, coming to America when 9 years old. The funeral will be held on Saturday at the Sheffield Avenue church, and the interment will be at Graceland. The bishop is survived by a widow, one son, E. B. Esher, and two daughters, Mrs. G. C. Knobel, of Chicago, and Mrs. Yagge, of Lake Forest.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (Central time), April 16.—Low pressure areas overlie the Lower Missouri valley, Texas and the New England coast, causing light to copious rains in North Atlantic states, the Upper Mississippi, Missouri and Red River valleys, and light to heavy snowfalls over Wyoming and Colorado. An area of abnormally high barometric pressure covers Northwest Canada and Rocky Mountain districts, being highest at Swift Current and bringing with it much colder weather. Temperatures have fallen 10 degrees to 20 degrees in Manitoba, Assiniboia, the Western Dakotas, Western Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico and Eastern Montana, the lowest temperature being 4 degrees above zero at Qu'Appelle. Freezing weather occurs generally in districts north and northwest of Colorado and Nebraska.

The winds on Lake Superior are brisk easterly and southerly at Houghton, Marquette and the Soo, and northeast at Port Arthur and Duluth.

Express Companies and the War Tax.

The decision of the United States supreme court, in the case of the Wells-Fargo Express company, that the company must pay for the revenue stamps on the packages it accepts for transmission, will apply equally to all companies engaged in the transportation of express packages. It is of importance as settling the question of the liability under the war revenue law. For more than two years most of the express companies have shirked the responsibility which congress obviously intended to place upon them. The amount involved was small in individual cases and no one cared to take the matter into court until this case against the Wells-Fargo company was brought up. The court has justified the principles involved in the contention on the part of the people and has plainly said that the express companies have been dodging. Referring to the particular case before it, the court said: "Here it is true that the exaction is small, amounting to only 1 cent, but, if the principle is good, it would apply equally well if the amount were large. Being an arbitrary demand of the company, that is to say, a demand which it could waive at pleasure, it would mean, if the principle contended by an appellant be upheld, that one chipper might receive the services of the express company upon payment of the regular charge, while others for the same service would be compelled to pay varying sums, arbitrarily exacted, in addition to the regular charge. So stated, and we think the statement a fair one, it will not need discussion to show that the principle is erroneous, and that this may not be done. Each and every shipper is entitled to the services of the company upon the payment of the regular charge for the same service."

The Advance of the Trolley.

But a comparatively few years ago, many people were declaring that with the introduction of steam as a motive power the last step in civilization had been reached, so far as transportation was concerned. Yet today there are many declaring that steam will soon be discarded as a cumbrous and outgrown device of civilization, just as steam displayed the old stage coach. At the present time an elaborate road is being built between Philadelphia and New York, which is guaranteed to conform to the highest standards now found on steam railroads, and which will not have a single grade crossing. The establishment that is to build the road is declared to have guarantees from the two principal electric companies in this country that their motors will propel the cars at a speed of at least fifty miles an hour. But this is not all. The rates of fare between New York and Philadelphia are to be 50 cents, or about one-fifth of the present tariff. Yet there are admitted advantages of steam as yet to an extent that the new trolley company, in spite of its cheap fares, does not expect to cripple the normal traffic or profits of the steam railroads. Ultimately, however, it may be that the electric system will take the lead. It will solve the problem of overcrowding in our great cities. It will move the laboring man from the physical and moral unhealthfulness of the congested tenement districts, while with far superior facility, it can handle milk, butter, the products of the farm and truck garden, practically taking them up at the farmyard gates and delivering them at the door of the consumer. Nothing in the line of invention or discovery is final in this wonderful age.

IS IT ONLY A BLUFF?

According to one of the Washington correspondents, the bill introduced by Representative Babcock of Wisconsin during the closing hours of the Fifty-sixth congress and heralded by the chairman of the Republican congressional committee as a measure aimed at the trusts, does not, in the opinion of expert tariff reformers, entirely repeal the tariff duties on iron and steel and the products of those metals. Careful analysis of the Babcock bill has created a suspicion that it is nothing more or less than a bluff, which, if passed, will leave the billion-dollar steel trust recently organized free to collect from American consumers prices which foreign manufacturers are ready to sell steel at in the United States, plus 45 per cent which the government will continue to collect on importations of steel and iron under section 193 of the Dingley tariff act.

The Babcock bill provides specifically for the repeal of the schedules which include iron and steel products. It makes no reference to section 193, and it is presumed to be the intention of Babcock that that section shall stand. It is as follows:

"Articles or wares not specifically provided for in this act composed wholly or in part of iron, steel, lead, copper, nickel, pewter, zinc, gold silver, platinum, aluminium or other metal, and whether partly or wholly manufactured, 45 per centum ad valorem."

Owing to lack of time there was no discussion of Babcock's bill after its introduction, and the discrepancy discoverey by the tariff reform experts was not pointed out before congress adjourned. It is admitted in Washington that the steel trust can get along comfortably on a flat duty of 45 per cent, and if no attack is made upon section 193, the trust is not likely to oppose the repeal of schedule C.

Will Mr. Babcock be willing to amend his bill with a provision for the repeal of section C?

EVOLUTION AND EDUCATION.

When Darwin announced the principles of evolution, the world was shocked at his conclusions and lost sight, for a time, of the great law of nature that he had discovered, and to which he gave the name, "natural selection." That great observer noticed that in all forms of animal life there was a tendency of the stronger to perpetuate their kind and thus emphasize their strength. It was a simple discovery, yet it revolutionized the philosophy of the world; it banished the idea of creative perfection and opened the way for intellectual and moral growth on the lines laid down by the Creator of the universe.

In no department of practical life has this principle of natural selection taken so firm a hold as in the methods of public instruction. The discussion of educational matters is always in order. Every man who has attended school deems himself qualified to throw light upon the theory and art of preparing the young mind for the conflict of life. The public press teems with criticisms of the various "fads" in the public schools. If the schools are not managed as they were when we learned the three R's, something must be wrong.

This critical disposition is usually born of ignorance of the object of the variety of instruction that is offered to the child by the modern educator. Within the last quarter of a century the best educators have come to the conclusion that it is essential to determine what a child is fitted for than to fill his mind with stuff for the use of which he has no natural adaptation. It is the Darwinian principle of natural selection—give a child an opportunity to find in what direction his inclination leads, then educate him along those lines. Give him during his school days instruction in the rudiments of all practical knowledge; note his aptitude for this, and his inaptitude for that; start him right, and nature will do the rest. The "fads" are the open doors of inclination through which the child may enter and work out his own problem of life in the manner that God intended.

There is no slavery so cruel as the slavery of a life—work that is uncongenial; there is no liberty so sweet as the bondage of the work one loves—a work to which the mind and the talents are attuned; a work in the doing well of which the soul glories. In such a life there is complete harmony. In this holy union of work and inclination are born the geniuses—the men and women who do things, who build, create. It is then the duty of the public schools to fit the child into the niche for which nature designed him. That is the first step of education. If that be false it may take years of work—hard work—to remedy the evil. Nine failures out of ten are caused by a lack of adaptation.

Let the educator keep clearly in mind the principle of natural selection, remembering always that it is infinitely better to become a good blacksmith than to be a poor lawyer; better a good engineer than a poor doctor; better a good farmer than a poor preacher; better a good mechanic than a failure as a merchant. Gen. Grant was a miserable failure until he found the task for which nature had fitted him. Count over the men who have won success and they will be found to be those who go to their task like the war horse to battle—rejoicing.

CARTER'S ACCOMPLICES.

The announcement has been made, but the authority is not given, that Philander C. Knox, the new attorney general, intends to follow up the Capt. Carter case and prosecute those who were his accomplices and benefited by the frauds that he practiced at the expense of the government. Attorney General Knox, it is stated, has possessed himself of all the details of the operations of the disgraced and convicted captain of engineers and will shortly institute suits against every person who is known to have received money from Carter. Some of these civil actions will undoubtedly be supplemented by criminal posecution. Carter's bank books, as well as his check stubs for the entire period during which he was defrauding the government, are in the possession of the department of justice and have been carefully checked up by expert accountants, who have traced every penny expended by the luxurious captain during the time he was disposing of the $2,000,000 that he is known to have stolen.

It is believed that sensational disclosures are certain to follow when Mr. Knox is prepared to act on the information furnished him by these experts and many reputable business men who have heretofore enjoyed immunity from all notoriety in connection with the Carter case will be placed in embarrassing positions. Attorney General Knox will do much to create a favorable impression on the part of the people of the whole country if he succeeds in bringing to justice the accomplices of Capt. Carter and recovering some of the money of which the government was robbed.

Immigration through Canadian ports is proving a source of great annoyance to the department and an effort will be made this season to prevent it as much as possible. The treasury department has immigrant inspectors at Quebec and Halifax, where they issue certificates to pass aliens bound for the United States on the presentation of the proper manifests. Last year 20,000 immigrants came into the country via Canada, and 20,000 other immigrants landed at the two Canadian ports. There is no reason to believe that half of these intended to stay in Canada, and the immigration authorities bellieve that fully 15,000 found their way into this country. The aliens who take this method of getting into the United States are usually the most undesirable class of immigrants, diseased persons or criminals who would be rejected if they presented themselves at New York or other American ports. The immigration officials have frequently run across foreigners in New York who have previously been deported for failing to comply with the requirements of the law. The inference was that they took passage for Quebec and slipped across the border line. For years it has been customary for persons who by reason of disease, criminal record or other disability are barred from this country, to take passage for Halifax or Quebec and from those points cross over the border into the United States. It has long been known that this practice has been followed, and up to the present time nothing has been done; but a determined effort will be made at once to at least restrict the practice.

The new laws in regard to tenement houses in New York, which have just been signed by Governor Odell, will go a long way toward preventing loss of life by fire and will also make the lives of the occupants more endurable by reason of better light, better air, and better sanitary regulations. All buildings intended for the habitation of three or four families must be fireproof if they are five stories or more in height and there must be no more enclosed air shafts or wells as are common in the building of today. Another important feature of the law is that no tenement shall be built with any rooms containing less than 120 feet of floor space. That is, no room can be smaller than 10 by 12 feet, or 8 by 15 feet, or 11 by 11 feet. It is argued that the conditions placed on rooms, air shafts, etc., will increase the cost of the tenement houses and make it necessary to charge higher rents, which will have the effect of crowding the people more closely into the tenements built under the old law. Or it will result in the crowding of two or three families into a tenement intended for only one family and thus undermie the foudation of family life. There are those who are somewhat skeptical as to the results of the new law and fear that it will be loosely enforced at first. However, after a thorough trial of the law experience will tell whether and how it should be amended.

No trace has been found of the missing boy, Willie McCormick, who disappeared from his home in New York a few weeks ago, notwithstanding a reward of $2000 has been offered by his friends and relatives for his return. The New York police have said that they believe he has run away, and that settles it. They will make no effort to find him. Everything goes to disprove the theory of the police and to strengthen the belief that he was kidnaped. It makes no difference to the police. A runaway they have said, and a runaway it will be as far as they are concerned.

Some Newark girls have organized to defy every form of popular superstition, and the members will make it their bounden duty to walk under ladders, pass between coaches of a funeral, break mirrors, carry cats across rivers, spill salt at table and look at the moon over the left shoulder. And there are 13 of them at that.

Already, there have been filed five applications for every quarter section in the Indian lands about to be opened for settlement. It is evident that there will be a large number of blanks in the government lottery.

Mr. Chamberlain, of Chicago, having signed the contract to remove the wreck of the Maine from Havana harbor, giving the government 3 per cent of the proceeds, the work of dismembering the Maine will now begin.

Fifty members of congress have accepted an invitation to take a trip around the world and visit the Philippines. It is not stated who is going to foot the bills.

Secretary Hay has begun on another canal treaty. He has the comfortable feeling that he cannot do worse than he did before.

An interesting addition to the various elements of American population is found in the 20,000 lepers in the Philippines.

LIFE'S SEASONS.

Youth is the time for joy; to wake at dawn
With breast untroubled with a single care,
Whence springs a lovely bird, of promise fair,
From whose bright petals comes a perfume rare—
Hope's fadeless flower, which of God's love was born.

It is the time of innocence and truth;
Of blessed trust which never knows a fear,
Of little troubles which soon disappear,
Of pleasures which increase with every year;
Life's blithsome hours are found in days of youth.

Manhood brings zeal for work; the health and strength
By which, like Midas, he turns all to gold,
Or finds in Learning's haunts a wealth untold
Of treasures which are neither bought nor sold,
But which he hopes to make his own at length.

His task it is to hold the sturdy plow;
To build the ships which cut the billowy main;
To guide with steady hand the impatient train;
Or furnish from his ever active brain
The book the pupil scans with earnest brow.

Age is the time for rest; the twilight hour,
Which brings with it the calm of perfect peace;
When from life's cares at length there comes release,
And tired hands have a well-earned surcease
Of duties which were now beyond their power.

The time to dream; to watch the waning light
Grow faint and fanlter as the eve draws nigh;
To see the stars born in the darkening sky;
Knowing that night will bring the home on high—
The blessed home, beyond our mortal sight.

THE SPRING ELECTIONS.

Cass Lake Times: The Duluth Herald, in a late ably written editorial, anticipates great and important changes in the political situation, basing his opinion on the reformatory actions of cities and towns in the late spring elections; and that a continuance of such aberrant acts on the part of the voting population will result in an entire overthrow of the party in power. We would caution our able contemporary that there are many factors in the problem of politics, the greatest of which is always the inducements held out to him, who by his ballot decides the destinies of the state.

In spring elections, when no national issues are to be settled, local and personal preferences are the main issues; besides, that "milder and more seductive" influence is generally wanting, and the voter is free to follow the bent of his own mind or succomb to the wiles of the local bosses. In "off years," when only state and county officers are to be chosen this feeling exinists quite as pronounced as in local elections, and the voter, untempted by the desire of individual gain, exercises his desires or his passions, as circumstances dictate. We must not forget, that a well-organized political machine has an abundance of the sinew of political warfare, but like the ordinary corporation "has no soul." In presidential years, the machine, grown arrogant with continued power and with a treasury plethoric of cash, with all the great corporations behind, it is not an opponent to be disdained.

We have heard much in the past about the "crack of the party lash," and "whipping recalcitrant member of the machine into line," but of late years the whip has to some extent fallen into disuse, and "Old Money Bags" has been called to the front with his millions, sans conscience and sans patriotism. What he can do with the aid of the most potent argument known to mankind, we have seen; what he will do in the future, all prescient minds can easily conjecture. These conditions are here to remain just so long as the man with the ballot cares nothing for principles and all for the shining dollar. We must educate our people; teach them to believe that country and good government is the prime object, the acquisition of wealth the secondary; unless we can do this there is no possible hope for reforms and changes of conditions.

A Bachelor's Reflections.

New York Press: It is probable that most women love men best for the breaks they make.

It is better to have played and lost than never to know a straight flush when you see it.

The time a man feels the biggest hypocrite is when he gets his first baby and has to act like he was proud of it.

Probably a lot of babies have been scared into convulsions by the horrible faces women make when they are trying to whistle at them.

When you see a girl kneeling at the altar to get married and her face has a rapt, glorified expression, she is generally wondering whether the man looks as awkward as most of the other men did that she has seen doing it.

DAILY STORY.

HIS FIRST SALE.

BY GEORGE K. STILES.

(Copyrighted, 1901, William R. Miller.)

Frank Everett Haldon painted because he liked it, and as yet could be accused of no mercenary instincts, and the curse of pot-boilling was afar from him. Nevertheless, in the streets of the city men mocked, but silently; for he was very strong and decidedly strenuous when angered and prone to violent incivilities.

Yet Margaret Brandt loved him for the pure heart that was in him, and doubtless also for the tall strength of him and the dark winsomeness of his eyes. It troubled his friends that he refused to paint something catching, which would please a retired banker's wife; and they complained that having met and interested Mrs. Tanker, of Chicago, he declined to portray that estimable creature in full war paint.

Only Margaret ventured to put her feelings vocally, and, having rushed into the studio from shopping, she was judging a new study over which he had enthused. "It is good," she admitted, "but not so good as that bit of landscape near Cannes, which has never sold."

"True," he admitted, "but what a tribute to its artistic value when one considers what does sell."

"Now, there is Mrs. Tanker," the girl continued. "Such a good woman, and she would give a thousand for a full length in oil; yet you let her understand that you were too busy. It is criminal in you to refuse. Someone else will take her money; why not you?" and she ceased triumphant for to her there seemed no possible answer to her argument, except consent.

"My dear," Haldon declared, as he frowned over a shadowy corner which displeased him: "I have strange notions, doubtless, and just as certainly they annoy you, but honestly I believe I should paint not only the beautiful but the horribleness of things. I could paint a dog frozen beside the sheep he would not desert; but I will not deplet the same animal in a gutter on Fourteenth street; and artistically Madame Tanker is very much the Fourteenth street dog. Confess," he ended, turning appealingly toward the girl, who could not restrain her laughter, though her convictions remained unchanged: "is not Mrs. Tanker nauseous; oh! artistically speaking only, you understand; socially she is immaculate, and her dinners are admirable, but artistically, as a stout shepherdess, for instnace?" and both laughed merrily, as they recalled the embonpoint of the city matron.

"Well," the girl declared finally, "it is our old bone of contention in the guise of a fat woman. I say that a man should paint for money. The laborer is worthy of his hire," she quoted.

"Exactly," he answered eagerly, dropping the palette and tramping noisily about the room; "but you forget that it is easier to sell a penknife than a house, yet real estate brokers make more than knife peddlers. Now, I will not take less than two thousand for that same landscape near Cannes and two more for the fire study. Why, I consider that I have $50,000 tied up in canvasses, and they will sell in the end."

"In the end," the girl repeated despairingly, for it was earlier than this that she desired success for him.

"What I need," he went on, either not hearing or ignoring this pathetic choral effect; "and what I must have is the luck to sell two or three pictures at good figures. The rest is easy; a sweet home up the Hudson, perhaps; golf links, tandems, and, who knows," as he looked at the girl, his eyes softening to an exquisiteness of tenderness, "someone who will share with me the prosperity which at present I lack," and he finished with a quick change in manner, as he recollected that this was merely a castle very high in the air.

"In other words," said Margaret, whose business sense was inherited from Peter Brandt, the financier of millions; "what you need is a sort of press agent or a promoter who will push your stock on the market."

"Precisely," he answered, with an irrepressible shudder: "I should imagine that was it. Where shall we luncheon?" he asked quickly, and discussing this question they quickly descended the four precipitous stairways to Thirty-eighth street.

A week after she met him at the Bensons, where they were dining, and as they left the table he contrived to join her. "I have quite unusual news," he told her. "Macbeth wrote me that some wealthy person had bought the Cannes landscape for two thousand, and it is to be hung at the municipal art exhibition."

The girl's face flushed with delight as she noticed the new light in his eyes. "Who was it?" she asked him.

"The name seems to be withheld, for some reason or other, although I believe Macbeth knows it. However, it don't much matter about the name, as the check is deposited. Just think, I have a bank account: it is really fascinating;" and meanwhile the girl listened delightedly, for she knew that he loved her and that as soon as success did arrive he would tell his love.

Now, the Cannes was well hung, and it was surprising the space the dailies gave to praising it, and as a result the artist was able to sell two more studies; and it must be admitted that his work was wonderfully clever.

To tell the truth, Haldon was a trifle amazed by his sudden success, and it was the girl's turn to insist upon his earning it; for now that it was come he was not so sure that he deserved it. None the less, there was a rush of congratulations and orders, which to a certain extent confused the artist. "People have such weird conceptions about my work," he told Margaret; "a brewer from Minneapolis telegraphed me to send him a sea picture and to name my own price."

"What did you do?" she asked gravely, although inwardly convulsed.

"Why I wrote I had none to send him, and he retelegraphed: 'If you have none in stock, send one as soon as possible.' He must imagine I am running a factory for such things."

Presently he was so convinced of continued success that he ventured to ask the girl to marry him; and being assured of her consent, he took the place up the Hudson, which he had so often mentioned. They were talking about the arrangements of their house, when, looking over the plan he had drawn of it, she gave a little cry of pleasure. "This littie gallery," she asked, "of what use is it?"

"That?" he said, rather puzzled to remember it; "why I believe that is a sort of sun parlor off your dressing rooms."

"Then I must have the fixing of my rooms, dearest," she said; and right willingly he consented.

They were just finishing dinner on the first evening of their return from the wedding journey, when he recalled that he had never seen her apartments. "Let us go there," he suggested, and he was much taken with the charming taste of her boudoir and dressing rooms. "And the little gallery; this door leads to it, does it not?"

Yes," she answered, and as they entered she turned on the electricity, thus flooding the place with brilliancy.

And there, in a sort of arching in the wall, and with a festoon of incandescent globes above it, hung that now famous landscape near Cannes.

"Ah!" he said, and rushed toward it; "how very, very sweet of you, my own. I wanted this because it was my first sale."

"And I wanted it," the girl said, "because it was while you were doing this that we learned to love each other; and as the painting grew, so our love greatened, and at last it seemed to me that the spirit of our love had come to dwell in it; so I got it and hung it here for both of us."

A mist came over the rather haughty eyes of the artist, and he held her close. "Tell me," he whispered, "how you were so fortunate as to get this from the original purchaser of the picture?"

"Oh!" she said, "I have had it all the time;" and to this day he wonders why he had not known it from the first.

No Appeal to Force.

New York Times: The moment force is appealed to in connection with any phase of the Chinese question as between the powers, no human foresight can see the end. Infinite complications arising out of conflicting interests, and even passions, must arise. In these the United States cannot become entangled. Nor is there the slightest prospect of such peril so long as the policy of our government is dictated by the sound principles adopted and enforced by the present administration.

Cost of World Power.

Baltimore Sun: The cost of being a world power is illustrated in the new naval estimates of the United Kingdom for 1901-02 of $154,377,500 on top of army estimates of $428,575,000. The new shipbuilding program calls for thirty-three new vessels, of which three are to be battleships and six armored cruisers as large and efficient as battleships. Some 3750 men are added to the navy, bringing its effective personnel up to 107,000. As the army now contains 450,000 men in the field in addition to the native troops in India and elsewhere, the actual fighting force of the empire is now considerably over 500,000 men. All this costs, of course, and the appropriations for the fiscal year will amount to nearly $1,000,000,000. If pensions were paid to British veterans as we pay ours, the outgo would be much over $1,000,000,000.

"It Seems as Though my Back Would Break."

Is it not true? Women suffer, feel the very life crushed out of them, grow old before their time. Each morning wake up determined to do so much before the day ends, and yet—

Before the morning is very old the dreadful BACKACHE attacks them, the brave spirit sinks back in affright; no matter how hard they struggle, the "clutch" is upon them and they fall upon the couch crying:

"Why should I suffer so? What can I do?"

The answer is ready, your cry has been heard, and a woman is able to restore you to health and happiness.

Backache is only a symptom of more fatal trouble—heed its warning in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will stop your torture and restore your courage. Your pains come from unnatural menstruation or some derangement of the womb. Let those who are suffering read Mrs. Morton's letter and be guided by her experience.

AN OPEN LETTER TO WOMEN.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been so delighted with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would write and thank you. My system was entirely run down. I suffered with terrible backache in the small of my back and could hardly stand upright; was more tired in the morning than on retiring at night. I had no appetite. Since taking your Compound I have gained fifteen pounds, and am gaining every week. My appetite has improved, have no backache, and I look better than I ever looked before.

"I shall recommend it to all my friends, as it certainly is a wonderful medicine."—MRS. E. F. MORTON, 820 York St., Cincinnati, O.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health more than a million women, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free.

CAN FISH AT ONCE

Trout Season Opened April 15 Under Law Amendment.

Executive Agent Fullerton Says That Is the Law.

The Black Bass Season Not Open Until June 1.

Anglers who are hurrying over to Wisconsin to fish for trout under the impression that the open season does not begin here until May 1 had better get next to Executive Agent Fullerton of the game and fish commission, for he is authority for the statement that it is safe to fish for trout in this state after April 15.

The fish and game laws have been amended during the present session of the legislature, and Mr. Fullerton says that while portions of the measure are very difficult of interpretation, anglers may consider it safe to fish for trout now instead of waiting until May 1. The season on black bass has been postponed, while the trout season is made earlier. Black bass cannot be fished until June 1, instead of May 15, as before.

In the estimation of Mr. Fullerton the most important piece of legislation enacted looking to the protection of game in the state was that bill which makes it a misdemeanor for a man to be caught in a field during the closed season with gun and a dog. Heretofore men have gone hunting during the closed season and secured a bag of game, but eluded the game wardens and those who seek to protect the game out of season because the latter could not prove that the hunter actually did any shooting. Under the new law it is taken for granted that a man is a hunter who is seen in a field between seasons with a gun and dog, and can be prosecuted, whether he actually shoots anything or not.

While the legislators did not enact any radical anti-game laws, they did amend the statutes in a way which has a decided tendency to protect not only the big animals in the forests, the fowls that inhabit the low places and marshes of the state, but the fish in the streams and rivers as well.

Through the passage of the Meilicke bill the duck law is changed, as it stops the sale in the state of ducks, geese and other water fowl at any time, preventing also their being shipped out of the state by hunters or dealers. The season remains the same, from Sept. 1 to Jan. 1.

The bill of L. F. Ferris stops the sale of venison, moose and other kindred game in Minnesota, besides preventing their meats being shipped out of the state. It pushes the season ahead ten days, it now opening on Nov. 10, instead of Nov. 1, and closes on Nov. 30.

"BECAUSE SHE LOVED HIM SO."

This evening, at the Lyceum, the delightful comedy, "Because She Loved Him So," will be given. There is a certain departure from stereotyped farce forms in the construction of this amusing pliay which gives it a spice of originality, and there are a number of situations which are exceedingly rich in humor. Sentiment is not lost to sight in a whirlwind of fun, and the tender love of the old married couple forced to simulate an estrangement is delicately drawn by the author, but not so finely attenuated as to fail in emphasizing the humorous complications which are thus brought into view.

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

One of the largest audiences of the season gathered at the Sixth Avenue theater last evening to witness the performance of North Bros'. comedians, in the rollicking farce comedy, "Our American Cousin." Standing room was at a premium and the company scored an enormous hit in this play, in fact, it is furnishing novel and interesting entertainments nightly. The same stirring comedy will be repeated tonight with new specialties.

PURITANISM.

Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus Tells of Its Accomplishments.

Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, lectured at the First Methodist church last evening in the Star lecture course on "The Later Eloquence of Puritanism." It was a fine effort, probably the best in which he has been heard here. I brought forth the great oratorical power of the man as well as his brilliancy of diction and nobility of thought. Dr. Gunsaulus is a man of fine presence and magnificent voice. To the power of his thought he is able to bring the effectiveness of brilliant delivery and magnetic presence.

Puritanism is the protest of man against the evil of impuritanism, he said. Puritanism dates back to the time of the Old Testament and has come down through the ages bringing reform after reform. It means evolution though revolution may come with it. After dwelling upon this thought for some time Dr. Gunsaulus took up some of the famous state papers of the Anglo-Saxon races and declared that it was the puritan spirit that brought everyone. He cited first the treaty of Wedmore. After it came the Magna Charta and the same eloquence which brought the treaty brought the Magna Charta. But Puritanism did not stop there. It again brought the Mayflower compact, then the declaration of independence and finaly the grandest of all documents, the emancipation proclamation.

It will not end there, the speaker declared, for he believed that within twenty-five years it will write another great state paper greater than all the others and it will declare the mutual rights of capital and labor.

Dr. Gunsaulus then took up several American characters as illustrating the grandest types of Puritanism. He referred to Daniel Webster as the grandest intellect the country has seen, and pictured his immortal reply to Hayne declaring "for liberty and union, now and forever, one and inseparable." His fall came when he departed from the path of puritanism and advocated compromise on the question of slavery. He said the fall of Webster had always seemed to him like the fall of Lucifer, the greatest of all the angels, who fell from his magnificence down, down, leaving a trail of brilliant light as he went.

The rise of Wendell Phillips and the wonderful work he did in the cause of the freedom of the slaves was depicted as another type of the eloquence of puritanism. His tribute to Phillips whom he had known personally was a touching, eloquent and fervid one.

Tennessee Coal and Iron to Be Absorbed.

New York, April 16.—A director of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company has admitted that the United States Steel corporation would eventually absorb the former corporation. He said that the Tennessee Coal and Iron will first absorb the Sloss Sheffield company, after which the consolidated company will be taken over by the big steel combine. President Bacon, of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company, who has been in Birmingham, is expected home the latter part of the week.

COMBINE FORMING

Consolidation of Dredging Interests Causing Much Comment.

Attitude of United States Government Exciting Apprehension.

Head of Lakes Concerns May Be Under Option.

The scheme for the combination of all the dredging interests of the great lakes which is now being fathered by J. A. Smith of the dredging firm of L. P. & J. A. Smith company, of Cleveland, is exciting more than a little comment in marine circles as to the outcome and what the effect will be should it go through. Mr. Smith is said to have been quietly visiting every port along the lakes that has a dredging plant and has succeeded so well that the trust has almost absolute control of every important private or government dredging contract on the lakes or the streams tributary to the lakes. Eastern papers assert that Mr. Smith has options on the largest companies in the largest ports and that dredging men all over the country are satisfied that the scheme is entirely practicable and will be consummated before the busy season arrives.

The dredging concerns at the head of the lakes are claimed in Chicago and Eastern papers to be included in the options which Mr. Smith has secured but inquiry here among the dredging companies brings only denials of that statement. It is claimed that Mr. Smith has never been here and has not secured options on the plants. It is not probable, however, that if he had the companies would admit it so it will take time to tell whether the consummation of plans of Mr. Smith mean that the head of the lakes companies will be in it or not. That he should have them there is no doubt for they have in the past practically controlled the dredging on the western end of Lake Superior and with the continuous contract of the Duluth-Superior harbor approaching completion they might extend their field farther east in the necessity for getting work. The dredging capacity at the head of the lakes, too, will compare favorably with that of some of the largest ports on the lakes and it is steadily growing.

The Detroit Free Press takes the ground that the United States government will not look with any degree of favor on the consolidation scheme and comments on the old time dredgers as compared with modern plants, telling how they first coined money owing to the absence of competition, and that when competitors entered the field prices fell like a rocket. It holds that the trust is being formed to force the old prices. The Free Press says:

"There is little, if any, money in the lake dredging business for those engaged in it as individuals at this time, and those that made money in other years, and remained in the business up to the present time have been obliged at times to draw on their resources, and with little hope of eventually putting it back again.

"Twenty or thirty years ago there was good money in the dredging business just as there was in many other lines of human endeavor on the lakes; but now the dredging business like other lines, owing to the fierce competition, has been brought to a hard-pan basis. In those old days the amount appropriated by the government for making canals, deepening channels, dredging harbors, etc., was about as great in volume as it is in these times, but it was then confined to a few companies. The amount of work was so great and the number of contractors so few that there was absolutely no need of cutting prices in order to get the business. In a sort of way the lake territory was divided up, those firms having the best appliances for certain kinds of work being allowed to take that work, and so on."

The article goes on further to say that all this resulted in large sums being appropriated, that the government tried every means to induce the contractors to lower their prices, but to no avail, that it was not practicable for the government to build its own dredges. The change was brought about by other investors that saw a good chance to make money and they went into the business, the government encouraging the new concern by turning over to them contracts that would have gone to the old contractors. The Free Press says that the government has thus from the supplicant on bended knee arisen to be the dictator, while the dredgers, old and new, have been brought to the condition of the supplicants. And now comes the trust with the object of combining all the dredgers on the lakes with a view of choking off the deadly competition and keeping prices something like the old schedule.

It will be interesting to note how the government will deal with this combination, for after being practically in control for many years it is not likely that the government will lie down without a struggle. If the prices get beyond the point that the government considers reasonable it would undoubtedly go into the dredging business itself. That would be a vastly different thing from going into the business of making armor plate and the government would probably not hesitate so long.

IT SLUGS HARD.

Coffee a Sure and Powerful Bruiser.

"Let your coffee slave be denied his grog at its appointed time! Headache—sick stomach—fatigue like unto death, I know it all in myself, and have seen it in others. Strange that thinking, reasoning beings will persist in its use," says Chas. Worrall, of Topeka, Kansas.

He says further that he did not begin drinking coffee until after he was 20 years old, and that slowly it began to poison him, and affect his hearing through his nervous system. He would quit coffee and the conditions would slowly disappear, but "one cold morning the smell of my wife's coffee was too much for me and I took a cup. Soon I was drinking my regular allowance, tearing down brain and nerves by the daily dose of the nefarious concoction.

Later I found my breath coming hard and frequent fits of nausea, and then I was taken down with bilious fever.

Common sense came to me and I quit coffee and went back to Postum. I at once began to gain and have had no returns of my bilious symptoms, headache, dizziness, or vertigo.

I now have health, bright thoughts, and added weight, where before there was invalidism, the blues and a skeleton like condition of the body.

It would be hard to tell how highly I value Postum.

My brother, Profesor Harvey Worrall, quit coffee because of its effect on his health and uses Postum Food Coffee. He could not stand the nervous strain while using coffee, but keeps well on Postum.

Miss Fantz I know personally has been incapable of doing a day's work while she was using coffee. She quit it and took up Postum and is now well and has perfectly steady nerves."

EXCELLENT.

Production of "The Grand Duchess" a Brilliant Success.

"The Grand Duchess of Gerolstein," a comic opera in four acts, was presented at the Lyecum last night by local talent, the proceeds going for the benefit of St. James' Orphan home, a Catholic charitable institution doing a successful work in the West End. The house was satisfactorily large, and the proceeds of the entertainment made a very tidy sum for the use of the Orphans' home. The performance was very good, indeed, and the audience testified its belief to that effect in warm and continued applause. This appreciation was based not only on recognition of well-known local musicians and actors, but on recognition of the excellence of their work.

The opera is only one out of a prodigious lot of about eighty that its composer, Offenbach, turned out during his busy life, but it is, perhaps, the best known in this country, and it is one of the best of the light operas that are in use. It has a neat little plot of its own, and the music with which that plot is draped is tuneful and pleasing. It received very good treatment at the hands of the members of the cast last night, and there have been few amateur performances of the many given in the city of Duluth that approached this one. From principals to chorus every member of the company did his work well, and the performance is deserving of very high praise in every respect.

The chorus in its part of the entertainment showed the result of very careful and painstaking schooling, and every move indicated that much hard rehearsing had been done before the performance. The very common hitches that mar amateur performances as a rule were conspicuously absent, and the opera went off as smoothly as possible.

Miss Clara Hector played the title role, and she did it extremely well. She had been suffering from grip for sometime, but it did not show in her singing or playing. She was in excellent voice, and both in the regular songs and some interpolated ones she appeared to the best advantage. Her acting was very good, indeed, and altogether her work in the chief part was entirely satisfactory.

Miss Rena Smith took the part of Wanda, a peasant girl, and her work was another conspicuously pleasing feature. She sang charmingly, and her acting was all that could be wished. In the third act she sang "The Swallows," by Cowen, very beautifully. She is equal to a much larger part than the that fell to her lot last night.

Cyril Tyler took the part of Fritz, the principal male role, and he took it well. He sang to unusually good advantage, and his acting was done with a smoothness, ease and grace that was far from the seeming of an amateur.

Franz Schultz, whose work as a singer and an actor is well known to all theater-goers in the city of Duluth, was well suited in the part of Gen. Boum-Boum, the bombastic commander-in-chief of the microscopic forces of the petty state of Gerolstein. Not only was his singing excellent, but his acting was far above the ordinary run of amateur work.

Roy Prytz as Prince Paul, Harry Howell as Baron Puck, and Charles McClure as Nepomuc, were all pleasing, and the ladies' quartet, consisting of Mrs. Edward Kreimer, Mabel Wallace, Katherine Voss and Minnie Schultz did very good work. Altogether, the performance was a great credit not only to the performers, but to Professor Muhlbauer, who staged directed and rehearsed the opera.

KASSON REFUSES SALARY.

Retains Office But Will Take No Pay.

Washington, April 16.—Gen. John A. Kasson, of Iowa, enjoys the novel distinction of being an officer of the government who refuses to receive a cent of salary, although carried on the salary rolls.

Gen. Kasson was appointed by the president special reciprocity commissioner immediately after the passage of the Dingley law, and he is reported to have received a salary of $10,000 a year. His negotiations with foreign governments resulted in reciprocity agreements and reciprocity treaties with France, Great Britain, Argentina, Nicaragua, Ecuador and other countries.

Because of the failure of the senate to act on the treaties, Gen. Kasson decided last month to resign. President McKinley declined to receive the resignation, and requested Gen. Kasson to retain the office. He has agreed to resume the duty provided the senate at the next session will ratify a reciprocity treaty or treaties. He has announced, however his unwillingness to draw a salary while he is not actively serving the government.

CAN HAVE TOBACCO

Council Allows It For Patients at Detention Hospital.

Lighting Question Is Put Over Until This Evening.

Saloon Limitation Ordinance Goes Over to Another Meeting.

The council last night:

Did not take action on the proposed five-year street lighting contract, and will meet for that purpose tonight.

Did not let the new Park Point ferry contract, though the bid of C. O. Flynn for the Carrington is favorably thought of.

Did not pass a resolution prohibiting the health department furnishing smallpox patients with smoking tobacco.

Passed the health ordinance, establishing a board of health, to consist of 3 commissioner and four citizens.

Did not take definite action on saloon restriction ordinance on account of rather startling amendments offered.

Adopted a resolution ordering new sidewalks to be built by the city if property owners fail to build in thirty days.

Brisk, breezy conversation danced rippingly through the council's proceedings, giving zest and piquancy to the merest routine. There were short dashes of monologue and stunts in bitter sarcasm that were distinctly startling at times, but good feeling rippled over and submerged threatening personalities.

The leading discussion was over an anti-tobacco resolution, reported by Aldermen Moore and Krumsieg of the committee on claims. It prohibited the health department from furnishing patients at the Emergency hospital with any more smoking and chewing tobacco.

Alderman Moore of the First ward said that the committee found that the tobacco bills of the health department ran as high as $25 and $30 a month, and he did not think that the city was in a position financially to follow out such a liberal policy.

"This policy which we have been pursuing is entirely too liberal," said Mr. Moore.

Alderman Cochrane of the Eighth ward, also a member of the committee of claims, replied very sarcastically:

"It seems to me," said he, "that the majority of the committee has strange ideas of liberality if they call the furnishing of a little pipeful of tobacco to poor, unfortunate persons whom we have cut off from the world a liberal policy. When this city gets so small in its treatment of its charges that it cannot furnish a man with a small pipeful of tobacco, and give them clothing to replace that taken from them and destroyed, we had better go out of business. I would be ashamed to be a citizen of such a community, and such a small policy would deserve the contempt of the people of this city."

Alderman Krumsieg of the Second ward replied to Alderman Cochrane, saying that he did not consider tobacco a necessity for smallpox patients, and that a majority of them were able to purchase their own luxuries.

Alderman Neff of the Fourth ward said that in his opinion the patients that were able should purchase their own tobacco, but there was not a penal institution or poor house in the United States that did not furnish tobacco to its inmates. He did not consider it good policy to deprive a man of tobacco when he was sick, especially if the man was addicted to the tobacco habit.

Alderman Cochrane moved that the resolution be laid on the table, and the motion prevailed, with only Aldermen Cromwell, Moore, Krumsieg and Rothermal voting in the negative.

When the vote was announced Alderman Krumsieg moved that the health commissioner be instructed to buy cigars for the smallpox patients, and that caused enough good feeling to wipe out the effect of the fight.

The health ordinance introduced in the council on March 25 was passed with important amendments. The original ordinance called for a board to consist of two citizens and the health commissioner, but it was found that the state law required at least three citizens on the board. The number was then changed from two to four, the citizen members to be recommended by the mayor and then elected by the council.

Alderman Neff proposed an amendment to have the citizen members elected by the council without recommendation by the mayor, saying that the state law provided that the board should be selected by the governing body of the city. This amendment, however, was defeated by a vote of 9 to 7, and the ordinance passed.

The saloon limitation ordinance came up and was discussed briskly and even hilariously. Alderman Johnson of the Fourth ward offered an amendment dividing the city up into two regular saloon districts, and prohibiting the granting of any licenses outside those limits.

He left so many dry districts through-

NOT HEREDITARY

In the main, consumption is not hereditary; it is infectious.

Low vital force is hereditary; which gives consumption its chance. An infection starts it.

Between the two, the crop is a big one: about one-sixth of the human race.

We suppose it needn't be more than 5 per cent, if people would take fair care and Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

out the city that several of the aldermen urged him to include little thirst-quenching circles in his map of the city and mark each of these circles "oasis." This amendment was put on the table for future consideration, as was one by Alderman Cochrane, which provided that there should be no transferring of licenses or locations under the proposed ordinance.

One of the aldermen inquired if that would necessarily mean that a man could not sell or move his place of business.

"Yes," replied the Eighth ward man.

"But what if one of the 169 saloonkeepers should die; what then?"

"Why, he would simply be unfortunate," replied the man from the Eighth.

It was finally decided that the saloon ordinance with its perplexing amendments should go over.

The street lighting question was also tackled, but without definite action. The Commercial Light and Power company made a bid for a 5-year street lighting contract, furnishing from 300 to 600 arc lights at the rate of $55 per light per year. As a guarantee of the good faith of this offer, the company, through its receivers, put up a certified check for $8250.

The committee on light and water submitted a resolution accepting this offer, but withdrew the resolution later when it was learned that City Attorney Mitchell had not examined the bid of the Commercial Light and Power company, and it was decided to hold another meeting this evening for the purpose of going over the light question.

A resolution was passed ordering the construction of sidewalks throughout the city. The property owners will be notified by postal card from the office of the board of public works that a new sidewalk is needed in front of their property, and thirty days will be given the owners to build on their own account. At the end of that time the city will build the walks and assess the property benefited.

The Park Point ferry service came up again on a new bid from C. O. Flynn, owner of the tug Carrington, offering to furnish a 24-hour service at $27 a day, and the Hartman interests offered to pay $50 a month for five months on this contract. A resolution was introduced awarding the contract to Capt. Flynn for a year, but was held up for a week on motion of Alderman Krumsieg, who said that he would prefer seeing some provision in the contract by which the city could avoid paying for the boat service in winter when the ice blocked the channel.

The committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks reported that it made a careful investigation of the condition of London road and found it in need of repair. This the board of public works promised to do at an early date and to such an extent as the limited finances of the maintenance department would permit.

SHOT IN NECK.

Case at Ashland With All Phases of a Murder.

Ashland, Wis., April 16.—A case which has all the phases of a murder was brought to the attention of the Ashland police, when an autopsy was held over the remains of Louis Mattson, who died in a local hospital from the effects of a bullet wound commencing at the base of the neck and continuing downward into the liver.

In the early part of the week Mattson, in company with Oscar Mann, was sitting on the Wisconsin Central tracks near Rhinelander waiting for the arrival of a freight train, he was shot in the back of the neck and immediately became unconscious. When the train came along he was put aboard by Mann and taken to Rhinelander, where he received medical treatment. Later in the day he was sent to the Rhinehart hospital at Ashland.

Mann has been arrested and will be asked to give a strict account of himself while with Mattson. He says he and Mattson left Ohio about a week ago to come to Northern Wisconsin and take up a mineral claim. While resting along the line of the Central, Mattson suddenly fell over with a groan. Blood spurted from an opening in the neck, which he partly stanched with his handkerchief. He then took the wounded man to Rhinelander and put him under the care of a physician.

Evidence submitted by several witnesses showed that Mann, who was penniless when at Rhinelander, deposited $200 in the First National bank of this city only a few days ago. After the holding of the inquest, Mann was sent to jail to await a hearing.

Life Insurance Changes.

Within the last six months most of the legal reserve (so-colld old line) life insurance companies have made changes in their rates and policy forms, but none have been commented upon so much as the change by the Aetna Life. This company has a remarkable and enviable record for dividend payments to policy holders.

Those who know the time-honored, conservative traditions of this company were surprised at its change of policy forms, adopting as it has, one of the fairest and most liberal contracts that is issued.

Aetna agents, who made such a good record, especially in this state last year, will have not only a splendid record as a dividend payer to use to get business with, but in addition this new policy contract which will appeal strongly to business and professional men.

ADVANCE WAS LOST

Wheat Started Strong But Weakened At the Close.

Cash Demand Good and Fair Sales For Export.

Kansas State Report Less Rosy Than Government's.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 16.—The wheat market started out firm this morning. The cables were satisfactory, Liverpool opening ½d higher and finally closing ¼d higher. The cash demand was rather strong, Chicago reporting 100,000 bus taken for export just after the close yesterday and New York reporting 30 loads taken this morning. The Northwestern receipts were not heavy and the advance in corn give its sympathy to wheat. The market held its advance fairly well until shortly before the noon hour when the strength gradually gave way to bearish feeling and there was a steady slump to the close. Primary receipts of wheat were 319,000 bus, last 344,000 bus. Shipments 207,000 bus, last year 258,000. Clearances of wheat and flour 286,000 bus. At the seaboard yesterday exporters took 224,000 bus. The Kansas state report made the condition of wheat 99.8 and the acreage 4,362,000. The government report of last week made the condition 105 and the acreage 4,778,000.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 300 cars, against 311 last week and 271 last year. Chicago receipts, 134 cars, none of contract grade.

Trading in futures was fairly active on the Duluth board. May wheat opened ¼c up at 72⅝c, sold at 72¾c at 9:31, eased off to 72½c at 9:14, recovered to 72⅞c at 10:35 sold at 72⅝c at 12:35 continued its decline to 72¼c at 12:40 and closed at 72¾c, a decline of ¼c. Chicago declined ¼c and Minneapolis the same.

Cash sales were 30,000 bus at ¼c under May for wheat to arrive and 1c under for wheat in store.

September trax was very strong today being bid up to $1.20¼ at the close, an advance of 2½c. May, cash and to arrive flax closed 2c up. Rye was up 1c cash and other coarse grains closed unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 73¼c; to arrive, 74c; May, 74¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 71¼c; to arrive, 72c; May, 72¼c; July, 73c; September, 70⅝c. No. 2 northern, 65¾@68¾c. No. 3 spring, 69¾@65¾c. Oats, 27@28¾c. Rye, 50c. Flax, cash, $1.59½; to arrive, $1.59½; May, $1.61; September, $1.20¼; September Northwestern, $1.22; October, $1.18. Corn, 41c; May, 41½c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 125; corn, 2; oats, 2; rye, 5; flax, 3. Receipts—Wheat, 48,352; corn, 771; oats, 10,669; rye, nil. Shipments—None.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Trade Was Quiet But Fairly Firm.

Chicago, April 16.—While trade in wheat was rather quiet early today, the market evinced a fair degree of firmness despite the fact that Northwest receipts were liberal and the weather still maintained an abject attitude before the bears. May opened ⅛@¼c higher, at 70⅝@71c, because Liverpool reflected the advance here yesterday. Moderate selling caused a dip to 70¾c during the first few minutes. This was followed by an advance to 71¼c, largely in sympathy with the strength of the coarser cereals. Local receipts were 134 cars, none of contract grade, while Minneapolis and Duluth reported 300 cars, against 171 last week, and 271 a year ago.

Bradstreet's world's visible statement showed a decrease of 3,112,000 and with this encouragement, May later advanced to 71¼c. An attempt to realize, however, caused a sharp break and the close was heavy, May ⅛c lower at 70⅝c.

Corn was fairly active and strong on wet weather West! May opened unchanged to ⅛c higher, at 43⅜@43c, and advanced to 44⅛c on liberal buying, chiefly by local professionals. The bull leader sold 500,000 bus of May and July at the start, but bought May following this. Receipts were 161 cars, 43 of contract grade.

The close was strong, May ½c up, at 44¼c.

Oats were strong under adverse conditions. May opened ⅛@¼c higher at 25¼c to 25⅜c, and advanced during the first hour to 25⅞c. Shorts covered freely. Liberal cash sales late yesterday helped the market.

Provisions were dull. The market opened higher in sympathy with a weak hog market and on liberal hog receipts and ruled unchanged for some time. July pork opened 10c lower at $14.30; July lard, 5@7½c down, at $8.07½, and July ribs 7½c depressed at $7.55.

Close: Wheat—April, 70¼c; May, 70¼c; July, 70⅝@⅔c. Corn—April, 43⅜c; May, 44¼c; July, 43⅞c. Oats—April, 25⅜c; May, 25¼c; July, 25@25½c. Pork—April and May, $14.12½; July, $14.30. Lard—April, $8.25; May, $8.15; July, $8.02½@8.05; September, $8.02½. Ribs—April and May, $8.25; July, $7.92½; September, $7.87½. Flax—Cash, Northwestern and No. 1, $1.59; May, $1.60; September, $1.20. Cash: Wheat—No. 2 red, 71¾@73¾c; No. 3 red, 69@71¾c; No. 2 hard winter, 71@71¾c; No. 3 hard winter, 70¾@71¾c; No. 1 northern spring, 73¾@73¾c; No. 2 northern spring, 72¾@73¾c; No. 3 spring, 68½@72c. Corn—No. 2, 44c; No. 3, 43¼@½c. Oats—No. 2, 26¾@27c; No. 3, 26½@¾c. Rye—April, 49¾c; May and July, 45¼c. Barley, 35@37c. Timothy—April, $3.80; September, $3.20. Clover—April, $11.00.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN.

Liverpool, April 16.—Close, wheat quiet, unchanged to ½d higher. May, 5s 9¼d; July, 5s 9½d; September, 5s 9¾d. Corn, steady, unchanged to ½d higher. May, 4s 4¼d; July, 3s 11¼d.

WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, April 16.—For the greater part of the session, the wheat market this morning was strong, showing an advance of ¾c, but this strength was the result of damage talk from Oklahoma. Clearances 99,000 bus. Reports came of a late season abroad, while the world's visible decreased 3,100,000 bus. There was a good milling demand and local sales were 185,000 bus with 42 loads at New York. Northwestern receipts were liberal. An effort to take profits found the market bare of speculative demand and wheat sold off very rapidly, showing a decline of 1c per bus from the top figure. The general trade is light and commission houses are not doing very much. The market is consequently local and sentiment is bearish. While there has been a decided improvement in the demand, at this writing the supply is more than adejuate and this fact, augmented by the very remarkable conditions prevailing for the winter wheat crop and a local sontement against the price, makes it a difficult matter for advances to be maintained, and consequently wheat is responsive only in a moderate way to bull news, which must become much more radical in character to successfully create a bull market. It appears to be a good scalping proposition and we favor the selling side on bulges until conditions become more definitely placed.

The corn market has been strong, affected by weather conditions, which promises cold and wet weather for tomorrow. Western receipts were small. Prices showed an advance at one time of ⅝c. Cash demand, however, continues very fine; no business reported here and only 18 loads at New York. Weather conditions are now a factor, making the position of the bull a much easier position for the present. The near approach of delivery day will naturally keep the market within bounds unless a determined effect be made in the way of manipulation, which would be a very doubtful course to pursue under present circumstances.

The oat market has been active and higher, bad weather helped the market as was the case in corn. The big cash sales over half a million were the factors. New York reports 160,000 sold today.

The provision market has been very draggy, showing a slight decline at the close. Dullness has been the most prominent feature. Liquidation has been on quite a large scale. Cash demand is quiet.

Get Their Certificates.

Through the efforts of County Superintendent Park two of the teachers that were refused first grade certificates at a recent teachers' examination have secured the same, a mistake made in the state department having been called to the attention of the state educational officials by Mr. Park. The successful teachers are Miss Louis E. Snyder, of Mountain Iron, and Miss May Cummings, of this city, who is teaching at Duluth Park, and their duplicate certificates that were held back under the same circumstances which he is confident of securing for the teachers here.

To Macadamize It.

There will be happiness among West End cyclists if Alderman Olson's plan for macadamizing Michigan street and Mesaba avenue between Eighth and Thirteenth avenues west, is carried out. It is this district that makes the life of a cyclist a jolting nightmare. Except for the five blocks in question there would be fairly good wheeling between West Duluth and the city. The board of public works will soon report an estimate for macadamizing this strike of bad street and then it will be up to the council to make the improvement, providing the property owners desire it and the expense is not too great.

May Give It Again.

"The Grand Duchess," which was produced at the Lyceum last evening will in all likelihood be repeated. There were a large number of people who attended the Gunsaulus lecture who would like to have heard the production of the opera and would loubtless take advantage of an opportunity to hear it if it were given again. A number of requests have been made to the management for a repetition.

Will Sell Stock.

The Duluth men who have secured lands in the new Nevada of district have opened their investment to the general public and will sell their first issue of stock for development purposes at 3 cents a share. Their office is at 318 West Superior street, in the St. Louis hotel.

SUIT BEGUN

For Value of Silver Service of Battleship Illinois.

Chicago, April 16.—A replevin suit to recover the solid silver service of the battleship Illinois has been commenced in the circuit court by the Towle Manufacturing company. The corporation claims that the silver service is a part of its goods and chattels, and that they were taken possession of by the defendants April 5. The service is now in the custody of the Northern Trust company for safe keeping. The defendants to the suit are William Penn Nixon, Harlow N. Higginbotham, Charles L. Hutchinson and the Northern Trust Company bank.

Plaintiffs allege the property is valued at $3000. It consists of one large punch bowl, one tray accompaniment, one ladle for the same, one small punch bowl, two small ladies, two seven-light candelabra, one centerpiece and two fruit dishes.

William Penn Nixon, Harlow N. Higginbotham and Charles L. Hutchinson are members of the committee appointed to secure the silver service for the battleship. They originally let the contract to a company of manufacturing silversmiths which is now in the hands of a receiver. This company transferred the contract to the Towle Manufacturing company. The receiver of the first company, after the contract was completed, filed a creditors' bill, in which the members of the committee were included as being debtors. The committee was thus stopped from paying the Towle company for the service, which it had completed.

Attorney Reeves, who represented the plaintiff, said: "There need be no fear that the battleship Illinois will not get its silver service. It was constructed especially for the battleship and will be given to that vessel. The committee can secure it from my clients. If they do not want to pay my clients for the service, we will present it to the battleship ourselves."

ORE TRAFFIC BEGINNING.

Eastern Minnesota Is Getting Under Way.

Superintendent D. M. Philbin, of the Eastern Minnesota Railway company, was in the city today and was the guest of Superintendent E. L. Brown at the Spalding this noon. Mr. Philbin says that the ore business of the Eastern Minnesota has commenced in a small way and a few trains have been sent out, but that the company will not really push out its trains to begin a full season's work before May 1. Mr. Philbin says that the six mile cut-off around the big state line hill on its ore road this side of Carlton, has not been completed for traffic, but that it will be fully open for the summer ore trains. The Eastern Minnesota road hauls the ore to the Great Northern ore docks at Allouez bay. Numerous repairs have been made at the new coal docks of the company, which are said to be among the best equipped in the country.

BLODGETT DEAD.

Chicago, April 16.—Phineas M. Blodgett, whose father was a member of Washington's army, died today in this city. He was born in 1809, at Groton, N. Y. He had voted for eighteen presidents.

POUNDED BY BEARS

Prices of Stocks Ran off Rapidly But Recovered.

The Steel Stocks, Tractions and Industrials Were Higher.

Coalers and Southwesterns Heavy---Bonds Were Weak.

New York, April 16.—The tone of the market was excited and feverish at the opening and showed wide changes both ways, both in the industrial and in railroads. Amalgamated Copper was the prominent feature and 15,000 shares sold at 125½ and 127, compared with 124¾ last night. The price fell back to 124⅝ on heavy realizing on the first few minutes. Pennsylvania, ex-dividend and Mexican National were up about a point each, and the Chicago Terminal Transfer stocks gained 1 to 1¼. Anaconda rose 2 points and Colorado Fuel 2½. On the other hand Rock Island broke 3¾ and United States Steel sold down 1½ and the preferred 2 point. The changes were highly irregular after the opening.

Room traders hammered special stocks vigorously in effect on the general market and had prices running off rapidly all around in a short time. Colorado Fuel broke 10½, Chicago Terminal stocks 5 each, Consolidated Gas 2½ and the tractions, Pennsylvania, Texas & Pacific, Kansas & Texas, preferred, Sugar, Tobacco, Glucose and the grangers 1 to 2¾. Rock Island and Northwest figuring for the maximum losses. There were a few exceptions to the selling, but the opening gains were generally wiped out and the market level averaged well below yesterday's close. The United States Steel stocks were forced down 1½ and 1⅝ for the common and preferred.

Buying by the short interests checked the decline and some large recoveries were made. The bulls detected the character of the demand and bid particular stocks up sharply, especially Burlington, which touched 130⅜. Consolidated Gas rallied 3⅝, Colorado Fuel, 7, Amalgamated Copper 2¼, Tennssee Coal 1½ and Rock Island, St. Paul, Northwest, Northern Pacific, Chicago Terminals and Wisconsin Central, preferred, 1 to 2¾. The steel stocks, tractions and industrials were higher but feverish. The American Linseed stocks rose 1 for the common and 2⅜ for preferred. The coalers and Southwesterns were heavy. Bonds were weak.

The Eries were lifted from 2 to 3 points, and Delaware & Hudson from the lowest when profit taking turned the prices downward again. Amalgamated Copper falling back to 125. Northern Pacific then advanced strongly leading a rally. St. Louis & San Francisco rose 2⅞ and Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & St. Louis preferred 2.

Great Northern preferred selling exrights and ex-dividend rose from 179 to 182. The advance in Northern Pacific became wild, showing fluctuations as wide at 1¾ between sales. The stock touched 165¾ and fluctuated feverishly below that. This did not prevent declines elsewhere on renewed profit taking. The closing was very active and irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 16.—Cotton opened firm, 5@10 points higher and during the first few minutes ruled excited and strong on a bad scare of near month shorts. May rapidly advanced to 8.15 and July to 8.06. Then came a drop of 6@7 points under a scramble for profits by scalpers. The basis for the wave of bull speculation in the first few minutes was a set of remarkably bullish cables from Liverpool and private accounts to the effect that the English market was heavily oversold by speculators. Before the close of the first hour the local market had calmed down decidedly and prices eased off to 8.08 for May and 8.00 for July.

Cotton spot closed quiet. Middling uplands, 8 5-16c; middling gulf, 8 9-16c; sales, 203 bales. Cotton futures closed quiet. April, 8.00; May, 8.04; June, 7.96; July, 7.96; August, 7.63; September, 7.43; October, 7.35; November, 7.29; December, 7.27; January, 7.27.

CHICAGO MONEY.

Chicago, April 16.—Clearings, $25,296,521; balances, $2,152,005; posted exchange, $4.85½@4.88½; New York exchange, 20c premium.

MAY MAKE CHANGES

Railroad Commissioners Visiting the Duluth Inspection Office.

Additions Soon to Be Made to Weighmasters' Force.

Chief Deputy Prodger May Remain Until Next Fall.

Railroad Commissioners J. G. Miller, of Two Harbors, and C. F. Staples, of Dakota county, are in the city today. This morning they were in consultation with J. B. Sutphin, weighmaster of the grain department, and this afternoon they visited a number of the elevators on Rice's Point. Judge Ira B. Mills, the third member of the commission, is not present, as he has recently returned from a trip in the East and could not get away from his business to come up at this time.

It was rumored this morning that the commissioners were in the city for the purpose of holding a meeting today, at which some changes in the inspection department might be made, but Commissioner Miller says that no meeting is intended, that the two members of the commission are here to look over the situation with a view of finding out the needs of the department, but that in a few days it is very likely that some announcements will be made after a meeting of the commission that will occur in St. Paul.

Mr. Miller said that he could not say definitely that changes in the personnel of the department are intended so much as an increase, particularly in the office force and the weighing department. When Mr. Moore was in office, said Mr. Miller, he found it necessary to reduce the force of inspectors because business dropped off, and Mr. Sutphin, when he succeeded to the office of chief weighmaster at Duluth, found it necessary to cut off ten more men, as the expenses of the department were running considerably over the receipts. As the office is self supporting, said Mr. Miller, the cut was the only thing practicable. Now that cargo shipments of wheat will soon begin to be a little heavier the force, which is very small, will be increased. It was partly with a view of finding out just how many men will be needed that the two commissioners are here today. The increase will not be nearly so large, of course, as it will be next fall when the wheat business is the heaviest.

As to any changes in chief grain inspectorship, which office is at present held by Mr. Prodger, Mr. Miller rather intimated that the commission might not consider it good policy to make any change before next summer just before the time the new crop begins to come in.

Mr. Miller spoke in the highest terms of the work of Mr. Moore, the former deputy chief weighmaster, and said that he was a first class official in every respect, was a good business man and ran his deartment on business and economical lines. He further said that he had no reason to believe but that Mr. Sutphin would make as good a record while in office.

The inspection and weighing department at the head of the lake, said Mr. Miller, has been run short-handed for some time past, and the condition has given rise to various complaints, but it has been the aim of the officials to keep within the limit of the receipts of the department and for that reason they have been forced to make some cuts from time to time that might not otherwise have been made.

INDIANS IN SCHOOL

Mastering the Arts of Civilization at Hampton, Virginia.

Hampton a Microcosm of American Life and History.

It Is Not a Government Nor a State School.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 16—(Special to The Herald.)—The correspondent of The Herald recently paid a visit to the Hampton normal school for the purpose of seeing how the Indian pupils at that institute are mastering the arts of civilization.

The Hampton school differs from other institutions in the country where the government undertakes the task of educating Indian children. It is the only school remaining after the process of elimination which has been going on as a result of the congressional onslaught on sectarian institutions of education for which government money was appropriated. Hampton is not a sectarian school, however, and no money is made available by congress for its benefit except a fixed sum per capita for each Indian boy or girl placed there at government expense. This sum is merely to supply their board and clothing and not their tuition, which is free. Members of congress who have the real welfare of the Indians at heart speak in the highest terms of the practical training which the Indians receive at Hampton. But what distinguishes this school from the average government institution is the fact that the friends and supporters of the Hampton school all over the United States take an interest in the pupils after their graduation, and in most cases provide places for them where they can put into practice what they have learned.

It is a painful reflection that many of the Indians, after getting an education at government expense, are cast adrift after they graduate and return to their reservations to be laughed at and taunted by their elders into resuming their tribal habits. The government takes no further interest in them and rarely affords them an opportunity to apply their knowledge. The Indian bureau of the interior department is full of doorkeepers, messengers and clerks appointed by political pull, but the pay rolls will show that it employs but one Indian—Frank La Flesche, one of the brightest men in any government department and a well-known author. Why this bureau is not supplied with any number of bright Indians from Carlisle, Haskell, etc., is due to the greed of the politicians in Washington, who realize that the Indian has no vote.

Hampton, Virginia, with its immediate environs, is almost a microcosm of American life and history. Its old church goes back to the beginnings of colonization, and the locality has had its part in every successive scene of the national drama. Today it is a congeries of more or less distinct little communities, one of the most important, from an educational viewpoint, being the Hampton Normal and Agricultural institute. It was founded by Gen. S. C. Armstrong, who was for twenty-five years the principal. This school, to which its founder devoted his life, and which he left as a legacy to the American people, was opened in April, 1868, in the old barracks of Camp Hamilton, one of the military hospitals of the civil war, for the purpose of educating and giving practical training in the different trades to the negroes and Indians of this country. In memoranda found with Gen. Armstrong's will occur these words: "Hampton must not go down. See to it, you who are true to the black and red children of the land and to just ideas of education."

Of the present enrollment of 1064 students, 124 are Indians, some of whom, perhaps, are the grandchildren of the fifteen Indians brought as prisoners of war from St. Augustine to Hampton in 1878, by Maj. Pratt, U. S. A., who remained at the school for one year, bringing, in the meantime, other Indians from the West. These Indians represent about twenty different tribes, some of them coming from South Dakota, Montana, Oklahoma, Washington, Oregon, California and other Western states. One hundred and twenty Indians are sent every year to the Hampton institute by the general government, which pays $167 annually for each one, thus supplying their board and clothing, but not their tuition.

The Hampton institute is not a government nor a state school, but is a private corporation, controlled by seventeen trustees representing different sections of the country and six religious denominations, no one of which has a majority.

The equipment of this institution is complete, and it is conceded by many to be almost perfect. Such trades as farming, horticulture, shoemaking, blacksmithing, tailoring, etc., as well as the higher branches of trade and science are taught. A writer well expressed the manner of the education at Hampton as "learning by doing." More, the Indians are taught, from the kindergarten through the normal school, to put into practice that which they have learned. For instance, the tiniest Indian girls in the kindergarten branch of the Whittier school, which is the normal department of the institute, on Mondays have their small washtubs out, and on Tuesdays are taught the art of ironing with miniature irons heated to just the right temperature.

The same principles apply to the instruction of the young women. They may and generally do acquire some accomplishments. But these are all supported upon the firm foundation of practical capacity in common things.

Hampton, in addition to its regular work for its own pupils, maintains a special normal course through the long summer months. This makes it possible for its former students, now teachers, to come back for fresh instruction, and also gives opportunity for teachers who have not had the Hampton advantages of training to have that useful experience.

It should be remarked, perhaps, that books are by no means banished from Hampton in the pursuance of the practical application, but that, on the contrary, they are used with immense effect, simply because they are used for real and not for false purposes. It is claimed by many educators of today that too much theory and not enough practice is the rule which seems to govern the education of the majority of students. Every student in Hampton, it should be said, learns to draw, simply because drafting bears an important relation to the best methods of doing almost anything. The study of the sciences is carried on by objective methods, and students thus taught soon discover what books are for.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST
Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.
HEALTHY—It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.
CLEAN—It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.
SAFE—As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.
CHEAP—By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

ADVANCE WAS LOST

Wheat Started Strong But Weakened At the Close.

Cash Demand Good and Fair Sales For Export.

Kansas State Report Less Rosy Than Government's.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 16.—The wheat market started out firm this morning. The cables were satisfactory, Liverpool opening ½d higher and finally closing ¾d higher. The cash demand was rather strong, Chicago reporting 100,000 bus taken for export just after the close yesterday and New York reporting 30 loads taken this morning. The Northwestern receipts were not heavy and the advance in corn give its sympathy to wheat. The market held its advance fairly well until shortly before the noon hour when the strength gradually gave way to bearish feeling and there was a steady slump to the close. Primary receipts of wheat were 319,000 bus, last 344,000 bus. Shipments 261,000 bus, last year 236,000. Clearances of wheat and flour 98,000 bus. At the seaboard yesterday exporters took 224,000 bus. The Kansas state report made the condition of wheat 99.8 and the acreage 4,562,000. The government report of last week made the condition 105 and the acreage 4,778,000.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 300 cars, against 171 last week and 271 last year. Chicago receipts, 134 cars, none of contract grade.

Trading in futures was fairly active on the Duluth board. May wheat opened ¼c up at 72⅝c, sold at 72⅞c at 9:31, eased off to 72½c at 9:44, recovered to 72¾c at 10:35 sold at 72¾c at ——, continued its decline to 72¼c at 12:40 and closed at 72¼c, a decline of ¼c. Chicago declined ¼c and Minneapolis the same.

Cash sales were 30,000 bus at ¼c under May for wheat to arrive and 1c under for wheat in store.

September flax was very strong today being bid up to $1.29½ at the close, an advance of 2½c. May, cash and to arrive flax closed 2c up. Rye was up ¼c cash and other coarse grains closed unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 73¼c; to arrive, 74c; May, 74¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 71¼c; to arrive, 72c; May, 72½c; July, 73c; September, 70⅝c. No. 2 northern, 69¾@69¾c. No. 3 spring, 69¾@69¾c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Trade Was Quiet But Fairly Firm.

Chicago, April 16.—While trade in wheat was rather quiet early today, the market evinced a fair degree of firmness despite the fact that Northwest receipts were liberal and the weather still maintained an abject attitude before the bears. May opened ⅛@¼c higher, at 70⅝@71c, because Liverpool reflected the advance here yesterday. Moderate selling caused a dip to 70¾c, during the first few minutes. This was followed by an advance to 71¼c, largely in sympathy with the strength of the coarser cereals. Local receipts were 134 cars, none of contract grade, while Minneapolis and Duluth reported 300 cars, against 171 last week, and 271 a year ago. Chicago receipts, 134 cars, none of contract grade.

Trading in futures was fairly active on the Duluth board. WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, April 16.—For the greater part of the session, the wheat market this morning was strong, showing an advance of ¾c, but this strength was the result of damage talk from Oklahoma. Clearances 200,000 bus. Reports came of a late season abroad, while the world's visible increased3,100,000 bus. There was a good milling demand and local sales were 185,000 bus with 42 loads at New York. Northwestern receipts were liberal. An effort to take profits found the market bare of speculative demand and wheat sold off very rapidly, showing a decline of 1c per bus from the top figure. The general trade is light and commission houses are not doing very much. The market is consequently local and sentiment is bearish. While there has been a decided improvement in the demand, at this writing the supply is more than adejuate and this fact, augmented by the very remarkable conditions prevailing for the winter wheat crop and a local sontement against the price, makes it a difficult matter for advances to be maintained, and consequently wheat is responsive only in a moderate way to bull news, which must become much more radical in character to successfully create a bull market. It appears to be a good scalping proposition and we favor the selling side on bulges until conditions become more definitely placed.

The corn market has been strong, affected by weather conditions, which promises cold and wet weather for tomorrow. Western receipts were small. Prices showed an advance at one time of ⅝c. Cash demand, however, continues very fine; no business reported here and only 18 loads at New York. Weather conditions are now a factor, making the position of the bull a much easier position for the present. The near approach of delivery day will naturally keep the market within bounds unless a determined effect be made in the way of manipulation, which would be a very doubtful course to pursue under present circumstances.

The oat market has been active and higher, bad weather helped the market as was the case in corn. The big cash sales over half a million were the factors. New York reports 160,000 sold today.

The provision market has been very draggy, showing a slight decline at the close. Dullness has been the most prominent feature. Liquidation has been on quite a large scale. Cash demand is quiet.

Get Their Certificates.

Through the efforts of County Superintendent Park two of the teachers that were refused first grade certificates at a recent teachers' examination have secured the same, a mistake made in the state department having been called to the attention of the state educational officials by Mr. Park. The successful teachers are Miss Louis E. Snyder, of Mountain Iron, and Miss May Cummings, of this city, who is teaching at Zim. Mr. Park conveys the effect on the certificates that were held back under the same circumstances which he is confident of securing for the teachers here.

To Macadamize It.

There will be happiness among West End cyclists if Alderman Olson's plan for macadamizingMichigan street and Mesaba avenue between Eighth and Thirteenth avenues west, is carried out. It is this district that makes the life of a cyclist a jolting nightmare. Except for the five blocks in question there would be fairly good wheeling between West Duluth and the city. The board of public works will soon report an estimate for macadamizing this strike of bad street and then it will be up to the council to make the improvement, providing the property owners desire it and the expense is not too great.

May Give It Again.

"The Grand Duchess," which was produced at the Lyceum last evening will in all likelihood be repeated. There were a large number of people who attended the Gunsaulus lecture who would like to have heard the production of the opera and would doubtless take advantage of an opportunity to hear it if it were given again. A number of requests have been made to the management for a repetition.

Will Sell Stock.

The Duluth men who have secured lands in the new Nevada oil district have opened their investment to the general public and will sell their first issue of stock for development purposes at 3 cents a share. Their office is at 318 West Superior street, in the St. Louis hotel.

SUIT BEGUN

For Value of Silver Service of Battleship Illinois.

Chicago, April 16.—A replevin suit to recover the solid silver service of the battleship Illinois has been commenced in the circuit court by the Towle Manufacturing company. The corporation claims that the silver service is a part of its goods and chattels, and that they were taken possession of by the defendants April 5. The service is now in the custody of the Northern Trust company for safe keeping. The defendants to the suit are William Penn Nixon, Harlow N. Higginbotham, Charles L. Hutchinson and the Northern Trust Company bank.

Plaintiffs allege the property is valued at $3000. It consists of one large punch bowl, one tray accompaniment, one ladle for the same, one small punch bowl, two small ladles, two seven-light candelabra, one centerpiece and two fruit dishes.

William Penn Nixon, Harlow N. Higginbotham and Charles L. Hutchinson are members of the committee appointed to secure the silver service for the battleship. They originally let the contract to a company of manufacturing silversmiths which is now in the hands of a receiver. This company transferred the contract to the Towle Manufacturing company. The receiver of the first company, after the contract was completed, filed a creditors' bill, in which the members of the committee were included as being debtors. The committee was thus stopped from paying the Towle company for the service, which it had completed.

Attorney Reeves, who represented the plaintiff, said: "There need be no fear that the battleship Illinois will not get its silver service. It was constructed especially for the battleship and will be given to that vessel. The committee can secure it from my clients. If they do not want to pay my clients for the service, we will present it to the battleship ourselves."

ORE TRAFFIC BEGINNING.

Eastern Minnesota Is Getting Under Way.

Superintendent D. M. Philbin, of the Eastern Minnesota Railway company, was in the city today and was the guest of Superintendent E. L. Brown at the Spalding this noon. Mr. Philbin says that the ore business of the Eastern Minnesota has commenced in a small way and a few trains have been sent out, but that the company will not really push out its trains to begin a full season's work before May 1. Mr. Philbin says that the six mile cut-off around the big state line hill on its ore road this side of Carlton, has not been completed for traffic, but that it will be fully open for the summer ore trains. The Eastern Minnesota road hauls the ore to the Great Northern ore docks at Allouez bay. Numerous repairs have been made at the new coal docks of the company, which are said to be among the best equipped in the country.

BLODGETT DEAD.

Chicago, April 16.—Phineas M. Blodgett, whose father was a member of Washington's army, died today in this city. He was born in 1809, at Groton, N. Y. He had voted for eighteen presidents.

POUNDED BY BEARS

Prices of Stocks Ran off Rapidly But Recovered.

The Steel Stocks, Tractions and Industrials Were Higher.

Coalers and Southwesterns Heavy---Bonds Were Weak.

New York, April 16.—The tone of the market was excited and feverish at the opening and showed wide changes both ways, both in the industrial and in railroads. Amalgamated Copper was the prominent feature and 15,000 shares sold at 125½ and 127, compared with 124¾ last night. The price fell back to 124⅝ on heavy realizing on the first few minutes. Pennsylvania, ex-dividend and Mexican National were up about a point each, and the Chicago Terminal Transfer stocks gained 1 to 1¾. Anaconda rose 2 points and Colorado Fuel 2½. On the other hand Rock Island broke 3¾ and United States Steel sold at 39¾ and the preferred at 90 points. The changes were highly irregular after the opening.

Room traders hammered special stocks vigorously in effect on the general market and had prices running off rapidly all around in a short time. Colorado Fuel broke 10½. Chicago Terminal stocks 5 each, Consolidated Gas 2½ and the tractions, Pennsylvania, Texas & Pacific, Kansas & Texas, preferred, Sugar, Tobacco, Glucose and the grangers 1 to 2¾. Rock Island and Northwest figuring for the maximum losses. There were a few exceptions to the selling, but the opening gains were generally wiped out and the market level averaged well below yesterday's final close. The United States Steel stocks were forced down 1½ and 1⅝ for the common and preferred.

Buying by the short interests checked the decline and some large recoveries were made. The bulls detected the character of the demand and bid particular stocks up sharply, especially Burlington, which rose 1⅝. Consolidated Gas rallied 3⅝, Colorado Fuel, 7, Amalgamated Copper 3¼, Tennssee Coal 1½ and Rock Island, St. Paul, Northwest, Northern Pacific and Chicago Terminals and Wisconsin Central, preferred, 1 to 2¾. The steel stocks, tractions and industrials were higher but feverish. The American Linseed stocks rose 1 for the common and 2½ for preferred. The coalers and Southwesterns were heavy. Bonds were weak.

The Erie were lifted from 2 to 3 points, and Delaware & Hudson from the lowest when profit taking turned the prices downward again. Amalgamated Copper falling back to 125. Northern Pacific then advanced strongly leading a rally. St. Louis & San Francisco rose 2¾ and Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & St. Louis preferred 2.

Great Northern preferred selling exrights and ex-dividend rose from 179 to 182. The advance in Northern Pacific became wild, showing fluctuations as wide at 1⅜ between sales. The stock touched 183¾ and fluctuated feverishly below that. This did not prevent declines elsewhere on renewed profit taking. The closing was very active and irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 16.—Cotton opened firm, 5@10 points higher and during the first few minutes ruled excited and strong on a bad scare of near month shorts. May rapidly advanced to 8.15 and July to 8.06. Then came a drop of 6@7 points under a scrimble for profits by scalpers. The basis for the wave of bull speculation in the first few minutes was a set of remarkably bullish cables from Liverpool and private accounts to the effect that the English market was heavily oversold by speculators. Before the close of the first hour the local market had calmed down decidedly and prices eased off to 8.08 for May and 8.00 for July.

Cotton spot closed quiet. Middling uplands, 8 5-16c; middling gulf, 8 9-16c; sales, 203 bales. Cotton futures closed quiet. April, 8.00; May, 8.04; June, 7.96; July, 7.96; August, 7.63; September, 7.43; October, 7.35; November, 7.29; December, 7.27; January, 7.27.

MAY MAKE CHANGES

Railroad Commissioners Visiting the Duluth Inspection Office.

Additions Soon to Be Made to Weighmasters' Force.

Chief Deputy Prodger May Remain Until Next Fall.

Railroad Commissioners J. G. Miller, of Two Harbors, and C. F. Staples, of Dakota county, are in the city today. This morning they were in consultation with J. B. Sutphin, weighmaster of the grain department, and this afternoon they visited a number of the elevators on Rice's Point. Judge Ira B. Mills, the third member of the commission, is not present, as he has recently returned from a trip in the East and could not get away from his business to come up at this time.

It was rumored this morning that the commissioners were in the city for the purpose of holding a meeting today, at which some changes in the inspection department might be made, but Commissioner Miller says that no meeting is intended, that the two members of the commission are here to look over the situation with a view of finding out the needs of the department, but that in a few days it is very likely that some announcements will be made after a meeting of the commission that will occur in St. Paul.

Mr. Miller said that he could not say definitely that changes in the personnel of the department are intended so much as an increase, particularly in the office force and the weighing department. When Mr. Moore was in office, said Mr. Miller, he found it necessary to reduce the force of inspectors because business dropped off, and Mr. Sutphin, when he succeeded to the office of chief weighmaster at Duluth, found it necessary to cut off ten more men, as the expenses of the department were running considerably over the receipts. As the office is self supporting, said Mr. Miller, the cut was the only thing practicable. Now that cargo shipments of wheat will soon begin to be a little heavier the force, which is very small, will be increased. It was partly with a view of finding out just how many men will be needed that the two commissioners are here today. The increase will not be nearly so large, of course, as it will be next fall when the wheat business is the heaviest.

As to any changes in chief grain inspectorship, which office is at present held by Mr. Prodger, Mr. Miller rather intimated that the commission might not consider it good policy to make any change before next summer just before the time the new crop begins to come in.

Mr. Miller spoke in the highest terms of the work of Mr. Moore, the former deputy chief weighmaster, and said that he was a first class official in every respect, was a good business man and ran his deartment on business and economical lines. He further said that he had no reason to believe but that Mr. Sutphin would make as good a record while in office.

The inspection and weighing department at the head of the lake, said Mr. Miller, has been run short-handed for some time past, and the condition has given rise to various complaints, but it has been the aim of the officials to keep within the limit of the receipts of the department and for that reason they have been forced to make some cuts from time to time that might not otherwise have been made.

INDIANS IN SCHOOL

Mastering the Arts of Civilization at Hampton, Virginia.

Hampton a Microcosm of American Life and History.

It Is Not a Government Nor a State School.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 16—(Special to The Herald.)—The correspondent of The Herald recently paid a visit to the Hampton normal school for the purpose of seeing how the Indian pupils at that institute are mastering the arts of civilization.

The Hampton school differs from other institutions in the country where the government undertakes the task of educating Indian children. It is the only school remaining after the process of elimination which has been going on as a result of the congressional onslaught on sectarian institutions of education for which government money was appropriated. Hampton is not a sectarian school, however, and no money is made available by congress for its benefit except a fixed sum per capita for each Indian boy or girl placed there at government expense. This sum is merely to supply their board and clothing and not their tuition, which is free. Members of congress who have the real welfare of the Indians at heart speak in the highest terms of the practical training which the Indians receive at Hampton. But what distinguishes this school from the average government institution is the fact that the friends and supporters of Hampton school all over the United States take an interest in the pupils after their graduation, and in most cases provide places for them where they can put into practice what they have learned.

It is a painful reflection that many of the Indians, after getting an education at government expense, are cast adrift after they graduate and return to their reservations to be laughed at and taunted by their elders into resuming their tribal habits. The government takes no further interest in them and rarely affords them an opportunity to apply their knowledge. The Indian bureau of the interior department is full of doorkeepers, messengers and clerks appointed by political pull, but the pay rolls will show that it employs but one Indian—Frank La Flesche, one of the brightest men in any government department and a well-known author. Why this bureau is not supplied with any number of bright Indians from Carlisle, Haskell, etc., is due to the greed of the politicians in Washington, who realize that the Indian has no vote.

Hampton, Virginia, with its immediate environs, is almost a microcosm of American life and history. Its old church goes back to the beginnings of colonization, and the locality has had its part in every successive scene of the national drama. Today it is a congeries of more or less distinct little communities, one of the most important, from an educational viewpoint, being the Hampton Normal and Agricultural institute. It was founded by Gen. S. C. Armstrong, who was for twenty-five years the principal. This school, to which its founder devoted his life, and which he left as a legacy to the American people, was opened in April, 1868, in the old barracks of Camp Hamilton, one of the military hospitals of the civil war, for the purpose of educating and giving practical training in the different trades to the negroes and Indians of this country. In memoranda found with Gen. Armstrong's will occur these words: "Hampton must not go down. See to it, you who are true to the black and red children of the land and to just ideas of education."

Of the present enrollment of 1064 students, 124 are Indians, some of whom, perhaps, are the grandchildren of the fifteen Indians brought as prisoners of war from St. Augustine to Hampton in 1878, by Maj. Pratt, U. S. A., who remained at the school for one year, bringing, in the meantime, other Indians from the West. These Indians represent about twenty different tribes, some of them coming from South Dakota, Montana, Oklahoma, Washington, Oregon, California and other Western states. One hundred and twenty Indians are sent every year to the Hampton institute by the general government, which pays $167 annually for each one, thus supplying their board and clothing, but not their tuition.

The Hampton institute is not a government nor a state school, but is a private corporation, controlled by seventeen trustees representing different sections of the country and six religious denominations, no one of which has a majority.

The equipment of this institution is complete, and it is conceded by many to be almost perfect. Such trades as farming, horticulture, shoemaking, blacksmithing, tailoring, etc., as well as the higher branches of trade and science are taught. A writer well expressed the manner of the education at Hampton as "learning by doing." More, the Indians are taught, from the kindergarten through the normal school, to put into practice that which they have learned. For instance, the tiniest Indian girls in the kindergarten branch of the Whittier school, which is the normal department of the institute, on Mondays have their small washtubs out, and on Tuesdays are taught the art of ironing with miniature irons heated to just the right temperature.

The same principles apply to the instruction of the young women. They may and generally do acquire some accomplishments. But these are all supported upon the firm foundation of practical capacity in common things.

Hampton, in addition to its regular work for its own pupils, maintains a special normal course through the long summer months. This makes it possible for its former students, now teachers, to come back for fresh instruction, and also gives opportunity for teachers who have not had the Hampton advantages of training to have that useful experience.

It should be remarked, perhaps, that books are by no means banished from Hampton in the pursuance of the practical application, but that, on the contrary, they are used with immense effect, simply because they are used for real and not for false purposes. It is claimed by many educators of today that too much theory and not enough practice is the rule which seems to govern the education of the majority of students. Every student in Hampton, it should be said, learns to draw, simply because drafting bears an important relation to the best methods of doing almost anything. The study of the sciences is carried on by objective methods, and students thus taught soon discover what books are for.

A new catarrh cure has recently appeared which so far as tested has been remarkably successful in curing all forms of catarrh, whether in the head, throat, bronchial tubes, or in stomach and liver.

The remedy is in tablet form, pleasant and convenient to take and no special secrecy is maintained as to what it contains, the tablet being a scientific combination of Guaiacol, Eucalyptol, Sanguinaria, Hydrastin and similar valuable and harmless antiseptics.

The safe and effective catarrh cure may be found at any drug store under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

Whether the catarrh is located in the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or stomach, the tablets seem to act with equal success, removing the stuffy feeling in head and nose, clearing the mucous membrane of throat and trachea from catarrhal secretions, which cause the tickling, coughing, hawking and gagging so annoying to every catarrh sufferer.

Nasal catarrh generally leads to ulceration in some cases to such an extent as to destroy the nose entirely and in many old cases of catarrh the bones of the head become diseased. Nasal catarrh gradually extends to the throat and bronchial tubes and very often to the stomach, causing that very obstinate trouble, catarrh of the stomach.

Catarrh is a systemic poison, inherent in the blood, and local washes, douches, salves, inhalers and sprays can have no effect on the real cause of the disease. An internal remedy which acts upon the blood is the only rational treatment and Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is the safest of all internal remedies, as well as the most convenient and satisfactory from a medical standpoint.

Dr. Eaton recently stated that he had successfully used Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in old chronic cases, even where ulceration had extended so far as to destroy the septum of the nose. He says: "I am pleasantly surprised almost every day by the excellent results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. It is remarkable how effectually they remove the exc

INSULAR DUTIES

Consul For Tobacco Growers Submits Brief to Supreme Court.

Sustains the Government Contention of Right to Levy Duty.

On Commerce Between the United States and Porto Rico.

Washington, April 16.—In the United States supreme court yesterday Charles A. Gardiner, for the New England Tobacco Growers' association, asked leave to file a brief in the DeLima case, one of the revenue cases now pending in the supreme court, and which were argued some time since. He argued this brief was in support of the government contention of the right to levy a duty on commerce between the United States and Porto Rico. He stated he had secured the consent of the opposing counsel, Mr. Hoyt, representing the government, said he feared if the brief was permitted it would delay the case. Mr. Gardner said that he could not see how the government could object to entering the brief when it might save the case for it.

The chief justice told Mr. Gardner to hand the brief to the clerk. The brief makes the following statement as to the purposes of the new matter introduced:

"The New England Tobacco Growers' association represents more than three individuals and corporations engaged in the cultivation and manufacture and sale of tobacco in the New England states. This industry is peculiarly dependent upon the maintenance of existing tariff legislation. A decision of this court adverse to the constitutionality of import duties upon our colonial products would subject the intervenor to disastrous competition and serious financial loss. So, also, it would injure numerous other domestic tobacco interests, which equally with the intervenor would be adversely affected by free trade with Porto Rico and the Philippines."

Counsel then says: "We shall confine our arguments to those points only which it is believed have not yet been presented to this court at least from the point of view of the intervenor.

"The chief point of the brief is that the insular question is wholly one to be dealt with by the present agencies of the government, and that the judicial branch has no authority over it."

The points of the brief are summarized as follows:

First point—The United States is a second nation. It possesses all the national powers enumerated in the constitution and all the unenumerated powers reserved to the people. These aggregate all the powers of the most potent sovereignty, and the national government can exercise them all unless expressly prohibited by the constitution.

"Second point—The sovereignty and powers of the nations are exercised through the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the department. Political questions belong to the legislative and executive department; judicial questions to the judicial department. Political questions are not subject to the jurisdiction of this court.

"Third point—The acquisition of Porto Rico and the Philippines, the modes and extent thereof, the delimination of the boundaries of the United States, the disposition and government of the islands and their inhabitants—these and all similar questions in the case at bar are political and not judicial and, therefore, not within the jurisdiction of this court.

"Fourth point—The constitution does not extend to Porto Rico and the Philippines, nor become applicable to the government thereof, proprio vigore. Specific action by the political department of the islands, either the constitution as a whole or any of its clauses.

"Fifth point—The Philippines and Porto Rico are not integral parts of the United States within the meaning of the uniform tariff clause, article II, section 8, of the constitution.

"Sixth point—Porto Rico and the Philippines not being integral parts of the United States, and the uniform tariff clause not being applicable thereto, it follows that special tariff laws, including the Porto Rican act, may be enacted and are constitutional.

"Seventh point—For these reasons, as well as for those urged by the learned attorney general and the learned solicitor general, the judgment and orders appealed from should be affirmed."

In making his application to the court for leave to file a brief, Mr. Gardiner said:

"The line of argument I have pursued has been difficult of investigation, and it has taken much to obtain and verify the views. I do not question any of the petitions taken by the learned attorney general or the learned solicitor general, but I supplement their arguments with an original judgment and new line of authorities."

QUEEN TO BE A NUN

Wife of King of Portugal May Enter a Convent.

Result of Contest Over King's Attitude on Religion.

Rumors of Violent Domestic Discord In Royal Palace.

Lisbon, April 16.—The startling announcement is made in court circles here that Queen Marie Amelie, wife of Don Carlos, king of Portugal, has resolved to become a nun. This is a direct result of the protracted quarrel between the royal couple over the king's attitude toward the religious orders of the country.

Agitation against the clergy in Spain last month spread to Portugal, where trouble between the Liberals and the clerical elements had been brewing for a long time. Queen Amelie is a devout Catholic, while Don Carlos sides with the Liberals, and during the recent disturbances he openly espoused their cause against the church.

Violent scenes between husband and wife in the Lisbon palace followed, in which, it is said, the queen threatened to leave Portugal, and arrangements were made at one time for her departure on a long journey in foreign lands, but as the king refused to permit her to take her children with her, the trip was abandoned.

The climax of royal domestic contention was reached last week, when King Carlos caused an edict to be issued in the Diario do Governo against the cloisters of his realm, which commands that all religious institutions will be required to report their rules and regulations to the municipal authorities and that all that do not comply within a fortnight will be closed by the government. The edict has been received with storms of indignation by the clericals and even the more conservative of the Liberal party are astounded at the king's boldness.

The queen, with tears in her eyes, beseeched the king to relent, but he remained obdurate, and it was said that unless the king would modify his edict, she would not hesitate to take the veil.

WU TALKS.

Expresses Opinion on the Delay of the Powers.

Washington, April 15.—The Chinese minister was at the state department today in conference with Secretary Hay on the status of negotiations at Pekin. The minister is somewhat concerned over the delay in bringing about a final adjustment, and also on the current reports that the indemnities reach a very large figure, which, he fears, will be beyond the ability of China to meet. When seen at the legation during the day, Minister Wu said in response to inquiries on these subjects:

"We have been accustomed to hear that China was very slow. But in this case many weeks and months are going by without any delay definite prospects of bringing the negotiations to a close. This unsettled condition is very injurious to China, but it also is an injury which affects the whole world. Take for instance the cotton industry of the South. The shipments to China are very large, but they have been falling off owing to the unsettled condition of affairs, and the trade is seriously menaced. The same may be said of many other branches of trade, as well as American, is injuriously affected by the present uncertainty of conditions in the East. What we need and what the commercial world needs, is stability and some definite understanding of what conditions are to be.

"As to the question of indemnity, I receive little direct information. But I have regretted to see some of the published reports that the total of indemnities is reaching a very large sum. It should be borne in mind that China herself has suffered losses through the recent disturbances which will amount to many millions, and for which she cannot hope to receive indemnity. So that if the claims of the powers aggregate $314,000,000, as I see stated, it would probably not be an under-estimate to say that China's own losses will reach twice that amount, say $600,000,000. In the aggregate, therefore, China will be shouldering a burden of colossal proportions, and this will come after the country has passed through a most trying experience.

"I note that a number of suggestions are made that the indemnity should be along the lines of commercial advantages and improvements rather than in money. How far this is feasible I cannot say, but the principle involved seems to me a good one. It has the merits of being unselfish. As I understand it, the indemnities thus far asked are based entirely on the interests of the various powers.

"But the interests of China are worth considering in these matters, for after all the interests of China will have much to do in the end with the interests of all those nations having relations with her and which are carrying on trade with the foreign sentiment and would show them that the interest taken by foreign powers in China had something to do with the development and progress of China, as well as the personal interest of foreign nations. Our people might be shown the benefits coming from considerate foreign treatment and they would be grateful to see China restored to a condition of prosperity. As to details, it is not for me to suggest what the powers could do for China and for their mutual interest, but I am quite confident that if they only put their heads together very much could be accomplished in the interests of all concerned."

LITTLE EROS.

New Planet Presents Some Novelties In Light and Darkness.

New York, April 16.—A special to the Times from Boston says: Eros, the little planet that has been watched so closely by astronomers lately on account of its nearness to the earth, has recently taken an additional interest. Until within a short time Eros has been observed simply on account of its position, by means of which it is hoped to determine more closely the distance between the earth and the sun. This spring the planet has shown marked changes in light, and is the first of the asteroids in which variation of light has been firmly established.

It has been found by the Harvard observers that the intensity of the light changes sometimes two or three times in as many hours. This is accounted for in two ways:

Some astronomers think that one side of the planet is dark and the other light, and that as it revolves first the light and then the dark side is presented to the watchers on earth; other observers, and especially those in Europe believe that the planet is double and that the two spheres so revolving around one another first present their combined light and then only the light of one. The planet is believed to revolve in five hours.

Duke and Duchess of York Continue Trip.

Colombo, Ceylon, April 16.—The duke and duchess of Cornwall and York boarded the steamer Ophir, en route for Australia, at midnight last night, arriving from the queen's house through streets filled with enthusiastic crowds. The governor bade them farewell at the jetty, which was illuminated. Massed bands played the national anthem.

Large crowds witnessed the departure from the breakwater. All the vessels in the harbor were decorated with flags.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of automizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Cream Balm in liquid form, which will be known as Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price, including the spraying tube, is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid form embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF ST. LOUIS.—

District Court, Eleventh Judicial District.

In the matter of the adoption of Minnie Strandberg, an infant, Henry Johnson and Bessie Johnson, Petitioners:

The petition of Henry Johnson and Bessie Johnson, his wife, having been filed in this court, asking that they be allowed to adopt Minnie Strandberg, an infant child of the age of five years and showing that the parents of the said Minnie Strandberg are both dead, and that said Minnie Strandberg has no guardian or next of kin residing in the state of Minnesota, and asking that the said child's name be changed to Minnie Johnson, and the court being fully advised in the premises,

It is ordered, that the said petition of the said Henry Johnson and Bessie Johnson be heard before the court at a special term thereof to be held on Saturday, the 4th day of May, 1901, at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, and that notice be given of such hearing by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a newspaper of general circulation published at Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota.

Dated this 8th day of April, 1901.

Duluth Evening Herald, April-9-16-23-1901.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of two hundred seventy dollars, which amount is claimed to be due and is due at this date, upon a mortgage bearing date June 20th, 1893, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on June 22nd, 1893, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., in Book 125 of mortgages, on page 161, which mortgage was made and delivered by the mortgagors, Louis Felix and Philinese Felix, his wife, (whose signature to said mortgage is written Phelonise) to Elizabeth A. Carey, mortgagee, whose name thereafter became Elizabeth A. Collins.

And whereas, heretofore Elizabeth A. Collins, the mortgagee, died, leaving a last will and testament which was duly proved and allowed as such by the Surrogate court of Oneida County, New York, and letters testamentary issued thereon out of said court, on April 24th, 1899, to Francis A. Cody, Jr., who was thereby duly appointed executor thereof,

And whereas, a duly authenticated copy of his appointment as such executor has been duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, in Book 178 of deeds, on page 14,

Now therefore, no action having been commenced to recover any part of said debt, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein mortgaged and described and situate in said county of St. Louis, Minnesota, to-wit: Lot number twelve (12), of block two hundred and ninety-seven (297), West Duluth, Fourth Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, which premises with the hereditaments and appurtenances will be sold by the sheriff of said county, at the front door of the court house of said county, in the city of Duluth, Minnesota, on Saturday, April 27th, 1901, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, together with twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption as by law provided.

Dated March 1st, 1901.

MORTGAGE SALE.—

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of twenty-two hundred ten and 62-100 dollars, ($2210.62), which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ingri Otto and Charles Otto, mortgagors, to the Cloquet Building and Loan Association, mortgagee, bearing date the 18th day of March, A. D. 1893, with power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the registrr of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 24th day of March, A. D. 1893, at 4 o'clock p. m., in Book 60, on page 87, together with the sum of two hundred thirteen and 68-100 dollars, ($213.68), paid by the mortgagee on the property described in said mortgage for taxes and assessments due and unpaid thereon, with interest to date of this notice, amounting to the sum of six-ty-nine and 41-100 dollars, aggregating the sum of twenty-four hundred ninety-three and 03-100 dollars, due under the terms of said mortgage for principal, interest and taxes and assessments paid, at the date of this notice; and

Whereas, no action at law or other proceedings have been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and said mortgage has not been assigned.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of said premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Starting on a point on the center line of Third street (now Garfield avenue), Rice's Point, where the northwesterly boundary line of lots two hundred sixty-five, (265) and two hundred sixty-seven (267), block nineteen, (19), Duluth Proper, Second Division, if prolonged in a straight line would intersect the same; thence southeasterly on said center line twenty-five, (25) feet to the point of beginning; thence southeasterly on the center line of Third street, now Garfield avenue, twenty-five, (25) feet; thence southwesterly across said lots two hundred sixty-five, (265) and two hundred sixty-seven, (267), parallel with said northwesterly line of said lots to the westerly line of lot two hundred sixty-seven, (267); thence northwesterly on the said last line twenty-three and fifty-four hundredths feet, (23 54-100) more or less; thence by a direct line parallel with the northwesterly line of lots two hundred sixty-five and two hundred sixty-seven, (265 and 267) to the place of beginning, being part of lots two hundred sixty-five, (265) and two hundred sixty-seven, (267), block nineteen, (19), Duluth Proper, Second Division, according to the plat thereof, as recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the fourth day of May, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the said debt of twenty-two hundred ten and 62-100 dollars, interest, taxes and assessments as above set forth, together with fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

THE DAKOTAS.

Accommodating Justice Who Married Couple Early In Morning.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Mandan—Justice Coleman, who resides in the western part of the county, was awakened by a young couple the other night who wanted to be married, and wanted to be married quick. It was 2 o'clock in the morning, but the justice arose, and upon examining the license, found that it had been issued in Stark county and that he had no right to marry them. But the young couple was so persistent that he decided to drive to the county line, and while they sat in the buggy in Stark county he pronounced the marriage ceremony to them in Morton county, and now the folks in that neighborhood are wondering if the young couple are legally married or not.

Fargo—One of the features of the North Dakota Methodist conference this week will be the trip to Wahpeton on a special Friday afternoon for the purpose of visiting the university supported at that place by the church of the state. The delegates are arriving for the conference, and tomorrow they will be assigned to the homes for the week. Aside from the routine work, the question of assignment is about the most important one. Rev. W. H. Vance, of Fargo, is wanted by the Simpson Street church, of Minneapolis, and efforts will be made to have the transfer made. Last year Bishop Joyce, who presided at the Minnesota conference, would not permit Mr. Vance to accept the call, unless the North Dakota conference would accept a Minnesota minister instead. His former parishioners at Lidgerwood are endeavoring to secure a return of Rev. Henry of the Roberts Street church here.

Farmers are preparing for seeding this week, and a great deal of grain will be gotten in. Much seeding was done in some parts of the state last week, but the valley lands were too wet. The soil, barring somewhat excessive moisture, is in unusually fine condition, and a good crop is anticipated.

Cooperstown—Henry S. Rearick, formerly publisher of the Grove City, Minn., Times, has purchased the Griggs Sentinel, of this place. The plant has been a white elephant on the hands of the stockholders for some time.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Pierre—Several ranchers south of Blunt found a few days ago that about fifty head of their cattle had drifted onto the Crow Creek reservation, in a storm, and found later that the Indians had taken them up and were holding them for $1 a head fees for taking them up. After a long powwow they finally persuaded the Indians that a game of talk and $25 would be enough to secure the release of the cattle.

Yankton—Edith Kellogg, the 14-year-old daughter of Charles Kellogg, who lives south of Pukwana, left her home Friday and made her way to that place. She wore a boy's coat and cap, and carried a bundle containing a shirt and pair of trousers. She went to a barber shop and had her hair cut short. From there she went south of town and changed her clothes, putting on boy's apparel. Proceeding on her journey she arrived at Fred Kenna's house, where she hired out to herd sheep this summer. Mr. Kellogg came to town yesterday looking for his daughter, but, although he made a diligent search, could find no trace of her. He started home and on his way stopped at Mr. Kenna's place and there found his daughter. Mr. Kellogg says the girl's mind must be affected as she had never attempted to leave home before.

Sioux Falls—The jury in the case against Red Ears, indicted for the murder of the infant child of White Cow, after being out sixty hours, reported it was unable to agree and was discharged. The jury is said to have stood eight to four for conviction.

Belle Fourche—Ira Norse and Clyde Baldwin were arrested in this city charged with larceny. They took from the person of James McCumpsey a roll of bills which had been marked by the city authorities, as the latter had been aware that "rolling" had been going on for some time. Judge Moore gave the men a sentence of five years each in the state penitentiary.

De Smet—A special election will probably be held to vote upon the proposition of issuing bonds for the construction of a waterworks system.

Huron—C. A. Fowler, aged 77 years, was found dead in bed at the home of his son, Fred Fowler. He was a native of Ohio, coming here in 1833.

Nemo—Quincy H. Edwards, son of the postmistress, who was recently indicted for issuing fraudulent money orders and forging the name of his mother to the letters of advice, will not be tried during the present term of the United States court.

Principal of School at Calumet Is Forced to Resign.

Calumet, Mich., April 16.—At the meeting of the school board of Calumet township the resignation of E. L. Heath, principal of the Washington school, was presented and accepted, to take effect immediately. Mr. Heath has been accused of undue intimacy with his pupils. It is said that last week he kissed five of his girl pupils, and a high state of feeling exists against him. The question of his successor is still undecided, but it is thought the board will appoint Miss Ella Rogers, now of the high school force, principal of the school.

Ishpeming—Napoleon Charboneau met his death while driving logs for the Dead River Mill company Saturday afternoon. Charboneau was working on the drive near the skidway. He was attempting to break up a jam. The logs were piled in every conceivable shape and in breaking away one of the largest Charboneau was struck down by a second log. Before he could gain his feet a third hit him on the head, crushing his skull and killing him instantly.

Portage Lake—Albert Priest, one of the oldest settlers of the Portage Lake district, died very suddenly from heart failure at 3:45 o'clock Sunday morning. He was fifty-nine years of age.

About 9:30 o'clock Sunday evening fire was discovered on the Portage Lake bridge on the Hancock side about 100 feet north of the draw. It burned quite fiercely for awhile, but the fire department soon had it quenched when it got to the scene. Although it is generally supposed that a lighted cigar stub was the cause of the blaze, incendiarism is suspected in some quarters, as about 7 o'clock Marshal Voetsch, of Houghton, noticed a small fire on the Houghton side which he promptly put out.

ADVICE TO "LOOKERS"

Don't imagine you've done justice to the clothes you're looking at, or to yourself, when you've merely seen them in the hands of the salesmen, or spread before you on the counter!

You haven't, by any means.

There's as great a difference in clothes-makers as between an artist and "a dauber," a skilled mechanic and a clumsy apprentice!

As you look at a coat laid down, you see the cloth, the lining, and some of the sewing, and of these you may or may not be a judge, but that's the smallest part of it!

How will it fit you, and how will it look on you? That's the question, and of that you can truly judge when you've tried it on, and not before!

Our artist pride is gratified when we hear a man say, as one did a day or two ago, "That's the best coat I ever had on in my life!"

Spring Suits and Overcoats $10, $12, $15, $18 and $20.

TEN THOUSAND IDLE

Strike of Switchmen on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Throws Mine Employes Out of Work.

Scranton, Pa., April 17.—The strike of the switchmen on the Scranton division of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western road continues, with no signs of settlement. It has already had the effect of shutting down all the mines of the Lackawanna Coal company, as it is impossible to get any cars to or from the mines, thus forcing idleness upon over 10,000 mine employes. Grand Master Frank Hawley of the Switchmen's Union of America reached here today from Buffalo, and has been in conference with the local Switchmen's union since 9 a. m., with the meeting yet in progress. The men seemed determined that the two discharged yard foremen, Toomey and Herrity, shall be reinstated, and believe their action in quitting work will be given official sanction by the grand master, in which case, it is stated, the strike would spread to all divisions of the system from Hoboken to Buffalo.

General Yard Master Horan of Hoboken is here and was in conference with General Superintendent Clarke during the morning. Mr. Clarke says the discharged men will not be reinstated, because they disobeyed orders given them. Superintendent Rine of the Scranton division posted a notice last night that if the men on strike did not return to work up to noon today, their places places would be permanently filled by others. The men paid no attention to the notice.

GAVE HER DIAMONDS.

Atlanta Lady Will Pay a Church Debt.

Atlanta, Ga., April 17.—Rev. Len G. Broughton's statement a year ago that a lady had promised him $5000 worth of diamonds on certain conditions to liquidate debts on the Tabernacle Baptist church, of which he is pastor, has been partly realized. He has received two diamond rings, valued at $500 each. The rings were not delivered to Dr. Broughton in person by the donor, but were carried by another party. Dr. Broughton refused to divulge the name of the lady who gave up her diamonds to pay the church out of debt. He admitted, however, that she was a resident of Atlanta. Asked if she was a member of his church, Dr. Broughton declined to say.

"I have been offered $900 for the two rings," said Dr. Broughton, "but they are valued at $1000. They will be sold and the proceeds applied to the church debt."

DROWNED HIMSELF.

Lowell Town Treasurer Short In His Accounts.

Zanesville, Ohio, April 17.—J. K. Lamsley, of Lowell, drowned himself today in the Muskingum river. It is alleged that he was short in his accounts as township treasurer, and that his bondsmen last evening notified him they would no longer be responsible.

WITH BULLET

Maj. M. R. Baldwin Takes His Own Life.

Was Very Despondent Over His Ill Health.

The Associated Press dispatches at an early hour this morning brought the startling news that Maj. Melvin R. Baldwin, of Duluth, had committed suicide at Seattle. Despondency through ill health was the cause of the act, for although the dispatch suggested that business reverses had something to do with his despondency, it is known to his friends here that he was very cheerful over his business affairs, but very despondent over the condition of his health. His friends here do not concede that it was intentional suicide.

MAJ. M. R. BALDWIN.

The tragedy took place in his room and is thus described in the Seattle dispatch:

"The ex-congressman's body was found lying in his bed in his apartments at 208 Fourth avenue, with a bullet hole through his brain, at 7:30 o'clock last night, and, from the condition of the body, it is estimated that death had occurred fully two hours before. Tightly gripped in his hand was a 38-caliber revolver. Duncan McKinley, formerly of Duluth, a friend of the deceased and a former business associate, discovered the body when he went to visit the ex-congressman at his apartments. Entering the room, McKinley spoke to his friend, the outline of whose body could be seen in the darkness of the chamber, and, receiving no response, summoned assistance, only to find that Baldwin had sent a bullet crashing through his brain, and lay in a pool of blood which had accumulated upon the bed clothing, and which was yet flowing freely from the wound in his right temple."

Mrs. Baldwin and son, Harold, reside at 711 West Second street, in this city. The terrible news was broken to her by S. F. Snively, a close friend of Maj. Baldwin, who had been associated with him in business affalds during recent years. The shock was a great one and for a time Mrs. Baldwin was completely overcome. After she rallied she requested that L. M. Willcuts, who has been a close friend of Mr. Baldwin for years and was a business partner for a long period, be notified.

Mr. Willcuts was astounded to hear of the death of Maj. Baldwin. He had heard from him frequently and knew that he was in poor health and that this was weighing on his mind. He says that Maj. Baldwin was a man of great courage and determination and that nothing but severe physical suffering could have brought such despondency and mental aberration as he must have been suffering with, if he took his own life.

Maj. Baldwin has been in the West for a number of years. He went to Alaska about four years ago and engaged in mining there for a time, he and S. F. Snively being in the Alaska Gold Mining and Exploration company, but that did not prove very successful. After that he went to Cape Nome and acquired some interests there. He returned later to Seattle, and last year went back to Nome with a schooner, which he owned. This was in a big storm and was lost, or at least he never got any salvage from it. He had some good prospects there however and intended to stay there and develop them, when he was suddenly taken severely ill and had to leave at once for Seattle to undergo an operation. The doctors decided at first that he was too weak to be operated upon and then later that he must be operated upon at once to save his life. This left him in exceedingly weak condition, and his despondency seemed to begin. He subsequently took the grip, and in his weakened condition it attacked him severely.

In all of his letters here he was very hopeful over his business matters, and in his last letter to Mrs. Baldwin, written on April 9, a week ago, he said:

"I have been out all day and am feeling better. Am yet quite weak and with but little appetite. Seems as though my worst trouble now is despondency, though my affairs are certainly more promising than at any other time since leaving Duluth. Yet the fear and dread of the future haunts

OWATONNA IS SCORCHED

Worst Fire In the History of the Southern Minnesota Town---Much Business Property Is Destroyed.

St. Paul, April 17.—An Owatonna, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Owatonna suffered the worst fire in its history early today. Fire started late last night in the basement of James W. Connors' dry goods store, but after a fight the flames were subdued. The store was carefully watched and examined at 2 o'clock and no evidence of fire being found, it was left in charge of watchmen. Suddenly, about 4 o'clock, an explosion occurred, supposedly from gasoline and in a moment the entire building was wrapped in flames. The fire spread to the First State bank building, which was almost totally wrecked. For an hour it seemed impossible to save the main business portion of the city, but the wind subsided and other losses were confined to exterior scorchings given the adjacent buildings. Connors' loss, which was total, is over $40,000, with $30,000 insurance. The loss on store building was $8000 and $5000 on the bank. The total loss will aggregate over $75,000.

A THOUSAND A MINUTE

Skillful Robbers Secure Three Thousand Dollars In Three Minutes In Ben Marsh's Gambling House at Memphis.

Memphis, April 17.—Two men, with drawn revolvers, robbed Ben Marsh's gambling house early today. They spent three minutes in the place and secured over $3000. No clue has been secured as to their identity. Marsh and his assistants were balancing the cash after the night's play, when the robbers rushed into the room. A purse on the table contained $2500, while Marsh held $500 in his hands. The four men in the room were ordered to lie on the floor or be killed. They quickly obeyed, and the robbers soon secured the money in sight. Then they ordered Marsh and the others to stand up and went through their pockets. The gamblers made no resistance, as they were threatened with instant death. Only a small amount was found in the pockets of the victims and, covering the inmates with revolvers, the robbers backed from the room and escaped. So far the police have found no clue to the robbers.

COLLIERY TIED UP.

One Thousand Men and Boys on a Strike.

Shamokin, Pa., April 17.—One thousand men and boys went on a strike at the Natalie colliery today because the Shamokin Coal Company would not accede to their demands. The colliery is completely tied up. The men ask that James Bateman, inside foreman and conductor John Yeager of the mine's train be discharged and that trainmen running on the companies road, between Natalie and Locust Summit, be granted a 10 per cent increase over their present wages.

NEW VESSELS ANNOUNCED.

Tacoma, April 17.—It is announced that the freight and passenger steamers now plying between Tacoma, Yokohama and Hong Kong in connection with the Northern Pacific road are soon to be supplanted by larger vessels. The new steamers probably will be of American build.

WILL BE IMPOSING.

San Francisco, April 17.—Gen. Warfield, who will have charge of the military escort on President McKinley's arrival in this city, says it will probably be one of the most imposing military affairs ever witnessed on this coast. There will be no civic bodies in the line. The army will be led by either Maj. Gen. Shafter or Maj. Gen. Young.

ADJOURNED TO JUNE.

New York, April 17.—Surrogate Fitzgerald today, on motion of William M. Cantwell, of the law firm of Cantwell & Moore, counsel for Albert T. Patrick, granted an adjournment in the William Marsh Rice will contest until the first Monday in June. Patrick was held yesterday by Justice Jerome for the grand jury on the charge that he murdered Rice.

TROUBLE AT CEBU

Two Hundred Insurgent Riflemen Still In the Mountains.

One Thousand Soldiers Are Unable to Capture Them.

Island Will Probably Be Organized as One Province.

Cebu, Island of Cebu, Philippine Islands, April 17.—A thousand troops in the island of Cebu are unable to accomplish the surrender or capture of the 200 insurgent riflemen, who are still out. Col. McClernand says the terms the insurgents offered are impossible. Of the fifty towns, a dozen of the larger have been organized under military order. The others are believed to have insurgent governments.

Judge Taft, addressing the convention today, deplored the fact that Cebu was the least pacified province and called on delegates to decide whether 200 men would be permitted to restrain peace and prosperity or whether the majority would organize and notify the mountain sulkers to cease causing trouble. If the people were not ready to do this the commission would not supersede the military by civil government. The leading Visayans from the twenty-four towns represented urged the organization of a provincial government and the wind up of the rebellion and commended Col. McClernand as commanding wisely and without bloodshed.

The island probably will be organized as one province. The population numbers 650,000.

WEST INDIES.

Modified Proposal For Purchase Is Being Considered By Denmark.

Copenhagen, April 17.—The government is earnestly considering the recent somewhat modified proposal with regard to the sale to the United States of the Danish West Indies, which is considered likely to lead to a satisfactory termination of the negotiations. Official circles are of the opinion that the two governments are now nearer an agreement than they have been at any previous time.

The Danish government ridicules the reterated reports published in English papers that peremptory communications regarding the sale of the islands have been received from the United States, and the officials are much impressed with the cordiality and friendliness that the United States government has shown throughout the negotiations.

GILMORE RETIRES.

Will Be Succeeded By Lieut. Col. Hall.

Chicago, April 17.—Col. John C. Gilmore, assistant adjutant general of the department of the lakes, having reached the age limit, will retire from the regular army tomorrow. Lieut. Col. W. P. Hall will advance a grade and succeed him. Col. Gilmore served in both the civil and Spanish wars, while Col. Hall is best known for service against the Indians. Both men wear medals awarded them for bravery and gallant service.

BIG STEEL PLANT.

May Be Erected on Delaware Below Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, April 17.—It is stated on what appears to be good authority, that an immense steel forging plant will be built at Billingsport, N. J., on the Delaware river. Henry C. Frick and his friends are said to be interested in the new enterprise. According to the story told here 150 acres of land have been secured, with ample water front, thus insuring the construction of wharves, so that the supplies from the mines of Pennsylvania and elsewhere could be laid down directly at the works by water at the least cost.

The site selected fronts on the Delaware river between Red Bank and Lincoln Park, about ten miles below Philadelphia. It is level ground and the area of land purchased would warrant the laying out of villages for the working people, in adddtion to the big steel plant.

BANK FAILS.

Le Mar Institution Has Closed Its Doors.

Washington, April 17.—The controller of the currency has received word that the Le Mars National bank, of Le Mars, Iowa, closed its doors this morning. National Bank Examiner Meyer has been temporarily placed in charge, pending the arrival of Special Agent Thomas M. Thornton, who has been appointed temporary receiver. The following is a statement of the condition of the bank, as shown by its sworn report to the controller of the currency, under date of Feb. 5, 1901:

Capital stock, $100,000; surplus and undivided profits, $3579, circulation, $25,000; due to bank and bankers, $659; deposits, $108,177; borrowed money, $30,421. Total liabilities, $267,836. Total resources, $267,836.

TO STUDY PLAGUE.

Alam Gordo, N. M., April 17.—Dr. Cobb of the United States marine hospital and sanitarium at Fort Stanton, near here, has been ordered by Surgeon General Wyman to proceed to San Francisco and make an exhaustive study and report on the bubonic plague situation.

THE PALLIUM

Archbishop Keane Invested at Dubuque

Amid a Scene of Greatest Brilliancy.

Dubuque, Iowa, April 17.—In the presence of princes and high priests of his church, and before an audience that occupied every foot of space in the cathedral and overflowed into the surrounding streets, Archbishop John J. Keane was today invested with the pallium, the insignia of the high position he occupies in the Roman Catholic church.

The scene was one of great brilliancy and the ceremonies characteristic of that splendor and magnificence for which the Catholic church is noted. While the absence of Monsignor Martinelli was marked, it detracted none from the grandeur of the scene, which was far beyond that occasion of Sept. 17, 1893, when Monsignor Satolli, now a member of the sacred congregation, Rome, conferred the pallium upon the late Archbishop Hennessey in this same cathedral. Cardinal Gibbons was here today as he was then; archbishops and bishops from all parts of the United States were here again, and the number of priests present was fully double that on the other occasion. The attendance of laymen from abroad was very large and but few states in the Union were unrepresented. It was a remarkable tribute to Archbishop Keane.

ARCHBISHOP KEANE.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND.

The ceremonies opened at 10 o'clock with a procession of clergy and attendants, in which the cardinal, archbishops, bishops and priests took part, clad in full vestments of their rank. Passing from the archepiscopal residence, the procession entered the cathedral and moved up the main aisle to the altar. Within the sanctuary Cardinal Gibbons ascended the throne on the left, which had been yielded to him by Archbishop Keane, the latter occupying a temporary throne on the right which he had erected for himself. About these two principals were Archbishops Kain, St. Louis; Katzer, Milwaukee; Elder, Cincinnati; Ireland, St. Paul, and in their company were Bishops Spaulding and his coadjutor, O'Reilly, Peoria, Ill.; Els, Marquette, Mich.; Messmen, Green Bay, Wis.; Trobec, St. Cloud, Minn.; O'Gorman, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Terney, Hartford, Conn.; Cotter, Winona, Minn.; Hennessey, Wichita, Kan.; Foley, Detroit, Mich.; Maes, Covington, Ky.; Schwebach, La Crosse, Wis.; Glennon, Kansas City; Burke, St. Joseph, Mo.; Scanneil, Omaha; Burke, Albany, N. Y.; Cosgrove, Davenport, Iowa; Linehan, Cheyenne, Wyo.; Bonacum, Lincoln, Neb.; McCloskey, Louisville, Ky.; Harkins Providence, R. I.; Janssen, Belleville, Ill.; Chatard, Indianapolis, Ind., and Hobart, Scranton, Pa.; Monsignor Ryan, vicar general of the diocese of Dubuque, and nearly 400 priests.

The scene was beautiful. The high altar, almost hidden by palms, ferns and flowers, was dazzling with electric lights, while the cardinal's red robes, the archbishops' purple, the bishops'

GERMANY IS INDIGNANT

Much Disturbed Over Statement of Mr. Rockhill Concerning the Figures of Indemnity to Be Demanded of China.

London, April 17.—The Times Berlin correspondent today represents the German government as being in a state of much indignation at the statement in the American press of Mr. Rockhill's figures of the indemnities which may be demanded from China. The Times says:

"The statement is exceedingly incorrect and calculated to give an entirely false impression. The excess of the German over the English claims is easily understood. The Germans sent a much larger force from Europe, while the British sent one from India, comparatively near at hand. In these circumstances it is regarded here as a matter of deep regret that the misleading account published in America should be commented on in the English papers in a spirit calculated to give offense to Germany. The baselessness of the supposition is shown by the fact that the German claim is only $12,000,000 as against the $14,000,000 stated by Mr. Rockhill, and therefore considerably less than the amount already voted by the reichstag for the campaign. There is no attempt in authoritative quarters to disguise the fact that much can be said in favor of the United States' suggestion in regard to the settlement of the indemnities, but the German government has refrained from taking up a definite attitude there until it sees how it is received by the other powers."

WARM TIME IN A CHURCH

Disgraceful Scene In Bow Church During the Consecration of Rev. A. F. Ingram as Bishop of London.

London, April 17.—The scene in Bow church today during the consecration of the Rt. Rev. A. F. Ingram as bishop of London resembled a political meeting rather than a church function. Mr. Kensit made a strong speech which caused an extraordinary uproar, and he was greeted with cheers, hisses and shouts of order, shame, no popery, etc. Mr. Kensit, in the course of his remarks, accused Dr. Ingram of being unfaithful to all his promises when he was consecrated bishop of Stepney, adding that he had helped law-breakers, had encouraged clergymen who, in defiance of the rubrics, elevated the host, offered masses and practiced the confession, etc. He concluded with saying that he was prepared to appear in the courts and prove that Dr. Ingram was an unfit person to hold the position of a bishop of the Protestant church, owing to his encouragement of these illegal Romish practices.

The friends and opponents of Mr. Kensit became so uproarious that the vicar general tried to clear the church. Dr. Ingram appealed to his friends to listen quietly. Eventually the vicar general overruled the objections and the election of Dr. Ingram was confirmed.

Disorderly scenes and hustling occurred outside the church, and finally Mr. Kensit was escorted home by a score of policemen and followed by a howling mob.

ORDER COMES.

Adj. Gen. Libbey Directs Mustering Out of Company G.

Adjt. Gen. Libbey's "Funstonizing" expedition against Company G on Monday night proved to be a coup de grace as well as a coup d'etat. It is the talk of guard circles. Acting upon one of the most prominent rules of war, to mystify and mislead the opponent as much as possible, the adjutant general caught the company so completely unawares that he went back to St. Paul and dictated the following special order:

Special orders—No. 35:

Upon the recommendation of the regimental commander, approved by the brigade commander, Company G, Third infantry, N. G. S. M., stationed at Duluth, is mustered out, and the commissioned officers and enlisted men thereof, excepting Capt. Alfred H. Wigdahl, are honorably discharged from the military service of the state. Upon the approval of his property accounts and compliance with special orders No. 25, A. G. O., c. s., Capt. Wigdahl will also be honorably discharged from the service of the state.

By order of the commander-in-chief.

E. D. LIBBEY, Adjutant General.

Capt. W. H. Hart, quartermaster of the First brigade arrived here last evening to receive the company equipment and stores, which were being checked and turned over to him today by Capt. Wigdahl.

It is reported today that the company is found short in equipment, but this is not confirmed from an official source. It is definitely known that a shortage existed at the time the court of inquiry went into the company's affairs, but at that time it was understood that it would be made up as speedily as possible.

Capt. Hart leaves for St. Paul tonight taking all the uniforms, guns and other equipment.

The Boer Lecture.

Tomorrow evening, at the Lyceum theater, will be given the illustrated lecture on "The Boer War." Messrs. Wessels and Viljoen, special commissioners of the South African republic, will both speak and will present the causes of the war and many other interesting facts to the people of Duluth. They claim that since the war started their people have been continually misrepresented by their enemy and their object in visiting the United States is put before the American people the case of the Boers just as it should be. The lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon views of Boerland and will show the Boers in their home life and also many of the realistic battle scenes which have taken place. Mr. Viljoen was a commander in the early part of the war, was captured and was released by Gen. De Wet. He will give his actual experience on the field of battle. The proceeds go to the fund for the relief of the families of the Boers who have suffered from the loss of husbands and fathers in the struggle for home and liberty.

DIED ALONE.

Assistant Chief Boyington Finds His Wife Dead.

Mrs. Charles E. Boyington, of 1823 West First street, died very suddenly last night. Her death was not discovered till this morning, when her husband, who is second assistant chief of the fire department, went home to breakfast. He had left his wife in her usual health when he went on duty last evening, but on entering the home this morning found her dead.

Death was caused by a hemorrhage which is supposed to have occurred shortly after she put her two children to bed. She has been suffering from consumption for two or three years, and the theory of physicians is that, in coughing she broke a blood vessel. The hemorrhage that followed was very severe, the flow of blood probably strangling her before she could call for help. Her two children slept in a room close by but did not hear the coughing.

Mrs. Boyington was 25 years of age and well known in the West End. The news of her sudden death has caused deep sorrow among many friends and acquaintances.

Funeral arrangements had not been made today pending word from relatives in Minneapolis.

WHY IS IT CUT OFF?

No Inspection of Milk In Duluth For Months.

What Is the Matter With the State Commission?

It Collects Fines For Food Law Violations Occasionally.

The announcement that Mrs. Rorer had found formaldehyde in cream which she bought for use in her demonstrations last week has created a decided sensation among all people of the city who take any interest in having pure food. How is it possible that formaldehyde can be used in milk and cream if the state inspection is maintained as it should be, is a question that is being asked on all sides. The inspection of milk and cream comes under the jurisdiction of the state dairy and food commission and there is an inspector in this city whose duty it ought to be to see that such practices are followed by severe punishment and the people want to know why it is not.

Anyone who doubts the danger from the use of formaldehyde should go and ask a physician what its effect is. He will be told that its effect is to make things leathery or woody and that taking it into the stomach will cause serious indigestion and continued use of it will cause serious disorder of the stomach.

Otto Gifvert, of West Duluth, is the present deputy inspector of the dairy and food commission in this section. He has been in the office but a short time and has not as yet had time to master all the details or get all of his work in systematic shape. A conversation which The Herald had with him indicates that he is desirous of performing his duties industriously, that he realizes the importance of a thorough and vigilant inspection of all food products over which he has jurisdiction and that he is getting his work under way as rapidly as he can. But so far as can be learned from him, there has not been an inspection of milk or cream to determine as to whether they contained the required percentage of fat, which is the enriching quality. Any milk which he suspects of being impure he sends to the state chemist for an analysis.

The idea of the inspection of milk and cream is that the vendors of those articles shall not know what minute an inspector may stop them and buy a sample of their milk or cream and make a test of it. That system was maintained in this city a few years ago but it has not been kept up. The department claims that it is because it has not money enough to operate properly. The amount of fines collected out of Duluth has been large enough to warrant the city in demanding better consideration from the department. Deputies from St. Paul have dropped in here right often for two or three years past and made arrests for violations of the law. The principal object seemed to be to get the fines for there were instances where the complaint was made against employes rather than against proprietors in order to save the latter from publicity. The fines go to the department and the main object of the department seems to be to collect fines. Senator Baldwin held this fact up before the legislature a few weeks ago.

The Duluth inspector has six counties to cover, and it must be apparent that it is pretty hard for one man to cover all that ground. Duluth is the main place, however, and it may well be asked what has been done here in the way of inspection of milk and cream within the past six months or year.

One of the physicians of the city said to The Herald recently and he was so quoted that there seemed to be absolutely no inspection of milk here. He cited his own experience of buying sterilized milk and having it come to the house sour, when, sterilized milk will keep six days without ice and sixteen if on ice.

The apparatus which the department has for the testing of milk and cream is said to be quietly reposing in the basement of a building in the business district, or at least it was a very short time ago.

There are a great many citizens who have been resting under the same assumption that their milk and cream is tested regularly by the state. The knowledge that it is not and has not been for months may awaken them to the necessity and importance of seeing that their supply is pure and may lead to stirring the department up to action.

The department may claim that it has not money enough to maintain an office in this city. It is a fact nevertheless that an office was maintained until the resignation of a former inspector was desired, and when he refused to give it the maintenance of an office was cut off.

FIFTH ANNUAL BALL

Given By Barbers' Union No. 67,

Of Duluth, at Odd Fellows hall, Thursday evening, April 18. La Brosse's orchestra. Tickets, 50 cents.

North Brothers' Show.

In spite of the inclement weather a good-sized audience saw North Bros.' presentation of "Our American Cousin" at the Sixth Avenue theater last evening. It is an amusing farce comedy, and received excellent treatment at the hands of the performers. C. C. Chapin as the Irish American cousin, and Virginia Goodwin as Kitty Tyson, were very good and called forth much applause. The specialties between the acts were the best that have been presented thus far. "The Tenderfoot," a sensational drama, will be presented tonight with an entire change of specialties.

TO HAVE A BOARD

Cumbersome Old Tsung Li Yamen to Be Done Away.

Suggestion of Mr. Rockhill Agreed to By the Powers.

Foreign Board With Three Members Will Expedite Business.

Washington, April 17.—The action of the ministers at Pekin, in accepting the proposition of Mr. Rockhill for the establishing of a foreign board to take the place of the Tsung Li Yamen is in line with what has been expected at the state department, although the details of the plan are somewhat different from those first contemplated. The Tsung Li Yamen has been a cumbersome body, very difficult for foreign officials to deal with, chiefly because of its inability to take decisive action.

The first plan was to establish a Chinese minister of foreign affairs in place of this old board, so that foreign negotiations could be carried on with one individual, he to be a member of the privy council, with access to the throne. But it appears that this has not proved feasible, as the Chinese cling to the old idea of boards instead of individual authority. And the result is to have a foreign board with a prince of the blood at its head and with two members of the privy council serving ex-officio. These three will be able to do business much more expeditiously than the large, cumbersome Tsung Li Yamen and besides each will have access to the emperor in order to secure imperial sanction for such foreign negotiations as may be brought up.

While this plan is not considered as satisfactory as that first contemplated, yet it is at least better than the old system. Mr. Rockhill has not been heard from as to the details of the plan but the foregoing is along the line as the authorities here understand the action taken. The last dispatch from Mr. Rockhill was some days ago, and referred to the punitive expedition about to start for Hue La, some distance northwest of Pekin. The frequency of these expeditions and the state of unrest which they seem to engender is a matter of no little concern to the authorities here, although they cannot, under the circumstances interpose objections.

A PETITION.

Pest House Patients Preparing One, Properly Fumigated.

"That weed richer than the richest treasure,
The pest house hearth's sweet censer,
The soother of vexatious hours,
The placid peace dispenser."

It is reported today that the smallpox patients at the Emergency hospital are getting up a fumigated petition to the council, beseeching the aldermen not to cut off their tobacco supply. The resolution cutting off the supply was simply tabled at Monday night's council meeting and may yet be taken up and passed.

The inmates are of the opinion that if a petition is properly drawn up, fumigated and signed by 25 per cent of the patients owning 25 per cent of the smallpox, the aldermen will permit their tobacco supply to be continued. The idea originated with one of the patients who had read over the new charter.

It is understood, however, that the aldermen will be willing to leave the anti-tobacco resolution on the table indefinitely if the patients will only promise to keep the petition to themselves.

For the past six weeks there has been a rule in effect at the Emergency hospital which prevents the giving of tobacco to patients except when they work for it. If they clean up their rooms or do other little odd jobs about the place, they are furnished with tobacco. Many of the patients buy their own tobacco, however.

SENATOR CLAPP HERE.

He Visits Duluth on Private Business.

United States Senator Moses E. Clapp is in the city on private business, and he will remain at the St. Louis until tomorrow. He arrived from St. Paul last night. He was met by many of his Duluth friends, and as this is his first visit here since his election as senator he came in for a good many delayed congratulations. Senator Clapp is interested to some extent in Duluth property, and he is full of faith in the prospects of the city.

Suit Is to Run.

The steamer J. C. Suit, which did an excursion business in this port during the early part of last year, will be on the Fond du Lac run this coming season, now that the E. T. Carrington has been withdrawn. Daily trips will be made from the Fifth avenue dock to Fond du Lac, starting about 10 o'clock a. m., and the first trip will be made about June 15. The Suit is an admirable craft for the purposes for which she is designed this year, and she will be larger and roomier and speedier than anything that has yet been on the Fond du Lac run.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS. CATARRH OF STOMACH.

Miss Evelyn Morse writes from 651 Adams street, Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I suffered for nearly three years with catarrh of the stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, until a friend advised me to try Peruna. Although skeptical, I tried it, and found it helped me within the first week. I kept taking it for three months, and am pleased to say that it cured me entirely, and I have had no symptoms of its return. I am only too glad to recommend it as a wonderful medicine, doing all and more than you claim for it."—Evelyn Morse.

Adia Brittain, of Sekitan, Ohio, writes:

"After using your wonderful Peruna three months, I have had great relief. I had continual heaviness in my stomach, was bilious, and had fainting spells, but all have left me since using Peruna. I can now get around and do my housework, and think Peruna the greatest medicine I ever used.

My husband complained of shortness of breath and weakness in limbs, but since taking your Peruna says he has not felt so well in ten years." Adia Brittain.

Mrs. Lizzie Blevins, 102 Boliver street, Cleveland, Ohio, writes:

"After following your directions and using your medicine, I candidly feel it was the means of saving my life, for I suffered for months from catarrh of the stomach and doctors that I consulted did not seem to know what ailed me and did me no good. I used two bottles of Peruna and began to get so much better that I continued taking it until I had taken five bottles, and it cured me. I find it to be just as it is recommended, and I speak in highest praise of Peruna. I trust it may do good to others as it has to me. I am confident a trial of your medicine will convince anyone." —Mrs. Lizzie Blevins.

From McPherson, Kans., F. M. Landis writes the following letter:

"I wish to say I am doing splendidly under your direction. Peruna is doing the work admirably and the catarrh of the stomach is going away steadily. I think Peruna a most wonderful medicine; it has done me wonderful good, and I recommend it to all suffering from the effects of catarrh and kindred ailments.

"I used less than three bottles of Peruna and I am relieved so much that I intend to always have Peruna ready for use in case of need."—F. M. Landis.

Miss Maggie Becker, 653 Lake street, Appleton, Wis., writes:

"It is with pleasure I recommend Peruna as a splendid tonic to any overtaxed persons. When the mind is wearied the body will soon be worn out also, but Peruna invigorates the body and refreshes the mind. I have also found it a relief in cases of severe backache. We are never without it at home, and consider it a household blessing."—Miss Maggie Becker.

Miss Maggie Becker.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HER GREEDINESS.

A Landlady Who Came to Unexpected Grief.

"During the carnival rush last year," said an old bachelor who lives not far from Lee Circle to the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "my good old landlady tried desperately to make as much hay as possible while the sun shone. She knew the cubic capacity of the house to the fraction of an inch, and early in the winter had figured out exactly how many lodgers it would contain, taking them as they came—fat, lean and middling. But when Mardi Gras week actually arrived and tired tourists looking for quarters were yanking the heart strings out of the door bell at every hour of the day, she began feverishly recasting her calculations, to see whether she couldn't squeeze a few more in without bulging the walls. It seemed heathenish to turn anybody away who was seeking for shelter, she declared, especially when the price appeared to be no object to them, and all sorts of new and ingenious combinations suggested themselves to her mind. For example, she transformed the upper back hall into two monastic cells, by means of a rickety Japanese screen, which had to be collapsed, accordion fashion, whenever a fat gentleman from one of the front bedrooms wanted to go by. The occupants of the monastic cells protested violently, of course, but their wrath was always emptied on the fat gentleman, and the landlady escaped. Another of her inspirations was to drape the coal box with old curtains and make up a bed on the lid, which gave her an additional furnished apartment in the shape of the rear entry. I suppose all this was more or less legitimate," continued the old bachelor, "but as might have been expected, she eventually went too far, and her greediness led to a catastrophe. It came about through a man from Syracuse—I can't remember his name—who called the night before Mardi Gras and insisted that he must have somewhere to sleep. At first the landlady held firm, but when he pulled out a big roll of bills and told her to name the price, she weakened and told him to wait until she could fix up a little spare chamber she hadn't intended to rent. What she did was to drag a mattress back to the bathroom and make a bed in the tub. Just how she managed to disguise the exterior, I don't know, but the man from Syracuse was evidently very tired, and the chances are that he peeled off his clothes and tumbled in with no very minute inspection of his couch. As a final precaution the landlady went out to the kitchen and turned off the water at the house connection, intending to turn it on again when the stranger left. The incident might have passed off smoothly enough, after all, but as bad luck would have it, the colored cook arrived much earlier than usual next morning and, finding the water off, got a wrench and proceeded to open the valve. About fifteen minutes later the whole house was aroused by a tremendous howl of brute terror! I never heard anything like it! It fairly shook the roof and was full of an indescribable note of panic that chilled the blood in my veins. I rushed to my door and opened it just in time to collide with the man from Syracuse, wet as a drowned rat. 'The levee's broken!' he bawled. 'The city's being flooded! We'll all be drowned!' We had to hold him while we ascertained the facts, which were that he had been awakened by the rising tide in the bathtub and, supposing, like many strangers, that our levees broke here every few days, he rushed out to escape a watery grave. When he learned the truth he was so mad he immediately engaged a lawyer to bring a damage suit, and another lodger with a hysterical wife did the same thing. It cost the landlady $140 to compromise with the pair, to say nothing of the loss of prestige to the house. I forgot to say that the two gents in the monastic cells slipped away in the confusion, carrying with them about $50 worth of bric-a-brac. Rooms will be rented at our mansion this year, but the bathroom will be preserved inviolate."

WOLVIN THE MAN

He Will Handle the Steel Company's Big Fleet.

Headquarters of the Boats to Come to Duluth.

Of Vast Importance to Head of the Lakes.

A. B. Wolvin will manage the fleet of vessels of the United States Steel company and will maintain his headquarters and that of the boats in Duluth. That is the report which is heard today and comes with excellent authority.

The announcement is one of much importance to the head of the lakes, and means a tremendous addition to the prestige of this port. That 112 fleets which have heretofore been managed from Cleveland should be transferred at one stroke, and that the steel combine should look to this port to find the man to manage its fleet cannot fail to attract attention in many circles. Cleveland has always been the central point from which the great bulk of the vessels of the lakes are managed, and has enjoyed the prestige that goes with that for many years. It is not to be supposed that all that glory is to leave her, by any means, simply because this fleet is to be transferred to Duluth, but she will not enjoy such a monopoly of the distinction as she has in the past, but will have to divide some of it with Duluth.

To the business interests of the head of the lakes this change will be of much benefit. It will doubtless give them a much better share of the business of supplying these boats than they get now. It will mean more work for the shipyards at Superior and it will doubtless mean the wintering here of a much greater number of boats and their consequent fitting out at this point in the spring. Mr. Wolvin has always been a loyal resident of the head of the lakes, and will be inclined to allow the cities here to benefit as much as possible by the change of base.

It has been known for some time that Mr. Wolvin could have the management of the fleet if he would remove his residence to the lower lakes. That was against his wish, however, and it is understood that when he left for the East a few days ago the matter hinged on that question. If the company could be persuaded to allow the management of the boats from this point, he would take it. That this could be done there is no doubt, for Mr. Wolvin would hardly be the one to attempt it if he did not know that it was entirely feasible. He had handled fleets from here and knew.

The report that he is to handle the fleet indicates that he has convinced the officials of the company of the practicability of doing this.

MARRIED AT NOON.

Miss Brunhilde Oswald and Carl F. Boetticher.

A very pretty wedding ceremony was performed this noon at the home of Mrs. Sarah Oswald, of 223 East Third street, the bride being her daughter, Miss Brunhilde Oswald, and the groom Carl F. Boetticher, of Evansville, Ind. The bridesmaid was Miss Katherine Feibiger, of this city, and the groom was attended by his brother, Oscar Boetticher. Among the guests from out of the city to attend the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Boetticher, of Evansville, father and mother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Boetticher, of Evansville, and Mr. and Mrs. John Maus, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The parents and brother of the groom have been visiting in the city since the first of the week. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served and the bridal couple will leave this afternoon for the East. They will make their home at Evansville.

Debt Paying Concert.

The concert and entertainment outlined for Friday evening at the Mission church is creating considerable interest, and it promises to be one of the best literary and musical entertainments ever given in the West End. It is for the benefit of the Swedish Methodist church, and the proceeds are to go toward paying off his debt. The Mission church, as the largest place in that section, has seemed the best place to hold it, as a large attendance is pected. Governor Van Sant, Mayor Hugo and Rev. S. D. Long of the First Methodist church will speak. Dr. Long will speak on "The Scandinavian in America." The High School Musical society will give a number under the direction of A. F. M. Custance, and Miss Anna Farrell, the Echo quartet and H. G. Gearhart will also take part.

FORMALLY INVITED.

The Pan-American Committee Calls on President.

Washington, April 17.—The committee on ceremonies of the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, accompanied by Representative Alexander, saw the president today and extended to him a formal invitation to attend the exposition. They also arranged with him the details of his part in the opening of the exposition, May 1. On that day the presidential party will be at Vicksburg, Miss. A dispatch will be sent to the president by the management of the exposition, to which he will send a suitable reply and at 2 o'clock he will press a button which will transmit the electric impulse necessary to set the machinery of the exposition in motion. On dedication day, May 20, the presidential party will be in California, and the president will send a message to be read at the exercises on that occasion. The presidential party will arrive at Buffalo, June 12, and on the following day they will attend the exposition. That day is to be "President's day," and elaborate exercises are being planned for the occasion.

DIXON FINED.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

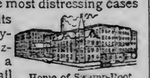

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

BURLINGTON.

Northern Pacific Directors Discuss the Proposed Transfer.

New York, April 17.—The Commercial Advertiser says: "At a meeting of the Northern Pacific directors in this city today, the details of the Burlington deal were discussed. A member of the board said immediately after the meeting adjourned, that matters were not yet in shape for an official announcement. It is believed that the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad will hereafter be controlled jointly by the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern railroads. James J. Hill and his associates are said to have about 500,000 shares of the Burlington stock which they have bought within the last two months. It is the purpose of this syndicate to offer to take all of the shares at a uniform price and payment will be made in new 3½ per cent bonds. It is not likely that there will be any further stock purchases for cash.

"The report from St. Paul that the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Burlington roads are to be united in one general company is not credited here. The laws of the different states through which the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern run forbid any consolidation of parallel and competing lines. There is no law, however, forbidding two or more roads from jointly owning another line."

The Evening Post says that one of the highest authorities in Northern Pacific affairs made the statement today that the Burlington stockholders are to be guaranteed an 8 per cent dividend by the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern companies.

MEANT NO HARM.

Councilman Brice Will Make Handsome Apology.

New York, April 17.—In the supreme court today counsel for Councilman Stewart M. Brice told Justice Scott that Mr. Brice is satisfied to pay the fine of $473.25 inflicted by Justice Scott for contempt of court and to make a full apology for what he had done and will file an affidavit stating that he never intended to disobey the mandate of the court. Counsel added that he hoped the ten days' imprisonment in jail would be remitted by the justice.

Justice Scott said that he would adjourn the signing of the order until Friday, to give Councilman Brice time to file the affidavit.

SICK SOLDIERS.

Report From Philippines Concerning Sick Rate.

Washington, April 17.—Surgeon General Sternberg has received a report from the chief surgeon at Manilla, Col. Greenleaf showing that on April 16 there were in hospitals 2987 cases and outside of hospitals 946 cases. This makes the sick rate of the United States army in the Philippines 7.39 per cent, as against 6.89 for the preceding month. This slight increase is accounted for by the beginning of the change of seasons. Both rates are below the normal, and the medical officers regard them as highly gratifying.

ROUTINE ONLY.

New York, April 17.—A special meeting of the directors of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad was held here today. It was said that only routine business was transacted.

READY COOKED FOOD.

A Great Convenience For Housekeepers.

Two young ladies in a certain city are employed down town and rent a small flat, where they do light housekeeping. Frequently they are invited out evenings, and the subject of meals is a puzzler.

Of late they have solved the problem by keeping some nice rich milk or cream convenient and a package of dry, crisp Grape-Nuts nearby.

In thirty seconds the meal is ready and it is a most fascinating meal, too, for the creamy taste blends with the peculiar delicate sweet of the grape sugar in the Grape-Nuts producing a never-to-be-forgotten flavor. The sustaining power of the food is sufficient to keep one well nourished, even when a small amount is used.

VILJOEN PLEASED

A Dispatch Announces That Andreis Wessel Is Alive.

Is One of Envoys Reported Killed By De Wet.

Viljoen Says It Proves the Falsity of the Report.

Hercules J. Viljoen, one of the commissioners of the South African republic, who is to lecture at the Lyceum tomorrow night in the interest of the Boers, arrived at the Spalding this morning from West Superior, where he spoke to a large audience last evening. Mr. Wessels, the other commissioner is not with him, now being on a lecturing tour in Wisconsin. In appearance, Mr. Viljoen is very prepossessing, a man of some six feet stature, broad shoulders and very erect. He is also very sociable and has a genial way of talking that is very engaging.

At the hotel this noon, Mr. Viljoen was shown an Associated Press dispatch that was received this morning to the effect that advices from Heilbron say that Andries Wessels is still alive. Wessels accompanied Morgonddael on his visit to the Boers in the capacity of a peace envoy and was reported to have been shot by order of Gen. De Wet.

Mr. Viljoen expressed some pleasure at the news contained in the article and said:

"Yes, I know the whole story. The Wessels, the dispatch refers to, is a relation of the Wessels who is traveling with me. Mr. Wessels told me once that he was related, but did not say how near. He did say that Andries Wessels was more nearly related to President Steyn than to himself.

"Sometime, about the first of the year, in February I think, Wessels, Morgendael and an Englishman were sent by the English authorities to Gen. De Wet as peace envoys. Almost immediately afterward the English papers came out with long dispatches that they sent all over the world saying that Gen. De Wet ordered the envoys to be first flogged and then shot. From this dispatch I see that Wessels was not shot and I don't believe the other men were. Of course the Boers that have gone over to the English cause are regarded as traitors and spies, but when Mr. Wessels and myself talked the matter over some time ago, he agreed that his relative must have done something particularly bad if his own relative, President Steyn, would consent to his death. I believe the story sent out by the English as to the flogging and shooting was done with the purpose of belittling Gen. De Wet, just as some of the other stories of English origin have done, and in which there is probably no more truth than in the story of the shooting of Wessels."

Mrs. Moses Latour, died last evening at her home, 1424 West First street. She was 43 years of age and leaves a husband and family of eight children, the younger being but 2 years of age. Funeral arrangements had not been made up to a late hour this afternoon.

John D. Gilchrist has sold his home at Hunter's Park to John Fraser for $400. It is a fine dwelling and was originally built by A. M. Kilgore.

Joseph Bruder, age 40 years, died last evening at the family residence, 1107 Thirteenth street, in West Superior, Wis. He has been in ill health for some time and his death was not unexpected. For the past six years he has resided in Superior, but previous to this time he lived in Duluth, being proprietor of the Fifth Avenue hotel. He leaves a wife and eight children. The funeral will take place from St. Joseph's church, in West Superior, at 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

CRESTS WITHOUT WAITING.

In one of the best known of London's hotels may be seen the following notice, posted in the bedrooms, as well as in the entrance hall: "Guests at this hotel have the privilege of having their crests placed temporarily on any of the hotel carriages. For particulars, apply at the office." A man who, out of curiosity, applied at the office found that scores of guests avail themselves of this "privilege," especially in the season. Your crest is painted for you on a little wooden slide, made to fit closely in a mortise in the door panel of any of the hotel carriages. Upon leaving the hotel you hand over your crest slide to the manager, who keeps it for you until you favor him with another visit.

Fine Dress Goods

of wool and silk and wool.

We've more than doubled this Dress Goods business in less than two years' time—not for any particular reason, but for many reasons. First of all we carry the largest stock of Fine Dress Goods, by twice, of any dry goods establishment at the head of the lakes. We carry the productions of some of the best makers in America, and import direct from Europe all of our high novelties. Our prices are lower, quality considered, than stores ask for goods of inferior grade. Our salesmen are thoroughly experienced and know exactly what they are selling you, and recommend only goods of absolute worthiness.

Fine Prunellas—After all is said and done, Prunellas are the premier fabrics of the season. This line has found favor with the most critical buyers—buyers who never decide before they have seen every made up gown, every dressmaker's sample, and every piece of goods in the city, as well as samples from the leading Eastern houses. If you are hard to suit and want a dress that combines beauty with good style and service, come and inspect this line—18 shades in all by actual count. All the very latest grays, castors, orchids, resedas, blues and claret—$2.50 the yard.

We also show a very good line at $1.00 and another at $1.75.

New Black Goods—Black wool Peau de Sole. The first lot sold out in a week, but we were fortunate in being able to re-order. The term "finer than silk" is here well applied—$1.75 the yard.

Fine Mohair Brilliantine—Another of the "finer than silk" order—and it's very stylish, too—$1.50 the yard.

Imported Black tailor Venetian—has a dust-repelling twilled surface much like a Prunella. The handsomest plain tailor fabric shown—$3.00 the yard.

Fine French Broadcloth—A grade that you'd ordinarily look for only at such stores at Altman's or Mc Creary's, and then at $4.50 to $5.00 the yarl—it just arrived and is priced at $3.75 the yard.

A STRIKE PROBABLE

National Advisory Board Has Matter Under Consideration.

Would Extend to All the New Steel Corporations.

Concessions on Both Sides Can Only Avoid the Order.

Pittsburg, April 17.—The meeting of the national advisory board and vice presidents of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, called for 10 o'clock this morning by President Shaffer, did not begin until nearly 11 o'clock There was a full attendance of the national officers and trustees, who make up the board and among the vice presidents present were David Rees, of Pittsburg, First district; Walter Larkin, of Martin's Ferry, Ohio, Second district; Charles H. Davis, of Newport, Ky., Third district, and Clem Jarvis, of Anderson, Ind., Fifth district.

The meeting was held at the national headquarters on Fourth avenue in this city, and while a large number of prominent amalgamated men and several leaders of the strike were at the headquarters, no one was admitted to the meeting room but the members of the board and the vice presidents. Previous to the meeting, a canvass of the members developed a strong individual disposition to grant President Shaffer the power to call out the employes of the other mills, although no one would venture to predict what the decision of the board would be.

General Manager Smith and Secretary John Jarrett, of the American Sheet Steel company were invited to be present, but Mr. Smith did not attend. Secretary Jarrett was on hand and consumed some time in placing before the members of the Amalgamated association, the position his company has taken in the fight now on.

President Shaffer said that he would if possible, go to McKeesport after the meeting, to advise the men now on strike and announced them to be mild in their action. No action had been taken by the board up to 12:30 p. m. It was stated that they were waiting on one of the vice presidents, who had not arrived, but was expected during the afternoon. It was the general impression that a strike would be ordered, but that the decision would not be reached until late this afternoon. This seemed assured unless concessions are made on both sides.

The combine, it is said, will be asked to vacate the position it has taken in the matter, or else the strike will be declared. Around the Amalgamated headquarters, a general air of expectancy prevailed. Men of all crafts were dropping in at all times, eagerly inquiring as to the prospects for a strike were. They seemed to realize that once the struggle is precipitated, its effects must of necessity be far reaching, concerning them all.

CANNON BURIED.

Last Rites Over the Deceased Mormon.

Salt Lake, Utah, April 17.—Funeral services were held this afternoon over the remains of Apostle George Q. Cannon of the Mormon church, who died in California last week. The ceremonies, which took place in the tabernacle, commenced at noon and continued until 2 p. m. All the high dignitaries of the church participated. The immense seating capacity of the tabernacle was taxed to its utmost and hundreds of people were unable to enter. President Lorenzo Snow, the head of the Mormon church, was the principal speaker.

After the services at the tabernacle the body was taken to the city cemetery, where interment took place. An immense throng followed the casket to its last resting place.

Walter E. Perkins, starring in "The Man from Mexico," had to take an early train out of an Ohio town the other day and left a call at the hotel office for 5 a. m. Long before daylight he was aroused by vigorous hammering at his door, and in response to his inquiry as to whether the hotel was on fire, received the reply:

"I'm the watchman, sir, and I'm going off duty, so I thought I'd better tell you that you have nearly two hours to sleep yet. It's only 2 o'clock now."

STUPID BOOK.

Mr. Astor's Stories Fall Very Flat.

William Waldorf Astor's "Pharaoh's Daughter and Other Stories," has made its appearance in this country, in spite of the following stipulations which he made:

The volume shall not be reprinted in the United States.

It shall not be placed on sale in the United States.

It shall not be advertised in the United States.

It shall not get into the United States if the author can prevent it.

The volume contains something more than 200 pages—twelve stories and twenty-five illustrations. Three of the stories concern Cliefden, or Cliveden. Mr. Astor's palatial estate, and savor somewhat of advertising, says the New York Evening Journal.

The twelve titles are: "Pharaoh's Daughter," "The Ghosts of Austerlitz," "Monsieur de Neron," "The Romance of Cliveden," "The Red Dwarf of Rabenstein," "Forza del Destino," "The Wraith of Cliveden Reach," "Under the Black Flag," "Brabuntio's Love," "Cliefden Lights and Shades," "The Confession of Rue, the Priest," and "Madame Recamier's Secret."

In the matter of illustrations there is nothing remarkable in them until the reader's fortitude has enabled him to reach page 192 in the story of Brabantio's Love." There the reader finds himself face to face with a mermaid decidedly out of her element. This young woman, clad only in the rainy-day garb common to her kind, is portrayed standing on the end of her bifurcated nether members, leaning for support, and she seems to need it, against a cluster of pillars.

Beyond is seen the water, with a gondola in the middle distance, from which the young person has wandered. The expression on the mermaid's face is similar to that to be observed on the face of fishes when all the water is drawn out of the aquarium.

"Pharaoh's Daughter" is supposed to be a translation from a Greek manuscript of the twelfth century. The translated manuscript subterfuge is one frequently adopted, as it places the burden of a poor story either upon the manuscript or upon the defenseless translator. In a few preliminary sentences Mr. Astor sets forth that he has left the translation practically as the "classical authority" returned it to him. Fearing, perhaps, that he had given the "classical authority" too much prominence, Mr. Astor terminates the prologue by the pleasing little use of a Latin word, "lacunae," just to show he, too, is "up" in the classics. He might have said "statuses" but for that.

At one point in "Pharaoh's Daughter," Mr. Astor, or his translator, thoughtfully notes that three lines of the manuscript have been effaced. It had been much better if pages had suffered effacement.

The second story, to avoid confusion in time, is carefully dated Dec. 25, 1890, and turns from mummy cases to the cosy Piccadilly bachelor apartments of Capt. Blythe, formerly of the Tenth Rifles. The captain is perusing Thier's "Austerlitz," the history of Napoleon's campaigns, and for all the reader knows he suddenly falls asleep.

A Cossack soldier comes into the room and takes him before the Czar Alexander and the Emperor Francis of Austria. They recall to him that he has been reading Thiers, and the czar then tells him who he is and that Emperor Francis of Austria. Then the battle begins, the blunders of 1805 are repeated and Blythe is condemned to death.

He awakes, as it were, with an aneurism of the heart and dies within a short time. Mr. Astor calls this a Christmas story. It certainly suggests death and not birthday.

For "Monsieur de Neron" the reader is whirled to Paris and informed on the first page, in small type, that it is Oct. 25, 1894. Here again, Mr. Astor does not shoulder the story, but places it as a burden upon an old gentleman of 64, who figures intermittently as "I."

In brief, the story tells of the reincarnation of Nero, some very nice talks with him in very nice English and the burning of the Tuilleries. There is a picture of Mr. Nero at the window, but no suggestion of a fiddle. The old gentleman ends his tale with the information that he fears Neron, and for that reason always sleeps with a revolver beneath his pillow.

Mr. Astor cannot let the thing end without a thrust at Americans. He has the old man speak of the "expressive vernacular" of Americans, that the American revolver "means business every time." The last thing in the story is an exclamation point after the word "time." It is just one instant anterior to the reader's exclamation.

In "Under the Black Flag" Mr. Astor comes over to America, setting his scene in November, 1700, "at the season of reddening leaves," the literary longest-way-round for Autumn, in the anglo Dutch colony of New York. He has penned for his English brothers a description of Manhattan Island at this period. Captain Kidd and his long, low, rakish craft, carronades, skull-and-bones flags, treasure and other piratical properties embellish the tale.

When the story opens the colony is experiencing "sharp emotion" upon learning that Captain Kidd's pirate sloop with himself and his bloody crew is casting anchor "in the incomparable beauty and the autumnal pathos of their midst."

The story begins with a rendezvous between Capt. Kidd and his burghers, Rem Rapalye and Rip Van Dam at the house of Diana Mietjen, in Broadway. Kidd discloses to them a plan to seize the colony for the house of Orange. All Kidd asked, in event of success, was a temporary governorship and orders from Holland.

The confab is interrupted by the delivery of a letter at the house demanding Kidd's surrender at Boston, threatening him with being outlawed if he disobeyed. The Dutchmen decline to entertain Kidd's proposal and he sails away, mad as a hornet.

His lieutenant, Bendthebow, who has been having a love affair with Diana's stepdaughter, Amanda, is loth to leave. While the sloop is going up the East river Kidd calls Bendthebow to him and says he is tired of piracy and intends to give it up, incidentally hiding his treasure chest.

He adds that there is one thing he must send over the ship's side, "with a cannon ball tied in its midst." This is his black flag. In good time his chest is taken ashore in this remarkable way:

It is put in a boat with Kidd and Bendthebow and four rowers, "the chest in their midst." As Mr. Astor makes no further mention of burying the chest, this "in their midst" was probably its resting place, temporarily at least. And that's the last you hear of Kidd. The story ends in a wedding.

The last story in the book, "Madame Recamier's Secret," suggests a toilet preparation for the preservation of perennial youth. But it is not.

DIDN'T LIKE HIM.

Charles M. Hays is one of the great railroad men of the United States, says the Saturday Evening Post. He was general manager of the Grand Trunk road through Canada, owned by an English syndicate, and he has recently been elected president of the Southern Pacific in place of the late Collis P. Huntington. Shortly after his appointment as general manager of the road Mr. Hays found it necessary to drop an English nobleman from the service. On account of the high social standing of the employe a protest was filed by letter from London. Mr. Hays knew that this was the time to act or never. He must be in charge absolutely, or he must resign. hTere could be no half-way measures if the road were to be a success. He must assert the authority given him, even if in a way that seemed obstinate.

So he wrote back: "It may be that I do not like the color of the man's eyes; it may be that I do not like the tone of his voice: it may be that I do not like the way he parts his hair. Whatever the reason, I have found it necessary to dismiss him."

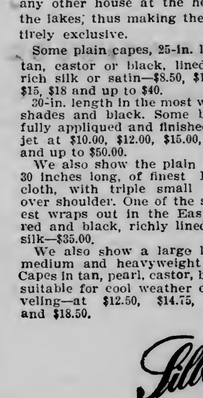

And from that day the English syndicate never interfered with the management of Mr. Hays.

Taffeta and Cloth Coats and Tailored Suits at Popular Prices.

While we are known as always carrying a large stock of High-Class Novelties, we also wish to impress upon you the fact that we never were so well prepared to serve our patrons with popular or medium priced goods. However, never forgetting the importance of style which characterizes all our showings, the beauty of it is that a spring wrap is a summer wrap, too—to be worn even in warm weather.

Crepe de Chine Silk Waists.

Our first lot of these handsome waists will be shown for the first time tomorrow; beautifully made and in four colors: pink, light blue, maize and white, dressmaker made—$8.75.

Eton Coats of Silk—In a variety of styles trimmed with laces tucked and corded—$9.75, $12.50 to $19.50.

Cloth Etons.

Trimmed and plain tailored, silk lined, of the most seasonable fabrics—$6.75, $8.50, $9.50 to $16.00.

A complete line of Box Coats and "Raglans," in tans, castors, and Oxfords—elegantly lined and perfect tailorship—$6.75, $9.50, $12.50 to $25.00.

Black Pebble and Cheviot Ladies' Tailor Made Suits—Eton Coats, single and double-breasted Jackets, silk lined, new style skirt, percaline lined—$10.50.

Tailor Made Suits—In Homespun Serges, Venetian and Broadcloths. The new Eton and Bolero Jackets—skirts have the new flare flounce—$16.50.

A good assortment of styles in Ladies' Tailored Suits, every late idea in cut and shape of coat and skirt. Black and all the leading spring shades—$24.50.

High Class Capes.

For Day and Evening Wear.

The demand for Spring Capes has surprised makers and importers—storekeepers didn't look for such cape popularity and didn't prepare, but there we're smart—far seeing, you might call it—and made up and imported capes galore—and we bought our lines from the makers—almost any sort of a cape you could ask for—for day and evening wear. We also show a particularly strong line of capes for theater—lined with delicate evening shades of silk and satin—novelties that will not be found at any other house at the head of the lakes; thus making them entirely exclusive.

Some plain capes, 25-in. length, tan, castor or black, lined with rich silk or satin—$8.50, $10, $12, $15, $18 and up to $40.

20-in. length in the most wanted shades and black. Some beautifully appliqued and finished with jet at $10.00, $12.00, $15.00, $20.00 and up to $50.00.

We also show the plain Capes, 30 inches long, of finest Broadcloth, with triple small capes over shoulder. One of the smartest wraps out in the East—tan, red and black, richly lined with silk—$35.00.

We also show a large line of medium and heavyweight Cloth Capes in tan, pearl, castor, black—suitable for cool weather or traveling—at $12.50, $14.75, $16.50 and $18.50.

Separate Skirts.

Fashion is veering away from the severely plain tailored styles—wants silk bands, braid or some little touch. But still "tailor made." It seems strange, yet apparently it is true—only a man tailor can cut a perfect dress skirt. That's why more and more women depend on such stocks of ready-made skirts as they find here. Prices run from $4.50 to $75.00. Just a few instances:

Women's Tailor-Made Skirts.

We show tomorrow splendid productions in Dressy Skirts of Silk, Wool and Mohair. They come lined and unlined. Many with the drop silk skirt.

Very dressy, fine Silk Taffeta Skirts, with 5 rows of silk ruching all around and with the stylish flare, $11.50.

The new unlined Silk Skirt, with the pleated taffeta flounces, deep stylish flare; beaded with several rows of silk ruching, $16.50.

Twilight Trains.

There are only two Twilight Limited trains, one south-bound and one north-bound, over "The North-Western Line" between the head of the lakes and the Twin Cities of Minnesota, leaving each starting point after the business of the day is over, arriving at destination at early bedtime. Gentlemen enjoy the comfortable, commodious club smoking room of the observation cars and the 6 o'clock superb dinner in the popular diner. Ladies have all the luxuries of their own home in the large and roomy parlor cars, with their upholstered revolving chairs. Then, again, it saves you sleeping car fare by taking this train, enabling you to reach a comfortable hotel for a night's refreshing sleep, or possibly your own home. The traveling public appreciate the service and the schedule.

Remember the hour of departure—4:30 p. m. daily from the brownstone depot of "The North-Western Line," foot of Fifth avenue west.

WARMLY ARGUED

Redistricting Proposition Brings Out Sharp Talk.

Duluthians Argue Against Three Range Commissioners.

The Speakers All Admit the Low Mine Assessments.

The argument yesterday over the redistricting of St. Louis county was fully as warm as advertised, and nobody who attended the meeting of the county board was disappointed. It lasted all the afternoon and until nearly 6 o'clock, when an adjournment until this morning was taken. As the matter stood yesterday, the board, aside from Chairman Morcom, stood evenly divided, and unless someone was converted by the arguments yesterday afternoon, the vote today was expected to show Commissioners Morcom, Patterson and Kauppi for giving the Mesaba range two commissioners, and Commissioners Kugler and Berg for giving the Mesaba one commissioner and the farming district the other.

Before the redistricting matter was taken up, A. F. Rockwell, the former overseer of the poor, submitted a statement offering the county $40. He said that he had neglected to charge himself up with certain items. He owes the county, he said, $30 for keeping his cow two years, $10 for keeping another cow for awhile, and $30 for keeping his pony, making $70 altogether. Against that he charges up $30 for selling 100 chickens to the county, leaving a balance of $40, which he offers to pay. No action was taken on the matter.

County Attorney Crosby submitted a report on the redistricting petitions to the effect that they were correct in form, but said that he was not without his doubts as to the validity of the law, owing to the fact that a minority of the voters have the say as to whether there should be six or seven commissioners. The committee on legislation reported that the petitions were all right, and the report was adopted.

On motion of Commissioner Kugler, the legislative committee was selected to draft a plan for redistricting, in order that the board might have something to work on. A recess was taken, after which the committee presented two reports, a majority report in favor of the range plan by Commissioners Patterson and Kauppi, and a minority report in favor of giving the farming districts a show by Commissioner Kugler. Commissioner Berg moved the adoption of the minority report and Commissioner Kugler seconded it, and Commissioners Patterson and Kauppi took the same action on the majority report. Then the meeting was thrown open to debate.

In the discussion that followed a note of warning to the iron interests was sounded. Every speaker recognized the fact that the iron interests are escaping taxation, and this was the basis of all the arguments against the majority plan.

Commissioner Patterson said that the intent of the law was to satisfy the ranges and stop county division. The people had not taken any steps against it, and so long as they had not, and no petition for six commissioners instead of seven had come in, he could see nothing to do but to give the ranges the two additional commissioners.

Commissioner Kugler said that the range people want recognition, and they are going to get it. But the farmers should not be denied representation also. The majority plan would give the ranges more in proportion than the city of Duluth, and it would increase expenses greatly. The road levy is now about $20,000 a year, and under the majority report it will be more than doubled. The board of equalization will include the auditor, and as the iron companies will elect him they will own him, and this will make a tie that will defeat adequate taxation of the mines. The Herald, he said, has well stated the case on the taxation of the iron mines, which are assessed too low by $50,000,000 at least. It is of the greatest importance to us not to give the ranges more than their due. Three range men can make a combination with one Duluth man who wants roads, and it will go.

"You have no right to insinuate such a word," said Capt. Moreom.

"I say such a combination can be made," explained Mr. Kugler, "not that you will make it."

W. B. Pheips said that giving the ranges three out of seven commissioners places it in the power of the county auditor to block any raise in the mines by the equalizing board. The assessors are the creatures of the mining companies, and put on what assessments they are told to. Auditor Halden has favored raising the mines, but he is an exceptional officer, and another one may not. The mines have passed into the hands of one corporation not interested in the prosperity of the county that will get all it can and give as little as possible. The farmers should have a delegate because it is important that the farming districts be encouraged. In the northern part of the county there is nothing after the timber and the iron are gone and they are going rapidly. One commissioner says if the people did not want this law they should have said so. The people saw four Duluth men on the board and believed they could depend on them to look after Duluth's interests. The ranges have had $400,000 out of the $600,000 of the county's bonds, and now they want more. Taxes will increase $50,000 this year and $75,000 next year with the majority plan in effect.

Luther Mendenhall said that representation was supposed to be based on population and wealth, and on that basis the majority report is unfair. "The lower part of the county has more than four-sevenths of the population and valuation. The basis is property taxed not property hidden from taxation. In the lower part of the county when a dollar is put in it is there to stay while in the northern part the wealth is constantly and rapidly disappearing. One corporation on the range is worth today more than twice the assessed valuation of both ranges. Is that fair? I sell property here and get perhaps a little bit more than the assessed valuation for it. The men in Duluth are here to stay. The owners of the ranges live in New York and the workers are there till the iron is gone, when they will go too. These people are working for their own interests; that is to be expected. We should do the same. How you can vote to permit the mining companies to fix their own taxes I cannot see."

Commissioner Patterson—So far as I can see the one man from the range has done up the four Duluth men on taxing the mines right along.

Mr. Mendenhall—Then the sooner the other members get off the board and make places for men that can hold their own the better.

F. D. Adams—On the matter of taxation, if you don't give the ranges some representation you will lose the taxes altogether through county division.

Mr. Kugler—Wouldn't one commissioner satisfy you?

Mr. Adams—No.

Mr. Kugler—I have found no range men not after office or connected with the Missabe road that do not agree with my plan.

Mr. Adams—Every argument here today implies that the men you appoint are going to be dishonest. I do not believe you are going to appoint such men. The range commissioners would be just as anxious to raise the mines as anybody, because that would lower their own taxes.

Mr. Kugler—The men we appoint would only hold for a year and a half, and after that the mines would elect new ones.

O. H. Simonds—It is all a question of taxation. Capt. Moreom has had the credit of handling the board on fixing assessments, but he is not entitled to all of it. The value of the mines has not been apparent to the public before, but now a value has been placed that cannot be ignored. This value may be a surprise to us, but it was not to the owners. It makes me smile to think how they have come and said how generous they have been in the matter of taxes, when as a matter of fact the mines have not even been touched. When they knew people were going to find out about the value of their property they began to fortify themselves. The propsition to divide the county came first, and then this legislation, in charge of the legal department of the mines themselves. They have done the work all through, and they have done it well.

Mr. Adams—There is one thing that has been done better. We have never been able to devise a scheme for getting out of our taxes for 8 per cent.

N. J. Miller—The mines have not paid as high a rate as that yet.

Mr. Simonds—I don't know who has escaped that way; perhaps you do.

P. E. Dowling—The remedy for the thing these people fear, they can get before the state board of equalization. The range people cannot develop their country without representation. One man cannot cover both ranges. hTe object of the forfeiteed tax sale was the same thing that the people who engineered it fear from the mines.

Mr. Simonds—I see now that Mr. Adams referred to me. I want to say that no piece of property in which I am interested went through the forfeited tax sale.

Mr. Kugler—If the mines had paid their share of taxes there would have been no necessity for a forfeited tax sale.

Mr. Adams—I did not mean to be understood that the forfeited tax law was a bad thing.

Commissioner Kauppi—I don't believe the city of Duluth can afford to lose the iron ranges, as they will if we do not give them three commissioners. The mines are not assessed high enough and they will be assessed higher.

John Peterson a farmer from Grand Lake, made a plea for the farming districts. He said the farmers had never been able to get what they wanted, and had even failed to get hearings before the board. The county is settling up, and fifteen families had moved into his township this winter. He hoped the board would see fit to give them a commissioner.

R. F. Berdie, of Hibbing, spoke in a stentorian voice that did not accord with his name, and argued for the ranges. N. J. Miller said that when a committee from the ranges came down some time ago it asked for just what the minority plan proposes. Mr. Dowling said it asked no such thing. Mr. Patterson said he could not see that Duluth would be any worse off than it was before.

Then an adjournment was taken to this morning.

DISMISSED.

Superior Authorities Discharge Detective Kelly For Peculiar Reason.

The summary dismissal of P. A. Kelly, who has been city detective at Superior for several years is causing considerable comment in the city across the bay and there are many that are regarding the action of the police commission, in taking the step, with a great deal of criticism. In police circles on both sides of the bay Detective Kelly has always been regarded as a very efficient officer and his work has often been complimented by the authorities from the Twin Cities, whom he has assisted on various occasions in heading off criminals that were in the habit of leaving St. Paul and Minneapolis for the head of the lake when matters became a little too warm for them down there. Kelly has also worked efficiently in conjunction with the detective force of Duluth and was an officer that the local detectives placed much confidence in.

The only excuse that the commission gives for his dismissal is that it was done because some of the merchants complain that Kelly is too hard on the woodsmen, and that this class of trade they should get over there comes to Duluth.

It has been intimated that a reason for his dismissal that has been kept under cover was Detective Kelly's avowal when the recent municipal campaign was under way, that Judge Halley was a good official. Feeling between the Halley and Titus factions was bitter during the campaign and Kelly's friends claim that politics are back of the whole thing. It is rumored in West Superior that members of the commission are after others on the police and fire department, because of political affiliations and that some other dismissals may be looked for very soon. Detective Kelly has had several offers from railroad companies to enter their service, and it is likely that he will now feel in a position to accept one of them.

IS NOW OPEN.

Navigation Under Way, a Tug Having Gone Out.

Navigation on Lake Superior was opened at this end of the lake last evening when the steamer E. T. Carrington, owned by Capt. Con Flynn cleared early in the evening for points on the north shore. The tug Carpenter, owned by Porter Bros. of this place, cleared a little earlier from Houghton for Duluth to prepare for the summer season and it is believed that the tug Tempest is also on the way form Houghton to Duluth. The ice in Portage lake is said to have almost entirely disappeared.

A boat has already passed the Straits of Mackinaw and it is the belief of local vesselmen that a passage of the Sault river could be forced very easily should the occasion demand it. The strike has tied up so many vessels, however, that the outlook for the big boats is far from being encouraging. Nothing has been done to fit out the big boats that wintered in the harbor here, unless it has been on the Northern Steamship company's boats tied up over in Superior. An air of quietude still reigns over the "pig yards" and it is said that repair work on the fleet in the shipyards in West Superior is not being rushed to any great extent.

The Northern Steamship company has announced the following appointments of masters: Steamers North West, G. A. Miner; North Land, W. C. Brown; North ern King, J. M. Saunders; Northern Queen, J. F. Vaughn; North Wind, J. J. Hartman; Northern Wave, M. S. Peterson; Northern Light, M. J. Haberer; North Star, F. G. Stewart. All are reappointments. The engineers have not been appointed, the company preferring to wait until it is sure that the men will go to work.

Yesterday a tug broke the ice in the harbor through to West Superior, and the draw at the interstate bridge was opened for the first time since navigation closed last winter. The bridge crew was put on last Sunday. The bridge tender at the small bridge across Howard's pocket, at the shipyards is also on duty, though no attempt had been made up to last night to break the ice through the slip from the bay to the yards. The high wind of yesterday did a great deal toward helping break up the ice in the harbor in localities where there was much open water.

A dispatch from Sault Ste. Marie says: The channel in St. Mary's river, according to advices received today, is practically open from the Soo to Detour. There is clear water between here and Mud lake and much open water in the latter body, indicating the ice is rotten and can be easily cleared by steamers. Above the Soo there is much field ice yet and a rain is required to loosen it. The weather in this locality has been unsually warm, but there has been neither rain nor snow for twenty-one days.

AMUSEMENTS.

"BECAUSE SHE LOVED HIM SO."

William Gillette's delightful comedy, "Because She Loved Him So," was produced at the Lyceum last evening by a very competent company before a house that was fairly large, but not so large as the excellence of the performance merited. The play has been seen here before, so it needs no discussion. It is a very delightful little comedy, with plenty of wholesome fun in it, and when it is handled by a thoroughly good company, as it was last night, it is one of the most enjoyable modern plays on the road. Each in his own part and his own proportion, every member of the cast was good, and it is hard to single out for special mention any except those who were given prominence by the prominence of their part. These are the two married couples. Clara Dickey and Thomas David, as the young couple, and Effie Germon and W. H. Turner as the old couple, were very good indeed, and the balance of the company was entirely satisfactory.

HERMANN, THE GREAT.

Persons who delight in being mystified, who revel in the occult and derive pleasure from a successfully executed digital maneuver, will find an unfailing source of joy and wonder in the skillful exhibition of "Hermann, the Great," who appears at the Lyceum Saturday. Herrmann is a marvelous man, "The closer you watch me, the less you see," he tells his audiences. Before their astnoished eyes, and in the full glare of the electric light, he then accomplished a number of feats in legerdemain which appear nothing short of supernatural; special features of this season's program are: "The Mysterious Tub of Neptune," "La Supplice de Lutece" and the "Cremation," in which a young girl is apparently reduced to ashes.

Scrofula, salt rheum, erysipelas and other distressing eruptive diseases yield quickly and permanently to the cleansing, purifying power of Burdock Blood Bitters.

CREATED A PANIC

By Dragging a Block and Tackle Across a Floor.

Girls Below Thought It a Fire and Stampeded.

Others Joined and a Whole Street Became Excited.

New York, April 17.—It does not take much to cause excitement in a crowded city. You have only to pull the right string and you may get all the hubub that might be caused by a high-priced menagerie turned loose. There was a remarkable case in point down in Grand street last Tuesday afternoon, and the particular string pulled was an ordinary rope attached to an ordinary block and tackle. The building was one of the big but unpretentious hives in which New York hides away its immense supply of factories. One of the most frequent comments by well informed persons who visit this city for the first time concerns its appearance as a manufacturing center. They come here under the correct impression that the manufacturing interests of New York are greater than those of any other city in the country, and they look around in vain for the great mills, with their towering chimneys and vast yards. Here and there, it is true, you may see a lofty chimney, but it makes no special impression rising from a multitude of buildings, and nowhere on Manhattan island is any space that would be recognized as a conventional mill yard. We haven't the room to spare. Few of our factory buildings, too, are recognizable as such. They depart radically from the prevailing type, and lose their distinctive character by being made much like tenement and storage houses.

The building in question, numbered 182 and 184 Grand street, is six stories high. The ground floor is occupied by a cloth concern that employs about twenty-five men. The three floors above this are devoted to the manufacture of tobacco in various forms, the employes, mostly women, numbering more than 300. On the fifth floor is a comb manufactory, where about fifty persons are employed, and these also are mostly women. At present the top floor is unoccupied, but preparations are in progress for the installation of another factory of some kind, and hence the disturbance. It is only fair to state further that there was a fire in the building three or four months ago. Fortunately nobody was hurt and not much damage was done, but everybody present at the time had a bad scare, and all were convinced that they had narrow escapes from death.

Tuesday morning a couple of workmen went up to the unoccupied top floor to begin making it ready for the new tenant. In the course of the forenoon they had occasion to move a block and tackle from one side of the room to the other. They might have picked it up and carried it, but they resorted to the simpler device of dragging it across the floor. The girls in the combmaker's establishment on the floor below heard the rumbling of the block and interpreted it as the sound of many persons running about. Immediately they jumped to the conclusion that the top story was afire, and, as if they were a well-drilled operatic chorus responding to the baton of the conductor, they let out a unison scream, fortissimo. It couldn't have been half as good if it had been planned. Every scared girl multiplied the fright of every other scared girl, for where so many were scared, it followed as a matter of plain demonstration that there must be something in it, and, of course, the rumbling overhead went merrily on. Next instant there was a mad, combined rush for stairways and fire escapes.

The men, shocked by the scream, were panic-stricken when they saw the girls on the run, and they joined the exodus with equal energy. In less than a half minute the stairway was choked and the tumult communicated to the tobacco factory on the floor below. Pandemonium describes it. Those on the lower floors didn't stop to hear the explanations of those coming down, but, concluding that the building was doomed, broke for the exits. The broadest stairways in the world would not have sufficed for the frenzied mob. Women shrieked incessantly, men yelled, they fought each other for room in the stairways and halls, and those who were on the outer edge of the jam fled to the fire escapes. Even the two workmen on the top floor, hearing the racket, dropped their tackle and block and got out of a window, intending to go down by the fire escape, only to find it crowded with girls who were more scared if possible at the prospect of such a descent than they were about the fire.

By this time, and it was but a few seconds after the starting of the block and tackle across the top floor, the panic had been communicated to the street. Grand street always has a crowd in it. It is the shopping district of the East Side, as well as one of the main cross-town thoroughfares. Passers in the street, therefore, were horrified at the spectacle of men and women suddenly swarming upon the fire escapes of the building, and a new chorus of yells went up. "Don't jump!" shouted some, and "Where's the fire?" cried others. Not only was it naturally supposed that a conflagration was the cause of the panic, but the frenzied employes, when they uttered anything coherent, spoke the word "Fire!" The question, "Where is it?" was promptly answered by the engineer of the building. Far down in the subcellar, where no significant intimation of the panic reached him, he was placidly attending to his duty. It happened to strike him just at that time that it would be well to put fresh coal on the fire. The normal result followed in a column of dense black smoke issuing in the most businesslike way from the chimney.

A cool observer might have noted that the smoke came from a regulated fire, but the cool observer had taken a day off, and even if he had been present it is to be doubted whether he could have made any impression upon the wildly excited crowd in the street. The yells of warning to the persons imperiled on the fire escapes continued and redoubled. The peril was really very great, for some of the women were making clumsy efforts to descend, and men above them were cursing and struggling to get at the ladders. It is a wonder that none of them dropped or was pushed off, a further wonder that nobody was seriously injured in the crush on the stairways.

Meantime a worthy citizen who saw the smoke from the chimney pulled in an alarm, and with that speed for which the New York fire department is famous some engines and other apparatus came rattling up. With almost equal celerity a platoon of police came on the scene. The street was as choked as were the stairways of the building, and the crowd was growing in numbers and excitement every second. The police pushed and clubbed a clear space and began to rope it in, while the firemen unreeled hose, set up a water tower and spread fire nets. There were four steamers, two trucks, four hose carts and a water tower on the scene, as well as two battalion chiefs. Somehow the hysterical occupants of the fire escapes were prevented from jumping, while the chiefs went into the building, followed by subordinates dragging long lines of hose. For a few minutes the excitement in the street and on the walls of the building continued, but nobody jumped. Then a regiment of disgusted firemen came out, pulling their dry hose after them. The girls on the fire escapes giggled, and, suddenly conscious that their ankles might be visible from below, crawled hastily in at the windows. The engineer came upstairs to learn what was the matter, and found foremen hustling the employes back to their places. Tobacco and comb making were in full swing again before the fire apparatus was ready to go, and when at length the firemen withdrew they left a long blue streak in the atmosphere. And last of all the disappointed crowd dispersed. That there was not occasion for the service of the ambulance corps was due simply to good luck.

"One price to all!"

WE send no tickets or other exchanges for special discounts on Cloaks, Suits, Millinery, or any other goods to special friends or others. We maintain a strictly one price basis. The poor get the same prices as the rich here. The classes obtain no favored discounts that the masses do not enjoy. Working on the one price basis we are compelled to make our prices so low as to meet all competition.

PLEATING AND PINKING—Mlle. Ulmonier is now taking orders for all kinds of pinking, pleating and shirring. Her work gives the best of satisfaction.

PANTON AND WHITE
THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE
DULUTH, MINN.

This store INSISTS that everything shall be just as represented whether printed or verbal.

"Meet or beat!"

WITH a half dozen other stores intensely struggling for second place it is not surprising that we (the leaders) should be occasionally undersold on a few minor articles. Our motto is to "MEET OR BEAT" all competition in price or quality—and we can assure our customers that we will not allow them to pay us more for anything than they would have to pay elsewhere.

April avalanche of prices on ladies' tailored suits

TOMORROW another sale of Ladies' Tailor Suits, strongly emphasizing our price leadership. This is without question the most "underpriced" store in this city, and tomorrow's doings in the Suit Department will make many more new friends for us. These suits are all man-tailored—they are without an equal for the prices—suits never before sold for such little prices. And then we guarantee a perfect fit, for our alterations and fitting are done in our own work rooms, by our own experts, under our personal supervision. You readily see the advantage of this system. No sending out to uninterested tailors to do the work. We are all here in the same establishment, working with a single purpose, viz., the making of this the model suit department of the Northwest. We are the only suit department in this city employing our own corpse of expert fitters and tailors.

Blood Humors

It doesn't make any difference whether you believe in the modern theory and speak of the causes of diseases as referable to germs, microbes or bacilli, or whether you use the older and better understood terms of "humors" and "blood diseases"—Hood's Sarsaparilla cures them all.

It cures scrofula, salt rheum or eczema, catarrh, rheumatism, malaria and all other blood poisons; nervous troubles, debility and that tired feeling.

This is not merely modern theory; it is solid up-to-date fact.

"Salt rheum on my hands so severe I had to wear gloves most of the time, and could not shut my thumb and finger together, was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. A. O. SPAULDING, North Searsport, Me.

"My three months old boy was cured of a very bad case of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla." WM. H. GARNER, West Earl, Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Promises to cure and keeps the promise. No substitute for Hood's acts like Hood's—be sure to get Hood's.

CARS BURNED.

Fire at Birmingham Ties Up Street Service.

Birmingham, Ala., April 17.—Fire today destroyed the car barn of the Birmingham Railway Light and Power company, together with thirty-five trolley cars. The Third Presbyterian church and parsonage and half a block of cottages adjoining were also burned.

Rev. J. A. Bryan and family narrowly escaped with their lives. The total loss is estimated at $13,000, the larger part of which falls on the Street Car company and is covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is not known. The street car service is practically paralyzed, as all but five cars were destroyed.

You cannot enjoy perfect health, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes if your liver is sluggish and your bowels clogged. DeWitt's Little Early Risers cleanse the whole system. They never gripe. Max Wirth.

DANGEROUS GLACIER.

Back of Dawson Is Causing Considerable Trouble.

Seattle, April 17.—Passengers on the steamer Humboldt, from the Klondike, report that two months ago a glacier made its appearance on the hillside, back of Dawson. The ice of the glacier is from twelve to fifteen feet thick in places, and besides rendering that section of Dawson uninhabitable, it threatens to render the trail leading to the cemeteries impassable during the summer.

JOB FOR CLEMSON.

Will Be President of Lake Steamship Company.

Pittsburg, April 17.—S. D. Clemson, while remaining in the directorate of the Carnegie Steel company and retaining his position as president of the Carnegie Natural Gas company, which was absorbed by the United States Steel corporation, will soon have awaiting him another good position with the latter concern. The combine has secured control of a number of lake steamship lines, including the Pittsburg Steamship company, a Carnegie fleet. The latter company had thirteen large vessels. All the companies secured by the combine aggregate a fleet of 112 boats. It is the intention of the United States Steel corporation to organize a new company to manage the auxiliary interests. Mr. Clemson is said to be slated for the presidency of this new company.

ANOTHER GOLD RUSH.

Miners Flock to Rock Creek, British Columbia.

Vancouver, April 17.—Another gold rush is now causing some excitement in the boundary district of British Columbia. During the past few days Rock Creek and its tributaries have attracted more placer gold hunters than can stake claims. In the early '60s the Rock Creek placer diggings yielded large returns.

SUGAR GOES UP.

London, April 17.—The excitement in the sugar market increases as Sir Michael Hicks-Beach budget statement comes nearer. The Clyde crushed sugar exchange opened very excitedly today. Prices immediately jumped 6 pence per 100 above yesterday. The demand was so strong that refiners asked for and secured an additional 3 pence. Everything offered was sold before the close. All the refineries have been working day and night for a week past.

SCHLEY IS RETURNING

Admiral on the Way From South Atlantic Station.

Request For Immediate Relief From Command Was Granted.

Time For His Retirement From Service Is Next October.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A story is printed here to the effect that possibly the first request made of the navy department by Rear Admiral Schley since his detachment from duty with Rear Admiral Sampson's blockading squadron has been granted by the navy officials.

Admiral Schley asked to be relieved immediately of command of the South Atlantic station before the arrival of his successor, and he was authorized to turn over charge of the station to the senior officer and leave at his discretion. Rear Admiral Cromwell, who relieved him, sailed from New York on April 3, for Montevideo, by way of Southampton, and is not due to reach South America until the middle of May, by which time Rear Admiral Schley probably will have arrived in the United States. The department's course will, no doubt, occasion some surprise in the navy, which has generally understood that no favors were waiting Rear Admiral Schley at the hands of the administration. Instances have been cited where he would not make the slightest objections to his assignments, although deemed the least desirable. His preference was the home or the European station, which the president is said to have promised should be established for his benefit. He accepted another detail without remonstrance.

Rear Admiral Schley hoisted his flag in the autumn of 1899 and sailed on the Chicago from New York, which had just come from the navy yard practically a new vessel. With him was his staff during the Santiago fight, and which comes home with him now. Following the usual procedure, Rear Admiral Schley will be granted a month's leave on his arrival, and after that assigned to some duty preliminary to his retirement next October. The nature of this will not be decided until after he has reported to the navy department. He wished to return to his old place as chairman of the lighthouse board, but this has been promised to Rear Admiral Farquhar on his detachment from the home station on May 1. Rear Admiral Schley commanded the cruiser Baltimore when that ship carried the flag of Rear Admiral George Brown, during the Chilean insurrection some years ago. Later he commanded the cruiser New York, of the home station, then he was flag officer with the Brooklyn and now flies his flag on the Chicago. No present officer of the navy has displayed his flag more often and no one has commanded as many modern ships of war.

There is some probability that on his return a reception will be given him here by those now engaged in raising the Schley home fund.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun is of the opinion, according to a dispatch to that paper, that the decline of state naval militias and lack of interest in assistance that the navy department has offered them is keenly felt by naval officials, who see no hope for the practical usefulness of these organizations to the national government unless there are closer relations with the navy and some co-operation in the annual exercises.

The national government contributes over $9,000, distributed among the organizations in proportion to the strength they send annually on the practice ships, and the states are expected to furnish the difference necessary to maintain them. The states of Maryland and Massachusetts have given little encouragement to these annual cruises. This also is true of the Southern states. Last year the navy department detailed a vessel for the training of the naval militia and provided that each organization should have a week's duty at sea. But few took advantage of the offer. Various reasons were assigned, the chief being the lack of state support to provide the equipment. This year the navy department will provide the ship and the organizations must do the best they can for summer cruises. This will be the first year since the organizations took definite shape that the navy has not assisted them by providing a warship.

It is said at the war department that most remarkable results have been attained with the latest model 5-inch gun, the test of which is in progress at the Indian Head, Maryland, proving grounds. Rear Admiral O'Neil, chief of ordnance, was informed by Lieut. Straus, in charge at the proving grounds, that the gun had developed a maximum velocity of 3330 feet per second with less than seventeen tons pressure. This velocity was given to a 50-pound projectile. The tremendous superiority of the new gun over the 5-inch gun on the Kearsarge will be understood when it is known that the maximum velocity attained with a 50-pound projectile fired by the latter weapon is 2350 feet per second. Firing a 60-pound shell, Lieut. Straus reported that a velocity of 2990 feet per second had been attained with the latest model. The muzzle energy obtained was 3724 foot-tons. In the trial with the 50-pound projectile a muzzle energy of 3918 foot-tons was obtained.

DROPPED FROM HER LIST.

P. F. Haskins, of Cincinnati, told the following anecdote at the Everett house, says the New York Tribune, to illustrate that phase of human nature which leads people to claim to possess knowledge on any and all things. "At a dinner party given some time ago in a Western city," said Mr. Haskins, "one of the bachelor guests turned to his very beautiful hostess and asked: 'Mrs. Blank, do you know what causes the milky way in the heaven?' 'Why, I did, but I've forgotten,' was the answer he received. 'That's a great pity,' said he, sadly shaking his head. 'To think that you, the only person in all this world who knew the cause of that phenomenon of the heavens should have forgotten it.'" And he actually had the cheek to feel injured because the woman took him off her visiting list.

ARSON OF TURKEY.

The sultan has given instructions to the police that they are to stop the fires, which have become much too frequent lately, says the London Telegraph. The police have thought the matter over, and have come to the conclusion that fires are the result of insurance, and therefore insurance must be stopped. With this object, they go around from house to house, in the poorer quarters, and tell the unfortunate householder that unless the next day he brings a letter from the company annulling his insurance, he will be put in prison. The result is that many of them are begging the companies to cancel their insurances. The police offer, as an alternative, to accept a guarantee of several thousand pounds that no fire will break out in the house in question, or any of the six adjoining ones.

SCANDAL.

British Government Committee Alleged to Have Taken Inventions.

London, April 17.—The Globe this afternoon scents a gross scandal on its alleged discovery that two members of the governmental committee, appointed a year ago to determine the value of various explosives, have taken out patents in their own names. The Globe says:

"Sir William Roberts-Austen secured a patent for improvements in detonators, while Sir William Crookes has patented nitro explosives for artillery. When the committee was appointed, Lord Lansdowne, then war minister, assured inventors and manufacturers that they might submit their products to the committee in the utmost confidence."

AT MARINDUQUE.

Surrender of Col. Abud Ends Insurrection There.

Washington, April 17.—The war department today received the following cablegram from Gen. MacArthur at Manilla:

"Col. Abad, insurgent leader Marinduque, nine officers, seventy soldiers, 248 small arms surrendered to (Maj.) Frederick A. Smith April 15. Oathed with impressive ceremony, released. This ends insurrection there.

SKOOG DEAD.

Alleged Counterfeiter Died From His Wounds.

New York, April 17.—John Albert Skoog, alias Albert Jensen, the alleged counterfeiter, who shot himself twice in the head April 9, died today.

POTTERS STRIKE.

Five Hundred Employes Out at Syracuse.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 17.—Nearly 500 employes of the Onondaga pottery are out on strike in sympathy with the girls who went out Saturday. The men, however, say that before the last presidential election, pottery employes submitted to a reduction of wages upon the employers' promise that should McKinley be elected the wages would be restored. This has not been done here and the men demand the raise. There are thirty employes still at work, but they are ready to quit work.

Committees representing the strikers are in session with the general manager of the company.

GERMAN WOMAN.

The February Temple Bar contains some interesting reminiscenes of Stevenson by one who was a fellow guest with him in a hotel at Davos. Stevenson says the writer, Horace Vallings, entered thoroughly into the life of the hotel, and was at his best in argument with a certain professor. Once this professor's talk fell upon English women:

"I dont care a rap for them," he ejaculated. "They are a poor, tame-spirited lot, not worth conquering. Your milk-and-water English woman falls in love with you before you've had time to say ten words to her," and so and so forth. "Now, German women," he continued, after thus demolishing those of his own country, "are very different—"

"What!" cried Stevenson with a theatrical outfling of both hands. "Do you talk of German women? I tell you, this neck is wet with tears of German women!"

"Well, all I can say is," the professor garnted sulkily, "I haven't found them like that myself."

"Haven't you?" shouted Stevenson, whose opponent was far from being a beauty man. "Then, by Jupiter Ammon, it only shows how heavily handicapped you are in the race!" And with that, he fell back into a corner, and clasping his lean body in both arms, literally hugged himself.

AT WEST DULUTH

Word has been received here of the death in Aitkin, Minn., last Saturday, of Charles W. Cluff, who was for several years in business in West Duluth, and still owned property here at the time of his death. Mr. Cluff had been sick but a few days, and his condition had not been regarded as serious. The funeral was held on Monday and was largely attended, as the decedent was a man held in universal esteem in Aitkin. Mr. Cluff left West Duluth about five years ago and has since been proprietor of the Grand Central hotel at Aitkin. He was born in Woodstock, New Brunswick, in 1859, and came into the Northwest in 1883. The decedent had five children, three sons and two daughters, four of whom survive with their mother. The decedent was one of ten children, six of whom live in New Brunswick and the rest are living at Aitkin.

FITZGERALD-KELLY.

At the St. James church this morning occurred a large and very pretty wedding. The bridal couple were Miss Nellie Fitzgerald, of Fifty-seventh avenue west, and the groom was Frank Kelly, of Proctorknott. Rev. John Keoh, of Ironwood, an uncle of the groom, assisted by Rev. Father Fechely, performed the marriage ceremony. The bride was attended by her sisters, Miss Agnes and Miss Lucy Fitzgerald, and the best man was Richard Kelly, a brother of the groom. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was given at the former home of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Kelly left today on an extended honeymoon trip. James Fitzgerald, master mechanic at the Mountain Iron mine, was present at his daughter's wedding.

RAFFLE.

The raffle of double barrelled shot gun will take place Saturday evening, at the corner of Nicollet and Central avenues, West Duluth. All tickets that are not paid for will be held out. D. L. Gimache.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Robert R. Grant, a well-known lumber inspector, was married a little more than a week ago to Miss Minnie Olga Milberg. The marriage took place at the M. E. parsonage and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Long. Yesterday is said to be the first intimation of West Duluth friends that "Bob" was a benedict now. Mr. and Mrs. Grant will reside in Ashland.

Will give their
Third Annual Pow Wow and Medicine Dance
Thursday evening at their wigwam, Great Eastern hall, West Duluth. Admission 75c per couple. Ladies of the Pocahontas will serve venison in their tepee. Free transportation to Duluth at 2 o'clock.

West Duluth lodge No. 145, A. O. U. W., will hold its tenth annual ball at a very near date. The workmen are planning to make the affair one of the largest and best ever yet attempted. Following are the committees: Arrangements, W. A. Coyle, D. A. Crosby, Charles Iltis; reception, Dr. Burnside, Dr. Graham, L. H. Wellington, E. W. Merritt, Charles Silger, Humphrey Jones, B. J. Ross; floor, E. D. Nickerson, William Burdick, Joseph Bovine, F. H. Wade, Paul Foucault, Ernest Miner.

Sitting Bull tribe, No. 25, Improved Order of Redmen, will give its third annual pow-wow and war dance in the tribe's wigwam, on the sleep of the eighteenth sun, Plant Moon G. S. D. 410. The ladies of Pocohontas will serve corn and venison in their tepee.

Miss Ella Juveland left today for her home, after a several weeks' visit with her sister, Mrs. Fleischer.

W. H. Wells will leave the service of the Duluth Transfer Railway company to accept a position with the Duluth, Missabe & Northern as yard clerk at the ore dock.

The injury that Charles Petruschke received by running a nail in his foot has proved quite serious, and he is likely to be laid up some time.

Jens Daugarrd is refitting the apartments over the store of Charles Boerner, and will remove there with his family very soon.

A boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brassard, of Fifty-third avenue west, last night.

George B. Lowry, of Fergus Falls, who owns property in West Duluth, was in the city today on a short visit to look up his interests.

The West Duluth branch of the W. C. T. U. will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Phelps. Mrs. Keyes will be the leader, and the subject will be "Christian Citizenship." Some of the local ministers will also be present to talk on the topic.

Miss O. Hansen has returned from a several weeks' visit in Chicago.

Fred Ire is back from Nova Scotia, where he has been visiting his parents at Halifax.

Steve Krakenberger expects to visit a few days with friends at Cass Lake.

The funeral of Mrs. S. J. Nygren was held this afternoon from the West Duluth Congregational church and was very largely attended, as the decedent was esteemed by all that knew her. Interment was made at Forest Hill cemetery.

DOG DID IT.

Depopulated a Phillipine Village All By Himself.

Would you like to hear how one good American dog—and a San Francisco dog to boot—depopulated a Filipino village quite by himself? asks the San Francisco Chronicle. True, he is the largest American canine existent, a 2-year-old St. Bernard, weighing 200 pounds, measuring some six feet from tip to tip, and standing seven feet on his sturdy hind lges. In the picture, where you may eee him posed with his master, he has lowered his splendid head somewhat, being unaccustomed to "standing" for the very leisurely Japanese photographer. Still, he tops his tall master, Clarence Loveberry, of the United States transport Oopack, by several proud inches, and Mr. Loveberry is proud of every inch of his stately friend.

Monogram is master St. Bernard's name, thus labeled in honor of some of his master's most delightful recollections, and he is son and honorable heir of the famous Prince, the first prize St. Bernard in all America, owned by F. H. Bushnell, the photographer, of this city. His famous sire has prizes galore to his name, medals, ribbons and all kinds of honorable trinkets, but to the son of Prince belongs the unique distinction of having put to rout, unassisted, a whole village of Moros, with their sisters, their cousins and their aunts.

Imagine a brilliant equatorial noon and a happy tangle of Moro babies, playing Filipino tag in the dazzling white surf of the blue Sulu sea. It is the island of Cagayan, and on and beyond the shining silver strand rise the fragile huts of nipa and bamboo of a typical Moro village. In the background is a luxuriant tropical fringe of featherly palms, bananas, cocoa trees and coffee shrubs, seen against a sky rivalling in brilliance the sea's flashing azure.

The children were laughing, as children laugh the world over. They swim and dive like ducks in the warm blue waters, looking overshore now and again at the solemn Moro mammas, who have told them awful tales of goblin sharks and bogy sea serpents that gobble up the little Haruns and Mateos and Poljensios. Not that such things do not happen now and again; but the children forget, especially when the slack-willed mothers of the tropics take shelter from the fierce caresses of the sun.

On this particular day, however, a few children were disporting themselves in the water, shrieking and laughing as they splashed each other's dimpled limbs in the game. Suddenly came to them a strange, faint cry from over the sea. The children stopped their game, listened sharply, waited a moment, then laughed and resumed their play. Then one said he had heard it again, and another, and another. Then a cry, deep, hoarse and unmistakably nearer, came in with the fresh wind. This time there was a quick huddle of brown limbs to the burning white sands, and a score of keen Moro eyes scanned the blue distance.

Yes, there was something—a small, whitish speck in the distance, making steadily for the shore.

A Spaniard? No man's voice was that dreadful sound! Besides, where should he come from through those turbulent waters? Nearer it came. Now a furred head, the like of which had never been seen on sea or land by a Moro baby, was distinctly visible. Surely the fabled monster of the sea was upon them at last, and, taking to their brown heels, they quickly reach the picturesque huts and pour out their terrible tale to the superstitious hut dwellers. But the thing had already been seen by some of these, and now, with an appalled glance over the tossing amethyst waters, they see the huge creature rapidly gaining the shore, emitting hoarse and dismal cries with horrifying frequency. For a moment all stand aghast, petrified, in face of an unknown horror; then, like wildfire, the word flies through the village to flee to the hills from the monster who has come to devour them—or worse. For every one knows that in the footsteps of a black dog follows the cholera, and one may as well lie down and die comfortably when it has passed by. If the creatures should not devour them, doubtless it heralded a new pestilence—the dreaded beri-beri, or the plague, perhaps—for their sins! Fly, then, to the hills while there is yet time! And fly they did, every man, woman and child in the village from the horror behind them, with a swiftness marvelous to see. One, bolder than the rest, looking backward, afterward declared that he had seen the beast clearly four-legged, all white and gold, as big as a horse, and striding with a leisurely, royal stride along the beach, and there were none to dispute his going.

Of course—or have I told my story ill—you recognize the strange sea monster thus cast ashore on an isolated island in the midst of the Philippine group.

Poor Monogram! Only that morning he had been, as usual, directing the affairs of state on board the transport Arab, bound for Cagayan island from Mindano. He had the freedom of the deck, as always, keeping the hated Chinese and mutinous Filipinos in order, as only he was able, but there had come up one of the sudden tropical squalls, and Monogram, with a number of horses with which the Arab was laden, went overboard. That was two miles out, in the midst of a boiling, raging, surging sea.

The Arab's cargo was consigned to Cagayan, but it was impossible to make the port in such a sea, to do anything, indeed, but keep the ship right side up. Later in the day, the storm subsiding as swiftly as it had arisen, the vessel put into an island harbor some miles distant from the port into possession of which its canine representative had so strangely entered. Naturally enough, when the great wave swept the Arab's deck clean of its living freight his disconsolate master thought the faithful beast lost to him forever, and spent most of his time between then and next day, when they made Cagayan island, in reckoning how many Filipinos he would consider fair "swap" with Neptune for his beloved Monogram. He had reached a thousand and three when the port hove in sight, without any takers on the other side and had finally decided that there weren't enough Filipinos in the market to tempt old Neptune when lo and behold, the first thing that met his astonished eyes as the small boat touched shore, was M. Monogram, as good as new, and trying to wag his tail off in joyful recognition of the occasion!

But Mr. Loveberry knows a thing or two, and he knew that that was no dog of his. How could it be? Washed overboard, two miles from the land, in a sea as wicked as he had ever seen even in the tropics, not even the best dog in the world—which was his—could have lived through that raging hell of waters. No! He had been seeing the dog in every nook and corner of the ship since yesterday, and this was just another fraud; it was no use hoping. But just the same, Mr. Loveberry rubbed his eyes and surreptitiously pinched himself to make conviction sure; then turned to find his wondering companions leaping to the shore, and such a greeting engaged in the same performance.

"It's Monogram, all right!" he shouted, leaping to the shore, and such a greeting between man and dog never was, perhaps. His chums had occasion to rub "that dog-goned sand" out of their eyes all at once as the faithful creature frolicked around them and there's no denying that his master's surprised cheeks were bedewed by unaccustomed tears.

SECRET SERVICE.

Men and Women Who Act as Spys.

Moving in the most brilliant and the most intellectual circles of society in every great capital of the world—in Washington as in St. Petersburg, Paris or Vienna—there are a certain number of men and women, foreigners of distinction, plying a strange, unnamed but very profitable trade, says the Kansas City Star. They are the secret, paid agents of their respective governments. Officially they are not recognized as diplomatists by the country they serve; much less by the country in which they live. Yet they are doing diplomatists' work—often for more than diplomatists' wages. They would indignantly resent the name "spy." Yet in return for their handsome salaries they keep their home government minutely posted on all the undercurrents of political movements concerning it in the capitals in which they are established.

For many years after the Crimean war Nihilist refugees were received with open arms in London drawing rooms. English poets, like Swinburne, who was then a passionate Republican, celebrated Nihilist "heroism" in ringing verse. This disposition raging all over England did not by any means suit the book of the Petersburg cabinet. Heads were laid together in the winter palace to consider the situation. Soon after there arrived in London a Russian lady of great intellectual power and social charm, who brought letters from grand dukes and statesmen of Russia, opening to her the most exclusive doors in England. This was the now famous Madam Novikoff. She was charged with the task of revolutionizing English opinion toward Russia—and she did it. It is said that Mme. Novikoff has never received pay for her political work.

The persons charged with secret service, such as Mme. Novikoff is still performing, all proceed by the same means. Their government procures them letters which insure their immediate acceptance by the very best circles of the capital in which they are to work.

Armed with these documents our unofficial diplomatist lays siege to society. Well dressed, witty, if a man distinguished-looking, if a woman, beautiful; gifted with handsome entertainments and figuring at every society function, our friend gradually gains a sure footing in the social life of the capital. Presently he has come to be recognized as an authority upon the affairs of his country. People appeal to him for interesting new facts, for explanations of events taking place there, for personal impressions of public men, statesmen, or of the monarch of his country, whose acts are being perhaps unfavorably commented upon.

Let us suppose that our friend is charged with the social secret service work of Austria. There is, perhaps, a story going the rounds which represents the old emperor's personal character in an unpleasant light. Or, perhaps, the journals are blazoning the iniquitous treatment of Polish villages by the Central Austrian administration. The Austrian ambassador can do little or nothing in such matters; people in society cannot with propriety even mention them in his presence; he should say anything directly to defend his sovereign or his government it is necessarily taken as a prejudiced statement. But our unofficial delegate at the head of his ultrachic dinner table in the salon after dinner and wherever he goes unobtrusively takes or makes opportunity to explain matters, the subject being one on which naturally he is especially well informed.

He will begin by telling amusing stories about the court balls at Vienna, then pour out gallons of lively gossip about the ways of the emperor, showing, as if incidentally, the bluff old autocrat's fine nature, his good heart, his popularity with the people. Or, if some one has asked about the treatment of the Poles, he will perhaps deplore certain injustices that have been committed, but will go on to argue with ingenious appearance of candor and sympathy that the Poles are, after all, a menace to the unity and prosperity of the dual empire, that they are commercially rascals, and utterly undeserving of respect. All this talk, brightened with picturesque anecdote and made effective by a winning manner, will set up a current of sympathy for the imperial, or for the imperial administration, among all who hear it. These will include members of the cabinet, senators, congressmen, judges, political thinkers, writers of books and newspaper leaders. The latter, cleverly introduced, works powerfully, particularly through the press.

Mme. Norvikoff is one of the most skillful of manipulators of public opinion. Journalists, of the serious order, the men who write the important political editorials and pontificate in the monthly reviews, are unfailing in their receptions. They call to get from her what is called in Fleet street the "picturesque strokes" for their articles. And she supplies them so skillfully that often a well posted Russian comes away half convinced that the czar is a Democrat, that Siberia is a paradise and that the process of being "knouted" is little less unenjoyable than that of taking a Turkish bath. Besides influencing journalists, Mme. Norvikoff writes herself. Nearly all the papers in England and not a few in America have had her signed articles whenever Russia has been on the tapis.

Most of these unofficial diplomatists are exceedingly well paid. They are, to a people of very marked ability and they must maintain a considerable state, or their work would fall pitiably. Some five or six years ago a German baroness filled suddenly in Paris. When her papers were ransacked by the commissary of police it was discovered that she had been a secret service agent for her country. From her diary and account books it appeared that she had received from her government $60 a month, the rent of a superb apartment on the Avenue Friedland by the Arc de Triomphe, and the keep of her two-horse brougham, with cocher and valet de pied, besides generous traveling expenses whenever she was requested to visit Berlin. In addition to this very sufficient wage there was noted also the receipt of sums varying from $500 to $600, entered as "special work," presumably for some exceptionally brilliant stroke of diplomacy or some more than usually valuable item of information. The divorce scandal attracted a great deal of attention at the time, and practically forced out of Paris society one of the old lady's nephews, who had married the daughter of an illustrious ducal house.

READING COMPANY.

Philadelphia, April 17.—At the meeting of the directors of the Reading company this afternoon, the first since George F. Baer was made president, W. R. Taylor, the former secretary of the company, was elected vice president and Albert H. Moore was made secretary.

OUTLOOK IN CUBA

Senators Proctor and Cockrell In Accord on Situation.

Have Important Conference With President on the Matter.

Believe Cubans Will Accept Terms of Platt Amendments.

Washington, April 17.—Senators Proctor of Vermont and Cockrell of Missouri had an important conference with the presidentt his morning regarding the situation in Cuba. Both senators have made trips to the island since the adjournment of congress. Senator Cockrell, as a representative of the political opposition in the senate, is held in high esteem by the president, who was greatly interested today in his views. Senators Proctor and Cockrell agreed substantially as to the conditions obtaining on the island, and they agree as to the outcome of the pending negotiations with the Cubans. Their views as to conditions already have been given to the public. Senator Cockrell told the president that in his opinion the Cubans would accept the terms of the Platt amendment in the end. After the commission appointed to visit Washington understands the situation, he thinks there will be no other alternative open to them. In this view Senator Proctor concurs.

"The Cubans," said Senator Cockrell, "apparently do not fully grasp their status. They are not now a government. They have no power to treat diplomatically with the United States. The present constitutional convention was called into being through our agency. Through us power must submit to the United States for approval a plan or constitution for a representative government. If we reject it outright the existing status continues. They can do nothing. But if the modifications and conditions which we propose are accepted, then they can proceed to organize a representative government. Until such a government is organized, the troops of the United States cannot be withdrawn. I am firmly convinced that the convention after it hears the report of the commission, which it has sent here, will accept the Platt amendment."

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

Massachusetts Returns Favor to Municipal Ownership.

Washington, April 17.—Alton D. Adams, of Boston, today testified before the industrial commission concerning the relative results of the operation of municipal and private electric light plans for cities. His conclusions were based entirely upon returns from towns in Massachusetts and were favorable to municipal ownership.

RITTER CAPTURED.

Nashville, Ill., April 17.—Martin Ritter, charged with killing Clara Cheek with a hammer Saturday night, because she refused to marry him, was captured today. He has been placed in jail in adjoining county for fear of mob violence.

CHARGES DISMISSED.

New York, April 17.—In police court today the charges against William A. Brady, Dan Daly and De Wolf Hopper of a violation of the Sunday law in connection with the actor fund benefit at the Academy of Music were dismissed.

WAS A PRINCE.

There is a Canadian senator who once bought a newspaper from the future king of England, and he hasn't got over it yet, says the Kansas City World. When Prince George was doing his sea service he was stationed some time at Halifax, and he used to run out into the surrounding country on little expeditions. He was returning on one occasion by train from a flying trip to a nearby village when the senator encountered him. The senator—who, by the way, was the Hon. Thomas A. Temple, of York county, New Brunswick, and is known as a rather pompous individual—espied the prince sitting in the smoker surrounded by a pile of newspapers and wearing his undress naval uniform, the cap of which bore some resemblance to that worn by the uniformed train boy.

"Here, boy!" called the senator sharply. "Give me a paper."

The young prince looked up and quietly handed the lawmaker one of his papers. The senator fished out two of the cumbrous Canadian coppers and held them out. The prince took them gravely and lay them on the seat beside him.

Senator Temple found out his mistake and was a very unhappy man, for if a Canadian senator does not reverence royalty, who does?

GOOD DEMAND.

W. H. Gilbert Says Lumber Prices Should Keep Up.

W. H. Gilbert, the Ashland lumberman, was in the city between trains today. Mr. Gilbert said in regard to his visit:

"We have about 75,000,000 feet of logs to be cut this summer, of which 30,000,000 feet will be cut at the Murray & Jones mill in this city and the remaining 45,000,000 feet in Ashland. My visit here is for the purpose of looking over the situation and see how nearly prepared the mill is to start up. We have a lot of logs coming here to be cut and are naturally anxious to see the mill begin on the contract, which it will as soon as the ice goes out enough to permit it to operate to advantage. Of the season's cut of 75,000,000 feet we have already sold 60,000,000 feet at top prices, and are every day turning down orders for more. There has been a big demand for special bills, larger in fact than we could handle. I regard the lumber situation as very favorable at the present and believe that the present conditions will continue for the rest of the season. Lumber is in good demand, and I can see no reason why prices should be lowered."

WU'S INQUISITIVENESS.

The Chinese Minister Is Great on Questions.

Anent the propensity of Minister Wu for asking pointed questions, which to some might seem impertinent, the Buffalo Express has the following humorous story:

One of the questions that Wu asks of almost every man or woman he meets is "How old are you?" That is sometimes embarrassing, but he got plenty of direct answers to it while here. "Are you married?" is another that he frequently asks. "Are you rich?" "How many children have you?" are others.

Among the women Mr. Wu met at the Twentieth Century club was the wife of a well-known business man. On hearing her name, Mr. Wu asked if she were a Jew. She replied that she was. A little later the Chinese minister met her husband. "I met your wife a little while ago," he said. "Are you perfectly satisfied with her?"

At the house of one Buffalo man he asked: "Do you own this house?"

"Yes," said the Buffalo man.

"How much did it cost you?"

The Buffalo man told him.

"You must be a very rich man."

The Buffalo man modestly disclaimed such distinction.

"How much did you make last year?" asked Mr. Wu.

The Buffalo man declined to state, and Mr. Wu took another line of inquiry.

"Are you married?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Have you any children?"

"No."

"Why not?"

Another man took four of his sons to the Lenox to meet Mr. Wu. "I have three more at home," he told the Chinese minister, proudly.

"And only one wife?" asked Mr. Wu.

One of the young men who met Mr. Wu wore the button of an organization of Spanish war veterans in his coat. The keen eye of the Chinaman noted it. "What is that?" he asked.

On being told, he next asked:

"Did you fight in the war?"

"No, I only went to Camp Alger," replied the young veteran.

"What do you know about the war, then?" asked the Chinese minister.

"I had a good deal of experience in drilling and tactics," replied the young man.

"Who was the commander of your regiment?"

"Col. Welch," was the reply.

"Has he ever had any experience in fighting?"

"No."

"Then how could he teach you?"

The trip to the falls was one continuous flow of questions and answers. Every member of the party was at one time or another the target for the rapid-fire interrogations of the Chinese minister. At the Falls the car was switched to the Gorge Road and down down that line as far as the whirlpool. Mr. Wu had seen the Falls before, but had never been down the gorge. He got George A. Ricker into a corner and began to ask him questions, at first about the Niagara Falls power and then about the Gorge Road.

"Who built this road?" he asked.

"I did," replied Mr. Ricker.

"How old are you?"

Mr. Ricker stated the modest number of years of his corporeal existence.

"How long have you been an engineer?"

Mr. Ricker told him.

"Ah, so young and yet so able," was the minister's comment, and he joined in the laughter at Mr. Ricker's expense.

A GAMBLER.

How Hobbs Won a Big Pot By Cheating.

Then Jumped From the Boat And Dodged Bullets.

"There was a paragraph in a little Rock newspaper the other day," said a commercial traveler who had just come in from an extended Western trip, "that recalled to my mind some of the most exciting incidents I have run across in all my traveling for twenty years past," relates the New York Sun. "The paragraph was nothing very exciting in itself, but it mentioned the name of a man I had seen in various places ad had never seen without wondering how he managed to stay on earth so long.

"It said that a man who was known by the name of George Hobbs was lying in the hospital in Little Rock in imminent danger of death. He had been stabbed five or six times and the doctors declared that there was not one chance in 100 of his recovery. They had tried to get him to tell how he came by his injuries, but he absolutely refused, though he had been warned that he would probably die. All he would say was that if he got well he would attend to things himself, and if he didn't there was no use making a fuss about it. The paper further said that he was a stranger in Little Rock, but that he had been seen two or three times in some of the less reputable resorts of the city within a few days of the time that he was picked up insensible on the street.

"When I read it I was satisfied that this George Hobbs was in all probability the same George Hobbs that I had known as a traveling gambler for a number of years, and that what I had always expected would happen to him some time had happened at last. He was one of the class of men numerous enough a dozen or fifteen years ago, but not so frequently met recently in the country I travel, which is mainly the Mississippi valley below St. Louis. At least I don't see so many of them as I used to.

"They have always been called crossroads gamblers since I have known anything about them—I suppose from the fact that they go from one small town to another, with nosettled home anywhere, always looking for a game of poker and picking up a more or less precarious living by their dexterity with the cards. The word cross-roads, of course, comes from the implied sarcasm that they will stop anywhere but where two roads cross and wait for a game.

"These men don't look alike any more than any other class of men resemble one another physically, but all that I ever saw had the characteristic appearance of all professional gamblers. They are somewhat more particular about their clothes, and about grooming themselves than the average among the men they associate with, and they all had that studied repression of expression and constant watchfulness that you see in most gamblers.

"Hobbs was a little man, sandy of complexion and sparing of speech. I hardly ever heard him say an unnecessary word, and I used to wonder sometimes how so quiet a man ever found his way into a poker game among strangers, but he was usually playing when I saw him, so perhaps he was more of a talker when he was not at the table.

"The first time I ran across him was on one of the boats running from Memphis down the river. I got on at Helena to go to Vicksburg, and as I entered the saloon I saw a game in full progress at one of the tables. It was not a very unusual sight, for this was nearly twenty years ago, and there was considerable gambling on the river boats then, though not nearly as much as in earlier times. Nowadays there is less.

"It was late in the evening and there were only two or three lookers on when I went up and joined the group, not to play, but to watch the game. I never lose a chance of doing that, though I seldom play with strangers. This time I speedily found enough to interest me, for before I had looked on more than five minutes, I saw plainly that the little sandy man was cheating. He was not particularly dexterous about it, either, for if he had been, I probably would not have detected it, though I have seen enough crooped plays to be familiar with the ordinary tricks.

"Hobbs, as I afterward learned his name to be, was marking the cards with his little fingernail as he handed them and was dealing whenever it came his turn to deal, slowly enough to enable him to tell where each marked card went. If he dealt from the bottom or juggled the cards in any other way in the deal I didn't detect it, but I could see the marking done plainly enough after I had noticed that his fingernail was trimmed to a sharp corner. The wonder to me what that the other players didn't see it as plainly as I did, for they were men who looked as if they had had experience enough to be on the lookout for such things. I thought at first that he had a confederate, but what happened afterwards made this seem improbable, and now I fully believe he was playing alone.

"Perhaps you may think I said something when I saw what was going on. If so, you underrate my intelligence. It made not a particle of difference to me whether one man or another of the five at the table should win the money, but it would have made a lot of difference to me if I had got mixed up in a fight over a matter that did not concern me. I hadn't the faintest desire to kill anybody and less inclination to stop another man's bullet or get stabbed as men do sometimes when they interfere with other people's business out West. So I looked on very much interested and curious to see if any of the other players would see what I saw.

"They were playing a pretty stiff game. I thought at first it might be a $10 limit, for I didn't see a raise larger than that for the first twenty minutes I looked on, but then Hobbs made a raise of $25 after a two-card draw and a big man who turned out to be a Texas cattleman went back at him with $50 more. Hobbs studied a while and then put a hundred-dollar bill in the pot and the cattleman laid down. Then I thought it might be table stakes, but a dapper little fellow whom I had seen often in Memphis pulled money out of his pocket to make good in a pot that he won with a small flush, so I saw that it was the old-fashioned game, with no limit. The ante was a dollar and the usual bet was five or ten, but occasionally as in the hand I mentioned, there would be a big bet made. This happened often enough later in the game to make it interesting and I looked on fully two hours before it broke up.

"I was watching Hobbs all the time and saw plainly that he marked each new deck as it came, for they called for several during the game. I watched the other players, too, very carefully to see if they suspected anything, and I could see that Hobbs was winning, naturally, but whether it was because of his caution or whether he only played when he knew the cards were in his favor, he seemed to play a conservative game, and his winnings were not large enough of themselves to arouse suspicion.

"At last the inevitable climax came. They had $200 or $300 in chips on the table, but big bills, twenties, fifties and hundreds had been added to the money in sight till there was, perhaps, $1000 in the game, besides considerable sums that one and another put away after winning. I noticed that Hobbs had carefully sunk each hundred that came to him in his fob pocket till he must have had over $1000 in velvet, besides what was in front of him, when he made his final play.

"It was a bold one. He sat next the dealer, and having two pairs, aces up, he saw that the one card he would get in the draw was also an ace. I saw this because his play showed it, not because I could see the mark, for I could not, and would not have recognized it if I had seen it. All I knew was that he had certainly done some marking, and that he was watching so closely that he must have known. At all events, he opened the jack pot for $10, having the first say. The Memphis man passed and the Texan came in. The next man, who looked like a lawyer, raised it $20 more and the dealer laid down. Hobbs made it $20 more and the Texan came back with $90, making it $70 more for the lawyer to play. He made good, and Hobbs showed up a hundred.

"The Texan raised it again and the lawyer dropped. He had three queens, for I saw them before he threw them away, but he wisely concluded that even three queens before the draw was not good enough to stay with under a cross fire. Hobbs made good once more, and called for a card, getting of course the ace he knew was coming. The Texan stood pat, having, as I saw later, a ten full, and when Hobbs betted a hundred, he simply called. It was good play against a one-card draw, though I was a little surprised at it, for he had been playing a bold game, and a ten full was a tempting big hand. His call, however, made a show down necessary, and of course Hobbs raked the pot.

"As he pulled in the money I saw a queer expression come on the Texan's face. It was not wholly of chargrin at the loss of his bets, but as I read it, was partly of chagrin and partly of suspicion. Hobbs saw it, too, I presume he had been expecting it and had made up his mind what to do when it came, for as the Texan reached over and picked up the discard pile with the evident intention of examing the cards. Hobbs thrust the money in front of him into his pocket and raising suddenly from his chair, leaped rather than ran toward the door of the saloon, which was wide open, as it was hot weather.

"Quick as he was, the Texan was close behind him and I saw him pull his gun as he rushed after the fleeing gambler. We all followed, of course, and as I got to the saloon door, I saw Hobbs leap from the rail of the boat into the water. The Texan fired once as he ran, but if he hit the other there was no sign of it apparent, for Hobbs came to the surface presently fully 50 feet away and swimming like a fish, despite the fact that he was fully dressed.

"There was a lot of excited shouting and talk among those of us who were looking on, but the Texan was apparently the coolest man in the crowd. Squaring himself by the rail he laid his heavy revolver across his left elbow and taking careful aim he fired twice more at the swimmer before the captain of the boat came up and interfered, which he did as soon as he could reach the spot.

"It looked as if his interference came too late, though, for the swimmer, at the second shot threw up his arms and disappeared under the surface of the water. Whether he was hit or not, I don't know; but he was certainly not killed or seriously enough hurt to prevent his swimming ashore; but what we all thought then was that he was killed. It was too dark for us to see where he came up or whether he came up at all, though of course he did, and the captain of the boat, looking intently for a moment or two, shook his head. 'It's no use sending a boat after him,' he said. 'No man on earth can keep alive in that current after he's got a bullet in him.' So we kept on our way, leaving Hobbs to his fate, and if anybody ever made a charge of manslaughter against the Texan I never heard of it. The general opinion was that it served Hobbs right, and the only regret I heard expressed was that so much good money had gone down with him.

"You may imagine that I was rather astonished some few years afterward to run across Hobbs in a saloon in New Madrid. He was playing poker in a back room, and I looked at him for some minutes before I could be certain that it was the same man, but after I had watched him for a while, I knew that I could not be mistaken. More than that, I was sure he knew me, and was evidently considering what to do. He did not meet my eyes squarely for some minutes, but presently he did so, and I saw that he was looking for recognition. Then I saw that he was letting me know that he knew that I knew him. Quite complicated, isn't it, but you can say a great deal with your eyes if you know how.

"Pretty soon he cashed in, and strolled out to the barroom, and when I followed he spoke to me. 'I don't know what sort of a man you are,' he said, as coolly as if he were talking about the weather, 'but I reckon you won't have any objection to telling me whether you are going to try to make trouble for me.'

"I assured him that I had no such intention, explaining that my business was selling goods and that I preferred to make friends rather than enemies at every stage of the game. 'More than that,' I said, 'if I had wanted to make trouble for you I would have done it the night I saw you playing on the boat.'

"'Yes,' he said in the most matter of fact way, 'I saw you were on almost as soon as you came on board, and I was rather expecting you would interfere. So, knowing that if these chumps ever did take a tumble they would have an outsider to back them up, I decided that the only thing to do was to make a bolt for it in case they caught on.'

"'Were you hit?' I asked him.

"'No,' he said with a grin, 'but the bullets were coming uncomfortably close and I made up my mind the safest course was to make everybody think I was killed. The swimming was nothing. I reckon I swam four miles before I got ashore.'

"Naturally I set Mr. Hobbs down as more or less of a coward, or at least as a man who would rather run than fight, and not being anxious for his acquaintance, anyhow, I had little to say to him and was not sorry to hear him say he was leaving town that night. Whether he went away because I was there or not I neither knew nor cared. The next time I saw him, however, I decided that he was ready enough to fight when he saw fit to do so.

"It was in a faro bank in Vicksburg that I ran across him about a year later. I was doing the town with a customer and among other things we decided to buck the tiger for a small amount. When we got inside we saw Hobbs playing, but as nobody seemed to know him, I said nothing. He was in hard luck apparently, for as my friend and I stood looking on for a few moments before buying chips, I saw him lose five stacks one after the other. What I also noticed was that a piker, sitting at the other end of the table, was coppering his every play, evidently counting on Hobbs's bad luck or on some crooked work in the deal. Three times, when Hobbs played a card to win for stack of reds, this piker would play the same card to lose for four or five whites.

"When he tried it for the fourth time, Hobbs broke loose. Perhaps his losses had something to do with his loss of temper, but anyhow, he turned on this piker, who was twice his size and gave him a tongue lashing for fair. I've heard men use language before, but I never heard anybody dig up such unexpected treasures in the way of odd, forcible cuss words as he did. The piker didn't like it and said so, and that made Hobbs worse. Then the piker jumped for him, and if four or five other men hadn't interfered, I think Hobbs would have cut him into small pieces. He had a knife out in an instant and it was all the crowd could do to hold him till the other man got away.

"Of couse I don't know what happened to Hobbs in Little Rock. It may be that he is dead, or will die before he gets over his wounds. He must be mortal, like other people, and he will doubtless die some time, but it wouldn't surprise me to run across him again almost anywhere up and down the river, and if I do see him, the chances are that he will be playing cards. I have seen him, perhaps a dozen times in all, and that is what he has been doing each time. But somehow, I wouldn't care to be the man that stabbed him if he ever does get out of the hospital."

AT EMPEROR'S TABLE.

A guest at the imperial table of Francis Joseph, at Budapest, at his ancient Ofen castle, has given the Vienna correspondent of the London Telegraph an interesting account of his impressions there. The guests, says he, are cordially received in the magnificently decorated saloon by the grand marshal, Count Apponyi, and the grand steward of the household, Prince Leichtenstein. A few minutes before the dinner hour of 6 the emperor's adjutant general, Count Paar, appears, and the guests at once form a double line, as the emperor almost immediately follows his adjutant. As the folding doors are widely thrown open and the monarch is seen on the threshold, the guests salute him with a deep obeisance. He addresses a few pleasant words to the most distinguished persons present, and passes into the great dining room, followed by his visitors, each of whom has received previous notice of his place at the table. Three gigantic lusters, with hundreds of electric lights, shine upon the long dining table below and are reflected a thousand times in the silver plates and the batteries of glasses assigned to each cover. There are three enormous bouquets, each flower being a masterpiece of ornamental gardening. The guests introduce themselves to their nearest neighbors and the dinner commences.

At the back of each chair stands a footman in gorgeous livery. The dishes and the wines are princely, but the boiled beef, the standard Austrian household dish, is also present, cut in tempting slices, and its appearance at once imparts a homely feeling to the assembled guests. The Rhine wines are exquisite for the emperor's visitors and conversation never fails under their influence, but becomes so animated that it reaches the third and fourth neighbor. The emperor converses with those near him; he often smiles and sometimes laughs aloud at some observation. Though the guests do not forget for a moment that their monarch is present, they have always the pleasant feeling that he is their cordial host. A packet of the fameus court bon bons is given to each guest, he leaves his card at his place and he finds a packet in his overcoat when he takes his departure. At the conclusion of dinner the emperor leads the way to the ante-room, now converted into a smoking room. The kaiser is the first who lights a cigar, not as before, a Virginia, but this time a light Havana. After smoking and general conversation, the guests form in a half circle and the emperor has a kind or encouraging word for everyone there. At 8:30 the guests disperse.

FOUGHT AN IRON LION.

Sport, a Great Dane dog, owned by Godfrey Johnson, 72 North Clark street, threw Christmas shoppers into a panic at Washington and State streets yesterday afternoon. Johnson brought the dog down town for exercise, and all went well with the man and dog until the corner of Wash. found himself beside one of the big iron lions that guard the door of a store, says the Chicago Tribune.

The minute Sport saw the lion he went into a fit. With a howl of fear he bounded out into the middle of the street. In his dash for the street through the crowd the dog upset a half dozen women, who carried armsfull of purchases, and they added to the noise incident to the dog's discovery of the lion. While Johnson was quieting the dog remarks were passed about ordinances requiring muzzles on dogs in the down town district. The women were calling out that the animal was mad. Then Johnson concluded that the best step was to make himself scarce, and hurried off with Sport fearing that some Central detail officer would shoot at him and kill somebody at Madison street.

Passing of the Indianapolis Press.

Two years ago the the publication of the Indianapolis Press was begun by Messrs. Holliday and Richards, who had formerly been part owners of the Indianapolis News. It was started with a very complete outfit and with the best news service and the ablest editorial talent that money could procure. No labor and no capital was spared to put it at once in the front rank as a newspaper, and under the circumstances the outlook for its successful publication was very bright. Yesterday the Press was published for the last time. Its publication has been suspended and the News, which has made steady progress in every direction in spite of the competition offered by the Press, succeeds to its business and good will. It is another illustration of the fact that an established newspaper cannot be disturbed in its prosperity, except from within. The publishers of the Press have suspended its publication because they have found that there is room in Indianapolis and its territory for only one complete, high-grade 2-cent evening newspaper, and Indianapolis is a city of 169,000 people and the territory surrounding it is populous. The News has filled that field so well that the ably conducted Press, with splendid financial backing, could not cut into its business. Many thousands of dollars were expended in demonstrating this fact. The case is not singular. Other cities have witnessed similar attempts to compete with well established newspapers with like results. The Indianapolis incident is worthy of special note because the enterprise was started in a very rich and populous field, was conducted by newspaper men of acknowledged ability and lengthy experience and was backed up by large capital.

Gambling In Social Circles.

That the vice of gambling in society is spreading alarmingly among the women and men of the haut ton is evident from the amount of comment it has been receiving recently from preachers and newspapers in the Eastern states, more particularly in New York city. A rhetorical bombshell was thrown into the smart set a short time ago by Rev. William R. Huntington, of New York, by denouncing gambling in the home. He asserted that hostesses have been found in fashionable life who will let young men whose honesty is their capital depart impoverished by losses at cards from drawing rooms to which they have themselves invited them as guests. "Isn't it true," asked the distinguished pulpiteer, "that young women reputed to be of good family exhibit with pride the jewels bought out of the profits of the gambling table? What avails a crusade against pool rooms and policy shops, whether by five, fifteen or fifty, if behind doors which no detective ventures to pass such things as these go on?" It seems that the introduction of the new game called bridge whist from England and the craze it has caused in the society circles of Eastern cities, is responsible for this outburst from Dr. Huntington, and for fulminations of like purport from several other preachers. The incident only proves, says the Kansas City Times, that the underlying gambling propensity in the human race to "play for amusement, and bet to count the games," will break out in the best regulated society. Gambling is as immoral in the parlors of the ultra fashionable as it is in resorts where crap shooters roll their dice for a few dimes in stakes. It is as sinful in the gentlemen's clubs as it is in the licensed faro and roulette establishments. The social danger, however, on which Dr. Huntington placed his finger is not to be reached by laws or by the police. The only way to reach it is through the social conscience.

CUBA NEEDS A DIPLOMAT.

The Cuban convention has left the question of the Platt amendment in the air. It is neither concurred in nor rejected. The sentiment of the convention is against it, but the majority did not dare to take the responsibility of an unequivocal rejection. The Cubans are at sea. They recognize the fact that the Teller resolution and the Platt amendment are antagonistic. They see that the United States will have to force its demands in violation of an express pledge given to, not only Cuba, but the whole world. They further know, or ought to know, that the United States will insist upon this Platt amendment regardless of what the world thinks when it comes to a show down. In view of all this, what ought Cuba to do?

The demands of the United States are reasonable, and embody conditions that ought to exist for the good of the Cuban people. But the idea of suzerainty wounds the pride of the leaders. Cuba libre has become a sentiment for which many Cubans would sacrifice much. What is wanted just now is a diplomat to act as a Moses to lead them out of the wilderness to a condition of absolute prosperity. Should such a man arise, he would advise the Cuban convention to take advantage of the present crisis to demand of the United States one condition on which the ultimatum couched in the Platt amendment would be acquiesced in. That condition would be the one that we demand of China—the open door. Cuba as a part of the United States, under the constitution, would be prosperous beyond the dreams of avarice. In this great country the Cubans would find a ready market for all the products of the island, but with a tariff wall built up as it will be, that market must be sought the other side of the ocean. Cuba ought to take heed from the example of Porto Rico. That island, nominally a part of the United States, but forbidden the protection of our laws and barred from our trade, is slowly but surely starving to death. Its foreign commerce with Europe was lost when it was seized by this country. Its trade with this country was killed by the Porto Rico tariff bill, which was forced through congress at the behest of the sugar and tobacco trusts. The money that was to be used to relieve the country is held by the treasury department, because the whole matter is hung up in the supreme court. Porto Rico is in that deplorable condition expressed by the phrase, "a mother but not a wife."

While the power is yet in the hands of the Cubans, they ought to avoid this condition. Let them accept limited sovereignty, but sell that sovereignty for an equivalent. That equivalent is free access to the markets of the United States.

The congress of the United States would oppose the annexation of Cuba, as it has opposed the granting to Porto Rico of the ordinary commercial rights of our territories, and as it will oppose the granting of the same rights to the Philippines. It is well known that the United States congress and the administration is dominated by the powers that wish to dispoil these islands. Every movement has been in that direction, and the fate of Porto Rico, which has never raised a hand or a voice in protest until lately, is a most convincing proof of the rapacity of the masters who wield the whip. Cuba is wanted for the same purpose. Congressman Stevens of this state gave the whole scheme away when he openly opposed free trade with Cuba in his recent interview. But Cuba is in a position to demand free trade, as a compensation for the demands made upon her, and if she has men who know enough to read the future she will grant the hollow form of suzerainty and make fast to the more substantial guarantees of trade.

JAPAN'S PROGRESS.

Anyone who puts the Japanese down for unprogressive, slow-going people, makes the mistake of his life. To the contrary, Japan is making great progress, especially educational progress, that is not excelled by any country in the world. Between 9 and 10 per cent of her national expenditure is devoted to education. By reason of their imitativeness they have become the unquestioned loaders of progress among the people of Asia. Some interesting facts relative to the conditions in Japan are gathered from the last annual report of the imperial department of education. The school attendance shows a marked increase, the percentage being as high as 85.6 on the part of the boys and 59.4 by the girls. Commenting on this the New York Sun says that this attention to female education augurs well for the progress of Japan in the next generation. It is not, however, only in the primary branches that Japanese girls are receiving instruction, but the higher education also is making great progress among them. The year just concluded witnessed an increase of four in the number of higher female schools, the total number of these being then thirty-seven, with 8857 students.

Technical and commercial education is also vigorously pushed forward. There were in operation last year forty-five special schools and colleges, with 899 instructors teaching 12,624 students, and 1690 graduates. The technical schools numbered 236, with 1451 instructors, 24,719 students and 3164 graduates. The number of graduates mentioned represents only those who left school in the course of the year under consideration.

Foreign languages form an important part of the regular course of studies. There were in 1900 fifty-two foreign professors teaching in the various government schools. Of these sixteen are Germans, twelve English, six Americans, six French, three Koreans, two Russians, two Italians, two Chinese, one Belgian, one Spaniard and one Swede, the majority being engaged in teaching languages.

But the department of education by no means depends on foreigners in the training of Japanese youth. Its university professors are sent to make personal visits for more or less extended periods to the principal seats of learning abroad in order that they may keep pace with the progress of science elsewhere. It also provides new professors by sending the more promising of graduates abroad. The number that went out in 1900 was fifty-eight, the great majority going to Germany; while those that returned after finishing their education were fifteen. The number of professors and graduates studying abroad at government expense last year was 100.

TAXATION OF MORTGAGES.

The question of the taxation of mortgages is bound to come to the front. Missouri went so far as to amend her constitution that the real estate mortgage might be taxed where the security was located. The great difficulty has been to devise some method of assessment that will not result in double taxation and which will unearth the hidden instruments of indebtedness. The state of New York is now considering a bill for the taxation of mortgages, bonds and stocks that will bring all such hidden treasures to light for taxation. The method is simple and if the law were made universal it would do the business without the aid of assessors or tax collectors.

It is proposed to levy a certain per cent tax on all evidences of wealth by means of stamps. Here is a man with a $1000 mortgage. The tax levy is one-quarter of 1 per cent. The owner is obliged to buy stamps to the amount of $2.50, place them on the instrument and cancel them. If he fails to do this before a certain day the instrument becomes void and cannot be collected in any court of law. This will prove effectual in unearthing notes and other securities.

It possesses the advantage also of secrecy. Many men, for reasons of their own, do not like to make detailed statements of their property in this and that security. For business reasons they want to keep it to themselves. This system will allow that to be done and still the property will be compelled to carry its burden of tax.

In practice there will no doubt be found many weak places in such a system, but the theory is right and experience will enable legislatures to perfect the system. The scheme is worth careful investigation by the Minnesota tax commission.

If anyone thinks that the revival of the sugar industry in Cuba and the Philippines is going to ruin the sugar interests in this country or any country all he has to do is to consult the sugar statistics and take heart. Sixty years ago the world managed to get along with 1,150,000 tons of sugar, all but 5 per cent of which was produced from sugar cane. In 1900 the sugar consumption was 8,800,000 tons, 67.71 per cent of which was produced from beets. The cane output in 1900 was 2,850,000, or more than two and one-half times the sugar output of 1840. It is plain to be seen that the increase in the consumption of sugar would not have been possible without the development of the beet sugar industry. The increased consumption has almost entirely been provided for by the beet sugar and all that can be grown will certainly be wanted. Let the cane producers start in as quickly as they please. The more sugar the better.

The New York assembly played a practical joke on one of its members a few days ago. He had introduced a bill providing for the passage of curfew ordinances. His friends smuggled in an amendment which limited the bill to the town where the member lives. Then, while it was on its passage, some one moved an amendment striking out the reference to children and inserting the name of the member. Then it went through with a whoop. It empowers the common council of Hornerville to enact curfew ordinances "prescribing the hour of the night after which Hyatt C. Hatch shall not be permitted to be on the streets or in the public places of said city, unless accompanied by his parents or guardians or other adult persons." Later the bill was recommitted, to save Mr. Hatch the annoyance of having it sent to the senate in the form passed by the assembly.

It is very likely that the recent live pigeon shoot in New York will result in the passing of a law prohibiting all such contests in the future. The members of the humane societies call attenthion to the fact that over 20,000 birds were killed or wounded in the "sport" and characterize it as a disgrace to the commonwealth, and are the principal movers for the new law; a bill for which has been introduced. This fact calls to mind that at one time a leading member of the humane society in Maine was greatly exercised over the report that a gun club had shot over 500 "blue rocks" at a shoot in that state. She proceeded forthwith to the legislature and ased for a law to prevent the ruthless slaughter of the "birds." She was considerably discomfited when she found that the blue rocks were made of clay.

Carrie Nation got into the wrong pew Monday and was ejected by the sexton. That is to say, she wandered from Kansas into that wicked city known as Kansas City and began her crusade, not with her little hatchet, but with her long tongue. The people in Kansas City are Missourians; they have no respect for female temperance cranks, so a bold bad policeman took sister Carrie before a court, where she was allowed a few minutes in which to abuse both policeman and court and then was promptly fined $5 and given thirty minutes to get out of the state.

Dispatches from Washington say that President McKinley has decided to "do something" for Russell Harrison. While his restoration to the army is not expected, it is said that his record will be corrected so as to satisfy him entirely. Although he has asked for a court of inquiry this will not be granted as he had been honorably discharged, and honorably discharged officers have nothing to ask an inquiry for. Adjt. Gen. Corbin was in favor of letting the matter rest as it is but the president has concluded to do better than that by the son of one of his predecessors.

Japan has gone into the ultimatum business, if reports are to be trusted. This time the little-big men have issued their ultimatum to the Russian bear but have sent it to the Chinese emperor, by Li Hung Chang, as the best way to get it to the Russian court. Now the world will hold its breath listening for something to drop. Will Russia fight? No, not Japan. Japan has no possessions in India.

The abolition of the army canteen is proving a howling success. The soldiers go out, get drunk and howl. Reports from army posts say that drunkenness has increased 50 per cent, and the nearby saloon is doing a land office business. What will the extremists want to do next in the line of temperance reform?

Before being ordained a preacher, Rev. David E. Minerd, of Uniontown, Pa., was a rugged blacksmith. His health has given out and he has resigned and will reopen his blacksmith shop and regain at the forge the health he has lost. Evidently Mr. Minerd missed his calling when he entered the ministry.

Eugene Ware, the Kansas lawyer-poet, breaks forth in another bit of jingle entitled "The Jointist." Here it is:

There came to our town an old pelican
Whose manner was scarcely angelican;
To a man who sold beer
She said: "Say, look here!
If you want me to save you from helican."

The English press persists in reporting DeWet crazy but he still does business at the old stand. It would be a god-send to England if some of the British generals would go crazy in the same way. As it takes one thief to catch another, perhaps one crazy man could catch another.

In connection with Russia's repeated declarations that she has no intention of keeping Manchuria, it will be called to mind, says the Topeka State Journal, that the United States made similar professions regarding Cuba, yet we are keeping it.

Is this justice? A New Jersey court has compelled a man 5 feet 4 inches high, to support a woman 7 feet 2 inches tall, who once upon a time bulldozed him into marrying her.

The Republican politicians in Kansas were all anxious that Funston should be made a brigadier general because they feared he might return home and enter politics.

Mrs. Nation has been helping to swell the coffers of the steel trust by increasing the demand for hatchets.

That man in New York who failed for $4,000,000 and had only $25 in assets was certainly a financier.

Governor Odell, of New York, has decided to get along without any more Plattitudes.

An anti-dueling league has just been organized in Paris. What for?

A MORAL WORTH HEEDING.

Philadelphia Press: The stock market reached last week the highest average price for twenty years. For the third time the crest of a great wave of speculation has been reached.

The first low watermark came in the New York stock market in the period immediately after the panic of 1857, with the war adding another low record. An advance followed up to 1869, when there was a break, a reaction and a new high record was made for stocks and business in 1872 and 1873.

A decline succeeded which went on until 1877, when the lowest price was reached in April, just before the railroad strikes in July. The average of sixty stocks in April that year was 56.33. An advance began which carried the average price of sixty stocks up to 99.81 in May, 1881. The average of sixty active stocks last week was in the middle of the week 90.05 and slightly more at the end. It never was as high before between 1881 and 1901.

This is as yet somewhat short of the tidemark of twenty years ago; but, on the other hand, the present tide is not yet done rising. It may pass the average of twenty years ago. Then, again, it may not.

The lowest point since 1881 was in 1896 and the advance in 1897 was slight. Thrice, therefore, in 1857, in 1877 and in 1896-7, low prices have been reached. Twice, in 1881 and 1901, high prices have been touched, twenty years apart. Twice has thes mash come twenty years apart, in 1873 and 1893. Something of a reaction came in the summer of 1881, but there was a recovery in 1882, and, while the average of stocks was never so high again as in 1881, the volume of general trade, as measured by bank clearings, was bigger in 1882 than it ever was again until 1899. short

In 1873 everybody was perfectly sure that the prosperity of the country was good for several years. When Jay Cooke & Co. put up their shutters in September, 1873, it was a bolt out of the blue. When the stock market broke in July, 1881, at the crash of Guiteau's pistol, no one had predicted disaster; but it was twenty years before prices were back again. In fact prices today are a little lower than in May, 1881, for any group of stocks. Those were the days when William H. Vanderbilt bought Reading over 50, Sidney Dillon was advising people to buy Union Pacific at 127 and, what was more, buying it himself, and the astute financiers who were investing Gen. Grant trust fund were putting port of it into Wabash preferred at 96, shortly to go to pot.

The large, round lighthouse moral these facts and figures inculcate must be clear to every man. Still when the next financial smash comes it will find men eating and drinking, just as Noah's flood found them. We may add that in all those flood-tide years, 1871-73, 1879-81 and 1898-01, the financial pundits were all proving very conclusively that this particular flood, like a well-known rootbeer, was "unlike any other." It had no ebb.

But it had.

A Bachelor's Reflections.

New York Press. The average man would be happier with a cancer than with a political wife.

There is only one unpardonable sin, and that is not pardoning people who do it.

Every married man knows that the only way to stop a woman in an argument is to distract her attention.

When a woman doesn't prove to be the making of a man the man generally proves to be the unmaking of the woman.

The happiest woman in the world is generally the one that has to go about once a month and sob her heart out at a romantic play with a baby in it.

Curiosity as to His Reward.

New York Telegram: President McKinley, following out his original idea that this is a business administration, has just pardoned "Kid" Wilson, noted Western desperado and train robber. What position he is to get under the government is not made known.

Should Bear Their Share.

Brainerd Dispatch: The Duluth Herald wants to increase the valuation of the iron mines in St. Louis county from fifteen millions to seventy-five millions, holding the latter sum to be a fair valuation. The properties of the great steel trust should surely bear their just share of taxation.

Merely Coaching the Natives.

Indianapolis News: Perhaps all Russia asks of Manchuria is a few coaling stations, a military post or two and a supervision of all her financial affairs. This arrangement would be all right, for it is but following the policy adopted by the United States toward Cuba.

"Yes. I told him you said he needn't come home from China and look his poor old mother in the face without a cloisonne vase under each arm."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "There is talk of increasing the army of Holland. They think that with 60,000 fighting men they could snap their fingers at Europe."

"Pooh! I guess they'd rather finger their schnapps."

Indianapolis Press: "I don't like that hackneyed expression," said the city editor.

"What hackneyed expression?" asked the reporter.

"The jury acted as a body.'"

"Well, hully gee! Would you expect a jury to act as a brain?"

Philadelphia Press: "What! Marry you?" cried the fair young girl. "Why, you are only an apology for a man."

"True," he sighed, "but you are not so lacking in courtesy as to fail to accept an apology."

Indianapolis Press: The name of the sultan of Morocco is Abdul Azziz," remarked the snake editor.

"Thanks for the information," replied the horse editor.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Blinks has a perfect mania for condensing everything. Did you hear how he proposed?

"Judgment overtake me?" sneered Bishop Hatto. "Rats!"

And even as he sneered one of the attendants, pale with fear, rushed in to tell him the rats were coming.

WHEN GOD'S A WATCHIN' HIM.

(As told by a cowboy of the range).

I hold to the opinion that most every feller's got
Some place inside his wicked heart a sort o' pious spot
That ailus is a tryin' hard to git the upper holt
An' give the sin that's campin' there a mighty hefty jolt!
I've noticed this when all alone a ridin' on the range
With Nature's quiet all around; a sort o' restless, strange
Oneasy feelin', one that knocks his wildness out o' trim,
When he has got it in his head that God's a watchin' him.

He looks up at the skies above in guilty sort o' way
An' wonders if there is a land that's fairer than the day,
An' if the Foreman on the throne kin see the people here
When they can't see a bit o' Him through clearest atmosphere.
He gits a wonderin' if it's true what all the parsons tell
That good folks make the run up there an' bad 'uns drift to hell,
An' never sees except at such a time how mighty slim
His chances are when he believes that God's a watchin' him.

There's somethin' in the whisp'rin' breeze that teches up his soul
An' seems to knock his sinful thoughts an' instincts in the hole,
An' every prairie flower he sees a peepin' from the side
Seems turnin' up its purty face to ketch the Master's smile.
It sets him thinkin' mighty hard about The trail toward the grave may be, an' wonderin' if he'd ort
To call a halt on recklessness an' git his soul in trim;
It's curious what a feller thinks when God's a watchin' him!

He tries to sing a jolly song, a jingle o' the range,
An' finds his voice is out o' tune an' sounds almighty strange,
An' when he tries to chase away the thoughts that's in his head
They come a flockin' back agin a huntin' fur their bed.
Jest seems like he's the only man that's left on top o' rogund,
An' sets him wishin' he could hear some sort o' earthly sound
To break the spell an' rouse him from the sort o' sacred whim
That's got him fast; the skeery thought that God's a watchin' him!

Don't keer how tough a man may be, just put him all alone
Out on the range where everything is dumber than a stone,
An' all his sinful, wicked thoughts down from the perch 'll climb
An' give that good spot in his heart possession fur a time.
There ain't no gospel sharp on earth kin preach a sermon that Kin set a feller thinkin' an' kin knock his wildness flat
Like when he rides in solitude so deep it's sort o' grim
An' gets the notion in his head that God's a watchin' him.

Home Rule to Cities.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A city is entitled to exactly the sort of government its people want and so is a state. Any attempt on the part of the state to direct the city is a blow at Republican institutions more dangerous than the degradation of the city boss. This is a patent fact, and yet we are constantly presented with the spectacle of legislatures undertaking to regulate the most vital affairs of the cities, with little knowledge of the different conditions that prevail in town and country.

A Sense of Humor.

Woman's Home Companion: If you are fortunate enough to have even the germ of a sense of humor, cherish that carefully. It is the very salt and savor of life. Learn to smile over the foibles of your friends, loving them none the less, but more, because of their little weaknesses. Do not take people too seriously, and, above all, do not take yourself too seriously. You are only an atom in an incomprehensible universe, after all. Why find fault during your brief moment with the other atoms by your side? It surely will not pay.

DAILY STORY.

A WIDOW AND A BACHELOR.

BY JEFFERSON KYLE.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

It is not customary to mix dry figures with love affairs, but I wish to record the fact that it was on Wednesday, Aug. 2, 1891, at exactly twenty minutes after 3 o'clock p. m., that I fell in love with the Widow Blissfield. At that day, hour and minute named I was sitting on the veranda of a Cape May hotel, and I caught sight of the widow coming up the steps after descending from the bus. My heart gave a sudden throb, my breath was shut off for a second and she had not passed from my sight when I knew that I loved her.

In the year 1891 I was an old bachelor. I was not as old a bachelor as I am now, but still old enough to boast and believe that I was love-proof. I had been tested time and again, and the way I had turned the cold shoulder to Cupid had given him the cold shivers. I had a complacent contempt for a married man, and when I discovered a young man in love I wanted to see him sandbagged and given a shallow grave. You can imagine my amazement when I found my heart palpitating, my chest heaving and my breath gasping itself out like air expelled from a bean shooter. I had come all in a heap, like slipping down on an icy corner, and I didn't even struggle against it. The Widow Blissfield was petite, handsome, magnetic and cute. She also had good clothes and an aristocratic bearing—the bearing of a widow with government bonds in safe deposit. The diamonds she wore at her first dinner were valued by me at $30,000. As she had come quite alone I had no chance for an introduction in the conventional way, but a man in love is full of expedients. At 8 o'clock that evening she sat down on the veranda in the shadow, and my heart throbbed in pity for her loneliness. After a few throbs I boldly advanced and inquired if I had the honor of addressing Miss Carr. No, she was not Miss Carr, but Mrs. Blissfield. I begged a thousand pardons for my mistake, and lied like a trooper in saying that I was expecting the daughter of an old friend.

Two minutes later I was seated beside the widow and doing my best to make her feel at home among strangers, and the next three hours fled so fast that I have never been able to overtake them. When we at last arose to separate I felt quite sure that she suspected my love for her, and on the other hand she had given me hope that I had made an impression. Those were happy days that followed. My feelings were those of a calf suddenly turned loose from the pen to gambol o'er the grassy green. There was a glad song in my heart, the whispers of love in my ear, and the fees I bestowed on my table waiter made him wonder if I owned the earth. If the days were one long, happy dream, the long evenings on the veranda were a close second on Paradise itself. After the second evening I held her hand as we talked and no matter how badly they were needed to shoo away the infernal mosquitoes we never let go. Our voices were soft and low as we conversed, and now and then as a tremulous sigh escaped our lips the whippoorwill paused in his song and the porpoise ceased turning handsprings in the morning surf.

Days to be remembered forever! Nights never to be forgotten until spring tonics come down to 50 cents per bottle. On the fifth night I told her of my love, and how a word from her would make me the happiest man on earth. She spoke it. That is, she said she had undertaken to raise the sum of $5000 to found a summer home for crippled children at the Cape, and after she had accomplished her mission she might at least listen to my pleadings. It would be a long time, however, as the subscriptions would be mostly in sums of $1 or less, and perhaps three years would roll away before the full amount was gathered in. If, at the end of that time, I was still of the same mind—well, she would think of it. Three years before I could call my darling my own! It was a hot night, but as she spoke those fateful words a blast from the icy north made my teeth rattle. I would not have it thus. I was deeply sorry for crippled children whether born so or breaking their legs while climbing fences to steal apples, and I was willing to help them to all the ozone lying around the New Jersey coast, but they must not stand between me and Paradise. I would plank down $5000 on the spot, and the other $2000 in the course of a week, and then we would be married and get back from our bridal tour about the time the home was ready for its guests.

The widow said I was too good-hearted, too liberal—too impetuous, but I assured her that I knew my gait and had the $3000 in the hotel safe. She hung off for a time, solicitous that I should be sure of my feelings towards her, but after I had solemnly sworn to the number of 250 times that life without her would be long, black midnight, she gracefully came off the perch and set the wedding day for six weeks ahead. Then she blushed and giggled and ran away, leaving me in such a happy frame of mind that I laughed at the moon, smiled at the porpoises, and felt like hugging an old crank with a wooden leg who had threatened to kick me if I didn't stop walking on his toes. The next morning I handed her the $3000. She had such trust and confidence in me that she didn't stop to count the bills to see if there was a shortage. I suggested several sites for the proposed home, and she assured me that she would carefully investigate their respective merits. Also, that she would divide the honor as founder with me. I don't know why I didn't imprint a thousand impassioned kisses on her chin as she looked into my eyes and blushed and looked the dearest thing on earth, but perhaps it was because a chambermaid was loafing about in the hall.

That afternoon the widow went to bed with a headache and I went fishing. I wanted to fish for suckers and tell them how happy I was. At 4 o'clock I returned to the hotel with a blistered nose, but a loving heart, and after waiting half an hour to catch sight of my prize package I sent her up a little love note to let her know that I had not fallen off the pier. It came back to me. The widow was out. She had taken the 1:45 train, and was not expected back. With my $3000 cash in hand she had gone somewhere to found a home for crippled hearts and soft-headed bachelors, and I was left to soak my head in the briny surf.

PRAY FOR THE TROUT.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: In some respects the new attorney general appears to be a remarkable man. He is a member of the Castalia Fishing club, an organization that pursues the gentle craft in the neighborhood of Sandusky, and there is no sport that suits him half so well. And while the air of the Castalian stream is popularly supposed to breed mendacity in the most truthful breast, Attorney Knox is said to be singularly free from the exaggerations so painfully apparent in most of his fellow fishermen.

But the most singular part of the story is that when Mr. Knox has a knotty legal point to worry out he takes his law books under one arm and his tackle under the other, and then sits on the bank with his open books about him and angles for trout. Sometimes it's trout he catches, sometimes it's an inspiration. Sometimes he forgets one line in watching the others, and the fish gets away. Sometimes it's an idea that gets away, while the fish is being landed. But between the two he manages to make a good string. And while the Castalia stream is popularly understood to be stocked with trout alone, there is no doubt that Mr. Knox contrives to catch bullheads, and occasional suckers, and a few "lawyers," and a great many "shiners."

All in all, it's very queer fishing.

Enough to Go Around.

Indianapolis News: It is to be hoped that the $5,000,000 congress has appropriated for the St. Louis exposition will be sufficient, at least, to pay the salaries of the numerous commissioners that have been appointed.

Rising In the Ranks.

Philadelphia Record: Not the least gratifying result of Gen. Funston's daring exploit in capturing Aguinaldo is the assurance that goes with it that a private soldier may hope to rise from the ranks to high place in the military service and to have his desert acknowledged.

Success of the Bull.

Chicago Tribune: Young Mr. Phillips appears to be getting there with all four feet and both horns.

TO REVISE STATUTES.

A Committee Appointed to Do the Work.

St. Paul, April 17.—The judges of the supreme court this afternoon announced the following committee to revise and codify the statutes: Hiram F. Stevens, St. Paul, chairman; Daniel Fish, Minneapolis; T. J. Knox, Jackson county.

All three are well known authorities of ability. Mr. Stevens is a Republican. He was formerly a state senator and is a prominent member of the Ramsey county bar. He was largely instrumental in the passage of the bill creating the commission. Judge Fish is an active Republican and a lawyer of high attainments. His appointment will be very satisfactory to Minneapolis attorneys.

T. J. Knox was a member of the railway and warehouse commission under Governor Lind, and is a Democrat. The compensation of the commissioners is to be fixed by the supreme court.

WAR ON SPITTERS.

Thirty-Two Arrested In New York In One Day.

New York, April 17.—So vigorous has been the crusade waged by the board of health upon those that expectorate in street cars and ferry boats, that the nuisance is much abated. John B. Sexton, president of the board of health, said that thirty-two persons were arrested Sunday for spitting in public conveyances. Seven were discharged, sixteen were held for trial, and nine were fined from $2 to $5.

"As a result," said Mr. Sexton, "I find that the street cars and ferry boats are much cleaner. If the papers continue to call attention to this effort of the board of health, I think it will be only a short time before conditions will be greatly improved."

A DENIAL BY LOOMIS

Did Not Say Unpleasant Things About President Castro.

Disclaims the Alleged Interview Given at San Juan.

Steps Taken Toward Legal Settlement of Asphalt Case.

New York, April 17.—Frank B. Loomis, United States minister to Venezuela, spent last night in quarantine with the rest of the passengers on the Red D Liner Caracas, on which he came from Porto Rico. On disembarking today, Mr. Loomis drove at once to the Hotel Victoria, where he will be quartered until the end of the present week, when he goes to Washington to report to the state department and President McKinley. He gives positive disclaimer to the authorship of the San Juan interviews, in which he was made to say some severely critical things about President Castro, and avers that an injustice has been done to him in this respect. To an Associated Press reporter, who met him at quarantine today, Mr. Loomis said:

"I did not say any of the unpleasant things that have been attributed to me about President Castro during my stay at San Juan or anywhere else. The fact is I like Mr. Castro very much. I was interviewed at San Juan, but it was more a pleasant chat than anything else. There were other passengers aboard and present who said some unkind things, but I certainly did not. I cannot understand how the criticisms were put in my mouth unless the views of the passengers alluded to were made mine. I am quoted as saying that President Castro drew but $12,000 a year salary, yet made $2,000,000 in two years. Now I do not even know positively that the president gets the salary named, and I knew nothing of any money he has made. I must also deny that I said he plotted to secure my recall or removal.

"I cannot discuss the recent diplomatic incident with Venezuela. There are several points in connection with it that I will report only to the department, and anturally they are quite confidential. I may say, however, that the preliminary steps toward a legal settlement of the asphalt case have been taken in the Venezuela courts. That is precisely where our government wished the dispute to go. We insisted that the dispute be submitted for adjudication without prejudice, and carried our point. I do not say that our government does not reserve the right to intervene if justice is not done, but we want the matter passed upon by the courts. There was some feeling at the height of the incident, but it has subsided, and our relations at the present time are quite satisfactory. I cannot say how long it will take to reach a decision in the asphalt cases. I presume the law has its delays in Venezuela as elsewhere.

"President Castro seems to have the country quite under control. A constitutional convention, the eleventh they have had, I believe, is just adjourned, and there is to be an election in the autumn. It is quite certain that astro wil be elected president and inaugurated next spring. The constitutional convention has changed the tenure of the president from four to six years. Andrade is, I am told, at Curacoa, and I feel that the report is true, for there is generally a colony of Venezuelans there thinking of home and anxious to improve the political condition. I am told Andrade plans an expedition to Venezuela, but I do not anticipate any trouble for some months.

"Venezuelans who have discussed Andrade with me say that while he is well informed, rather able and quite broad-minded, he is lacking in strength and too kindhearted to make a successful ruler. They say that another leader, a young man, will be brought forward to oppose President Castro. However, of all these matters I have no personal knowledge, and am merely telling you what Venezuelans say.

"The Barcelona incident, in which our consular agent was twice arrested by local officials in an attempt to extort money from him, has been practically closed in a manner quite satisfactory to us. Our government directed me to demand an apology and the fullest reparation. Just before leaving I was given assurance that the fullest amends will be made. I believe that the assurances given me will be carried out.

"I do not expect to return to Venezuela for at least five months. Four years in the tropics have left me in need of change and rest; my physician says Carlsbad, and I am going to try and get leave for a trip to Europe."

The little folks love Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Pleasant to take; perfectly harmless; positive cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma.

Suit Room News

So tremendous has been the selling in our Suit Room that it has necessitated large re-orders of our garments. The Suits have most satisfactorily filled evey requirement—there has been no "lagging," and at this time we find it will require many more re-orders to maintain a sufficient supply for the balance of the season. The first ones received were marvels of beauty, but these eclipse those, as every feature that has proven desirable is well represented in these. We have labored earnestly and persistently to make this Suit department unapproachable in style and low prices. Some of the features possed by our unmatchable Suits are: The New Etons—Bolero Jackets, with vest effects—Blouse fronts—L'Aiglon Collars—Collarless Jackets—stitched Taffeta collars—trimmings of braid edged with gold—flaring Skirts, trimmed and plain—Silk girdles. THE DAKOTAS.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—Etta Mayrill Spees, who came to this city a few months ago with a man named Mayrill and a little boy, has commenced a damage suit for $5000 against Edward Satterlee, a saloonkeeper, for an alleged kiss. The woman says in her complaint that the kiss was stolen in the dressing room of the saloon. On the other hand Satterlee asserts that the suit is blackmail and he proposes to fight it.

Yankton—The members of the state board of charities and corrections appointed F. D. Wyman steward of the insane asylum. The appointment seems to meet with general approval. Mr. Wyman was steward under Dr. Mead before.

Rev. Mr. Buck, who resides about fifteen miles north of this city, drove into a newly constructed cistern and was badly injured.

Lead—The friends of Harry Tier, in the Black Hills, are feeling good over his acquittal. He has been under arrest for several months at Evanston, Wyo., for the alleged murder of Jack Wheeling, in 1875. It was not believed at any time in this city that Tier was guilty of the crime. He resembled the real murderer very closely and singularly enough went by another name at about the time of the murder, that name being the one carried by the man who is supposed to have done the killing. Tier was a faithful employe of the Homestake company at the time of his arrest and it is believed here he has been unjustly persecuted.

Rapid City—A big cattle deal has been made in this city by E. W. Speed, of South Omaha, appearing for the Flato Commission company of that place. hTe deal calls for all of the stock and ranches of C. K. Howard, of this city, president of the Western South Dakota Stock Growers' association. Howard has one of the finest bunches of cattle in the West. His health is not good and he proposes to get out of the business entirely. The consideration is about $150,000. It is believed that the purchaser is really H. A. Dawson, of Pine Ridge, who is the vice president of the stock growers' association.

Pierre—The drillers in the Pearl township well appear to have found practically the same flow of water found in this city. A good supply of gas was secured with the water, and it burns freely on the top of the water which flows away from the pipe. This is the second well in the state outside of this city which has shown such characteristics, the other one being at Cheyenne agency. The other wells to be sunk in that township, and between that town and this city, will probably show the same flow, but nothing east of here shows gas.

Aberdeen—The Coe & Howard Abstract company reports that the transfers of farm lands during March numbered twenty-four, the total acreage figuring up 11,700, and the total consideration being $79,370. The highest price paid for a quarter section was $1000 and the highest for an 80-acre tract $1000.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Horse thieves are active in Stutsman and other counties of the James River valley and it is believed by many that a little expedition similar to that in Billings county recently would do a whole lot of good. It is believed the horses have been shipped out of the state. The thieves have less difficulty in Stutsman county than on the slope, for the reason that few of the horses in this county are branded.

A traveling man reported an amusing incident on a west-bound Northern Pacific train. A young man of New Salem, a village west of Mandan, boarded the second section of No. 11 with his bride. They were about to make a trip to the coast. Much to their dismay they found their sleeper ticket was not available on that section, as the berth called for was in a Pullman attached to the first section. The young man roared loud and long and his protests finally had their effect as the first section was held for the second forty minutes in order that the pair might change cars.

Mandan—Warrants have been issued by Judge Winchester against Peter Schantz, Pat Tobin, F. McAuliffe and Joe Winbauer, alleged liquor dealers, for contempt of court in violating injunctions obtained last fall for violating the liquor law. Attorney General Comstock is here to prosecute the cases which have been postponed until Friday. All four of the men were enjoined when the raid was made at Mandan some time ago and served with injunctions. The actions for contempt were based on affidavits of James McClements that the injunctional orders were being violated by the sale of liquor.

Fargo—The man, Streitwolf, whose divorce was declared invalid by the United States supreme court yesterday, obtained his decree in Mandan and was a client of Attorney Voss, of that town. Streitwolf was a wholesale whisky man from New Jersey and when he went to Mandan he purchased an interest in a saloon with a man named McAuliffe. This was thought to be sufficient to establish his residence in North Dakota, but his wife began a contest on the decree and has kept continuously at the case, carrying it from one court to another until she finally reached the limit and won.

Neche—Marshal Jackson returned with a team and wagon, which were stolen about two weeks ago from a farmer living near Altona, Man. The thieves were captured at Milton, N. D. The reward to the captor was $50.

Testimonial From England.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years. She is now quite well." It is a great pleasure to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be able to publish testimonials of this character. They show that great good is being done, pain and suffering relieved and valuable lives restored to health and happiness by this remedy. It is for sale at Boyce's drug store.

You can get boarders, help, tenants or partners by means of a Herald want ad.

IN MICHIGAN.

Plants of Soo Companies to Be Greatly Enlarged.

Sault Ste. Marie—The Chandler-Dunbar Water Powerc ompany and the Edison Sault Electric company, which consumes the water power, have made final arrangements to enlarge their plant extensively, and the work will begin within two months. The water power is located on St. Mary's falls, opposite the ship canal, and is the most valuable on this side of the river, as it can be economically developed to 60,000 horse power. The extensions proposed at present contemplate the development of 1000 horse power approximately and the construction of a power house of stone 75 by 120 feet, in which the electrical plant will be installed. The cost of the proposed work will approximate $100,000. The project does not conflict with the large enterprises of the Lake Superior Power company, but is a long step towards developing all the water power facilities here.

About two months ago Representative Chandlers introduced several important amendments to the city charter in the house at Lansing. These had not been publicly discussed either by citizens or the council, and when news came of the proposed changes which included a salary raise for the mayor and the aldermen and the practical abolition of the police commission, it was a decided surprise. A meeting was held by citizens in the city hall to protest against certain features of the amendments. A committee was appointed to go over the proposed changes and make a report and a resolution was passed to wire the chairman of the house committee to take no action on the bill until the people here are given an opportunity to thoroughly sift the matter and obtain a hearing at Lansing. The meeting was a lively one.

Calumet—The body of a fully developed male child was found lying in a pool of water near the Mohawk mine location. The identity of the child is unknown. A coroner's inquest will look into the matter. The body was in a paper box and was wrapped in a woman's skirt and nightgown.

Houghton—A. J. Otterson, local agent of the Union Transit company, went to Lake Linden and awarded a contract to David Lamirande, of LakeLinden, to handle all the east and west bound freight from the steamers of the Union Transit company, at Torch lake, Portage lanke and Portage river during the season of navigation of 1901. This is a large contract and includes the loading of all the Calumet and Hecla coppers and all unloading of Calumet and Hecla west bound merchandise.

Lake Linden—E. F. Sutton, a prominent Lake Linden merchant and an old pioneer of copperdom, died suddenly Monday morning from stomach trouble. The deceased is survived by his wife and two chiluren, Mrs. F. W. Halsey and Walter Sutton.

BRANDED.

Jealous Girls Use Hot Iron to Brand Rival.

Binghampton, N. Y., April 17.—Elizabeth Holland was abducted and branded by three society girls because she had taken the lover of one of them.

Miss Holland is a pretty 19-year-old girl whose parents are farmers living between Detroit and Dearborn, in Wayne county, Mich. She came east to visit friends, and while stopping in Delaware county met Henry Morrill, who had been courting Miss Rose Cornish. His attentions to Miss Holland became ardent, and this so angered Miss Cornish that she induced two friends, Pearl Wessel and Frances Burton, to join her in a plan for revenge.

The three girls are daughters of the first families in this section and wealthy. They invited Miss Holland to join them in an arbutus party and decoyed her into a vacant summer residence, where they held her while one of the girls branded her cheek with a hot iron. They then locked the girl in a closet and left her.

All that night she remained in the deserted house, her friends supposing she was spending the night with her friends. The next day she made her escape and caused warrants to be issued for the arrest of the girls. They deny the charges of abduction and said she was locked in the house as a practical joke, but they thought she would easily make her escape.

As the girls' parents are wealthy, Miss Holland will also begin civil actions for damages.

NOW A FRENCH SENATOR.

Left New York Poor and Returns Rich.

New York, April 17.—Great was the surprise of Jules Siegfried when he viewed New York city from the deck of La Touraine. He had not been here since 1860. Then he was a poor boy. Now he is a senator of the French republic and its minister of commerce.

As the ship came up the bay he was primed to point out objects of interest to his son Andre, but the changes on the Jersey shore dazed him, and when he saw the towering buildings of Lower Manhattan he positively refused to be a guide book for his offspring.

"What change!" was all he could say. He will stay at the Waldorf-Astoria here, and will pay his respects to President McKinley in Washington.

Those famous little pills, DeWitt's Little Early Risers will remove all impurities from your system, cleanse your bowels, make them regular. Max Wirth.

ILLEGAL TO FLIRT.

Seven Young Men Arrested In a Virginia Town.

Suffolk, Va., April 17.—"Thou shalt not rubber, nor stretch thy neck."

This sign, hanging from the windows of girls who attend the young women's school in this city, shows that they have joined the crusade against young men accused of flirting by Miss Sallie Finney, principal of Suffolk college.

Flirting with the girls attending school in this city led to the enactment of a state law and the passage of city ordinances making it a misdemeanor to attempt to cultivate the acquaintance of the girls. Under these laws, seven young men, members of some of the best families in the city, were arrested upon warrants, but they were released upon a promise not to flirt with the girls and not to be seen again about Miss Finney's school.

The Suffolk ordinance, under which the warrants were issued sets forth the offense specifically thus:

"No person, under pretense of exercising his rights to be on the public streets, shall loiter near the premises of female of public schools for the purposes of prying therein or holding surreptitious communications with any of the inmates thereof. Nor shall any one accompany or follow the pupils of said institutions on the public streets without the permission of the teacher in charge of said pupils, or otherwise interfere with or annoy said pupils."

The ordinance prescribes fines of $1 to $10 for each offense.

The city ordinance is based on an act, passed by the Virginia general assembly in 1894 and amended in 1898, to "prevent any improper interference with or annoyance of the pupils attending or boarding at any female school.

The assembly's action was the outcome of complaints from schools at Richmond, Fitchburg, Staunton, Farmville, Blackstone and other cities.

Judge Kirby said: "The girls themselves are seemingly in sympathy with the faculty in the effort to abolish flirting."

Cures Baldness

Prevents Hair Falling Out, Removes Dandruff, Stops Itching and Restores Luxuriant Growth to Shining Scalps, Eyebrows and Eyelashes.

A TRIAL PACKAGE FREE.

No Longer any Excuse for Dandruff, Falling Hair or Baldness.

D. B. Cherniss Farmersville, Texas, says the top of his head was entirely bald but the remedies have grown a fine new crop of hair and everyone in town is surprised to see it.

Says Professor Turner, president of Fairmount college, Sulphur, Ky.—"After being bald for thirty years, I began using the remedy in 1895, and in a few weeks thereafter my entire scalp was covered with a thick downy growth of new hair. The whole of my hair was gone except a fringe around the hat line. In six weeks the bald spot was entirely covered. I had been bald for thirty years, and when hair can be made to grow on such a head as mine no bald headed person need fear the results."

Theresa Fennell, Moscow, Idaho, says:—"My head was bald and glossy, but since using the Foso Treatment my hair is now four inches in length and quite curly."

The remedy has cured thousands and no one need fear that it is harmful. We do not ask you to take our word for it or anyone else's. Send for the free trial and learn for yourself just what this wonderful remedy will actually do for you.

The remedy also cures itching and dandruff, sure signs of approaching baldness and keeps the scalp healthy and vigorous. A BOLD WORK.

Van Horne's Audacity In the Cuban Railroad Scheme.

Washington, April 17.—Secretary Root had a conference yesterday with Sir William Van Horne, of Montreal, who is now building a railroad in Cuba and intends to spread a gridiron of tracks over that island as rapidly as possible. He has no charter or franchise or formal authority of any sort, but has bought up nearly all of the existing railways in Cuba and is extending them pro bono publico, taking the chances of trouble in the future.

Some of these railways have franchises which permit them to extend their tracks. Other have none, but it makes no difference. He is buying this right-of-way for cash just as he would buy any other property, and is laying steel rails upon it just as he would build a house or a sugar mill or fence on a farm.

In this enterprise Sir William is showing the same energy and ability which characterized his construction of the Canadian Pacific. On the line he is building eastward from Santiago he now has more than 3000 men at work. His idea is to build a trunk line from one extremity of Cuba to the other, which is between 700 and 800 miles, and then construct branches and feeders at such intervals and at such places as the commerce of the country will justify. In this connection he has purchased large areas of forest, grazing and agricultural land, which he expects to develop on the North American plan by establishing colonies, introducing sawmills, manufactories and other industries that will give employment to the people and utilize the timber, the minerals and the natural products of the soil.

This is one of the grandest enterprises as well as one of the most audacious that has ever been undertaken. It requires a man of Sir William Van Horne's stamp to conceive such an idea and carry it out, but he is confident that the people of Cuba will sustain him in going ahead and building his railroads without waiting for the organization of a government that has authority to grant him a franchise. He asks no favors of any sort except the privilege of investing money for the benefit of the Cuban people. A syndicate of immense wealth stands behind him, which has already subscribed $25,000,000 to carry out the enterprise and will furnish as much more as may be necessary.

LIGHTING SETTLED

Commercial Company Is Awarded a Five Year Contract.

The Price to Be Paid Is $55 Per Light.

The Company to Spend Much Money In Improvements.

The Commercial Light and Power company was awarded a five-year street lighting contract, by the council, last evening.

Under this contract the street lighting is to be furnished at the rate of $55 per light, per year, which is $15 less than under the current contract, and practically the lowest rate paid by any municipality in the country.

At present there are 317 are lights in the city. Under the new contract this number can be increased to 600 at any time or changed to an equivalent lighting capacity in incandescent bunch lights.

In securing this contract the Commercial Light and Power company announces that it will expend $100,000 in improving the present plant. Important changes will be made in generating machinery, and the arc lights to be installed are to be the so-called alternating system of enclosed lamps of practically six and a half amperes and seventy volts rating.

In addition to this the company agrees to light the city hall and police headquarters with incandescent lights, free of charge, and light the fire halls, public library and other municipal buildings at the rate of 40 cents per light, per month.

In awarding this contract, the aldermen have examined various lighting propositions for months. The vote was as follows:

For the contract—Aldermen Rothermel, Krumsieg, Cromwell, Tischer, Tessman, Trevillion, Johnson, Wing, Olson Schaffer, Haven, Barnes, Cochrane and Swenson—14.

Against the contract were—Aldermen Moore and Neff—2.

Alderman Krumsieg, of the Second ward, offered an amendment to have the contract made three years instead of five, during the discussion on the contract. A. W. Hartman, receiver for the Commercial Light and Power company, explained that his company could not entertain such a proposition. Under the contract made last August the company has the street lighting contract for three years at $70 per light, per year. There is still two years and a half for this contract to run, and Mr. Hartman explained that it would be the height of folly for his company to invest $100,000 in improvements on the strength of a contract that would run but six months longer than the present one and on which the company would receive at least $4500 a year less than on the present contract.

The Krumsieg amendment was lost with only Aldermen Moore, Barnes and Krumsieg favoring it.

The street lighting question has now, apparently, been settled for five years, except during political campaigns. The contract is the result largely of Henry Truelsen's campaign for mayor and municipal ownership last spring.

At that time the city was paying $85 per light per year on a short term contract. Mr. Truelsen, then mayor, figured that this could be reduced to about $55 per light per year, if the city would build a plant. In this connection the people of the city agreed with him to the extent that they voted a bond issue of $110,000 for a municipal plant, as proposed by Mr. Truelsen, though he was defeated.

The council that was elected a year ago immediately took up the street lighting proposition and found that it required much time to solve. In the meantime the old contract at $85 per light per year expired.

In August last year the Commercial Light and Power company made a proposition as follows: Street lighting at the rate of $70 per light per year if the contract was not terminated by the city in three years; $80 per light per year if the contract was not terminated within two years, and $85 per light per year if the contract should be terminated within one year.

This proposition was accepted, and the council went on with its investigation of the street lighting problems. F. W. Cappelen, an expert electrical engineer of Minneapolis was employed to make an estimate of the cost of building a municipal plant. On Feb. 2 this report was submitted, showing that it would cost at least $120,683 to parallel the plant of the Commercial Light and Power company, and that under such a municipal system the rate of cost municipal plant would virtually cost $55.32 Commercial Light and Power company paid taxes into the city amounting to $1.95 per light per year, which the city would not receive under a municipal system, so that the lights of the mulight would be $53.77 a year. But the per light per year.

The Commercial Light and Power company promptly met this, agreeing to furnish lighting under a 5-year contract at 32 cents per light per year less than the Cappelan estimate, and at the same time save the city the necessity of spending $120,000 for a plant. This is the proposition which was accepted last night.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets

Give Perfect Digestion, Sound Sleep, Strong Nerves.

A Popular Remedy For Dyspepsia Which Has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

The spring of the year is the time for blood purifiers. It is the season when we think we must dose ourselves with sarsaparillas, bitters and the endless list of so-called blood purifiers and nerve tonics.

As a matter of fact there is but one possible way in which to purify the blood, and that is, through the stomach and bowels.

Pure blood results from wholesome food thoroughly digested. Impure blood results from poor digestion and assimilation. When the stomach refuses to work properly the food remains too long a time, fermenting, forming gases, shown by sour, bitter taste in the mouth, bloating and belching of gas and distress and discomfort generally. Poor blood, weak nerves, sleeplessness and a general don't care feeling can always be traced to imperfect digestion.

This is the reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to all other spring medicines and blood purifiers. They give perfect digestion, the food does not lie in the stomach for hours. They give a vigorous appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves, and wholesome food well digested makes pure blood, and in no other way can the blood be purified. The idea that a medicine, in itself, will purify the blood when the stomach and digestive organs are out of order is nonsense. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by thousands in preference to "bitters," "after dinner pills" and "blood purifiers," because they remove the cause of the impure blood, and you do not have to take them forever to get results. Dyspepsia is an obstinate disease to cure, and a remedy must be designed especially for it and nothing else. Cure-alls will not cure dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not claimed to cure everything or anything except Dyspepsia and stomach troubles, and for that it stands alone among patent medicines. Anyone suffering from any trouble with their digestion will find these tablets will give immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are prepared by the F. A. Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. No dieting nor change of habits is required, they digest the food.

PRESBYTERY MEETING.

The Northeastern Minnesota Counties In Session.

The annual meeting of the Duluth presbytery began in the Glen Avon church last evening. Rev. F. H. Gilt, of Two Harbors, was chosen moderator. The session was well attended. Rev. E. P. Crane, of Grand Rapids, preached the opening sermon.

The Duluth presbytery consists of the churches of St. Louis, Itasca, Beltrami Lake, Cook, Carlton and Pine counties.

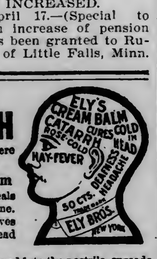

Today's session was also well attended and of unusual interest. This evening Rev. Alexander Milne, of the Pilgrim Congregational church will deliver an address on "John Knox." There will be special music and Mrs. Florence Sykes, wife of Rev. T. G. Sykes, of Cloquet.

OMINOUS SILENCE

Quiet Prevails About the Steel Plant at McKeesport.

The Decision of Advisory Board Is Anxiously Awaited.

General Strike May Be Ordered In All the Mills.

Pittsburg, April 17.—Quiet prevails this morning about the W. Dewees Wood plant of the American Sheet Steel company at McKeesport. There was an absence of idle men on the street and it was evident that the strikers had retired to their homes to await the decision of the national advisory board in session here today as to the advisability of calling out the employes of the other mills controlled by the American Sheet Steel company to aid them in their fight. The strikers had an exciting night. It was reported that the company would make an attempt to bring outside men to McKeesport and that a score or more of men were on barges across the river awaiting an opportunity to be smuggled into the works. Patrols were thrown out and every avenue of approach guarded, but the report was evidently without foundation, as the expected move did not develop. The hammer house was the only department in operation and unless the sheet mills resume work soon the men in this department will have no material to work on after Friday of this week. During the night Manager Coogan received an order notifying all employes in the run out force of the bar and sheet mills to report for work on Thursday, April 18 at 7 a. m. or consider themselves discharged. They are requested, in the latter case, to call at the office and get their money. A high board fence has been built around the No. 2 mill and it is reported that an attempt will soon be made to start it. The plant has sixteen mills.

Members of the national advisory board and vice presidents of the Amalgamated association, who have been called together by President Shaffer to consider measures in connection with the strike, were slow in assembling. Previous to the meeting, Mr. Shaffer said he would ask for power to call out at his discretion, the employes of the American Sheet Steel company and then if he deems it necessary, as a last resort, to extend the strike order to all the plants of the United States Steel corporation. He did not hesitate to declare his intention of carrying out his prerogative of calling out the employes of the great combine, if the resolution was passed by the board. Said he:

"I could not yield the point demanded of me at McKeesport, and I would rather die fighting than lie down. The issue has been drawn; there can be no backing down now."

"We have received telegrams from our members in different parts of the country, endorsing the stand we have taken, and saying they will stand by us if it comes to a general strike."

President Shaffer also wired President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, explaining the situation at length, and asking for any assistance the federation could give if the conflict came. Fifty thousand men is considered by labor authorities, to be a fair estimate of the membership of the Amalgamated association. The association is, according to the statement of Secretary John Williams, in a more prosperous condition financially than ever in its history. Of the total membership 15,000 are employed by the Republic Iron and Steel company, which is not a member of the Morgan combine, and by the independent mills' plants here and elsewhere. Of the American Sheet Steel company's plants 65 per cent of the total capacity is in organized mills. The company operates eighteen large plants and a number of small ones, some six of the thirty plants owned by the combine being shut down and partially dismantled. Twelve of the plants are union mills. The most important of the non-union plants are the Vandergrift, Pa., works, the Apollo, Pa., works, and the mills at Wellsville, Ohio and Leechburg, Pa.

JOY KILLED.

Glad Surprise Brought Death to a Philadelphia Woman.

Philadelphia, April 17.—"Will!" "Nell!"

With these exclamations of glad surprise Mrs. Matilda Smith dropped into a swoon from which she never recovered.

Dr. Thomas G. Morton, physician to Coroner Dugan, declared that the woman died of excessive joy and issued a burial permit setting forth the fact. The joyous greetings that cost Mrs. Smith her life were addressed to her son, William G. Smith, and her daughter, Mrs. Nellie Wallace, both of whom left here fifteen years ago to work in Salt Lake City for the contractors then erecting the great Mormon temple there. Nellie Smith married Alonzo Wallace, who conducts a large mercantile establishment there, and William G. Smith devoted himself to mining enterprises, which netted him a cool $1,000,000.

This was the sixty-fourth anniversary of Mrs. Smith's birth, and her children had come home unannounced to give her a great surprise. They arrived in Philadelphia early on Friday, and at once busied themselves selecting presents for the old lady. All day long the loving son and daughter drove about the city in cabs looking up distant relatives, all of whom were invited to participate in a family reunion at the Hotel Bellevue, where a royal feast for forty people was ordered for 6 o'clock in the evening.

The banquet hall was handsomely decorated, and the two score gifts were tastefully arranged about the table, when a messenger arrived with the sad message:

"Mother is dead."

When Mrs. Smith fell over in a faint her children thought she would come around all right in a few minutes, but took the precaution to send for the nearest physician. Dr. Pettingill arrived almost instantly and applied every possible remedy without avail. With one great swelling up of love and joy in her heart Mrs. Smith called her children by name and passed away.

Mrs. Smith was the daughter of Maj. Lucius Carew Smith, who served with distinction in the Mexican war, and a direct descendant of Matthew Dorr Smith, the revolutionary hero. Her husband held a colonel's commission in the civil war, and her son, William G. Smith, was a member of Roosevelt's Rough Riders.

purple and white, the priests' black and white and the intertwining papal and American colors, with which the auditorium was decorated, made an almost perfect color scheme.

Archbishop Kain, of St. Louis, in full canonicals, ascended the altar at 10:30 and commenced the celebration of pontifical high mass. His assistant priest was Very Rev. Gunn, Cedar Rapids; deacon, Very Rev. McLaughlin, Clinton; sub-deacon, Very Rev. O'Connor, of Carroll, Iowa, and some thirty others. Revs. Toomey, Donlon, Barry, Fitzpatrick and Carey were masters of ceremonies.

The music was Gounod's "Messe Solemnelle," sung by a choir of sixty persons. At the close of the mass Cardinal Gibbons, with imposing ceremony, conferred the pallium upon Archbishop Keane. The cardinal's assistants were Right Rev. Monsignor Ryan, V. G., Dubuque, and Rev. Clement Johnnos, Dubuque.

Following the investiture, Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, delivered the sermon of the day. A congratulatory address from the clergy of the diocese was made by Rev. Dr. Carroll, president of St. Joseph college, Dubuque, and Archbishop Keane's reply closed the ceremonies at the church.

The great feature of the day was the installation address by Archbishop Ireland. He regarded the installation as one of the most important events in the Catholic church in recent years, Archbishop Keane representing the forward movement in the church. Archbishop Ireland's subject was "The Church in America; Its Yesterday and Its Tomorrow." He said:

"I fear not to say that we have today in the United states 14,000,000 or 15,000,000 of Catholics. I speak, too, of the numbers of churches, colleges, schools, convents, hospitals, orphanages and other institutions of piety, charity, education and apostolic zeal, with which the whole country is covered. Those are not the creations of the civil state, or of rich religious corporations. They are the results of the pennies of the Catholic people, the embodiment in brick and stone of the sweat of their brow, of their hard labor, bestowed freely to God and his Christ. Glance down through the naves and aisles; behold the mingled multitudes of men as well as of women that press around the altar rail, not merely on high festivals, but on ordinary Sundays. And follow these multitudes into their homes, their shops and marts as they mingle with their non-Catholic fellow-citizens. Is there upon their lips a word of disloyalty to church? I challenge the most Catholic lands to show me Catholics more courageous in the profession of their faith, more consistent in bringing its principles into their daily manner of life, and if, from its exterior manifestations, you pass to an examination of their faith itself, it is, to the smallest iota, the faith of Peter, the supreme shepherd of the whole flock, to whom they are united in love and obedience as never were more so Catholics of any country of Christendom.

"Three quarters of a century, a half a century ago, anti-Catholic prejudice was dominant in the land, our non-Catholic fellow citizens were not to be blamed; they had not known Catholics as Catholics are, and they treated them according to what they believed of them. But today in America the reign of ill-feeling and animosity has passed away. In America Catholics and non-Catholics differ from one another in creeds and spiritual allegiance, but as Americans, they respect one another and accord to one another their civil and social freedom, all working together in peace and harmony for the greater weal of society and of country.

"The problem before the church of America was, whether the Catholic religion could prosper in an atmosphere of absolute freedom, without aid or prop from state organization or even from compact social or national traditions, whether from its innate vigor, watered by the dews of heaven alone, it could live and prosper. To one who believes in the divine origin of Catholic mills' plants here and elsewhere. Of the American Sheet Steel company's plants 65 per cent of the total capacity is in organized mills. The company operates eighteen large plants and a number of small ones, some six of the thirty plants owned by the combine being shut down and partially dismantled. Twelve of the plants are union mills. The most important of the non-union plants are the Vandergrift, Pa., works, the Apollo, Pa., works, and the mills at Wellsville, Ohio and Leechburg, Pa.

copacy, my fellow-soldier and my leader in all causes that we believed to be serviceable to church and to country, I will this day speak in the name of the church and of America, and say how exceedingly the one and the other rejoice that you are seated in the full panoply of archepiscopal dignity and authority upon Dubuque's cathedral chair. The church of America and America are sure that from Dubuque will go forth henceforward in sweetness and power a mighty influence for good in aid of religion and of patriotism."

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the visiting clergymen were banquetted at the Hotel Julien, where covers were laid for 400. Archbishop Keane was toastmaster. Cardinal Gibbons responded to the toast, "All hail to the great Leo XIII, pastor of the universal church." The other toasts were: "God bless our country, the home of civil and religious freedom;" by Bishop Spaulding, of Pretoria; "Welcome to our cardinal, to our archbishops and bishops, and to all our honored guests," Archbishop Elder, Cincinnati; "The church in the great Northwest," Bishop O'Gorman, Sioux Falls, S. D. Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, having been called to Washington, did not respond to the toast, "Success to the Catholic university of America, the glorious crown of our Catholic educational system." Instead, however, brief remarks on the subject were made by distinguished churchmen present.

me continually. I cannot shake off the feeling. Your letter of the 7th inst received today, encouraging as all of your letters. I don't think I would worry at all if I had you and Harold with me. This I sincerely hope will soon be arranged."

In a previous letter he had intimated that if his health did not improve he would want Mrs. Baldwin to come out there. He had expected to come to Duluth in a month or two to arrange for taking his family to the West. He had a number of business interests out there. Besides the prospects at Nome, he had an interest in an oil well on the coast and was dealing in real estate somewhat in Seattle.

L. M. Willcuts says that it was his ambition to make some money and come back to Duluth to live. In a recent letter to Mr. Willcuts he said:

"I want to get back to Duluth where the best lot of fellows on earth live."

Arrangements have been made for bringing the body to Duluth. It will be sent from Seattle this evening, and friends there will go part way with it. Mr. Willcuts will, in all probability, meet the remains some distance out on the line of the Northern Pacific and take charge. A telegram was received by Mr. Willcuts this morning from Duncan McKinley, saying that Maj. Baldwin died there last evening.

Besides his widow, Mr. Baldwin leaves two sons, George M. Baldwin, of Minneapolis, a mail agent on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad running out of Minneapolis, and for many years on the St. Paul & Duluth road, and Harold, 15 years of age, who is attending school.

He leaves his family in good circumstances, for while his Duluth affairs were not prosperous, he carried life insurance of $12,000, which he has always kept up.

Maj. Baldwin's career has been one of great interest, especially his war record, which is one unusually thrilling and full of startling incidents. He was born in Vermont fifty-three years ago, spending the first eight years of his life among the Green mountains of his native state. In 1847 his family moved to Wisconsin. His early education was of the best and he showed great proficiency, always standing well in his classes. He entered the Lawrence university at Appleton, Wis., passing through his sophomore year, afterwards applying himself for four years to practical and civil engineering. He also read law a year and a half in the office of ex-Governor Coles at Oshkosh, Wis.

When the war broke out young Baldwin enlisted as a private on April 19, 1861. He served four years in the Second Wisconsin infantry, brigaded with the famous "Iron Brigade." At the first battle of Bull Run he was wounded slightly, and at the second battle of Bull Run was seriously wounded. At the battle of Gettysburg he was captured, escaped again and was recaptured; was confined in Libbey prison, Macon, Ga., and Columbia, S. C. He was one of the 200 at Libbey prison who drew tickets in the "lottery of death," and was one of the officers who was confined at Charleston, S. C., under fire of Union batteries in retaliation for Confederate officers said to be under fire at Fortress Monroe. Baldwin escaped from Columbia prison, where he had been confined, and was recaptured by bloodhounds when within hearing of Sherman's guns at Savannah. He was finally exchanged. Such is the war record of Maj. Baldwin. Enlisting as a private he won his way to the front by bravery and ability, being honorably discharged with the rank of major.

After the war Maj. Baldwin went into the railroad business, being general superintendent of a railroad in Kansas for five years. In 1875 he moved into Minnesota, and became general Northwestern agent of the Grand Trunk railway. In 1885 he settled in Duluth. Here he engaged in the real estate business for a number of years and was prosperous, but the financial reverses which caught so many Duluthians seized him also. In 1892 he was elected to congress on the Democratic ticket, running against D. B. Searle, of St. Cloud. He served two years, being succeeded by Charles A. Towne. Shortly after his retirement he was appointed chairman of the Chippewa Indian commission and took much interest in that office and in the affairs of the Indians. After his retirement from office he went to Alaska.

Her Majesty's Corset.

Particularly good for stout women—Nor corset in the world is equal to Her Majesty's for stout women's wear. This has long been an accepted fact, and no other corset has yet been devised that will match it in merit. Its ability to give to all figures the now much desired stright front effect, to reduce the size of the waist, and to mould the figure generally has made Her Majesty's prominent in the corset world. Another corset much like Her Majesty's and produced in the same factory—is the Princess of Wales.

The New $1.50 Corset.

Here is a corset any woman will be glad to wear and glad to pay $1.50 for. It's cheap at that price—cheaper than any other corset sold for the same money. We'll tell you why. The makers of Her Majesty's Corset do not know how to make anything that is not good—hence in this corset are used only thoroughly good materials, and the most carefully tempered steels are used to bone it. It is shapely, it is strong. What more for $1.50?

Cures Baldness

Prevents Hair Falling Out, Removes Dandruff, Stops Itching and Restores Luxuriant Growth to Shining Scalps, Eyebrows and Eyelashes.

A TRIAL PACKAGE FREE.

No Longer any Excuse for Dandruff, Falling Hair or Baldness.

D. B. Cherniss Farmersville, Texas, says the top of his head was entirely bald but the remedies have grown a fine new crop of hair and everyone in town is surprised to see it.

Says Professor Turner, president of Fairmount college, Sulphur, Ky.—"After being bald for thirty years, I began using the remedy in 1895, and in a few weeks thereafter my entire scalp was covered with a thick downy growth of new hair. The whole of my hair was gone except a fringe around the hat line. In six weeks the bald spot was entirely covered. I had been bald for thirty years, and when hair can be made to grow on such a head as mine no bald headed person need fear the results."

Theresa Feunell, Moscow, Idaho, says:—"My head was bald and glossy, but since using the Rose Treatment my hair is now four inches in length and quite curly."

The remedy has cured thousands and no one need fear that it is harmful. We do not ask you to take our word for it or anyone else's. Send for free trial and learn for yourself just what this wonderful remedy will actually do for you.

The remedy also cures itching and dandruff, sure signs of approaching baldness and keeps the scalp healthy and vigorous. It also restores gray hair to natural color and produces thick and lustrous eyebrows and eyelashes. By sending your name and address to the Altenheim Medical Dispensary, 258 Butterfield building, Cincinnati, Ohio, enclosing a 2-cent stamp to cover postage, they will mail you prepaid a free trial package of their remarkable remedy.

A BOLD WORK.

Van Horne's Audacity In the Cuban Railroad Scheme.

Washington, April 17.—Secretary Root had a conference yesterday with Sir William Van Horne, of Montreal, who is now building a railroad in Cuba and intends to spread a gridiron of tracks over that island as rapidly as possible. He has no charter or franchise or formal authority of any sort, but has bought up nearly all of the existing railways in Cuba and is extending them pro bono publico, taking the chances of trouble in the future.

Some of these railways have franchises which permit them to extend their tracks. Other have none, but it makes no difference. He is buying the right-of-way for cash just as he would buy any other property, and is laying steel rails upon it just as he would build a house or a sugar mill or fence on a farm.

In this enterprise Sir William is showing the same energy and ability which characterized his construction of the Canadian Pacific. On the line he is building eastward from Santiago he now has more than 3000 men at work. His idea is to build a trunk line from one extremity of Cuba to the other, which is between 700 and 800 miles, and then construct branches and feeders at such intervals and at such places as the commerce of the country will justify. In this connection he has purchased large areas of forest, grazing and agricultural land, which he expects to develop on the North American plan by establishing colonies, introducing sawmills, manufactories and other industries that will give employment to the people and utilize the timber, the minerals and the natural products of the soil.

This is one of the grandest enterprises as well as one of the most audacious that has ever been undertaken. It requires a man of Sir William Van Horne's stamp to conceive such an idea and carry it out, but he is confident that the people of Cuba will sustain him in going ahead and building his railroads without waiting for the organization of a government that has authority to grant him a franchise. He asks no favors of any sort except the privilege of investing money for the benefit of the Cuban people. A syndicate of immense wealth stands behind him, which has already subscribed $5,000,000 to carry out the enterprise and will furnish as much more as may be necessary.

LIGHTING SETTLED

Commercial Company Is Awarded a Five Year Contract.

The Price to Be Paid Is $55 Per Light.

The Company to Spend Much Money In Improvements.

The Commercial Light and Power company was awarded a five-year street lighting contract, by the council, last evening.

Under this contract the street lighting is to be furnished at the rate of $55 per light, per year, which is $15 less than under the current contract, and practically the lowest rate paid by any municipality in the country.

At present there are 317 are lights in the city. Under the new contract this number can be increased to 600 at any time or changed to an equivalent lighting capacity in incandescent bunch lights.

In securing this contract the Commercial Light and Power company announces that it will expend $100,000 in improving the present plant. Important changes will be made in generating machinery, and the are lights to be installed are to be the so-called alternating system of enclosed lamps of practically six and a half ampheres and seventy volts rating.

In addition to this the company agrees to light the city hall and police headquarters with incandescent lights, free of charge, and light the fire halls, public library and other municipal buildings at the rate of 40 cents per light, per month.

In awarding this contract, the aldermen have examined various lighting propositions for months. The vote was as follows:

For the contract—Aldermen Rothermel, Krumsieg, Cromwell, Tischer, Tessman, Trevillion, Johnson, Wing, Olson Schaffer, Haven, Barnes, Cochrane and Swenson—14.

Against the contract were—Aldermen Moore and Neff—2.

Alderman Krumsieg, of the Second ward, offered an amendment to have the contract made for three years instead of five, during the discussion on the contract. A. W. Hartman, receiver for the Commercial Light and Power company, explained that his company could not entertain such a proposition. Under the contract made last August the company has the street lighting contract for three years at $70 per light, per year. There is still two years and a half for this contract to run, and Mr. Hartman explained that it would be the height of folly for his company to invest $100,000 in improvements on the strength of a contract that would run but six months longer than the present one and on which the company would receive at least $4500 a year less than on the present contract.

The Krumsieg amendment was lost with only Aldermen Moore, Barnes and Krumsieg favoring it.

The street lighting question has now, apparently, been settled for five years, except during political campaigns. The contract is the result largely of Henry Truelsen's campaign for mayor and municipal ownership last spring.

At that time the city was paying $85 per light per year on a short term contract. Mr. Truelsen, then mayor, figured that this could be reduced to about $52 per light per year, if the city would build a plant. In this connection the people of the city agreed with him to the extent that they voted a bond issue of $110,000 for a municipal plant, as proposed by Mr. Truelsen, though he was defeated.

The council that was elected a year ago immediately took up the street lighting proposition and found that it required much time to solve. In the meantime the old contract at $85 per light per year expired.

In August last year the Commercial Light and Power company made a proposition as follows: Street lighting at the rate of $70 per light per year if the contract was not terminated by the city in three years; $80 per light per year if the contract was not terminated within two years, and $85 per light per year if the contract should be terminated within one year.

This proposition was accepted, and the council went on with its investigation of the street lighting problems. F. W. Cappelen, an expert electrical engineer of Minneapolis was employed to make an estimate of the cost of building a municipal plant. On Feb. 2 this report was submitted, showing that it would cost at least $120,683 to parallel the plant of the Commercial Light and Power company, and that under such a municipal system the rate of cost per mcipal plant would virtually cost $55.32 Commercial Light and Power company paid taxes into the city amounting to $1.95 per light per year, which the city would not receive under a municipal system, so that the lights of the municipal would be $53.77 a year. But the per light per year.

The Commercial Light and Power company promptly met this, agreeing to furnish lighting under a 5-year contract at 32 cents per light per year less than the Cappelan estimate, and at the same time save the city the necessity of spending $120,000 for a plant. This is the proposition which was accepted last night.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets

Give Perfect Digestion, Sound Sleep, Strong Nerves.

A Popular Remedy For Dyspepsia Which Has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

The spring of the year is the time for blood purifiers. It is the season when we think we must dose ourselves with sarsaparillas, bitters and the endless list of so-called blood purifiers and nerve tonics.

As a matter of fact there is but one possible way in which to purify the blood, and that is, through the stomach and bowels.

Pure blood results from wholesome food thoroughly digested. Impure blood results from poor digestion and assimilation. When the stomach refuses to work properly the food remains too long a time, fermenting, forming gases, shown by sour, bitter taste in the mouth, bloating and belching of gas and distress and discomfort generally. Poor blood, weak nerves, sleeplessness and a general don't care feeling can always be traced to imperfect digestion.

This is the reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to all other spring medicines and blood purifiers. They give perfect digestion, the food does not lie in the stomach for hours. They give a vigorous appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves, and wholesome food well digested makes pure blood, and in no other way can the blood be purified. The idea that a medicine, in itself, will purify the blood when the stomach and digestive organs are out of order is nonsense. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by thousands in preference to "bitters," "after dinner pills" and "blood purifiers," because they remove the cause of the impure blood, and you do not have to take them forever to get results. Dyspepsia is an obstinate disease to cure, and a remedy must be designed especially for it and nothing else. Cure-alls will not cure dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not claimed to cure everything or anything except Dyspepsia and stomach troubles, and for that it stands alone among patent medicines. Anyone suffering from any trouble with their digestion will find these tablets will give immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are prepared by the F. A. Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. No dieting nor change of habits is required, they digest the food.

PRESBYTERY MEETING.

The Northeastern Minnesota Counties In Session.

The annual meeting of the Duluth presbytery began in the Glen Avon church last evening. Rev. F. H. Gilt, of Two Harbors, was chosen moderator. The session was well attended. Rev. E. P. Crane, of Grand Rapids, preached the opening sermon.

The Duluth presbytery consists of the churches of St. Louis, Itasca, Beltrami Lake, Cook, Carlton and Pine counties.

Today's session was also well attended and of unusual interest. This evening Rev. Alexander Milne, of the Pilgrim Congregational church will deliver an address on "John Knox." There will be special music and Mrs. Florence Sykes, wife of Rev. T. G. Sykes, of Cloquet.

OMINOUS SILENCE

Quiet Prevails About the Steel Plant at McKeesport.

The Decision of Advisory Board Is Anxiously Awaited.

General Strike May Be Ordered In All the Mills.

Pittsburg, April 17.—Quiet prevails this morning about the W. Dewees Wood plant of the American Sheet Steel company at McKeesport. There was an absence of idle men on the street and it was evident that the strikers had retired to their homes to await the decision of the national advisory board in session here today as to the advisability of calling out the employes of the other mills controlled by the American Sheet Steel company to aid them in their fight. The strikers had an exciting night. It was reported that the company would make an attempt to bring outside men to McKeesport and that a score or more of men were on barges across the river awaiting an opportunity to be smuggled into the works. Patrols were thrown out and every avenue of approach guarded, but the report was evidently without foundation, as the expected move did not develop. The banner house was the only department in operation and unless the sheet mills resume work soon the men in this department will have no material to work on after Friday of this week. During the night Manager Cooper posted an order notifying all employes in the run out force of the bar and sheet mills to report for work on Thursday, April 18 at 7 a. m. or consider themselves discharged. They are requested, in the latter case, to call at the office and get their money. A high board fence has been built around the No. 2 mill and it is reported that an attempt will soon be made to start it. The plant has sixteen mills.

Members of the national advisory board and vice presidents of the Amalgamated association, who have been called together by President Shaffer to consider measures in connection with the strike, were slow in assembling. Previous to the meeting, Mr. Shaffer said he would ask for power to call out at his discretion, the employes of the American Sheet Steel company and then if he deems it necessary, as a last resort, to extend the strike order to all the plants of the United States Steel corporation. He did not hesitate to declare his intention of carrying out his prerogative of calling out the employes of the great combine, if the resolution was passed by the board. Said he:

"I could not yield the point demanded of me at McKeesport, and I would rather die fighting than lie down. The issue has been drawn; there can be no backing down now.

"We have received telegrams from our members in different parts of the country, endorsing the stand we have taken, and saying they will stand by us if it comes to a general strike."

President Shaffer also wired President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, explaining the situation at length, and asking for any assistance the federation could give if the conflict came. Fifty thousand men is considered by labor authorities, to be a fair estimate of the membership of the Amalgamated association. The association is, according to the statement of Secretary John Williams, in a more prosperous condition financially than ever in its history. Of the total membership 15,000 are employed by the Republic Iron and Steel company, which is not a member of the Morgan combine, and by the independent mills' plants here and elsewhere. Of the American Sheet Steel company's plants 65 per cent of the total capacity is in organized mills. The company operates eighteen large plants and a number of small ones, some six of the thirty plants owned by the combine being shut down and partially dismantled. Twelve of the plants are union mills. The most important of the non-union plants are the Vandergrift, Pa., works, the Apollo, Pa., works, and the mills at Wellsville, Ohio and Leechburg, Pa.

JOY KILLED.

Glad Surprise Brought Death to a Philadelphia Woman.

Philadelphia, April 17.—"Will!" "Nell!"

With these exclamations of glad surprise Mrs. Matilda Smith dropped into a swoon from which she never recovered.

Dr. Thomas G. Morton, physician to Coroner Dugan, declared that the woman died of excessive joy and issued a burial permit setting forth the fact. The joyous greetings that cost Mrs. Smith her life were addressed to her son, William G. Smith, and her daughter, Mrs. Nellie Wallace, both of whom left here fifteen years ago to work in Salt Lake City for the contractors then erecting the great Mormon temple there. Nellie Smith married Alonzo Wallace, who conducts a large mercantile establishment there, and William G. Smith devoted himself to mining enterprises, which netted him a cool $1,000,000.

This was the sixty-fourth anniversary of Mrs. Smith's birth, and her children had come home unannounced to give her a great surprise. They arrived in Philadelphia early on Friday, and at once busied themselves selecting presents for the old lady. All day long the loving son and daughter drove about the city in cabs looking up distant relatives, all of whom were invited to participate in a family reunion at the Hotel Bellevue, where a royal feast for forty people was ordered for 6 o'clock in the evening.

The banquet hall was handsomely decorated, and the two score gifts were tastefully arranged about the table, when a messenger arrived with the sad message:

"Mother is dead."

When Mrs. Smith fell over in a faint her children thought she would come around all right in a few minutes, but took the precaution to send for the nearest physician. Dr. Pettingill arrived almost instantly and applied every possible remedy without avail. With one great swelling up of love and joy in her heart Mrs. Smith called her children by name and passed away.

Mrs. Smith was the daughter of Maj. Lucius Carew Smith, who served with distinction in the Mexican war, and a direct descendant of Matthew Dorr Smith, the revolutionary hero. Her husband held a colonel's commission in the civil war, and her son, William G. Smith, was a member of Roosevelt's Rough Riders.

purple and white, the priests' black and white and the intertwining papal and American colors, with which the auditorium was decorated, made an almost perfect color scheme.

Archbishop Kain, of St. Louis, in full canonicals, ascended the altar at 10:30 and commenced the celebration of pontifical high mass. His assistant priest was Very Rev. Gunn, Cedar Rapids; deacon, Very Rev. McLaughlin, Clinton; sub-deacon, Very Rev. O'Connor, of Carroll, Iowa, and some thirty others. Revs. Toomey, Donlon, Barry, Fitzpatrick and Carey were masters of ceremonies.

The music was Gounod's "Messe Solemnelle," sung by a choir of sixty persons. At the close of the mass Cardinal Gibbons, with imposing ceremony, conferred the pallium upon Archbishop Keane. The cardinal's assistants were Right Rev. Monsignor Ryan, V. G., Dubuque, and Rev. Clement Johnnes, Dubuque.

Following the investiture, Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, delivered the sermon of the day. A congratulatory address from the clergy of the diocese was made by Rev. Dr. Carroll, president of St. Joseph college, Dubuue, and Archbishop Keane's reply closed the ceremonies at the chqurch.

The great feature of the day was the installation address by Archbishop Ireland. He regarded the installation as one of the most important events in the Catholic church in recent years, Archbishop Keane representing the forward movement in the church. Archbishop Ireland's subject was "The Church in America; Its Yesterday and Its Tomorrow." He said:

"I fear not to say that we have today in the United states 14,000,000 or 15,000,000 of Catholics. I speak, too, of the numbers of churches, colleges, schools, convents, hospitals, orphanages and other institutions of piety, charity, education, of apostolic zeal, with which the whole country is covered. Those are not the creations of the civil state, or of rich religious corporations. They are the results of the pennies of the Catholic people, the embodiment in brick and stone of the sweat of their brow, of their hard labor, bestowed freely to God and his Christ. Glance down through the naves and aisles; notice the thronging multitudes of men as well as of women that press around the altar rail, not merely on high festivals, but on ordinary Sundays. And follow these multiudes into their homes, their shops and marts as they mingle with their non-Catholic fellow-citizens. Is there upon their lips a word of disloyalty to church? I challenge the most Catholic lands to show me Catholics more courageous in the profession of their faith, more consistent in bringing its principles into their daily manner of life, and if, from its exterior manifestations, you pass to an examination of their faith itself, it is, to the smallest iota, the faith of Peter, the supreme shepherd of the whole flock, to whom they are united in love and obedience as never were more so Catholics of any country of Christendom.

"Three quarters of a century, a half a century ago, anti-Catholic prejudice was dominant in the land, our non-Catholic fellow citizens were not to be blamed; they had not known Catholics as Catholics are, and they treated them according to what they believed of them. But today in America the reign of ill-feeling and animosity has passed away. In America Catholics and non-Catholics differ from one another in creeds and spiritual allegiance, but as comes to a general strike."

President Shaffer also wired President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, explaining the situation at length, and asking for any assistance the federation could give if the conflict came. Fifty thousand men is considered by labor authorities, to be a fair estimate of the membership of the Amalgamated association. The association is, according to the statement of Secretary John Williams, in a more prosperous condition financially than ever in its history. PANTON AND WHITE

THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE — DULUTH, MINN.

Her Majesty's Corset.

Particularly good for stout women—Nor corset in the world is equal to Her Majesty's for stout women's wear. This has long been an accepted fact, and no other corset has yet been devised that will match it in merit. Its ability to give to all figures the now much desired stright front effect, to reduce the size of the waist, and to mould the figure generally has made Her Majesty's prominent in the corset world. Another corset much like Her Majesty's and produced in the same factory—is the Princess of Wales.

The New $1.50 Corset.

Here is a corset any woman will be glad to wear and glad to pay $1.50 for. It's cheap at that price—cheaper than any other corset sold for the same money. We'll tell you why. The makers of Her Majesty's Corset do not know how to make anything that is not good—hence in this corset are used only thoroughly good materials, and the most carefully tempered steels are used to bone it. It is shapely, it is strong. What more for $1.50?

WITH A BULLLET

me continually. I cannot shake off the feeling. Your letter of the 7th inst received today, encouraging as all of your letters. I don't think I would worry at all if I had you and Harold with me. This I sincerely hope will soon be arranged."

In a previous letter he had intimated that if his health did not improve he would want Mrs. Baldwin to come out there. He had expected to come to Duluth in a month or two to arrange for taking his family to the West. He had a number of business interests out there. Besides the prospects at Nome, he had an interest in an oil well on the coast and was dealing in real estate somewhat in Seattle.

L. M. Willcuts says that it was his ambition to make some money and come back to Duluth to live. In a recent letter to Mr. Willcuts he said:

"I want to get back to Duluth where the best lot of fellows on earth live."

Arrangements have been made for bringing the body to Duluth. It will be sent from Seattle this evening, and friends there will go part way with it. Mr. Willcuts will, in all probability, meet the remains some distance out on the line of the Northern Pacific and take charge. A telegram was received by Mr. Willcuts this morning from Duncan McKinley, saying that Maj. Baldwin died there last evening.

Besides his widow, Mr. Baldwin leaves two sons, George M. Baldwin, of Minneapolis, a mail agent on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad running out of Minneapolis, and for many years on the St. Paul & Duluth road, and Harold, 15 years of age, who is attending school.

He leaves his family in good circumstances, for while his Duluth affairs were not prosperous, he carried life insurance of $12,000, which he has always kept up.

Maj. Baldwin's career has been one of great interest, especially his war record, which is one unusually thrilling and full of startling incidents. He was born in Vermont fifty-three years ago, spending the first eight years of his life among the Green mountains of his native state. In 1847 his family moved to Wisconsin. His early education was of the best, and he showed great proficiency, always standing well in his classes. He entered the Lawrence university at Appleton, Wis., passing through his sophomore year, afterwards applying himself for four years to practical and civil engineering. He also read law a year and a half in the office of ex-Governor Coles at Oshkosh, Wis.

When the war broke out young Baldwin enlisted as a private on April 13, 1861. He served four years in the Second Wisconsin infantry, brigaded with the famous "Iron Brigade." At the first battle of Bull Run he was wounded slightly, and at the second battle of Bull Run was seriously wounded. At the battle of Gettysburg he was captured, escaped again and was recaptured; was confined in Libbey prison, Macon, Ga., and Columbia, S. C. He was one of the 200 at Libbey prison who drew tickets in the "lottery of death," and was one of the officers who was confined at Charleston, S. C., under fire of Union batteries in retaliation for Confederate officers said to be under fire at Fortress Monroe. Baldwin escaped from Columbia prison, where he had been confined, and was recaptured by bloodhounds when within hearing of Sherman's guns at Savannah. He was finally exchanged. Such is the war record of Maj. Baldwin. Enlisting as a private he won his way to the front by bravery and ability, being honorably discharged with the rank of major.

After the war Maj. Baldwin went into the railroad business, being general superintendent of a railroad in Kansas for five years. In 1875 he moved into Minnesota, and became general Northwestern agent of the Grand Trunk railway. In 1885 he settled in Duluth. Here he engaged in the real estate business for a number of years and was prosperous, but the financial reverses which caught so many Duluthians seized him also. In 1892 he was elected to congress on the Democratic ticket, running against D. B. Searle, of St. Cloud. He served two years, being succeeded by Charles A. Towne. Shortly after his retirement he was appointed chairman of the Chippewa Indian commission and took much interest in that office and in the affairs of the Indians. After his retirement from office he went to Alaska.

DRESSMAKING AT HOME

The Latest Development In the Style of Frock For Young Girls Is a Triumph Over the Empire.

Frocks with blouse waist or bodice are now worn by girls of any age from 12 to 16, and for big girls are certainly neater than the old Empire frocks gathered to a yoke. A pretty model is shown by our illustration, which works out very smartly in black material, with plastron of pleated nun's veiling, and tabs of black satin or velvet ribbon fastened to fancy steel buttons.

This dress can fasten at back or front, and if the former, there should be a false box-pleat laid down the back, and this will conceal the hooks and eyes. The skirt has an inverted pleat at the back and is arranged for an opening in front, which is entirely concealed by the pleated plastron, and the velvet straps fasten over it.

The bodice is attached to the skirt, and the skirt fastens at the front seam on the left side; and if there is a false inlay joined on the underside, and plenty of hooks put in well beyond the edge of the hem, there is no strain and the opening is imperceptible. The cut of the skirt is shown by our diagram, and there are four parts only.

The front, F, and back B, are cut without a center seam and the side gores have a dart on the hips. The position of the pocket is marked, and the pleat on the back. The skirt when joined up, measures, about two and a half yards round, but has a much wider effect, owing to the shaped flounces.

These flounces are really put on perfectly flat, but are cut in a semi-circular fashion, and set out slightly at the edge. The flounces are about four inches when made and are cut about five inches deep. The diagram shows the method of cnutting these flounces without wasting the material, and the lengths are seamed up, pressed and hemmed, and then sewn perfectly plain and straight.

The arrangement of the bodice is shown by our diagram. The two top pieces show the lining, with the pleated velling stitched on to form the yoke and plastron. The lower pieces are the material which just reach over the pleated velling. There is a little berthe trimming of lace round the top, and the fronts are simply hemmed. The little dashes back and front at the waist are small pleats or gathers to give the slightly full effect. The sleeves are in two parts and the little cuff is set on the lining, and the material hemmed and trimmed to fall over it.

DIVORCEES ANXIOUS

Decision of Supreme Court Causes Considerable Excitement.

Few North Dakota Decrees Would Be Valid If Contested.

Many Letters Received at Fargo From Interested Parties.

Fargo, N. D., April 17.—As a result of the United States supreme court decision, declaring invalid divorces granted in this state in which residence was not bonafide, there has been a flood of telegrams from the East from those likely to be affected. They want to straighten out the records, so their cases will stand a contest.

It is a conceded fact that owing to the prevailing custom of divorces, to rush frantically homeward immediately after decrees were granted, that less than 10 per cent of divorces granted during the erstwhile balmy divorce period are valid if contested. But of these secured a large percentage were agreed cases, where appearance was made by both parties. Only comparatively few had bitter contests, and only in these can the question of residence be raised. Many of the latter class, however, included distinguished Easterners, foreigners, titled and otherwise. To add to their troubles a majority have re-married, and the decision of the court not only affects their present status but the legitimacy of many children born subsequently to second marriages. This makes the court's finding far-reaching and creates the greatest anxiety. Applicants for divorces have always been warned against abandoning their residences so hurriedly but much of the trouble has been caused by divorce bureaus, operated by unscrupulous local attorneys, with branch offices in the East.

A majority of the victims have been from New York, though New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New England states are well represented. Notwithstanding the fact that twelve months' residence is now required, there are a number of applicants here at present. Some are English women, whose husbands are reported to be in South Africa.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A Cleveland paper says: The big pool being formed by independent vessel owners will not have smooth sailing in fixing freight rates for the season. The coal shippers are organizing an association to fight the pool. Preliminary steps in the matter have already been taken.

It is probable that Maj. Gen. Corbin, adjutant general, will be named to represent the United States at the coronation of King Edward II.

Rev. George B. Reeser, pastor of the Emanuel Reformed church at Hanover, Pa., fell from the scaffold of a new church which his congregation is building and died in half an hour. He fell a distance of fifty feet and landed on a stone pile.

The $26,000,000 canal improvement was officially abandoned in New York, when after a conference with Governor Odell, the canal adherents and Republican leaders conceded that the measure would be swamped if it came up for a vote. It will, therefore, be allowed to die in the committee of the assembly.

Robert, the 2½-year-old son of James Anderson, a prominent farmer three miles west of Wadena, wandered from his home and was lost in the adjoining woods. The whole community searched for him. A large party went from Wadena Tuesday morning. He was found about noon near Oak Creek. He survived only a few moments after being out owing to the exposure of the storm.

Henry H. Hawthorne, one of the invalid soldiers in the Soldiers' home at Dayton, Ohio, has just received notice that he has been made the beneficiary to the amount of from $200,000 to $500,000, left him by a woman out of gratitude for having saved her life many years ago. The woman is Mrs. Josephine Fairfax, who recently died in the south of France.

The horses and stable equipment of the late George F. Gilman, of Black Rock, Conn., were sold at auction Tuesday. There were present at the sale some 400 persons, many of them prominent in society. Mrs. Helen Hall and a number of her friends had seats in the gallery and in the ring were Frazier Gillman and George W. Smith, both of whom are heirs to the estate. The sale was held at the American horse exchange, New York.

Baron D. Bates, a well-known farmer of Wapakoneta, Ohio, 65 years old, deliberately committed suicide by shooting himself with a rifle. Ten minutes later the sheriff arrived to place him under arrest on a peace warrant. He had threatened his wife, who had brought suit for divorce last Saturday.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

SOCIETY'S LATEST CRAZE.

Multi-Millionaires Form Trans-Continental Train Parties.

Private yachts have now lost their charm. Society, always looking for something new, has hit upon the private train party as a cure for ennui. It is an expensive fad. Only multi-millionaires can afford to indulge in it. John D. Rockefeller will inaugurate the craze by going on a pleasure jaunt accompanied by his wife, William Rockefeller and wife and Banker James Stillman. Here is a picture of the veritable palace on wheels in which they will make the trip.

CURE BY DONOHUE

Pennsylvania Alderman Is Determined to Stop Wife Beating.

He Has Beaten Up No Less Than Twenty Men.

Will Fight to Finish Any Man Who Beats Wife.

Wilkesbarre, Penn., April 17.—"The man who licks his wife in this country has got to lick me the next day," declared Alderman Patrick Donohue, after carefully placing the battered form of John Knisky in the ambulance from St. Mary's hospital. Knisky beat his wife, and she reported the case to Alderman Donohue upon the advice of Father Lynch. Constable Drennen arrested Knisky right after 10 o'clock mass, and his hearing was on at 10:10. He was found guilty forthwith, but before any testimony was taken he had a finish fight on with Citizen Patrick Donohue.

Take notice that it is "Citizen" Donohue who administered the awful beating, and that that same citzen, he being Judge Donohue, will send Knisky to jail for three months as soon as the physicians at St. Mary's piece out his tattered remnants and make him look like a man again.

"This wife beating has got to be a serious matter, and it's got to stop," declared Alderman Donohue some months ago. He fined the next wife beater $10 and sent him to jail for twenty-four hours. The next strong man got $20 fine and forty-eight hours in the cooler. Every succeeding case received a doubled sentence, and the unfortunate Knisky stands to do three months and must pay $100 fine or do three months more. Mesides this he got a frightful beating.

Every wife beater who has faced Alderman Donohue since the new edict was issued has been thrashed first, then fined and then sent to jail. The alderman has beaten up no less than twenty men and every blessed one of them needed medical attention when he had done with them, and he has issued this new schedule for wife-beaters:

"Any man who beats his wife in Luzerne county has got 'Pat' Donohue to fight to a finish.

"Any man who is brought before me, as alderman, charged with beating his wife, will be fined $200 and be sent to jail for ninety days"—this after the finish fight with "Pat" Donohue.

"Any man who beats his wife after I have licked him will have to fight every day for a month. This goes."

Alderman Donohue is a character worthy of study. He came here destitute, and by sheer pluck and perseverance earned an independent fortune. He is not a big man, physically, but he can whip nine out of ten men in the county, and the tenth man don't want to take any chances with "Pat" Donohue.

His office is raided three times a day by children, and he has a dozen godfather engagements every day. He has no opponents at the polls, and has never bothered about voting for himself.

He built a church because the one across the street didn't suit him and he tore down a business block so that the children might have a safe playground.

Exception has often been taken to his rulings, but his decisions stands, the higher courts notwithstanding. Judge Lattimer once called his attention to the law in a case and after listening very attentively Donohue, addressing the court, said:

"That's the law, is it?"

"Then the law's a d—d bad thing and the sooner you quit it the better it will be for those who want to see you die an honest man."

A few evenings ago two young men appeared before him. One said the other slapped him and the latter said the former struck him first. The case was of the most trivial nature. The alderman fined the prosecutor and the defendant $3.25 each. He made the prosecutor pay the defendant's fine and the prosecutor's fine was paid by the defendant. He placed each under $300 bail to keep the peace for one year and made each go the other's bail, so if the two quarrel again each will have to forfeit $300 bail. He then made each take an oath to be friends and not to quarrel, and then dismissed them.

SELLS STOCK.

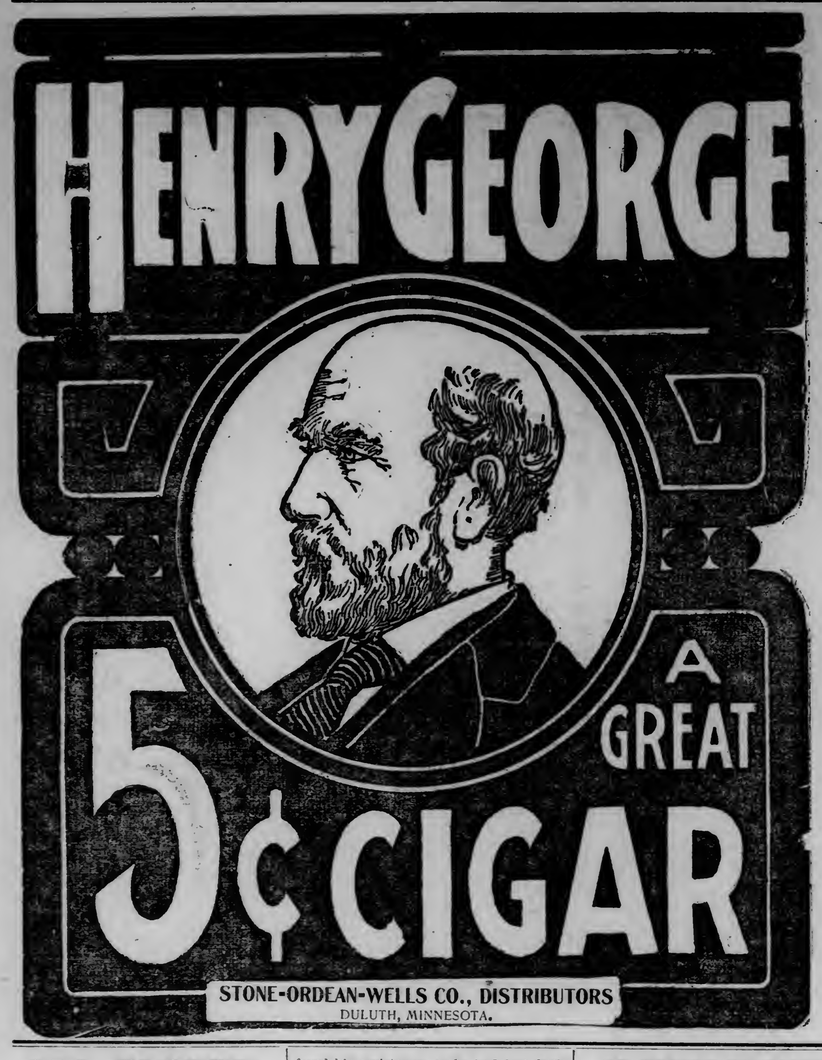

J. J. Hill Nets Four Million on Railroad Deal.

St. Paul, April 17.—It was reported in what are usually well informed railroad circles that James J. Hill, of the Great Northern, has disposed of his Baltimore & Ohio and Erie stocks, and that the operation has netted him $4,000,000. The stocks, it is said, were bought by Mr. Hill simply as a speculation, and it was never contemplated to mak eeither of the roads a factor in a transcontinental system as has been repeatedly reported. Te fact that Mr. Hill had purchased stocks of these roads had the effect of greatly enhancing the value of the shares. Wall street at once jumped to the conclusion that gigantic combinations were being formed, of which one or the other of these roads was to be a component part. It is pointed out that Mr. Hill has always persistently denied these rumors, and has stated that his purchases of the stocks was simply for investment. The investment now having shown what he considered a sufficient margin of profit, he has disposed of his entire holdings.

Chicago, April 17.—The Tribune says: James J. Hill, before leaving St. Paul for the West, announced the success of the long pending deal for the control of the Burlington railway. He said he had concluded negotiations for the purchase of the Burlington system and added:

"There are no changes in our relations with the St. Paul-Chicago line. We merely wanted the Burlington for a St. Louis and Kansas feeder."

Mr. Hill denies the report that the Burlington deal meant the establishment of a transcontinental system, with the Erie as an eastern outlet. He said that the Erie would be no transcontinental line, and that the Erie would be free from alliances.

ALL ELOPED.

An Omaha Belle Keeps Up the Family's Record.

Omaha, Neb., April 17.—A romance of five years' standing has culminated in the clandestine marriage in Council Bluffs of Miss Jessie Free and Merle Myers.

The Free family is one of the most prominent in Omaha's social circles, and for three generations clandestine marriages have been the rule. The father and mother of the bride and his father and mother are said to have been married secretly.

In the summer of the Trans-Mississippi exposition of 1898 Harry Free, a brother of Jesse Free, became enamored of a Midway belle who posed for the altogether, and eloped with her. This marriage was finally annulled after a great deal of coaxing of the young lovers.

When Milton A. Free, who is a partner of the wholesale plumbing firm of Free & Black, saw his daughter's name in the list of marriage licenses in Council Bluffs he knew that another of the family had fallen victim to the romantic craze of the Free stock. He had not been anxious about her absence, for she had gone to spend the night with a girl friend. Since her departure he has had no word from her. Guy Myers, a brother of the young Lochinvar, says: "Yes, it is an elopement, but I know of no reason so far why it should be except that Mr. Free opposed for personal reasons the marriage at this time."

Myers is a brother of the proprietor of a prominent Farnam street drug store. Both are highly connected, and the affair has caused a decided sensation.

A REMARKABLE SUIT.

American District Telegraph Company Is Sued.

Columbus, Ohio, April 17.—An unusual suit has been filed against the American District Telegraph company, of this city, by Mrs. Cassie Bennett, who alleges that by the company's failure to deliver a special delivery letter to her husband she lost that gentleman and his financial support.

Bennett was a Congregational minister. The pair were the parents of several children, among them a wayward son. He got into trouble at Dayton, and Mrs. Bennett went to help him out. Her husband refused his assistance, as he had lost faith in the boy. He wired her at Dayton and she sent him in return a special delivery letter, which was taken for delivery under a special contract by the A. D. T. company, of this city, from the postoffice, but never reached Bennett. He left the city, believing that she no longer cared for him, and she has never been able to locate him since.

She alleges that she has spent large sums of money in trying to find him, and that her damage by reason of the nondelivery of the letter should be assessed at $10,000. The suit is an unusual one, inasmuch as the government cannot be sued, and it is doubtful whether a sub-contractor can be.

FORTUNE FOR A CONVICT.

Heir to One Half His Father's Estate.

Columbus, Ohio, April 17.—Charles Dixon, a Mississippian confined in the Ohio penitentiary, has just received intelligence that he is the heir to one half of his father's fortune, amounting to $200,000. Dixon is serving time for practicing frauds in connection with securing pensions for his comrades in the Spanish-American war, although he claims to have been but technically guilty, and a victim rather than a leader of the gang of swindlers which attempted to mulct the government in large sums in this way.

His parents did not know of the trouble into which he fell, and he kept silence rather than let them know of his disgrace. Recently, on the advice of a friend, he wrote a letter to his father confessing his fault and asking forgiveness. In return a letter came from his sister, the only surviving member of the family, telling of the death of both his parents, under the impression that their son had died as the result of an accident, and leaving an estate valued at $200,000. As no will has been found Dixon will share equally with his sister. He will be released in February.

DR. HERRON TO MARRY.

Will Wed Miss Rand His Wealthy Patroness.

Grinnell, Iowa, April 17.—Dr. George D. Herron will be married, it is said, in a short time, to Miss Carrie Rand, his wealthy patroness, who has been prominently mentioned in connection with the Herron divorce case. Miss Rand came to Grinnell a few days ago, and yesterday disposed of her property here by sale. She has purchased a house on Fifth avenue and Forty-fifth street, in New York, where Dr. Herron is residing.

According to published plans, her family will go to Europe soon, and from this it is assumed that her marriage to Dr. Herron will take place soon. In fact, it is so admitted by close friends. The marriage will be the outcome of the causes that have led up to the social reformer's divorce from his wife weeks ago.

Miss Rand is in sympathy with Dr. Herron's work. She is reputed to be worth almost $1,000,000. Dr. Herron is known to be opposed to the marriage contract. In his social idea the marriage state is tyranny, and the ceremony will be a concession to the other party.

Best Remedy For Rheumatism

QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies, but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. George F. Parsons & Co., druggists of this place., to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

PRAISED THE HOE

President Wright of Georgia State College For the Negroes.

A Firm Believer In the Hoe For His People.

Land For Their Use Much Better Than the Ballot.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Had Markham met Richard R. Wright before he wrote his celebrated poem, "The Man With the Hoe," he might have altered his views concerning that much-discussed personage. Wright is a negro, a self-made man, president of the Georgia state college for negroes, and a firm believer in the hoe, for his people at least. He sang the praises of that humble but useful agricultural implement, and of the man who enthusiastically and vigorously, to say nothing of scientifically, wields it, to the industrial commission in this city recently. And it seems when he had finished, that while in the opinion of many the white man limited to the use of the hoe is a sodden, trodden creature, to be pitied, the negro who can secure the privilege of utilizing that instrument on his own patch of ground is one greatly to be envied by his brothers, for in hoeing the fields of the sunny South the negro, according to the Georgian, is not only securing valuable products from fruitful soil, and thus bettering his financial condition, but he is literally hoeing the foundation on which the future of his race in America must rest.

Politics has little significance to the negro of the Southern country, he said. It is a subject they care little for and are content to permit others to handle. At the same time disfranchisement through educational qualifications Wright regarded as beneficial to the race. Its tendency is first to create a desire for education; second, to inspire a wish for political knowledge, not necessarily political preferment. Denied the use of the ballot until they were able to read and write, they would instinctively seek to acquire the right to the ballot and would learn to care more for suffrage than they have when it was free without qualification to them. It would be, as he looked at it, a prize. With education would come the desire to more thoroughly understand political conditions. At the same time he thought the negro is more interested in benefiting his physical than his political condition. He therefore regarded the movement in the South for ballot reform as a good means toward a desirable end for blacks as well as for whites.

"If the United States had given each of the negroes forty acres of ground after the war it would have been much better for them than the ballot." Later he said that this, of course, would be impossible now, and he did not pose as an advocate of any such plan, but it might have been done in several of the Southern states immediately after the war. What the negro in the South needs at present is education for the use of his hands and the application of his physical strength. On that basis will be founded a social structure in which he can find avenues of application for his mentality.

Witness earnestly upheld the claims of the younger generation of negroes in the South to recognition. It is the young men who are fitting themselves to be mechanics and farmers and who display a desire to intelligently apply themselves. "The free negro is twice as productive as the slave, and, contrary to the popular belief, the old slave negro laborer has proven a flat failure in freedom. This is largely due to the fact that the slaves came into freedom without fixed habits of labor without control." The only industry which has diminished since the war is the cultivation of rice, where the production in South Carolina and Georgia has decreased from 176,000,000 to 26,500,000 pounds. This industry can and should be revived.

The salvation of the negro in Georgia and the future of the state itself depend on teaching the negro to use his hands. "At present there is little or no effort made to improve the colored farmer. The credit system and general extortion are assigned as among the chief causes for a lack of improvement in the effeciency and bettered conditions of negro far labor." The work of lynchers and "white cappers" is another prime cause for the abandonment of farm life for some. Their inability to make a living on the farm is another. "It must be admitted, however," witness said, "that these are not the only causes; general laziness and shiftlessness may be successfully charged against a large percentage of those who leave the farm and flock to the city."

He held that the producing power of negro labor could not be surpassed, if given the same chance as foreign labor. In his institute the negroes are taught carpentering, blacksmithing, shoemaking, painting, tailoring, sewing and agriculture.

Wright advocated as a means of relief for the South and the negro:

1. National aid to education.
2. Education of a few negro youths under the agricultural department.
3. The establishment of agricultural experiment stations for colored farmers, under which farmers' institutes should be conducted.

"I do not advocate the pensioning of the old slaves or the paying of the old masters for the loss of their slaves," he said; "but I do think the government, whose coffers are now bursting with gold, could make no better use of its surplus than to give aid to the educational uplifting of that section now buried with illiteracy, but which is destined to be the garden spot of the republic."

Wright appears to be a second Booker T. Washington, who, it may be stated in passing, has done much for the uplifting of the negro race, and is working along the same lines.

Counsel George N. Pickerall, at St. Michael's, recently sent the following to the state department:

"I am in receipt of an official letter notifying me that it is the intention of the authorities of this island to inaugurate a grand fair or exhibition, in honor of the first visit of the king and queen of Portugal to the Asores. The official program puts the date of their appearance in St. Michael's at July 1, 1901, and it is intended that the king will open the fair in person. It will last three weeks. Undoubtedly this will attract a large number of people from the other islands, and it seems to me that it would be an excellent opportunity to exhibit some of the many things for which we are celebrated.

"Unfortunately, the plans of the fair association do not embrace buildings for the exhibition of foreign manufactures; but I am persuaded by the director—Dr. Aristedeo Moreira de Nolte—that, upon proper application, space will be provided for such a building, should foreign exhibitors care to erect one. Dr. Nolte would be glad to have an American exhibit, and the charges would be very small. Customs duties will be collected on all goods intended for the fair, but will be remitted at once upon proof of reshipment. No objections will be offered to selling goods in the fair, but delivery of goods sold can not be made until after the close of the fair, and a charge of 5 per cent will be levied on all such sales.

"As the heavier kinds of machinery enter very little into the wants of these people, I would think it advisable to limit the goods to be shown to the lighter forms, such as plows, corn shellers, hoes, shovels, rakes, besides carpenter, machinist and blacksmith tools; bolts, nuts, locks and other house furnishings; tin, sheet iron, wire, soaps, paper, oatmeal, etc., in packages; cotton and print goods silks and novelties, men's and women's furnishings, leather, graphophones and similar articles. Most of these things could be sold here, thereby reducing expenses.

"My idea would be for a number of firms to combine and pool expenses and send agents here to superintend the exhibit. As lumber is very expensive and the people work very slowly, it would be a great saving if the building were gotten ready for erection in the United States; and if it were a tasteful design, suitable for a summer cottage, I am almost certain it could be sold here. That such an exhibition would be well received I am certain. There are here and in the other islands a large number of naturalized Americans who would advertise our goods. This will be the greatest event in the history of the island for a century."

J. S. VAN ANTWERP.

THE BIRTH-PLACE OF A GREAT STATE.

Every place has its local atmosphere, but few places that I have known are more distinctly individual than this quaint old town, Chillicothe, shut in by the blue hills which encompass it. It lies in the heart of that princely domain that Virginia gave to her surviving soldiers of the revolutionary war.

The soft flow of a peaceful river adds diversity to the landscape, and brown, plowed fields where corn has just been seeded alternating with vast stretches of wheat, now three inches high, suggest the agricultural wealth of the district.

Chillicothe is the birthplace of the great state Ohio, now verging to the end of her first century. It was the first capital not only of the old Northwest territory, but the first capital of the first state carved from that territory.

The men who made Ohio a state all lived in Chillicothe, and were the dominant men in the territory a hundred years ago. Chillicothe gave the first governor to the state, the first United States senator, the first secretary of the state, the first United States district attorney, the first adjutant general. The first constitution of the state was written at Chillicothe, largely by Chillicothe men; indeed, it is said to have been entirely the work of one man, who wrote it in ten days, but this is disputed. The table upon which it was written still stands in the court house at Chillicothe.

No other city in Ohio can boast of having given five governors to the state; no other city can show so many historic homes.

During the war of the rebellion Chillicothe's sons went out by the thousands to help swell the list of men that put Ohio, one of the smaller states in point of territory, third in point of loyalty to her country.

This later generation gave liberally to the last war with Spain; but the sword is sheathed now, the pen has taken its place. The influence of a noble past, the influence of history, is still a potent spell. The Chillicothe pen instinctively follows the historical trend and writes history in an attractive guise, the historical novel.

Some years ago John Bennett, a son of Chillicothe, wrote and published "Master Skylark," a charmingly pretty story of Shakespeare's time. He has now a story running in the St. Nicholas, "The Story of Barnaby Lee," treating of old Dutch times in New York. This last week, Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have issued the book that promises to be the historical novel of the year, "A Soldier of Virginia." We have had our surfeit of historical novels of New England; it is with a sense of satisfaction that we find that the successful historical novels treat of the life of the middle states and the South, for surely life there was fuller and richer with romance than the dry details of Puritan annals can offer.

Mr. Stevenson's first story was brought out by Lippincott last November. The Bookman for March comments upon its originality, and presents a picture of Mr. Stevenson and a sketch of his life. He is a Princeton man of the class of '94. He held an editorial position on one of the daily papers of Chillicothe until 1899, when he became librarian of the Chillicothe public library, a position which he still holds. His first book, "At Odds With the Regent," is exceedingly dramatic, full of stirring incident and well-sustained interest. The scene is laid in France, during the regency made necessary by the youth of Louis XV.

Mr. Stevenson came to the new world for the plot for his second book, and uses George Washington with singularly good effect; he makes him human.

The subject has seldom been touched, the revolutionary period proving generally more attractive. Thackeray used the battle of the wilderness in "The Virginians," but very sketchily, however.

Mr. Stevenson tells the tale of an old colonial family, their disagreements and tragedies, their loves and hopes. He gives the picture of that olden time with its slave insurrections and Indian alarms. The climax of the book, the scene in the beleagured house, is most dramatically treated, and here the reader is left with a most delightful impression of an exquisitely pretty love story, with the rightful heir coming to his own again, all in the true romantic fashion. The action is swift and the history correct.

It bears the stimulation of great deeds and the heroic figure that helped to make a nation. Mr. Stevenson does not present Braddock with the heavy hand that Thackeray does, and gives much more clearly the awful panic of fear and terror which swept those men through the forest like a tornado, leaving death and destruction in a horrible form.

The author prefaces his story with a dedication which is peculiarly touching, one that bespeaks the reader's good will at the outset.

The original title of the book was "The Battle of the Wilderness." This was changed at the request of the publishers to "A Soldier of Virginia."

The opening scene with its sword play is good, the dramatic entrance of Washington by way of interruption is thrilling, and prepares one for the stirring description of the retreat at Fontenoy as related by Washington, in these words: "With about one-half their number on their feet, they faced about, without disorder, their ranks steady and unwavering, and moved off sullenly and slowly, as though ready at any moment to turn again and rend the ranks of the victors. It was a deed to match Thermopylae." The interest has been led up to the final description by Washington's story of the battle, which is indeed thrilling, and to those familiar with the poetic description of the battle of Fontenoy, readily recalls the stirring refrain:

"On Fontenoy—on Fontenoy, like eagles in the sun,
With bloody plumes the Irish stand—the field is fought and won."

Personally, Mr. Stevenson is not only very good-looking, but has a gracious charm of manner which makes him very attractive. He owns a handsome home on the hill, overlooking the lovely valley of the Scioto, now in its most beautiful spring attire.

A drive today to "Adena," the home of Thomas Worthington, one of the makers of Ohio, brought me a day to remember. I wandered in the garden laid out a century ago. Great patches of "Easter flowers" were showing their last blooms. I picked a bunch of white violets from a hedge nearly overgrown with myrtle, the exquisite perfume was like the memories of a hundred years of sunshine and spring. I walked through aisles of lilac trees, by borders of tall flags and lilies of the valley pushing white points through the soft moist earth. I brushed giant shrubs of pyrus japonica showing the first red of its firey bloom, down alleys of yucca, with sword-like leaves which always seem so Spanish and cruel.

Along one of the aisles leading to the steps of the lower terrace huge snowball trees arch over the pathway; in another magnolias are thick with buds. Peonies are pushing through the earth, and the triangular and crescent-shaped beds in the formal part of the garden are green with tulips and hyacinths just ready to bloom. This is such a beautiful old garden of memories, such a sweet, quaint old place, that I wish I could transplant it just as it is to Duluth.

Omega Oil

OLD PEOPLE—After a man or woman has lived 50 or more years the machinery of the body is pretty well worn out. Stop a minute and think how many miles you have walked in all those years—how many thousands of pounds you have lifted—how many hours you have stood on your feet—how many times your joints have moved back and forth—how many times you have overdone things in work and pleasure. Do you wonder that you have pains and aches? Isn't it about time you did something for your poor body? Get a bottle of Omega Oil at once and rub it into every spot on your neck, shoulders, arms, back, hips, legs, knees and feet where there is an ache. Rub it in good and hard, and the first thing you know you'll feel at least ten years younger. Omega Oil is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for.

Your druggist sells Omega Oil, or can get it for you of any wholesale druggist. The Omega Chemical Co., 257 Broadway, New York, will mail a bottle, prepaid, for 50c. in cash, money order or stamps. 756

Your Father Used Hinkley's Bone Liniment when you were a child

Two generations have known its wonderful curative powers. Nearly half a century ago the pioneers of the west were using it—relied on it—proved its efficacy in stopping pain of every name and nature. Used externally and internally. Sold everywhere in 25c., 50c., and $1.00 bottles.

MAKES WOMEN STRONG

Iowa City, Iowa, Aug. 15, 1900.

My wife was sick for three years. We tried everything without relief and spent much money. Last winter I read one of your almanacs. My wife tried the Wine of Cardui and four bottles cured her. She attended to all her household duties and loaded and unloaded hay. This medicine gave her strength. Formerly she was weak and could hardly get about but since she has been taking Wine of Cardui she feels stronger than when she was 20 years of age. I would we had heard of Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught years ago.

JOSEPH ALOIS EISENHAFER.

No woman has ever taken Wine of Cardui and not been benefited. Mrs. Eisenhafer had tried everything during her three years' sickness and had spent considerable money. She was weak and could hardly get about for three years before she took

WINE OF CARDUI

Now after taking the Wine she can work with her husband in the hay field. That is hard work, but it is not as injurious to a woman's health as labor in stores, factories and offices where thousands of girls are closely confined year after year. With the aid of Wine of Cardui a woman can do any reasonable work and enjoy good health. The health that Wine of Cardui brings makes a woman vigorous in body and mind. Freed from those terrible devastating pains a woman grows well and strong naturally. Wine of Cardui regulates the disordered menstruation and cures leucorrhœa, falling of the womb and periodical pains in the head and back caused by standing or sitting a long time in the same position. Thedford's Black-Draught puts the bowels, stomach, liver, kidneys and blood in proper shape. Greatly increased strength and endurance is the natural result. Most cases are cured quickly. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui and 25 cent packages of Thedford's Black-Draught.

MECCA OF TOURISTS

Also of the Chap Who Has Only One Lung.

The Wealthy Residents In Colorado Springs Are Numerous.

Headquarters For Great Cripple Creek Gold Camp.

Colorado Springs, Col., April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is the Mecca of the tourist, the stock speculator and the chap with one lung. Thanks to the climate, Colorado's mines and the alluring literature of the railroads, Colorado Springs is a growing little city of 23,000 souls. It is a favorite abiding place for the multi-millionaire mine owners, and has a national reputation for the high percentage of wealthy residents. Some of those here for their lungs have wealth. Others hustle as best they can in the professions, trades and clerical positions. All of them, of both high and low degree, set traps for the tourists and "suckers," wherein they are held fast and separated from their cash with neatness and dispatch, and sometimes with a skill and politeness that makes it a positive pleasure to the catchee as well as to the catcher. There is a fair variety of ways here to spend your money, and no obstacles are thrown in a stranger's way. Hotels, restaurants and lodging houses are the most modest in making charges. Things are at low ebb with them in the winter season, and I suppose they are compelled to grab with both hands for what the floodtide of the summer season brings their way. The only way to do is to be a "sport" and stand high prices and a short service as though you were used to them. If you kick and squeal, these trappers of their fellowmen simply laugh and chuckle and say "beans." That's the local slang nickname for the thrifty Yankee lamb that objects to having its wool pulled out with rude and grasping hands. No one likes to be called "beans."

For years Colorado Springs was famed as a health resort and an objective point for the tourist. Then came Cripple Creek, with its mining boom and subsequent development and bullion production. Today, as a headquarters for that great gold camp, Colorado Springs throws Denver in the shade. A daily mining paper is successfully printed here, the only one in the world, if I mistake not, and special emphasis is laid upon the fact that Denver failed to furnish a profitable field for it, and that success and prosperity came only upon a removal to Colorado Springs.

A red-hot mining stock exchange is maintained here. It is said to be in a healthier condition than any mining stock exchange in the United States, excepting no city, and stocks other than those of Cripple Creek and other Colorado gold mines are steadily being listed. It is hoped and proposed to have the best mining stocks in the country, embracing all minerals, handled here. There are mine owners, promoters, brokers, assayers and prospectors galore. Like the Biblical poor, they always are with you, and the man who gets away without making an "investment" either has been through a boom similar to that of Duluth's iron stock days or else has had his pile taken by the hotel men or dealers in Colorado curios made in New York.

But the local money-bags are spending their own money in the town. W. S. Stratton, the father of Cripple Creek, is erecting big blocks, buying real estate and investing in local enterprises. The latest thing is a railroad from Colorado Springs to Cripple Creek, built, owned and controlled by local capital. It reduces the distance to thirty miles, and favorable rates on ore are expected to do much towards making "the Springs" a great smelting and reduction point.

Colorado Springs is really a beautiful town, and, to see it, is well worth while to run the gauntlet of the askers of big prices and high rates. Laid out as a health resort, it has the broadest streets of any city I ever saw. These are well kept and fringed with shade trees. The town comprises four square miles, situated on a plateau. This plateau has two water courses, dividing on the north and uniting on the south. The soil is sandy, even gravely, and any moisture is taken up by it with a sponge-like rapidity and thoroughness. The town is sheltered on the west by the range of mountains, on the east by bluffs, on the north by a spur of mountains called the Divide and on the south by Cheyenne mountain. The ground gently slopes from north to south and has the appearance of being as level as a floor. It is somewhat like West Superior, with West Superior's mud and swamps, damp atmosphere and vile smells all left out. The altitude is 5992 feet above the sea level, and the air is pure and dry and just light enough to make its freshness and purity appreciated. The sun is bright, the sky very blue, and as you watch the fleecy clouds come and go on the summit of Pike's Peak, over 14,000 feet high and a few miles away, you are not apt to regret being on the ground.

I came down here from Denver, 75 miles to the northward. There are several good railway lines between the two cities, but I took the Denver & Rio Grande. Years ago, when a boy, I would hear neighbors who had been West tell about Denver and Pike's Peak. Then they would impressively speak of the narrow gauge railroad which took them up through the mountains into the grandest scenery of the continent. They would repeat the name of the road, and one of my boyish ambitions was some day to ride over the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, the "great scenic route of the world," as it is rightly called.

Today the original narrow gauge track is all standard gauge, with one of the smoothest roadbeds of any line in the West. The D. & I. R. G. railroad system taps New Mexico and reaches westward to Salt Lake City and Ogden. So far as Colorado is concerned, the road covers the larger part of the state. One of the great trips of the world is that "around the circle," over this road. You start in at Denver, go to Silverton, Auray and back to Denver; or Denver to Durango, thence to Ridgway and back to Denver. You travel about 1000 miles. You pierce the very heart of the Rocky mountains and cross and recross the great divide. You penetrate six canons, each of which is a wonder of the world. You climb seven mountain passes by rail and one by stage, achieving grades of 211 feet to the mile and attaining an elevation of 11,000 feet above the sea level. Then there are gorges whose perpendicular walls reach half a mile skyward. You traverse fertile valleys, cross Indian reservations, pass mining camps. You see a whole world of human interest and almost entirely peculiar to itself. It shows things of interest to the student of both science and nature that a lifetime of study could not wholly master.

From the moment you leave the big Union depot in Denver, the trip to Colorado Springs over the road I came has an interest. You pass the dry bed of Cherry creek, in whose sands was found the first gold of Colorado. Eight miles out you pass Fort Logan, the second finest army post in the United States, and upon which the government has spent nearly a million dollars. A garrison of infantry and cavalry is located there.

Twelve miles out you pass Wolhurst, the beautiful country place of ex-Senator Wolcott. A few years ago this place was bare, sandy and almost a desert. Money and irrigation make this soil to blossom as the rose. If ex-Senator Towne had not walked out of the St. Louis convention, and then reposed his head on McKinley's bosom, as has ex-Senator Wolcott, possibly travelers on some road out of Duluth could point to a country mansion and an estate comprising broad acres.

Castle Rock, a bold and remarkable promontory rising from the plain, is a point of interest thirty-two miles out. Casa Blanca is a castle-like rock 1000 feet long and 200 feet high between Greenland station and Palmer lake.

Along and through the foothills the road south from Denver climbs up-grade until, at Palmer lake, it reaches an elevation of 7227 feet, the highest point between Denver and Colorado Springs. To a Lake Superior man, to see Palmer lake "it is to laugh." For Colorado, however, it is a handsome little body of water, well stocked with fish, and something of a resort. An interesting fact is that the water from the south end of the lake finds its way to the Arkansas river, and that from the north end finds its way to the Platte river. Half a mile from Palmer lake is Glen Park, at which the Rocky Mountain Chautauqua is annually held. Ten miles further is Monument park, a sight place—filled with fantastic and imitative rock formations of great interest. Then comes Colorado Springs.

East of the D. & R. G. depot is a tract of about ten acres, beautifully sodded and shaded with large trees. At the upper end, facing the grounds, on an elevation is the new Antlers hotel, the mammoth and handsome successor of the Antlers hotel, a noted stopping place, that burned down in 1898. The new structure vies with some of the big Florida hotels in size and other features, and will be ready for occupancy within a few months. A noted innkeeper in Switzerland has been secured to take charge.

Colorado has other attractive hotels. As intimated before, the city has many beautiful homes, and it is noted for its churches and schools. There is a large and well-appointed opera house and some rather swell clubs for a place of its size. All Duluthians are experts in the matter of municipal waterworks, and they will be pleased, no doubt, to know that this place has "good, pure and wholesome" water. It is brought from Ruxton's creek, six miles away, on the mountain side.

One very noted feature of Colorado Springs is Broadmoor Casino, located at the mouth of Cheyenne canon. There are beautiful grounds, a pretty little lake, and a celebrated orchestra plays to the people afternoon and evening. Broadmoor Casino is modeled after German and Italian casinos, and is said to compare very favorably with them. It is reached by street car or carriage.

Five miles west is Manitou—but my space is gone, and Manitou Springs and Pike's Peak must be left for another letter.

JOHN L. MORRISON.

A UNIQUE FAMILY.

On a cotton plantation on Wilkins' island, a few miles from this city, dwells a most unique family. At present it is composed of Maj. Ray and wife, who are among the smallest adults in the world, and Capt. S. T. Shields and wife, two of the largest, if not the two largest, persons in the world, says the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Maj. Ray is 41 years old, is 36 inches in height and weighs 38 pounds. Mrs. Ray is 30 years of age, 37 inches in height and also weighs 38 pounds.

Capt. Shields is 40 years of age, 7 feet 7 inches in height and weighs 310 pounds, and his wife is 39 years old, is of exactly the same height and weighs 290 pounds.

At present the giant captain and his wife are guests of the Lilliputian major and wife.

Major and Mrs. Ray are Americans. He was born in Perry county, Pennsylvania, and she was born in Franklin county, Illinois. They were married at Yates Center, Kan., in 1891. Capt. Shields was born at Waco, Tex., and his wife in Germany.

Maj. Ray's home is that of a typical Southern planter. His house is Queen Anne affair, painted white, with a wide porch, extending the entire length. He is a model host, loves company and is always surrounded by a company of friends who enjoy his sparkling wit. His private room is Lilliputian in its furnishings and is filled with diminutive furniture, bric-a-brac and curios from nearly every part of the world. He is a great sportsman and a number of guns and other accouterments are to be seen, all made for his especial use.

Maj. Ray is a great story teller. Here is one of them:

Once when on exhibition in New South Wales he was asked by a visitor concerning his age and height.

"Why, you are no man," said the visitor, "in spite of your age."

"In the country I came from," replied the major, "they do not measure men by their inches."

While in Canada one time a man made an insulting remark in the presence of Mrs. Ray, whereupon the major struck him over the head with a loaded cane and knocked him down. The man swore out a warrant for his arrest, but the major made his escape back to the United States disguised as a little girl.

The major divides his time while at home in directing the affairs of his plantation and looking after his real estate interests in the surrounding towns. Having been born in poverty, he has by his energy and business tact accumulated considerable wealth. His advice in business matters is held in high repute by his neighbors.

He is an adroit fisherman and takes long excursions in his naphtha launch on St. Francis river and Big lake. As a hunter he has an unerring aim and woe be to the bird of the air or the beast of the forest that gets within the firing line of his little gun.

Mrs. Ray is very interesting, a fine conversationalist, and makes one feel perfectly at ease. Her husband is her sweetheart and her manners toward him are most affectionate.

Capt. Shields is strikingly handsome, with kind and affable manners. He is devoted to his little friend, and often addresses him as "Jumbo," while the major in return calls him "Babe." He owns a ranch in Texas and was once a cowboy. His wife is comely in appearance and is kind and motherly. Her two sons are with her.

SICK HAIR

Few people realize that their hair is sick when it shows signs of falling and that in its feeble way it is crying for nourishment. If your hair is falling or dry or turning gray it is very evident that it is not enjoying good health; therefore, the only intelligent thing to do is to treat it.

Give it medicine and not dye. Dye is a relic of barbarism, and should be shunned by all refined people, aside from the vulgarity of the act. All hair dyes are injurious, and it is an impossibility to make a hair dye that is not, as nitric of silver, lead, sulpher, copper and other poisonous minerals compose their ingredients. Civilization has progressed in the last decade so effectively that the hair can now be restored to its natural color without dye.

Mme. M. Yale's Hair Tonic

is a life-giving fluid to the hair, and the only remedy on record in the history of the world that has the power to restore the natural color of gray hair. It is a medicine that strengthens and invigorates—giving circulation to the natural coloring fluids and action to the oil ducts. It tones up the debilitated nerve force and STOPS HAIR FALLING in twenty-four hours.

IT CURES DANDRUFF,

makes hair grow on bald heads, softens dry, harsh hair; gives gloss and richness to the natural color, produces a luxurient growth and is a positive cure for all manner of hair and scalp diseases. Scientifically compounded by the great woman chemist, Mme. M. Yale, after her formula from her analysis of the human hair.

RESTORES FADED HAIR.

July 2d, 1900.

Madam Yale.—Your Hair Tonic is all that it is recommended to be. From long and severe illness my hair had become faded and dead; before I had used one bottle the natural color and lustre were restored. It has a marvelous effect on faded hair.

A TRUTHFUL FATHER.

"Judge William Underwood was one of the best men my state ever produced," said Representative Adamson of Georgia the other day, "He spoke the truth on every occasion. His son John wanted an office under Governor Crawford and asked him for a certificate of character. The father complied and wrote to the governor as follows:

"'My Dear Friend: This will be handed to you by my son John. He has the greatest thirst for an office with the least capacity to fill one of any fellow you ever saw.'

"John didn't get the office, but his father lived to see him a shrewd politician and fine lawyer."

"Itching hemorrhoids were the plague of my life. Was almost wild. Doan's Ointment cured me quickly and permanently, after doctors had failed." C. F. Cornwell, Valley street, Saugerties, N. Y.

Practical Suggestions About What to Eat and How to Prepare Food.

A CHAPTER ON CAKES.

In spite of the fact that so much has been said and written relative to the deleterious effects of eating sweet cakes and pastries, there seems to be little if any marked decrease in the demand or consumption of these articles of food. In fact, the indications are that people are eating more and not less of sweet foods. It is hard to rout a custom when inclination and desire are its ready sponsors, and cakes are so indissolubly connected with certain ceremonial and festive occasions, it is doubtful of those who look upon these sweet dishes as promoters of indigestion and its kindred evils, will ever succeed in dislodging "the sweet tooth" or the tendency to indulge it, occasionally, at least. We have not reached that point of perfection yet, where self-denial ceases to be a virtue, especially when it relates to the appetite and taste, and he who believes this end probable has large faith in human possibilities.

Who does not remember that red-letter day in their lives when a birthday cake crowned the feast? No work of art has ever, in our maturer years, appealed so strongly to our delighted senses or love of the beautiful than these homemade birthday cakes, resplendent with candles and decorated with loving if not skilled hands.

Can we imagine a wedding without a bride cake, or a Christmas festivity shorn of the rich plum cake?

QUESTIONS OF DIGESTIBILITY.

Personal experience has taught many the need of self-denial and careful abstemiousness in the eating of such foods, and they regard their case as a convincing evidence of the harmfulness of this form of diet.

It is seriously admitted that these preparations are not essential foods, and there is little doubt that they enter too largely into the dietary of many whose physical tendencies should warn them to avoid too liberal indulgence in these delicacies.

The harmful effect is largely due, however, to the poor and sometimes indigestible materials used in making cakes, as well as owing to the overindulgence in rich, sweet dishes.

It must be remembered that very rich cakes contain an excess of fat. The nature of fat in the system has much to do, naturally, with the digestibility of the other elements. A fat that is difficult to digest, often delays the digestion of other foods until fermentative changes occur that give rise to great discomfort and often very distressing results.

Cakes need not necessarily be unwholesome if proper and wholesome materials are used, and they are not made too rich or combined with many other materials that may be far more indigestible than the much-condemned pastry.

QUALITY OF MATERIALS.

The only way to be assured of the quality of the materials used in your cakes is to make them at home. This art is not a difficult one, and when once acquired, gives considerable pleasure in the preparation as well as satisfaction in the eating. The woman whose cakes "always melt in your mouth" is regarded with envy and admiration by her less skilful friends, who will assure you, with a distress that is amusing to the initiated, that they do not "possess the knack." True, they must first obtain a knowledge of the art of blending and mixing their proportions, and proper temperature of the oven, but, aside from this, they cannot expect to get perfect results unless they use the best materials. For this reason many housewives have considered cakes in the light of expensive luxuries, and with good reason, when butter, pastry flour and a large quantity of eggs are called for.

Better and more wholesome cakes are made with few eggs and vegetable shortening instead of butter.

The quality of flour is very important feature, of course; a specially prepared pastry flour being considered the only thing possible. Many housekeepers object to keeping two kinds of flour on hand, even when able to obtain a special brand for cakes A modern, improved process employed produces a flour that is equally available to the finest bread, cake, and pastry. And this is possible, without losing the valuable constituents of the grain for bread-making purposes.

The baking powder is another important factor in promoting success, and has very considerable to do with the wholesomeness of the cake. Many still consider the old-time method of using a sufficient number of eggs, and vigorous and long beating to obtain the desired lightness, much better than the use of baking powders. If cheap and injurious powders are used, this method is safer. But a good baking powder and fewer eggs will make a far more digestible cake, as you get lightness without having a cake that is too rich. Eggs have a tendency to toughen cakes.

A FEW RULES TO OBSERVE.

When making cakes, have eggs and dishes cool, and if possible do your beating and mixing in a cool room.

The flour should always be sifted before measures. The best granulated sugar should be used unless the recipe calls specially for powdered or dark, moist sugar. Eggs are generally beaten separately; the yolks until they become frothy and begin to thicken, and the whites until they are frothy and stiff enough to remain on the dish when inverted, but not until they begin to separate. A tiny pinch of salt may be added to the whites to toughen them, so they will hold the air more readily; but this is not necessary unless the eggs are not quite fresh and the whites thin. When a vegetable shortening is used, a pinch of salt must be added to the cake batter.

The quantity of flour must be regulated according to the climate or the kind of flour employed; at least one-eighth less of the new process is required.

Sweet milk makes a cake that cuts firm, more like pound cake; while water makes a lighter, more tender cake. Very hot or very cold water should not be used in making cake, the former making it tough and the latter having a tendency to make it heavy. The butter should never be heated, so as to become oily, for making a cake. The best plan is to measure the quantity needed and let it stand in a warm room until it softens, and it will then cream easily. When in a hurry you may pour hot water into your mixing bowl, let it stand a few moments, pour out, wipe the bowl dry, and then put in the butter; but see that the bowl is not too hot.

Cream your butter first before adding the sugar, and then stir that in gradually. Use the finer granulated sugar in preference to the coarse, unless you desire a cake of loose, coarse texture.

Most cakes require a moderate, steady heat. Fruit cakes require the slowest oven, sponge cake the quickest; while others require the heat to be regulated according to their thickness and quanity of shortening, etc., used.

Experience is the only reliable test for oven temperature, and a cake baker depends on the old-time test with the hand. If you can hold your hand in the oven from twenty to thirty-five seconds, or while slowly counting that number, you have a quick oven. From thirty-five to forty-five is a moderate, and from forty-five to sixty a slow oven.

Each cook must understand her oven and its capabilities, as the light or heavy plate and nature of fuel used will affect the heating of the oven.

We have already given full directions for measuring, mixing, filling pans, baking and testing the cakes, but will repeat one or two important points.

Do not open the oven door for at least ten minutes after the cakes goes in the oven; then open as seldom as possible and close the door gently. Allow no draughts of cold air to strike the cake.

Do not move the cake until it has risen to its full height, and then do so as carefully as possible. Allow thirty minutes for each inch of thickness in a quick oven and a longer time in a slow one. Be quite sure your cake has had time to bake before testing it. Let it settle or shrink a little from the sides of the pan and, in a large, rich cake, stop its "ticking" or "singing" before removing it from the oven.

For the large loaf cake, test with the broom straw; if it comes out clean and free from dough, the cake is done. For layer cakes, test by pressing the finger lightly on the center of the cake; if an impression remains, the cake is not done; but if it resists pressure, remove at once from the oven as many light cakes are over-baked and will not keep moist, and the fault is attributed to the flour or baking powder.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

(No attention paid to inquiries not giving name and address of writer, plainly written).

Miss E. Dunbar writes: Will you kindly give me a recipe for making whole wheat bread?

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD.

Heat one pint of milk in double boiler and when scalding hot pour into a mixing bowl with two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a level teaspoonful of salt. When lukewarm add a cake of compressed yeast, dissolved in third of a cup of lukewarm water and flour enough to make a stiff batter; beat until full of bubbles, then add enough flour to make a stiff dough; about four cups in all. Do not knead the dough, but cut and fold over with a spatula or flexible knife for ten minutes; then cover and let rise until it doubles its bulk. Cut and fold again and turn into well-greased bread pans, filling half full; let rise again until nearly double its bulk and then bake. Do not have the oven quite as hot as for white bread.

VANILLA BEAN.

Mrs. W. A. F. writes: Will you please tell me how the vanilla bean is, or can be used for flavoring? Also let me know how the extract is made, and do you think it can be made at home?

The vanilla bean can be used for flavoring by shopping it fine and then pounding in a mortar with sugar and pressing through a sieve, adding this to the milk and cooking for several minutes and straining. Some cut the pod into strips and boil in the milk, but this is rather an extravagant way.

EXTRACT OF VANILLA.

Chop two or three vanilla beans and pound them in a mortar with a small quantity of confectioner's sugar. Then put into a pint bottle; add a tablespoonful of water and allow to stand over night. The next day add half a pint of spirits of wine, cork closely and let stand a month, shaking the bottle every day.

VANILLA SUGAR.

If you prefer you can make vanilla flavoring as follows: Cut up half a pound of Mexican vanilla beans, place in a mortar with half a pound of loaf sugar and pound to a fine powder. Sift through a very fine seive, return what remains in the sieve to the mortar and pound again. When thoroughly powdered and sifted put into small bottles and cork tightly and keep dry.

Granola

is already partly digested (all the wheat starch having been turned towards sugar). When taken into the stomach it is instantly assimilated. The process is not unlike snowflakes settling on a warm sponge. Granola has the rich nutty flavor of the wheat, and is perfectly delicious. IT BUILDS BRAWN. Every package of genuine Granola bears a picture of the Battle Creek Sanitarium. Ask your grocer for it. Beware of imitations. Drink Caramel Cereal and sleep well—it leaves the nerves strong.

BERESFORD ARRESTED.

Lord William Beresford, who recently died in England, was a great favorite with everybody during his residence in India, according to the Toledo Blade. One night after some private theatricals at Simla, a midnight picnic was suggested by him as a fitting windup. So they all drove out to find a suitable place for the frolic, which was a difficulty. At last they hit on a delightfully secluded spot and unpacked their hampers, but it happened to be in the convent grounds. The nuns, who could not understand the invasion of their territory, were terrified, and in their freight they sent for the native police who came and took the whole party prisoners. They in turn were badly scared at finding their chief and the leaders of Simla society their captives. But when things were explained Lord "Bill" said he would make it all square, so he interviewed the good sisters and made the way so straight by his pleasant tongue, that they finished their spree in peace."

Bad Breath

Undigested, decaying food remnants, in the mouth and stomach, giving off pestiferous gases, are the cause of that awful breath, so repulsive as to cause a halt in friendship, affection, love,—any form of intimacy. Nobody can stand its overpowering stench, and it is a cause of terrible misery to those afflicted and their dear ones. There is only one way to cure it—disinfect the digestive canal with CASCARETS! Clean it out, keep it clean, let CASCARETS stimulate the lining of mouth and stomach, and put it in shape to work naturally and properly. Nothing but CASCARETS will bring about the desired result. CLOSES STRONGER

Wheat Firmer on Damage News and Export Demand.

Chicago Selling Weakens the Price For a Time.

Cables Are Steady and Strengthening Influence.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 17.—The wheat market opened firm this morning on steady cables and reports of possible damage in Kansas and Texas. There was heavy selling at Chicago that carried the price downward, but it rallied later and closed stronger. Liverpool closed unchanged to ½d lower. The export demand was reported as good, New York reporting 41 loads taken. The difference between May and July in Chicago widened out considerably today and is expected to widen still more. Primary receipts of wheat were 481,629 bus, last year 388,441 bus. Shipments 321,145, last year 182,918 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 340,000 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 163 cars, against 173 last week and 187 last year. Chicago receipts, 40 cars, 1 of contract grade.

Trading in futures on the Duluth board today was very dull and was confined almost exclusively to the July option. There was but two or three trades in May. The opening was ½c up at 72⅝c. It advanced to 72¾c asked, declined to 72c bid, rallied to 72¾c and closed at that point, an advance of ¾c. Chicago advanced ¼c and Minneapolis ¼-⅜c.

Cash sales were 35,000 bus at ¼c under May for wheat to arrive and 1c under for wheat in store. At the close wheat in store advanced to ¾c under May.

Corn was strong in the early part of the session at Chicago, selling up to 44¾c, but it weakened later and closed without change. Duluth also closed without change. Primary receipts were 307,054 bus, last year 769,351. Shipments were 177,012 bus, last year 1,281,573. Clearances of corn were 380,000 bus. New York reported 29 loads taken today for export. Flax was strong today and again the September and October options led in the advance, the former closing 3c up and the latter 4c up. May, cash and to arrive flax closed 2½c up. Rye was up ½c and other coarse grains were unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 73¾c; to arrive, 74⅜c; May, 74⅝c. No. 1 northern, cash, 71⅞c; to arrive, 72¾c; May, 72⅝c; July, 73⅜c; September, 71½c. No. 2 northern, 69⅝@70⅜c. No. 3 spring, 61⅝@69½c. Oats, 27@28½c. Rye, 50½c. Flax, cash, $1.62; to arrive, $1.62; May, $1.63½; September, $1.23; September Northwestern, $1.23; October, $1.22. Corn, cash, 41c; May, 41¼c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 30; oats, 1; flax 1. Receipts—Wheat, 79,773; corn, 1496; oats, 1556; rye, 2883; flax, 1329. Shipments—Flax, 300.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Gain In Wheat Wiped Out at Early Hour.

Chicago, April 17.—Steady cables, a somewhat less favorable weather map, and light Northwest receipts, gave the wheat market a firmer tone during the first hour of today's session but heavy selling by local professionals soon wiped out the gains. May opened ¼c higher at 70⅜c, advanced to 70⅞c and declined slowly to 70⅝c. Local receipts were 40 cars, 1 of contract grade, while Minneapolis and Duluth reported a total of 183 cars, compared with 175 last week and 187 a year ago.

On damage reports May rallied to 70⅞@71c, closing firm, ¼c higher, at 70⅝c.

Wet weather still remained a friend of the corn bulls and this fact combined with an improved shipping demand was instrumental in advancing corn prices during the first hour. May corn opened ⅛@⅝c higher at 44½@⅝c, and sold to 44⅝c. Receipts were 132 cars, 40 of contract grade.

The close was steady, May unchanged at 44¼c.

Oats were quiet but firm on wet weather and in sympathy with other grains. May opened ⅛@¼c higher at 25⅜@⅜c and held steady. Receipts were 125 cars.

small family. Inquire 321 First avenue easy because of liberal hog receipts and in sympathy with lower prices at the yards. July pork opened 5c lower at $14.25 and advanced to $14.32½; July lard opened 2½@5c lower at $8.00 and July ribs 2½c lower at $7.90, advancing to $7.92½.

Close, wheat, April 70¾c; May, 70¾c; July, 71⅝c. Corn, April, 43⅝c; May, 44¼c; July, 45⅞c. Oats, April, 25⅜c; May, 25⅝c; July, 25¾c. Pork, April, $14.20; May, $14.20; July, $14.32½. Lard, April, $8.17½; May, $8.07½; July, $8.00; September, $7.97½. Ribs, April, $8.15; July, $7.90; September, $7.85. Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 71¾@72½c; No. 2 red, 69¼@71c; No. 2 hard winter, 71¼c; No. 2 hard winter, 69½@71c; No. 1 northern spring, 71½@73c; No. 2 northern spring, 71½@73c; No. 2 spring, 69@72c. Corn, No. 2, 44¼c; No. 3, 43½c. Oats, No. 2, 27@1¼c; No. 3, 26¾c. Rye, April, 49¾c; May, 49¼c; July, 49¼c. Barley, cash, 38@57c. Timothy, April, $3.85. Clover, April, $10.75.

WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, April 17.—The wheat market has been firm most of the day with the shorts showing considerable nervousness although still inclined to fight the advance. Trade has been mostly professional, the outsider showing but little interest. The weather has been the factor, freezing weather reported in Kansas, and bad crop reports from Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma. Clearances, 340,000; local sales, 100,000 bus, 40 loads at New York. We must admit that the character of the buying is of a much better sort than that of the selling and apparently believing that at this time of the year the wheat crop has too many dangers ahead of it, and banking on increased demand, making larger inroads on the supplies, has led to a much better sentiment on the part of certain local operators, as well as some buying orders from sections where wheat is reported damaged.

The corn market has had good support. Philips was conspicuous on the buying side, although there are many who believe that this selling is better than his buying. Prices advanced ½c early, on cold weather, small receipts and the talk of a better cash demand. There were no sales reported today, but 40 loads at New Orleans. There is plenty of bull news coming from the country regarding the scarcity of crib corn and some talk of actual delivery being taken in preference to changing to other months. The absence of cash demand however, makes the dangers of manipulation in the May option inconsiderable.

The future in the oats market has been the firmness of May. Weekly bulletins from Washington claim that seeding is progressing well. Cash demand is not so sharp, local sales, 100,000 bus, with 30,000 at New York.

The provision market has been dull and draggy, hogs were 5c lower; there were 74,000 hogs West, against 74,000 last year. There was no special support for outside speculation and foreigners were sellers. Cash demand light.

MURDERED.

Physician Residing Near Memphis Shot While In His Buggy.

Memphis, April 17.—Dr. H. S. Scruggs, Jr., who resided at Aulona, a suburb of this city, was found sitting upright in his buggy, near his home, early today. A bullet hole behind the left ear showed that he undoubtedly had been assassinated by some person who climbed upon the back of the vehicle as the physician was returning from visiting a patient. The horse wandered along the roadway for several hours before the crime was discovered. There is no clue to the murderer.

NO SALE

Of the Burlington System Has Yet Been Made.

Boston, April 17.—The directors of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad held their regular meeting here today, and at the close it was stated that there was no announcement concerning any change in the control of the road to be made.

The directors were in session more than an hour and a half. What business was taken up was not made public. The statement made at the close of the meeting, and set forth above, was made officially. Further questioning about the matter brought out the declaration that no proposition was before the directors concerning any change in control of the property.

SCORE OF THE PEDS.

Columbus, Ohio, April 17.—At noon today the score in the 6-day (72 hours) walking match here was as follows: Golden, 131 miles 8 laps; McClelland, 85; Hart, 124.9; Barnes, 111.7; Richardson, 98.8; Tracey, 111.9; Stokes, 107.5; "Kansas City Kid," 31.3; Taylor, 87.3; Graham, 91.12; Sachs, 86.11; Porter, 99; Sam Day, 99; Looslein, 84.1.

SELLING PRESSUE

Is Strong on Stocks on the New York Exchange.

Supporting Orders Were Numerous and Held Up Prices.

Close Active and Irregular With Market Under Manipulation.

New York, April 17.—Trading was excited and the movement of prices highly irregular in the opening dealings. Stocks which have been influenced for some time past by the pending Burlington deal were under heavy pressure of realizing and Amalgamated Copper the Chicago Terminal Transfer stocks and United States Steel were also weak. On the other hand, Wisconsin Central preferred, Great Northern preferred, St. Louis & San Francisco, Kansas & Texas preferred and Colorado Fuel rose from 1 to 2 points. Amalgamated Copper declined an extreme 2¾ on running sales of 6000 shares at 125 to 122 compared with 125½ last night. There were running sales of 15,000 shares of Erie at 40 to 39, compared with 41¾ last night and the first and second preferred stocks also lost a point or over. Northern Pacific fell over 2 points and Burlington itself after rising a shade was forced down a point. Chicago Terminal Transfer lost 4 points and the preferred 2½. Amalgamated Copper, however, made a quick rally to above last night's price and strong support was evident in Northern Pacific.

The advantage the bears had at the opening was short lived, as supporting orders appeared in all quarters and the movement was assisted by manipulation in special stocks. Opening losses of from 1 to 3 points in the leaders were entirely wiped out, or largely reduced. Special strength was displayed by Sugar, Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern preferred, Missouri Pacific, Kansas & Texas preferred and all the Southwesterns, which sold 1 to 3¼ above yesterday's close. Buying of Northern Pacific, Burlington and Amalgamated Copper was on a very large scale for both accounts and their full recoveries had a strengthening effect on the whole market. Burlington sold up to 193½ after touching 193½ earlier.

Speculation was quite fitful and there was freer realizing in some of the prominent stocks. Confident buying then developed in New York Central, Pennsylvania, St. Paul, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern and the Tobaccos and People's Gas benefiting them from ¼ to 2¾ and the general tone became strong again. Bonds were steady.

The lowest prices of the day were made after 2 o'clock, Burlington, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Wabash preferred, People's Gas and Tennessee Coal lost 2¾ to 3¼ from the best. Evansville & Terre Haute lost 4, Chicago Terminal 4 and the preferred 6. Heavy buying of the Atchisons carried the common stock more than 2 points over last night and checked the selling in the general list. The resultant rallies reached 2 points in Northern Pacific and a point in other stocks. The selling pressure was renewed on the advance. The closing was active and irregular, with the market under much manipulation.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 17.—Cotton opened steady, unchaged to 2 points lower and immediately advanced 3 to 4 points on moderate covering, impelled by fear of manipulation. The news favored shorts, the receipts being exceptionally large, English cables showing more than a full response to our weakness of yesterday; the crop reports being better. Rumor that of the total New York stock, but 40,000 bales remained unsold had a disquieting effect on the bear element. Dispatches from the mills stated that the recent short time schedule would be strictly adhered to, but that no further curtailment of production was likely this season. A number of the mills were quietly buying spot cotton in the South and in New York.

Cotton spot closed quiet. Middling uplands, 8 5-16c; middling gulf, 8 9-16c; sales, 300 bales. Cotton futures closed steady; April, 8.09; May, 8.12; June, 8.04; July, 8.06; August, 7.73; September, 7.52; October, 7.43; November, 7.36; December, 7.33; January, 7.34.

Ridgely—Indications are that prices will go still higher. Insiders and pools seem to be liquidating many of their stocks, but outside buying is so heavy that offerings are quickly absorbed. So it is safe for the public to retain your bull side. buying on weak spots and taking profits on bulges later on. I expect to make a killing on the bear side, but the time is not yet.

Fleet to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The market has taken an immense amount of new business very well. Prices are too high, but the immense public buying may cause another upward move. Would advise extreme caution and to take profits.

McIntyre & Marshall—The completion of the Q. deal may be made the basis of further advance, but it would seem to be the part of imprudence to take profits on long stocks while there is a good market to sell on. While we see no signs of a break a reaction may occur at any time.

WHITEMAN

Gets Two Years and a Half For Passing Bad Check.

New York, April 17.—Alonzo J. Whiteman, formerly of Minnesota, convicted of passing a bad check, was today sentenced to two and a half years' imprisonment. Judge Foster granted a certificate of reasonable doubt until Friday.

CLOTHIERS.

Chicago Will Shortly Join the National Association.

Chicago, April 17.—Representatives from the National Association of Clothiers, who have been in the city for the last three days, left today with the assurance that the Chicago market would join the organization. The announcement is of the greatest interest to the trade throughout the country and is said to mean the affiliation of the Western, Northwestern and the Southwestern with the Eastern wholesalers and makers. Hitherto, the association has been confined to the markets of New York, Buffalo, Rochester, Baltimore, Syracuse, Utica and Philadelphia, representing an annual business of more than $100,000,000.

Interchange of credits and general improvement of the trade and methods of business are the principal objects of the association.

CATHOLIC CLAIMS.

France Confirms Report of Her Protectorate.

Paris, April 17.—The foreign office confirms the dispatch from Washington, saying France will take charge of the Catholic claims against China, explaining that this act is in accordance with her traditional protectorate over the Catholic missions in the far East. But France does not intend to press the claims of other Catholics than the French, unless requested by them to do so. It is expected, however, that all the Catholics of Latin countries will place their claims in her hands. The German missions in Shan Tung rely upon their own government.

TIRESOME.

Army Officers Believe the Regulars Can Do No Wrong.

Washington, April 17.—Gen. MacArthur is supposed to be making a most careful investigation into the conditions in the commissary department at Manilla, and probably is withholding a response to the department's request for information until he is in possession of all the facts. The arrests at Manilla in connection with the alleged commissary frauds form the principal topic of discussion among army officers here. It may be noted that the opinion is general that the frauds will be found to have been confined to one or two volunteer officers, and some of the non-commissioned force. The officers here are quite sure that none of the regulars will come out of the investigation with tarnished reputations, and the most they are prepared to admit is that some of the regular officers of the department may have been guilty of over confidence and have leaned upon unworthy supports.

NEWMARKET RACES.

London, April 17.—At the second day's racing at Newmarket today an alleged selling plate of 100 sovereigns added to a sweepstakes of five sovereigns each for starters, five furlongs for 2-year-olds and upwards, was won by Valenza, with Patsy McDermott (American) up. Oxbridge came in second with Danny Maher up and Loth Doon was third. Eleven horses ran.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

The late Benjamin D. Stillman was not only a distinguished lawyer and Yale's oldest graduate at the time of his death, but he was likewise the owner of a remarkably valuable piece of real estate, says the Boston Herald. It is located at the corner of Broadway and Wall street, New York, being about thirty by forty feet in size, and it enjoys the reputation of being the most valuable piece of ground in New York, if not in the world. Its little 4-story brick building has been overshadowed by the skyscrapers on all sides of it. Mr. Stillman persistently refused all offers to buy the property. At one time he was offered $540,000 for it. This would be at the rate of $450 a square foot, or about $50 a square foot more than the tip-top price hitherto paid for land in that city.

TAKE OUT CARGOES

Sensational Move Made In the Marine Engineers' Strike.

All Ships to Be Tied Up Pending a Settlement.

Reported That All the Companies Are Working Together.

Chicago, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A sensational move was made in the marine engineers' strike today, which will send the loaded steamers of the great lake and rail lines, between Chicago and Duluth and Lake Erie, to the elevators to have their cargoes taken out. Then the ships will be tied to the dock, pending the end of the strike. The Chicago agents of the lines were ordered to make arrangements for the unloading of the steamers. They found that, owing to the condition of the market the expense involved would not be large. All the lines, except the Lehigh Valley, have some grain on board their boats. Doubtless the first steamer to be unloaded will be the Mohawk, of the New York Central line. It is said that all the companies are acting together, and from the time the telegraph messages were received from the different managers today it was believed they were sent after a general conference at Buffalo.

This stoppage of business by these important arteries of traffic between Chicago and the seaboard will have a widespread effect. Under ordinary circumstances the Lake Erie line steamers would now be about ready to begin business for the season. As it is, there is not an engineer on any of the ships, so far as known. Not a move has been made to start out. The Marine Engineers' association made strong efforts to cause the lines to withdraw from the Lake Carriers' association, but in this it did not succeed. The action today would indicate a determination to fight it out to the end.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vessels can now reach Lake Superior with little if any trouble. The ice embargo was raised by northerly winds and rain yesterday and last night.

CHI PSI FRATERNITY.

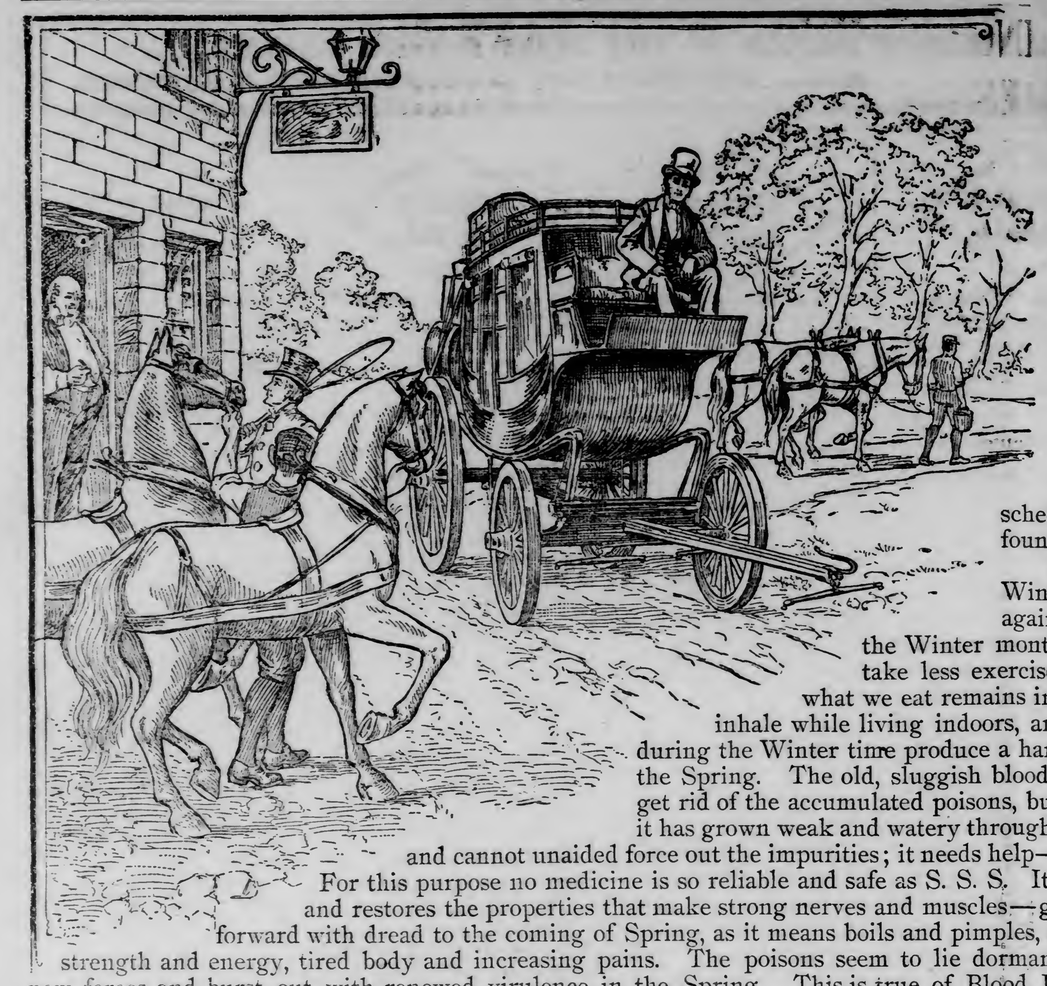

Seventh Annual Convention Is on at Chicago.

Chicago, April 17.—College men from various parts of the country gathered here today to attend the sixtieth annual convention of the Chi Psi fraternity. Eighteen colleges and universities were represented by delegates, who voted on questions of interest to the order. President Elbridge T. Gerry, of New York, was unable to be present. A banquet will be given Friday night and among the speakers expected are Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan; J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska; Henry M. Duffield, of Detroit, and Judge Amos M. Thayer, of St. Louis.

CHANGE HORSES.

BE AS KIND TO YOURSELF AS YOU ARE TO YOUR HORSE.

NEW BLOOD AND STRONG NERVES THE BEST TEAM TO CARRY YOU OVER THE DEBILITATING EFFECTS OF SPRING, AND PULL YOU THROUGH THE EXHAUSTING HEAT OF SUMMER.

In the days of the stage coach it was customary to change horses every few miles, the tired, jaded team was replaced with well rested, spirited animals. Quicker schedules, well-pleased passengers and longer-lived animals was the result. This was found to be the best policy, viewed from a humanitarian or business stand-point.

Spring is the half-way house, the relay station between the extreme cold of Winter and the scorching heat of Summer. Build up your system now and fortify against the diseases that are sure to come with the approach of hot weather. During the Winter months we are apt to give free rein to our appetites and eat more and richer food and take less exercise. The excretory organs are overworked, and much of the non-usable part of what we eat remains in the system to poison the blood. The impure air we breathe, and the gasses we inhale while living indoors, are carried through the lungs into the blood. The seeds of disease that are sown during the Winter time produce a harvest of aches and pains in the Spring. The old, sluggish blood makes an extra effort to get rid of the accumulated poisons, but its vitality has been lost; it has grown weak and watery through the absorption of poisons, and cannot unaided force out the impurities; it needs help—something to invigorate and build it up.

SPRING TERRORS:

ECZEMA, TETTER, BOILS, PIMPLES, ACNE, PSORIASIS, CARBUNCLES, SALT RHEUM, RHEUMATISM, BLOOD POISON.

For this purpose no medicine is so reliable and safe as S. S. S. It purifies and enriches the diseased blood and restores the properties that make strong nerves and muscles—good digestion and appetite. Many look forward with dread to the coming of Spring, as it means boils and pimples, a burning, itching, irritated skin, loss of strength and energy, tired body and increasing pains. The poisons seem to lie dormant during the Winter, but are gathering new forces and burst out with renewed virulence in the Spring. This is true of Blood Poison, Scrofula, Eczema, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Tetter, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Acne, and all diseases that are dependent upon some virus, germ or humor in the blood. As every organ, tissue and nerve in the human body is nourished by the blood, it is absolutely essential that this vital fluid be kept pure. When you feel listless, lifeless, nervous and tired, you need a tonic, 'tis true, but you need a blood purifier more.

SSS

In S. S. S. you have not only the best tonic, but a blood purifier without an equal. It invigorates and cleanses the blood, which in turn carries health and strength to the weak, tired nerves. S. S. S., if taken in time, will prevent the return of your Eczema, Tetter, or whatever skin disease you may be troubled with. It removes from the blood the morbid, noxious properties that produce boils and carbuncles and all eruptive, irritating diseases. A rough, oily, pimply skin is most annoying and humiliating to both men and women. A poor condition of the blood is the cause, and only a blood purifier such as S. S. S. can bring the relief so much desired. It destroys all poisons, humors or germs in the blood, and gives the rich, new blood that you must have to overcome disease and keep you in vigorous health. It puts your system in the best possible condition to begin the Summer campaign. S. S. S. is strictly a vegetable remedy, composed of roots and herbs of wonderful purifying and tonic properties. If you have any blood or skin affection, write our physicians, and you can have the best medical advice without any cost to you whatever. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases sent free on application. Interesting Matrimonial Question Has Arisen In Kentucky.

Mrs. Bartlett Sued For Divorce From Her Husband.

Now Charges John Abney With Breach of Promise.

Owensboro, Ky., April 17.—An interesting matrimonial question has arisen in McLean county, an adjoining county to this (Daviess), and a suit is promised in the circuit court there, which, if brought, as it is threatened to be, will result in much interest not only to those who grow weary of the marriage tie, but to lawyers as well.

Some time ago Mrs. James Bartlett, a young and handsome woman, went to an attorney at Calhoun for the purpose of having a divorce suit brought against her husband, who had abandoned her. She was accompanied by John Abney, a single man and a prosperous young farmer of the county, who, it is said, agreed to aid in the production of testimony and to be responsible for the payment of the lawyer's fee and the costs.

It appeared at the time that when the divorce was granted Mrs. Bartlett and Abney were to be married. Bartlett was a non-resident of the state, and in order to give the court jurisdiction over him it was explained by the lawyer that he must be constructively summoned, and this required time. A warning order was duly made by the clerk of the court, the proof taken, and the case is about ready to be submitted to the court for judgment.

Abney, however, grew weary of the law's delay, eloped with another woman and has left Mrs. Bartlett in the lurch. Now she has consulted her lawyer with a view off bringing a breach of promise suit against Abney, who was to marry her when the divorce was granted, and the question is as to whether she can maintain such an action.

PECULIAR

Provision Made In Will of New York Millionaire.

New York, April 17.—The last will and testament of the late James Jennings McComb, the millionaire of Dobbs Ferry, filed in the Westchester county surrogate's court, is dated June 9, 1892. No estimate of the value of the estate is given, but it is supposed to reach $6,000,000. The will disposes of much real estate in New Orleans and Memphis to numerous nephews and nieces.

One of the peculiar features of the will is that the dead man makes provision for his daughter Fannie on condition that she marries a Louis Herzog named in the will. The clause reads:

"In case my daughter Fannie shall marry Louis Herzog, the provision she shall enjoy from my estate shall be an annuity of $15,000 a year as long as she shall live, free and clear from any enjoyment or interference therewith on the part of her husband. Upon her death $300,000 shall be divided between her children."

Besides the homestead in Dobbs Ferry, where Mr. McComb died, and the Madrid apartment house at Fifty-ninth street and Seventh avenue, he leaves $30,000 a year for expenses to his wife.

CABLE FLASHES.

Seven new cases of the bubonic plague have been reported at Cape Town, three of them being Europeans. There have been five deaths, one of them being a European.

The coronation of King Edward will take place at the end of June, 1902. Westminster Abbey, according to Truth, will be entirely closed to the public for four months prior to the event, and all services will be suspended, in order to prepare the interior for the ceremony. The details of the ceremonial will be settled next week by a committee of the privy council.

The German Fleet society is reported to be financially embarrassed, owing to the heavy expenses of the staff sent to China and to the outlay upon the organ of the society. It is understood the annual meeting called for Sunday next will lead to a sharp discussion of the society's financial affairs.

FULL OF NEEDLES

The Peculiar Plight of a Servant Girl Near Paris.

One Hundred and Twenty Needles Taken From Body.

Swallowed Them Some Years Previously--Case Unprecedented.

Paris, April 17.—A dispatch from St. Germain, near this city, describing the extraordinary case of Julienne Landreux, a servant girl from whose body dozens of needles were being extracted. The girl complained of considerable irritation of the skin last Thursday and went to a local druggist who found a number of needles emerging from various parts of her body. He extracted them with pinchers. The girl has returned several times a day since and up to this morning, the druggist has drawn 120 needles from her arms, hands, feet, breast, the lobe of her ear, her eyelids and the corner of her eye. The girl experiences no pain until she feels the needle piercing the epidermis. The needles always emerge thick end first and unless immediately extracted immediately disappear again.

Two reputable newspapers—the Matin and the Temps—have investigated the matter and vouch for the authenticity of the story.

Mlle. Landreux says that five years ago, when she was 11 years old she amused herself with other children by swallowing quantities of needles. She swallowed forty-nine in one day and never felt any inconvenience until recently and has enjoyed the best of health. While relating the foregoing to the reporter of the Temps who saw her at the druggist's she exclaimed: "I fell one in my eye now." The druggist then upturned her right eyelid and with a magnet drew out four fragments of needles.

A surgeon of the hospital of LaSalpetriere said in an interview that the case was quite unprecendented. Needles inserted under the skin have been borne through the muscles, but there was no record of a needle introduced into the stomach emerging from the lobe of the ear. In such a case the needle must have traversed the skull which is incomprehensible.

SINGULAR

Part June 29 Has Played In David Winget's Life.

Columbus, Ohio, April 17.—By a singular coincidence the date of June 29, on which David Winget will be electrocuted at the penitentiary, is the date upon which he performed the two most notable exploits of his life while a soldier in the Union army during the war of the rebellion.

On June 29, 1862, he saved the life of the present chaplain of the national house of representatives, who had been shot down during a charge on the Confederate trenches and left for dead by his comrades during their retreat. At the risk of his life Winget picked up his wounded comrade, and on his back carried him to a place of safety. The chaplain secured the name of his preserver, and, although he has never seen him since, he has a most lively sense of gratitude for the preservation of his life. He has done all in his power to save Winget from the electrocution chair, but the latter has a bad record since he left the regular army, and the murder of young Fred Blancke, for which he has twice been convicted of first degree murder, was a deliberate and cold-blooded one.

On June 29, 1863, Winget, with a small force of soldiers, planted a gun which commanded the almost impregnable stronghold of the Confederate forces at Vicksburg, and when the morning light dawned opened fire on it, silencing its guns and making a Union victory possible. On the morning of June 29, 1901, Winget will enter the electrocution chamber, there to pay to the law the penalty of his crime. He is a morose, sullen man, who expresses no regret for his crime and asks no favors of the law.

HILL PLEADS

With the President to Pardon Alexander McKenzie.

Washington, April 17.—If Alexander McKenzie is not pardoned, it will not be because pressure in his behalf has not been strong. It has leaked out that James J. Hill and Dan Lamont made a special trip from New York recently and saw the president in McKenzie's behalf. At the time of the visit nothing was made public, and all that the newspapers could get hold of was the statement that the two men had come over from New York to see the president on some "personal matter." They arrived at noon, had a short lunch at the Arlington and then went straight to the White House, where they stayed until half past 2, taking the 3 o'clock train back to New York. The interview with the president had been arranged in advance, for the visitors were admitted to his presence as soon as they showed themselves.

McKenzie was for years very close to Hill in the Northwest and Hill was very willing to intercede for him as soon as the matter was laid before him. It was Hill who secured the aid of Lamont. The affair was engineered by Senator Hansbrough.

It is said that within the past few days strong pressure has been brought to bear upon Attorney General Knox in McKenzie's behalf. Senator Quay is at the head of this movement and he is understood to have made a personal appeal to Knox, who is a Pennsylvanian is supposed to be a part of the Quay machine.

As soon as the president can hear from the judges of the court of appeals in San Francisco, who have been asked to give him their views regarding the case, it is generally understood here that he will announce the pardon. That he will refuse to act favorably, McKenzie's friends will not believe.

It is the desire of McKenzie's friends that the president act before starting on the Western trip, two weeks from today. This would permit McKenzie to come East and close up his business affairs in time to take the first boat for Nome. He has immense property interests there aside from the contested claims, and it is openly charged here at the San Francisco judges know this when they imposed the long sentence, whose effect, of course, was to keep McKenzie away from Nome during the whole of the oncoming mining season.

Lonsdale Building.

TWO ARE CHOSEN

Commissioners Give the Mesaba Range New Commissioners.

Vote Was Three to Two on the Proposition.

R. F. Berdie of Hibbing and Neil McInnes of Eveleth.

Commissioner from the new Sixth district, Neil McInnes, of Eveleth.

Commissioner from the new Seventh district, R. F. Berdie, of Hibbing.

St. Louis county now has seven county commissioners, and the above men are the two new ones. The county board this morning declared in favor of the plan of giving the farmers a representative on the board, and elected the two commissioners named. They hold office until successors are elected at the general election of 1902.

The vote was as expected, Commissioners Kugler and Berg voting to give the farmers a representative, and Commissioners Kauppi, Morcom and Patterson, the three Republican members of the board, to give the two additional commissioners both to the Mesaba range. There was very little argument over it, but the morning was mostly taken up in recesses, during which discussion was lively on the side. When the meeting was called to order shortly before 10 o'clock a recess of ten minutes was taken. The ten minutes passed and grew into an hour before the meeting was called to order again. Then a vote was taken promptly.

Commissioner Kugler's substitute for the majority report of the legislative committee was lost by a vote of 3 to 2, and with that vote went the hopes of the farmers for representation, and up came the stock of the range candidates for county commissioners' positions. Then the majority report was carried by the same vote.

Petitions for appointment as commissioners were then read. For the new Seventh district, comprising the western Mesaba range, R. F. Berdie handed in two petitions with 271 names, one from Hibbing with 218 names and one from Buhl with 53 names. James Gandsey, of Hibbing, had a petition signed by 65 names.

The candidates for the Sixth district, comprising the eastern Mesaba range, were F. C. Talboys, who had 108 signers from Eveleth, Sparta and vicinity; Frederick B. Rossum, who has 282 signers from Eveleth, Virginia and Biwabik, and Neil McInnes, who had no petition, but who applied in writing for the place. P. F. Dowling, editor of the Eveleth Star, had been expected to show up as a candidate, but he put in no petition, and threw his strength to Mr. McInnes.

The first ballots showed no choice, McInnes got two votes, Rossum got the same number, and Dowling got one, that of Commissioner Kauppi. The second and third ballots stood the same way, and then Commissioner Kugler moved that the lowest man be dropped. This motion was greeted with contumely and was not even seconded. But the lowest man was dropped, just the same, and on the fourth ballot McInnes showed up with three, enough to elect him, and Rossum got the other two. Mr. McInnes was declared elected.

The selection for the Seventh district was made on the first ballot, Mr. Berdie getting four votes and Mr. Gandsey one. The two were then declared elected by a formal resolution and the trouble was all over.

There is a balance of $137.81 left in the new road fund, which fund proceeded from the sale of bonds to build the Miller trunk road. Treasurer Whipple asked that this be transferred out of the fund so that it can be closed up. Mr. Crosby, the board's attorney, was asked about whether it coult be transferred to the other road fund, and he said it could not. In passing his opinion he off-handedly referred to the fact that there was money left in the fund as a special act of Providence, which caused a ripple of laughter to spread over the room.

STREET CAR MANNERS.

The proper demeanor of woman on the street car when a seat is vacated for her has frequently been the subject of discussion, says the New York Sun. Whether she should plumb herself into it without a word, as if she had merely had received what was due her, whether she should thank the man graciously or whether she should protest that she had only a short distance to ride and that she really could not deprive him of his seat are some phases of the question.

There is something to be said in favor of all the courses and nearly as much on the other side. The discourtesy of the woman who takes a seat as if it belonged to her is alleged by some critics to have led to the present attitude of the men, who no longer feel themselves called upon to give up their seat to women. On the other hand, women who accept the proffered seat with too cordial a smile are sometimes made the object of unpleasant attention from men who mistake politeness for the indication of another mood. This is the justification of some women who never acknowledge the courtesy of the man who gives her a seat.

As the man is really the more important factor in the transaction, it is interesting to hear his view.

"No woman ever rewards a man's politeness when he gives her a seat so fully as the one that quietly takes it with a polite recognition of his courtesy and nothing more," said the man who still gives up his seat. "The woman who really makes him regret he ever took the trouble is the argumentative, independent type, who really couldn't think of taking his seat and couldn't deprive him of it, as she hadn't far to ride and wasn't tired, rather preferred to stand up, in fact, and had been sitting down all day. This is the sort of woman that turns a man's mind toward thoughts of murder and leads him to wish he had the presence of mind to take the seat again and astonish her by sitting down just as she firmly intends to do after she has finished with her preliminary protest. But he usually tries to restrain himself, although it is difficult when the entire car is suddenly made conscious of his presence by the woman's protest.

"It is not the woman who doesn't notice his politeness that proves discouraging on the cable cars, but this effusive creature who talks so much before she sits down."

DRAFT THEM.

On the last night of a series of "protracted meetings" in the Methodist church of a little New Jersey village, the visiting evangelist was making a special effort to obtain a showing of anxious souls, says the New York Sun. He had preached his best sermon, and reached an emotional fervor that he had seldom equalled. But nobody responded to his invitation. They sung a hymn, and then the evangelist rose again and called upon the congregation to "enlist for the service of the Lord."

A battle-scarred, wooden-legged veteran, who had dropped into the back seat, watched the proceedings with interest.

For the third time the perspiring evangelist rose and asked:

"Is there no one willing to enlist in the Lord's army?"

Then response came from the back seat:

"Draft 'em, parson; damn it, draft 'em."

CAUSE OF HUNGER.

We feel hungry when the blood vessels of the stomach are comparatively empty. When food is taken and digestion begins there is a rush of blood to the stomach, and the hunger is appeased. Many anemic patients have no appetite, even when the stomach is empty; but the blood vessels of the stomach are not empty in such cases, but rather congested. In healthy people lack of blood in the stomach acts upon a special nerve and all the characteristic symptoms of hunger follow. Now, this hunger nerve and the nerves of the mouth and tongue are branches of the same nerve trunk. Hence a stimulus applied to the tongue, by a spice, for example, creates or increases appetite. On the other hand, when the nerves of the tongue are affected by a diseased condition of the mucous membrane of the mouth, the patient has no appetite, though his stomach may be empty and he may be in actual need of food.

LOOMIS TALKING AGAIN

The United States Minister to Venezuela Is Making a Bad Matter Worse By Trying to Explain What He Said.

New York, April 18.—F. B. Loomis, United States minister to Venezuela, seems to be having a hard time with his interviewers. A New York special from San Juan, Porto Rico, says that before sailing from that port Mr. Loomis paid a visit to the office of the San Juan News, where he met the correspondents of the New York Herald and the Associated Press and another correspondent. He talked "for an hour in the presence of the three, commenting on President Castro's policy and the probability of a rebellion within a year. His statements were taken in shorthand and transcripts were sent to the New York Herald and the Associated Press."

On Mr. Loomis' arrival in New York he denied very circumstantially these interviews, both to the Associated Press and New York Mail and Express, to the latter saying:

"A reporter from the Associated Press, who I am informed is also editor of the San Juan News, came aboard the Caracas, just before we came away. I told him that I had nothing to say on the asphalt question, or of Gen. Castro, or of anything else of a diplomatic character."

Now Mr. Loomis has issued the following card:

"New York, April 17.—I wish to correct an error that appears in the interview with me in today's Mail and Express. I am quoted as saying: 'A reporter from the Associated Press, who, I am informed, is also the editor of the San Juan News, came aboard, etc.' Now what I did say to the Mail and Express reporter was that a man who represented himself to be an Associated Press reporter, came on board the gunboat Scorpion at San Juan, and whom I afterwards learned was not an Associated Press reporter. I thought that I would tell you this so that the error would not be copied and repeated."

MORE TAXES

Blue Prospect For the British Taxpayer.

Heavy Taxes Proposed and a Fresh Loan.

London, April 18.—The exceptional interest taken in this year's budget statement was evidenced by the crowded condition of the house of commons when it reassembled today. The attendance of members was unusually large, while the appearance of the galleries testified to the deep interest of the public in the fresh taxation proposals offered to meet the expenditure for 1901-02, which, according to a parliamentary paper issued this afternoon, totals £187,602,000, inclusive of war charges, this being an increase of £32,901,000 over last year. The balance sheet for 1900-1901, as reported shown by the same paper, stands as follows: Revenue, £130,385,000; expenditures, £183,592,000; net deficit, £53,207,000.

Mr. Balfour, government leader, directly announced the forthcoming loan, saying he hoped to introduce a resolution on the subject tonight, if possible. The chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, rose at 4:18 p. m., amidst rounds of cheers, and commenced the budget statement. His opening sentence was not promising. "During the last five years," said the chancellor, "we have been invariably able to congratulate the house on a general increase in the prosperity of the country, but the year 1900, especially the last six months, showed symptoms of a change. Our foreign trade during the year considerably increased, but in value rather than in volume."

It was mainly derived, the chancellor said, from the high prices of certain articles, notably coal, which, naturally, must have injured important industries, especially railways. Nevertheless, the revenue for the past year showed no signs of decrease and the exchequer receipts showed a surplus of £2, 86,000 over the estimates. He was bound to say, however, that the excess was due to forestallment on dutiable articles. But for this his estimates would have been barely realized. Much could be said for and against forestallment, but it was an unmitigated nuisance to financial statisticians. The forestallments of 1899-1900 amounted to £3,250,000 which properly belonged to the revenue of the last year. The forestallment of the past year somewhat exceeded the previous year. He would say that the consuming power of the people was maintained, but there was no material evidence of the expansion of that power beyond what was fairly attributable to increase of population.

The chancellor then proceeded to review the various items of revenue, mentioning that the revenue from beer was £4,000,000 less than the estimate. "That decrease," said he, "is probably attributable to the fact that very many beer drinkers are in South Africa, and also to the decrease in the spending power of the people owing to the high price of coal. Experience has shown that we have practically reached the limit in the profitable taxation of spirits."

The receipts from the death duties were £1,500,000 below those of the preceding year, but he had better expectations for next year. The prolongation of the war and absence of business on the stock exchange were responsible for the unsatisfactory yield from stamps. In noting that the yield from the income tax was £1,150,000 above the estimate the chancellor remarked that in twelve years the income on which taxation was paid had been increased by no less than £120,000,000, a fact that he hoped the house would remember when he reached a later part of his speech.

The only other points of the revenue which he need touch upon were the exceptional receipts owing to silver coinage and the telegraph receipts which compared very unfavorably with the expenditures. The total receipts amounted to £140,019,000 and the expenditures £183,592,000 of which £65,000,000 was for the war in South Africa and £3,000,000 for China.

The budget adds 2 pence to the income tax, making it 1 shilling 2 pence. It does not provide an increase in the duties on beer, wine or tea, spirits or tobacco. A duty of 4 shillings 2 pence per hundredweight will be imposed on refined sugar. A duty of 2 shillings per hundredweight is imposed on molasses. West Indian sugar is not excepted. A duty of 1 shilling and 8 pence per hundredweight is imposed on glucose. A shilling per ton duty is imposed on exported coal. Raw sugar, polarizing below 98, is to pay a duty gradually diminishing, according to each degree of polarization, to a minimum of 2 shillings at a polarization of 76.

The total expected yield of the new taxation is £11,000,000 of which £2,100,000 will be from coal.

The chancellor of the exchequer proposed to suspend the sinking fund and borrow £60,000,000. He asked for permission to extend the present borrowing powers on consols. The loan will be in consols.

THE CALUMET & ARIZONA

Stock Allotments Made and the Copper Country, Gogebic and Duluth Subscribers Are Cut Four Per Cent.

Houghton, Mich., April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The directors of the Calumet and Arizona Mining company made the stock allotments yesterday. The copper country, Gogebic county and Duluth subscribers were cut 4 per cent and the Carnegie company pool at Pittsburg was cut 40 per cent. The heavy cut in the Pittsburg subscriptions was made necessary by the Carnegie people subscribing for the full offering of $1,000,000 worth of shares.

The flotation is considered the most remarkable ever made in the United States, as the subscription books were open only twelve hours and the entire issue was oversubscribed without a share being solicited from any big city heretofore prominent in mining enterprises. The shares subscribed at $10 are now selling freely, three weeks later, for $32 and transactions have been made as high as $36.

PEKIN PALACE BURNED

Abode of Empress Dowager, Occupied By Von Waldersee, Destroyed By Fire---Gen. Schwartzhoff Lost His Life.

Washington, April 18.—The secretary of state received a cable message this morning from Mr. Squires, United States charge at Pekin, dated at Pekin, April 18, saying that "Winter palace, occupied by Von Waldersee, was accidentally destroyed by fire. Gen. Schwartzhoff, chief of staff, fatally burned."

This incident may prove more serious than appears on the surface. It is known from diplomatic communications received here that intense feeling has been aroused among the Chinese over the occupation of the empress dowager's palace by Count Von Waldersee and his military staff. This was graphically set forth in a letter recently received here from one of the foremost officials at Pekin. He described in detail the manner in which the place had been turned over to military uses, and commented upon the indignity which it involved to the Chinese people and to the imperial family. Moreover, it is known that this military occupation of the imperial palaces was a moving cause for the rejection of all overtures for the return of the imperial family to Pekin. From the Chinese standpoint it was impossible to even consider the return of the imperial family so long as the commander-in-chief of the allied forces was in actual occupation of the empress' palace.

Now that the palace is entirely destroyed it may have a bearing on the return of the imperial family. While there is no longer the objection that the palace is occupied by the foreign commander, yet a new objection is created in the removal of the palace itself, for, under Chinese usage, the imperial family must occupy those exclusive quarters reserved for them within the prohibited precincts.

Berlin, April 18.—Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee reports that the best part of the winter palace at Pekin was destroyed by fire last evening. Gen. Schwartzhoff met his death in the fire, the cause of which is not explained. He adds that the French and Japanese troops gave the most prompt assistance. The field marshal and the other officers lost nearly everything. A dispatch from Pekin says no hope remains that Maj. Gen. Schwartzhoff, the chief of staff of Field Marshal Von Waldersee, was saved. His body has not been found, and it is supposed to have been completely consumed. So far as known Gen. Schwartzhoff was the only victim. A number of documents were saved. The quarters of six officers, besides those of Von Waldersee and his staff, were gutted.

THEIR REVENGE.

Denied Holiday Employes Tear Coats and Papers.

London, April 18.—A dispatch to Reuter's agency from St. Petersburg says that although the students remain quiescent, the authorities are disturbed by the attitude of the working people, and isolated troubles are considered unavoidable May 1. The working people are attempting to introduce labor day observances. Practically the whole of the operatives of the St. Petersburg Steel company, an immense concern, which, among other things, manufactures ordnance, recently demanded a half holiday and full pay. When the demands were refused they broke into the manager's office, forced the company's officials to flee for their lives, tore their fur-coats into shreds and burned valuable books and papers. Police and mounted gendarmes chased and routed the rioters.

ALDRICH-AGAN.

New York, April 18.—Miss Mathilde Agan was married at her parents' home in this city today to J. Frank Aldrich, of Washington, D. C., and formerly member of congress from a Chicago district. The Rev. Dr. Abbott E. Kittredge, pastor of the Madison Avenue Reformed church, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich will go to Atlantic City for their honeymoon.

TEN YEAR CONTEST

For Property of Kansas City Railroad Finally Settled.

Winner Bridge Piers and Other Property Sold at Auction.

Terminals Will Be Used For Entrance of Other Roads.

Kansas City, April 18.—At public auction today, the Winner Bridge piers, in the Missouri river here, and other terminal property of the Kansas City & Atlantic railroad, were sold to Theo C. Bates, of Worcester, Mass., for $100,000. The sale was made to satisfy a mortgage for about $700,000, held in trust by the Massachusetts Loan and Trust company, of Boston.

The property was purchased in the interests of the bondholders. The sale will end the receivership of the property, and will terminate ten years of litigation. Mr. Bates is at the head of an Eastern syndicate, controlling the property, and which will, it is said, begin a reorganization of the terminals that will result in the building of a large passenger station, affording means for an entrance into Kansas City of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern, the Chicago & Northwestern and other railways.

The bridge will also be used, it is said, to bring in suburban electric roads.

The sale was conducted by Master in Chancery Knotts, at Harlem, a small station on the road across the river from Kansas City. Besides Mr. Bates, the only others in attendance at the sale were Messrs. George A. Goddard and W. A. Vet, of Boston, who are all interested in the Eastern syndicate. Mr. Bates made the only bid.

The sale will have to be confirmed by the federal court.

BRILLIANT.

Will Be Decorations at Louisville at Knights Tempar Conclave.

Louisville, April 18.—R. S. Brown, chairman of the decoration and illumination committee, for the twenty-eighth triennial conclave of Knights Templar, to be held in this city, Aug. 27 to 30, has made public the general scheme of decorations and illuminations. Approximately $50,000 will be spent in this way and some of the most elaborate decorative effects ever seen in an American city, will be witnessed. A committee from the Commercial club is now considering the practicability of harnessing the falls of the Ohio for the purpose of utilizing the power.

The general scheme of illuminations provides for three magnificent arches and about fifty smaller ones throughout the business district of the city. The largest structure will be a quadruple electric arch at Fourth avenue and Jefferson street. It will be eighty-two feet high, adorned by heroic figures of ancient knights in armor, and mounted and illuminated by 5000 incandescent lamps. A quadruple floral arch will be built at Fourth avenue and Broadway. This will have a height of forty feet and will be illuminated by 1000 electric lights. A prismatic fountain in the center of the dome over the intersection of the streets will cast a spray of water fifteen feet into the air. The third structure will be a handsome Templar arch at First and Main streets, thirty-five feet high. All the down-town streets will be spanned by electric arches built of various colored lights.

The day decorations will carry out the Templar designs in flags and banners.

Indications point to a record-breaking attendance at the conclave. Contracts are now being made for the accommodations in the "tented city," which will be conducted under the auspices of the committee at Fountain Ferry park on the banks of the Ohio.

HOW ABOUT PEOPLE.

Commissary Says Officers and Troops Are Satisfied.

Washington, April 18.—Commissary Gen. Western has received a cablegram from Col. Woodruff, chief commissary at Manilla, in which he says:

"Do not permit scandalous reports to worry you. Affairs of the subsistence department of the army administered to satisfaction of officers and troops."

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

Company Organized For Its Promotion.

St. Paul, April 18.—A Pierre, S. D., special to the Dispatch says: Articles of incorporation have been filed at the state capital for the Universal Wireless Telegraph company, with a capital of $20,000,000. The incorporators are James N. Huston, Thomas B. Bishop and L. C. Smith.

STRIKE ENDED.

Shamokin, Pa., April 18.—The strike at the Natalie colliery ended today by the return to work of the 1000 employes. Inside Superintendent James Bateman, whom the men claimed was unfair in adjusting the wage schedule, resigned last night. It was chiefly for his dismissal that the men struck.

NEWMARKET RACES.

London, April 18.—At the third day's racing at Newmarket today, the Double trial plate of 200 sovereigns, for 2-year-olds, the winner to be sold by auction for 200 sovereigns, five furlongs, was won by P. Lorillard's chestnut filly, Cornette, with "Danny" Maher in the saddle.

SEASON POSTPONED.

Cincinnati, April 18.—A drizzling rain, accompanied by a cold wind, caused the postponement until tomorrow, of the base ball season here by the Cincinnati and Pittsburg clubs.

STRIKE OFF

Settlement of Impending Labor Troubles.

Suspension of Steel Plants Avoided.

Pittsburg, April 18.—Positive semi-official statements have ben made by both sides that the strike at the McKeesport plant of the American Sheet Steel company will be declared off before 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Pittsburg, April 18.—A settlement of the impending great strike of sheet mill workers, arising from the trouble at the W. Dewees Wood plant at McKeesport, is practically on today, and now requires only a settlement of minor details to end the uncertainty that characterized the last few days in industrial circles. This is expected to be accomplished before nightfall.

The settlement, it is said, is based on a proposition made by John Jarrett, of the labor bureau of the American Sheet Steel company, at the conference yesterday. The plan of settlement is that all the men, with the exception of George S. Holloway, be reinstated at once. Holloway's case will be taken up later, and while his reinstatement finally is assured, he will be suspended from work for a period as a matter of discipline.

The reason for the exception in the case of Holloway is rumored to be that a personal difficulty between him and Superintendent Persifor F. Smith had put a new feature on his discharge. It is further stated by members of the Amalgamated Association that the settlement was all that the association required originally, and that the agreement was made possible when Mr. Jarrett was given authority to act on behalf of the American Sheet Steel company. Mr. Jarrett stated today that he had nothing to say for publication, as he had in his address to the advisory board yesterday covered the entire question. He was satisfied that after cool deliberation a harmonious adjustment could be arrived at.

This statement was re-echoed at Amalgamated headquarters.

Pittsburg, April 18.—The strike situation at McKeesport today was quiet pending the decision of the national advisory board of the Amalgamated association, which is in session here and expected to decide today whether or not there shall be a general strike. Some apprehension was felt whel 7 o'clock neared, that being the crucial time set by Manager Samuel M. Cooper on which the men should return to work or call and get their money and consider themselves discharged. But two men appeared for work, however, and as they quickly yielded to the persuasion of the strikers, the attempt to resume operations was for the time abandoned. Trouble was feared if any number of men had showed a disposition to return to work. A committee of strikers congregated about the entrance of the mill and the entire police force of the city was out in citizen's clothes ready to quell any disorder, but their services were not needed. The strikers, acting upon the advice of the labor leaders, did not call for the wages due them, as required by the management, but decided to wait until the regular pay day, April 27.

The national advisory board got together again about 10 o'clock with twelve or fifteen members present, together with all the vice presidents. Two members, those representing No. 4 district, in Illinois and No. 7 at Birmingham, Alabama, were not called to the meeting, because none of the American Sheet Steel plants is located in those districts. One other, John Ward, of Youngstown, Ohio, had not arrived when the conference began, but was expected during the day. Those present were: President Shaffer, Secretary John Williams, Assistant Secretary M. F. Tighe, trustees, John Pierce, Pittsburg; J. H. Morgan, Cambridge; Ellas Jenkins, Youngstown; Ben I. Davis, Pittsburg, and the following district vice presidents: D. T. Rees, district No. 1, Pittsburg; Walter Larkins, No. 2, Martin's Ferry, Ohio; Charles H. Davis, No. 3, Newport, Ky.; Clem Jarvis, No. 5, Anderson, Ind.; John Chappelle, No. 8, New Castle.

PITTSBURG THE CENTER

Offices of the Different Plants of the Great Steel Trust Will Be Removed to the Smoky City.

Pittsburg, April 18.—The Dispatch says: It is understood to be the intention of the United States Steel corporation to make Pittsburg the pay roll center of its great system of plants, and it is probable that the offices of as many of the plants as possible will be removed here. It is probable that the offices of the American Sheet Steel company and American Steel and Hoop company will be returned to Pittsburg from New York, where they were taken some time ago. There is also talk that Pittsburg will be made the headquarters for the National Steel company and American Tinplate company. It is the purpose of the combine to keep each of its underlying companies intact, reduce the board of directors to a small group of active men, and to hold the presidents of each company responsible for the conduct of affairs of the separate concerns. The same apparent competition will result without, however, the price cutting and the ambition of each president to make the best possible showing in dividends and earnings will prove the stimulus formerly caused by active competition and careful management.

Capt. A. B. Wolvin, formerly general manager of the American Steamship company, operating the fleet of iron ore boats on the great lakes for the American Steel and Wire company, has been chosen general manager of the companies steamship interests, and Edwin S. Mills, general manager of the Pittsburg Steamship company, probably will be his assistant.

A CHICAGO TRAGEDY

Charles Sweeney, Formerly of Greenville, Ky., Killed His Wife From Whom He Had Separated and Shot Himself.

Chicago, April 18.—Charles H. Sweeney, a wealthy cotton planter of Greenville, Ky., today shot and killed his wife and then took his own life at the Dubuque flats in Rush street, near the Granada hotel. The tragedy occurred in the apartments of Mrs. W. L. Phillips, a sister of Mrs. Sweeney.

The Sweeneys formerly lived in Greenville. They were well connected and moved in good society. Not long ago they separated, Sweeney coming to this city. Recently Sweeney learned that his wife had announced her intention of coming here to visit her sister. "I will kill her if she comes," said Sweeney. She has caused me a world of trouble and shall cause me no more."

Mrs. Sweeney arrived a day or two ago and this morning, during the temporary absence of her sister, she went down town shopping. She returned at 9 o'clock and stepping into the apartment was met by her husband, who had been admitted by Mrs. Phillips' 6-year-old son. Sweeney grasped her wrists and pulled her inside. At the point of a revolver he ordered the boy to run, crying out that a murder was being done, the child fled to the Granada hotel, but before help could arrive two shots were heard, and the hotel attaches found the man and woman lying on the floor. Mrs. Sweeney was dead and in a few moments the husband expired.

THE DUKE PROTESTS

Papa Zimmerman's Son-in-Law Objects to Paying Commission to Broker Who Secured Money He Got Married On.

London April 18.—The suit of Sanguinetti against the duke of Manchester, which was postponed Feb. 27 last owing to the duke's absence in America, occupied the court of kings bench today. The plaintiff seeks to recover £500 commission for procuring the duke a loan of £10,000. The defense pleaded that the terms of the loan were unreasonable. Mr. Zimmerman, the father-in-law of the duke, was in court. Sanguinetti testified that the duke said he wanted £500 in connection with a marriage that he had insured his life for £50,000 and that he was making a good income from New York papers. The plaintiff admitted that he made 50 per cent yearly.

After evidence that the Manchester estates in England and Ireland showed a yearly deficit and that the income did not suffice to meet the mortgages, charges and jointures of the dowager duchesses, judgment was given in favor of the defendant on the ground that Sanguinetti had never found any one able or willing to provide the loan on which he claimed commission on the actual security available.

HAS STAYING QUALITIES.

Mule Could Not Knock Murphy Out.

The former members of Company G, Fourteenth infantry, will be glad to know that one of the most interesting charcters on the Chickamagua muster roll will don the mitts tomorrow night, at the Parlor theater, and battle for the middleweight championship of the state. He is Frank Murphy, the Irish wonder, who was not in the least embarassed when jabbed in the face most viciously by one of Uncle Sam's pet mules during the Spanish-Amerjean war. The kick from this ablebodied mule landed full in Murphy's face, sending him down in the mud, but he was on his feet again without taking the count. Members of the company always took great pride in this incident, believing it to be a criterion of the force that would be required to knock out a member of the Fourteenth in active service. It is supposed in sporting circles that the ex-comrades of Murphy will back him heavily tomorrow evening, on the strength of the argument that there is no middleweight in the state that can land as heavily as a heavyweight mule.

Sixth Avenue Theater.

North Bros., comedians, delighted a large and enthusiastic audience last evening in their presentation of the four-act comedy, "The Tenderfoot." The piece was well handled, each part, from the lead down, being executed in a very creditable manner. The scenic effects in this production are excellent, particularly the storm scene. The play abounds in startling situations and happy climaxes. The same bill will be presented this evening, with strong specialties between each act. Tomorrow night this company will appear in "Camille," one of its best and strongest plays.

There's safety. There's strength. There's happiness. There's an all-year's pleasure and health if you take Rocky Mountain Tea this month. 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

MAKE A RULING.

White Cap Case Is Passed Upon.

The case of Joseph A. Brown against James L. Tenney in the United States land office has been decided in favor of the defendant. It involved a claim of forty acres in Itasca county. It has been known as the "white cap" case in the office. Mrs. Brown testifying that during the absence of her husband she was called upon by a party of masked men and notified to leave the country. She claimed that she was frightened at the threats of the men and that neither she or her husband have returned to the land since. The officers found reason to question the white cap story but did not consider the matter seriously, finding that there had been a mistake as to the location of the claim in controversy and that Brown's land was not involved. The contest was dismissed.

To Dine the Governor.

Governor Van Sant will arrive in the city tomorrow afternoon and has accepted an invitation to a dinner to be given at the home of Mrs. B. Webster, 105 West Superior street, on the second floor. It will be given under the auspices of the Ladies of the G. A. R. and Willis A. Gorman post.

CONDITION CRITICAL.

Canton, Ohio, April 18.—Mrs. William R. Ray, wife of Judge Day, former secretary of state, who was stricken with paralysis several days ago, was reported today in a critical condition. The physicians stated that while there had been no decided change since last evening, the patient was slowly growing weaker.

Announcement.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of automizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Cream Balm in liquid form, which will be known as Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price, including the spraying tube, is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid form embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

THE SHEA TROUBLE

Warm Time at the Hearing In Police Court.

Judge Bailey Touches Up the County Attorney.

Peter Campbell Causes Some Surprise By His Testimony.

With a rippling accompaniment of scathing sarcasm and pungent legal argument, the famous Cedar Island lake litigation came up in police court this morning. Practically every court in the state has had a whirl at it in some shape or other, and it seems only just that the police court should not lose out in the bitter fight for the possession of 12,000,000 feet of pine between big lumber corporations and eight settlers.

The police court phase of this case was brought about through the arrest of William H. Shea, one of the most prominent of the settlers. The timber involved in the suit is on land situated around Cedar Island lake. In surveying the township the surveyor neglected to go within fifty miles of it, fixing the boundaries of the lake approximately. Unlike the boy that guessed right the first time, he made the lake about twice its actual size. This left a large strip of unsurveyed land around the lake. The surveyed land was taken up by Murphy, Dorr & Flynn. The unsurveyed land was taken up by eight settlers. Murphy, Dorr & Flynn claimed that their hodings ran to the water's edge, including the land of the settlers. Recently Murphy, Dorr & Flynn sold the timber on the land to the Cloquet Lumber company, which immediately started in to denude the land of timber. The settlers objected, saying that as a last resort they would take their rifles and prevent trespass.

A little over a week ago the Cloquet Lumber company, through its local attorney, W. B. Phelps, secured a warrant for the arrest of William H. Shea, setting forth that he threatened to shoot Peter Campbell, a foreman for the Cloquet Lumber company, who was instructed to go on the disputed land with a force of men and begin cutting timber. Mr. Shea was arrested and brought into this city last Saturday, and the police court hearing this morning was for the purpose of deciding whether or not he should be put under bonds to keep the peace.

County Attorney McClintock was unable to appear in the case for the state, and delegated the former county attorney, W. B. Phelps, to prosecute on behalf of the state. Mr. Pheleps is also attorney for the Cloquet Lumber company, and his name appears on the complaint against Mr. Shea instead of that of Peter Campbell.

Mr. Shea was represented by Judge Bailey of Eau Claire one of the most prominent timber land attorneys in the Northwest, and by R. R. Briggs, of this city. The hearing is before Special Municipal Judge Gearhart.

Up to the present time Judge Bailey has taken the most active part in the case. His biting, stinging sarcasm at times has given persons outside the court room the impression that some person has been flirting with a stick of dynamite, courting the usual results. Few police court cases are handled with such intense vigor. The defense is not making any effort to conceal Mr. Phelps' connection with the Cloquet Lumber company and scores County Attorney McClintock for being too busy to take the case for the state and turning it over to the attorney for the Cloquet company.

Arguing a motion to dismiss the case, Judge Bailey openly accused the prosecution of bringing a criminal action against Mr. Shea, to obtain advantage in a civil ends. In opening this argument, which lasted nearly two hours, he said:

"I never new of a grosser attempt to abuse the process of a court of this kind to satisfy personal ends. Courts are for the purpose of administering justice, and criminal process is to be used in the interests of the public and never in the interest of the private individual. In case that process is abused, as it appears in this case the persecutor is liable for malicious prosecution."

Judge Bailey said that the sole object of the Cloquet Lumber company in having his client bound over to keep the peace was to tie his hands behind his back while they could take the timber off his land.

Turning to the former county attorney he said sharply: "What is there so sacred about your Weyerhaeuser syndicate that it has the right to go on private property and denude it of its value?"

An important feature of the testimony was that given by Peter Campbell in whose behalf Mr. Phelps swore out the warrant for Mr. Shea's arrest. Mr. Campbell testified that he was not afraid of Mr. Shea or any person on earth, though the complaint states that he feared great bodily harm at the hands of the defendant. Again, he testified that when he learned that Mr. Shea had been arrested for threatening to kill him, he offered to go on Mr. Shea's bond if necessary.

When the noon recess was taken Judge Bailey had just completed his argument for dismissal, and Mr. Phelps gave notice that he would reply at 2 o'clock.

CLOSE CALL.

Interstate Car Narrowly Escapes Being Run Down.

Passengers on a southbound interstate car were given a bad scare down on Garfield avenue about 10 o'clock this morning. The vestibule was so crowded with passengers smoking that the motorman did not notice a freight train approaching. The car full of passengers noticed it, however, and rushed frantically for the rear door, which the conductor held shut. The freight train was going much slower than the passengers thought and an accident was very narrowly averted. Had the train struck the rear of the car the result would undoubtedly have been very serious as the passengers in their hurry to get out jammed themselves up against the rear door.

One of the passengers was H. W. Collins, of Detroit, Mich. He is a traveling man and visits many cities. In speaking of the occurrence he said that he was never so sure of anything in his life as he was that the train was going to hit the car. He also said that in the cities where he has been he does not remember one in which passengers are permitted to crowd into the vestibule around the motorman.

LAST ICE REPORT.

Ice In All Lakes Rotting Fast.

The last ice report of the weather bureau is out, and in announcing the discontinuance of the service the bulletin expresses the belief that general navigation will be resumed by April 20. The bulletin should have added, "barring the engineers' strike." What is now needed is a "strike bulletin" rather than an ice bulletin.

Whitefish point reports that the bay ice is solid but rotting fast, and that the ice up the lake is breaking up and not a very heavy body is in sight. At the Sault there is solid ice from Point Iroquois northward, and it is clear from Point Iroquois to Mud lake, with some open water in Mud lake. The lock was to be ready today. Mackinaw straits were full of soft drift ice, but there was nothing to hinder steamers.

By Saturday there will be nothing to interfere with navigation anywhere.

AFTER THE DELINQUENTS.

Sheriff Will Force Collection of Taxes.

Next Tuesday the sheriff will get the personal property tax warrants, and then he will get out—either he or his deputies—and get after the people who have not paid their persoanl property taxes this year. There are 937 such persons, firms and corporations, and the work of making out the necessary papers is now in progress. The law requires the sheriff to collect these taxes even if he has to take the cook stove or the ancestral portraits, and though he is a soft-hearted gentleman he is also strictly law-abiding, and he may be depended upon to do his duty.

BEFORE GRAND JURY.

Murder Charge Against Patrick Under Consideration.

New York, April 18.—The clerk of records in the surrogate's office was served with a subpoena today to produce before the grand jury the second will alleged to have been executed by William Marsh Rice. This is the will executed on Sept. 30, 1900, and is known as the Patrick will.

The murder charge against Patrick was submitted to the grand jury by Assistant District Attorney Garvan. Valet Jones was the first witness called.

Deserted Her at Once.

"Parted at the Altar" would be the title of the story, if one were to be written, about a divorce case filed in district court this morning. Constance Desotell wants a divorce from George Desotell, and in her complaint she alleges that she and her husband never lived together, but that he deserted her on the very day of the marriage, May 25, 1898, when they were married at Marinette, Wis. She is 21 and he is 24 years of age. The plaintiff asks not only for divorce but for permission to resume her maiden name of Johnson. R. J. Dowdall is the attorney.

COLLAPSE OF GRADY

New York State Senator's Mental Faculties Are Impaired.

Creates Sensation In the Senate By His Conduct.

Also Makes a Scene In a Theater at Albany.

Albany, N. Y., April 18.—Senator Thomas F. Grady has been removed from his residence at No. 227 State street to a sanitarium at Canandaigua. The senator's sister arrived and took charge of his effects. She was in telephonic communication with relatives and personal friends of the senator for half an hour. Senator Grady's condition is described by his physician, Dr. S. B. Ward, as being the direct result of his indiscretions. He is higaly nervous as a consequence of his indulgence in alcoholic stimulants. His will has been broken and his mental faculties have been slightly impaired.

The senator expressed entire willingness to go to Brigham hall at Canandaigua, the home of Senator Raines, and his sister, Miss Margaret Grady, assented to his removal. She and two attendants boarded the Empire state express at 11:15 o'clock, with the senator, whose collapse has created a greater sensation than any other event in Albany this session. Dr. Ward expressed the opinion that Senator Grady would require the most careful attention. He was asked if he thought the senator would be in a condition to justify his return to Albany this session. He replied that he did not believe Senator Grady would recover his powers for several months.

"It will require constant rest and nursing for six months," he said.

Asked if he thought the senator's mental condition suggested insanity, the doctor said he could not tell.

"It remains to be seen," he said. "What he needs now is rest."

The friends of Senator Grady in the senate are greatly agitated over his condition. A cablegram was sent to Richard Croker describing his condition. One of his most intimate friends will go to Canandaigua to make arrangements for his proper treatment. It was about seven weeks ago that Senator Grady first began to absent himself from the senate and to attract attention by his eccentricities.

A week ago last Monday night the senator created a sensation in the senate by his theatrical conduct. He strutted about the senate chamber in a defiant manner and interjected remarks in the debate on the canal bill which were of the most unparliamentary character.

At one point in the debate he roared at Senator Raines: "You are the sort of statesman we would expect to pick pockets."

Senator Grady's last appearance in the capitol was on Wednesday, when, after a night of excesses, he attempted to enter the senate chamber. Senator Bernard Martin and T. D. Sullivan compelled him to go to his home, where he eluded his attendants and appeared at a theater.

He sat in a box, demanded champagne and threw silver coins to the performers. Two of his friends took him to his home. He did not move out again until he was taken to Canandaigua.

CONTEST DISMISSED.

Will of S. S. Walbank to Be Probated.

The promised fight over the estate of the late Samuel S. Walbank in probate court will not materialize. This afternoon papers were filed by which Mrs. Louisa West, who claimed to be the common law wife of the deceased, withdraws her application for letters of administration, and consents to the probate of the will offered by the relatives of Mr. Walbank. The common law claimant, therefore, disappears from the case. The details of the settlement that has been made are not given out, both sides saying that it was agreed to keep them quiet, but Judge Middlecoff, the attorney for the claimant, said this afternoon that a very good settlement had been made and that it was entirely satisfactory to his client.

RAISED A ROW.

Pan-Germans Attacked Arch Duke Francis.

Vienna, April 18.—As anticipated, the acceptance of the patronage of the Austrian Catholic Schools association, Wednesday, by Arch Duke Francis, the heir apparent, led to stormy scenes in the reichsrath today. The Pan-Germans interpellated the government on the subject and violently attacked the arch duke for supporting "the fighting union of the clerical party," declaring that his action was unconstitutional. The premier, Dr. Koerber, replying, said the arch duke's action was purely a personal matter and that his alleged remarks were private utterances without constitutional responsibility. The premier regretted the disrespectful attacks of the Pan-Germans. The premier's remarks were interrupted by stormy shouts, cries of "Away with Rome," and "Shame," resounding through the hall.

THE G. C. STEELE CO.,

DULUTH, MINNESOTA.

AT WEST DULUTH

The expected break has occurred among some of the West Duluth grocers, who are now purchasing their green stuff and fruit at the local commission houses instead of buying it in St. Paul. It will be remembered that the commission merchants agreed not to make free delivery of goods at West Duluth after April 1, and the grocers, in retaliation, commenced to buy their goods in the Twin Cities. However, a number of them are said to have discovered that the idea was an expensive one, and there have been instances that West Duluth grocers have paid considerably more for their goods from St. Paul than they would have to pay at home, with a small cartage expense attached. The commission men hold that they have to pay cartage when they buy from the St. Paul houses, and that the way the West Duluth grocers have been ordering goods, a little at a time, it was a losing proposition to them to pay a draymna by the month to haul a small quantity of goods out to West Duluth every day. The local commission men are even charging for drayage on goods from the house to the depot that are to go to the range towns. The added cost is too small to be felt by the purchaser, but the commission men say that it means a great deal to them, where they have so many orders going out every day.

TRIED TO SELL THEM.

Some weeks ago an ungrateful tramp that Rev. R. A. Saunderson fed, stole some good woolen blankets and high-top boots when he took his departure. Mr. Saunderson has since discovered that the fellow went about a number of business places in West Duluth and tried to sell the stuff, stating that he had just come out of the woods and was anxious to sell the stuff, as he would not need it. A good description has been had of the thief from some of the people that he tried to sell the blankets to, and Mr. Saundersen is in hopes of finding the man, for he believes that he resides in the city. He is very anxious to get the equipment back, and says that he would pay more to get it back than the tramp sold it for.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Forbes were expected to arrive home from California this morning. In a letter written to friends from Salt Lake City a few days ago, Dr. Forbes stated that they would arrive in St. Paul last evening and in West Duluth this morning.

UNHAPPY ENDING

William Diggert's Serenade Has a Damp Consummation.

He Sings to His Inamorata From His Gondola.

Struck a Snag and a Policeman Fished Him Out.

Navigation down in the Lake avenue slip was opened last night by a troubadour. Ever since Manrico was immured in the tower by the heartless Conte di Luna and voiced his love longings in a song through the bars to the waiting Leonora, the career of the troubadour has been beset with difficulties.

This is the tale of the undoing of William Diggert, serenator and marine fireman.

Diggert has been a fireman in this port for two or three years and recently became infatuated with a widow, cooking on one of the south shore boats tied up near the Booth dock. During his two or three seasons on the harbor front he has gained considerable notoriety by the manner in which he sings "O Promise Me."

Last night he felt as if he could sing his old favorite in a manner that would drive sentimentally inclined persons to tears, poetry or a nunnery.

He held a long conference with a friend, which necessitated frequent libations at the altars of Calliope. And the outcome of it was that upon the quarter of the witching hour, a boat propelled by muffled oars shot down the slip and eventually crept stealthily into the dark shadows at the stern of the south shore boat. The boatman rowed unsteadily and cursed sub-vocally, the darkness and the waves.

But Diggert, the troubadour, was gay with the nonchalance of a bard in King Arthur's day. He stood proudly and statuesquely in the bow of the uncertain craft and addressed himself soulfully to the serenade.

"Hold her fast! Steady now!" he commanded the boatman, and in another instant the ambient, damp atmosphere was vibrant of the tender invitation, "O Promise Me," phrased and executed as only a tug fireman can phrase and execute.

Then there came a tragic finale. The boatman giving no attention to the boat's drift, allowed it to hit a half-sunken box or something. It struck the floater just as Diggert struck the B flat in air on the conda of "O Promise Me," and straightway the troubadour and henchman precipitated into the dark depths of the slip.

The widow rushed to the rescue in a kimona and hysterics, but a police officer attracted by the noise hastened over from Lake avenue, got him first and threatened him with arrest for trying to commit suicide. The other boatman righted his craft and put hastily and silently to sea, while Diggert explained matters satisfactorily to the officer who insisted on locking him up.

NOT ANXIOUS.

Lake Carriers May Not Be Hankering to Settle.

There is a feeling among the marine men here that the members of the Lake Carriers' association are not at all anxious to have the trouble with the engineers settled up for at least a month to come. They claim that there is not enough business in sight for the opening season of navigation to put up the prices to a point that they would like to see them, and the longer the operation of the boats between here and the Eastern ports is held off just that much better are the chances that prices will be put clear up when the boats do run, perhaps be doubled. Among the lumber shippers and the lumber carriers alike there is said to be a feeling of lassitude and both sides are playing the waiting game without showing any degree of anxiety as to what the outcome will be.

REPAIRS FOR JAIL.

System For Reducing Waste of Water.

The county jail is undergoing some little repairs, including a new coat of paint on the inside. An idea of Commissioner Patterson's is being put into effect that is a decided improvement, and that is in the piping that carries water around the interior cages to the cells. In the past the main pipes have run around the top of the cages, and drop pipes of about six feet in length led down into the cells. That left a dead place in the system at every cell, where the water remained and warmed up until it was impossible to get a cool drink without letting a lot of water run. Now warm, tepid water is not just the thing to quench some of the thirsts that are encompassed by the bars of the county jail, and the consequence was that a good deal of water has been wasted, probably enough to keep the jail going.

Under the new system there are no such possibilities. A pipe runs around the cage about half way up, and at every cell there is a tap so that the water comes direct out of the main pipe. This reduces the amount of piping, keeps cool water always on tap and stops the waste of water.

WORKING ON ROCK PILE.

County and City Chain Gangs At It.

There are two chain gangs at work on the city rock pile today, one belonging to the city and the other belonging to the county. The county chain gang is working there because work out on the roads is not good just now. In spite of the warm weather and the budding trees the frost is not out of the ground. A couple of days ago an attempt was made to do some road work but the frost was found a couple of inches under the surface, and it prevented much work being done. As soon as a little more thawing is done the gang will be put on the roads for the summer.

The work now under way is on the boulevard that is being constructed up the west branch of Lester river, connecting with the Colbyville road and coming out at Woodland. A beautiful driveway is being made, crossing the river a dozen times or so by a series of picturesque bridges, making a most romantic and beautiful drive.

CITY BRIEFS.

Tibbetts, undertaker, 21 East Sup. St.

The best cigar made in Duluth is the Tom Reed. Ask for it.

Zenith City Hive Lady Maccabees will give a dancing party at Kalamazoo hall tonight. Everybody invited.

Elegant line of pattern hats arrived today from New York for Humes. Call and see them.

The Mistletoe club will give a dancing party tomorrow evening at Odd Fellows' hall.

George Benz & Sons have begun suit against W. W. Wright to recover $750.08 alleged to be due for a bill of goods. Mahon & Agatin are the attorneys.

A factory for the Duluth Carriage works is to be erected on East First street near the building recently erected by the Duluth Candy company. It will be two stories high above the basement, and will cost about $4000. S. G. Stokes, of Philadelphia, is the owner of the property, and he will erect the building.

Walter S. Lloyd has purchased the tug Tempest of Bay City, Mich. She is a small boat of 14.96 tons and he will use her about the harbor.

Tugs were at work breaking the ice to Capt. C. S. Barker's yards on Tower bay slip, West Superior, this morning, and this afternoon a tug was towing one of the dredges out into the harbor to be put in operation near the canal pier.

This evening the Elks will give a Ladies' party at the hall. Several weeks ago they gave a stag party, and so successful was the event that it was determined to give another party for the benefit of the ladies. A fine program of special music has been arranged for his evening, and there will be dancing after its rendition.

PERSONALS.

William McMullen, T. Woodworth and R. F. Morneau, left today for Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Lounsberry have returned from St. Paul, where Mrs. Lounsberry has been visiting for six weeks.

Mrs. H. Hopkins and Mrs. John Moir left yesterday for an extended visit at Caldwell, Kas.

Adolph Wirth is home on a vacation from the College of Pharmacy in Chicago.

Louis Loeb has returned from a short Eastern trip.

Capt. Alexander Mcdougall returned from Chicago this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hankins and family arrived this morning from Carbondale, Pa., and will make their future home on Bay View Heights.

Frank Edson has returned from Ann Arbor, where he has been attending the university of Michigan.

Miss Harriet Langton, of Minneapolis, who has been visiting friends here for several weeks, returned home this afternoon.

Senator Moses Clapp left this afternoon for St. Paul, after a few days' business visit in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Rosenblad, of Ashland, are guests of the Spalding.

E. T. Butz, left this afternoon for a short visit in Chicago.

Paul Voigtlaender and son, Otto, who have been visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Schwirtz, of Twenty-sixth avenue west, left this afternoon for their home in Minneapolis.

J. B. Gibson has returned from St. Paul and Minneapolis, where he attended meetings of the barbers' state board of examiners. Mr. Gibson says that the report that the board went to Cass Lake for the purpose of examining the Indians on the reservation for barbers, is untrue in every respect.

Among the Two Harbors people in the city for a visit today were Miss Bertha Lally, E. M. Shaw and Harry Clark.

W. H. Shea, of Eveleth, was a business caller here today.

William A. Ryan, of the Great Northern local office, left today for a few days' visit in Chicago.

J. C. Eden, traffic manager of the Eastern Minnesota road, was a business caller here this afternoon.

Capt. Joseph Sellwood left this afternoon on a business trip to Salt Lake City, Utah.

"R. and L. T." Its got you all guessing.

G. G. HARTLEY AT HOME.

Does Not Like Brick For Pavement.

G. G. Hartley returned today from a trip of ten days to the East. He says that business in the East is very active and everyone is confident of the future.

The West seems to think that stock-buying is the principal business of the East at the present time, but there is more talk of stock market out here than there is there.

Mr. Hartley has always been an ardent advocate of sheet asphalt for Superior street, and today said with reference to the fact that a petition for brick is going into the council, in all probability, that there was hardly anything worse that could be put down on the street. It is dusty, noisy, slippery and cannot stand the wear that will be given it. He says that if Duluth people could only get away from home and see what other cities are doing they would be enlightened. In New York, on the busiest corners, asphalt is replacing stone.

Fractured an Artery.

A laboring man, who gave his name as Thomas Swanson, slipped and fell while walking down Fifth avenue west toward the Union depot, this morning, and was picked up unconscious by Officer O'Neil. He was taken to police headquarters by Dr. Graham, who said that the fall had fractured a small artery in the back of the head. The injuries were not considered serious.

On Their Wedding Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Perkins, of Pine City, are spending their honeymoon in this city. They were married at Pine City yesterday morning and came to Duluth, making their home while in the city at the St. Louis hotel. The friends of the bridal couple used every endeavor to make their trip an auspicious one for their trunk was adorned with old shoes in profusion, firmly bound on with hay wire. Mr. Perkins is well known in lumber circles in this region, and is now in the employ of the O'Brien Lumber company.

DECISION AFFIRMED.

The Claims of the Lorillards Allowed.

New York, April 18.—A decision has been handed down from the United States circuit court of appeals in the matter of the petition in bankruptcy of Jacob Lorillard, in which the decision of Judge Thomas in the United States district court, allowing the claims of Peter Lorillard for $285,725 and Henry I. Barbey for $299,605 is affirmed. These two creditors are respectively brother and brother-in-law of the bankrupt. After a long fight on the part of other creditors Referee Nathaniel A. Prentiss allowed the claims, and Judge Thomas affirmed them in his decision.

OPENING POSTPONED.

New York, April 18.—Owing to the wet condition of the polo grounds and threatening rain, the opening of the baseball season today, with a game between New York and Boston National league teams, was postponed.

Saves Sleeping Car Fare.

For St. Paul, Minneapolis and Stillwater, take the busy man's popular "Twilight Limited" train leaving the brownstone depot Fifth avenue west, Duluth, daily at 4:30 p. m., arriving at destination at early bed time, and save sleeping car fare. Elegant meals in cafe club car and the finest train and most luxurious service. City ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

TO BUFFALO.

Railroads Fix Rates From Kansas City Territory.

Chicago, April 18.—A rate of one fare, plus $2, for the round trip, which the Wabash road has announced as its price for tickets from Kansas City and intermediate points to Buffalo during May, will be applied generally by Western roads on business originating in this territory. The Northwestern, the Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Santa Fe and the Burlington have announced their intention of making this rate, and it is said other roads will follow.

ENTERS THE NAVY.

Prince Adelbert, Third Son of Emperor William.

Kiel, April 18.—Prince Adelbert, third son of the emperor of Germany, formally entered the navy this morning. The emperor and empress and other members of the imperial family participated in the attendant ceremonies At divine services Prince Adelbert took the oath of loyalty to the flag and subsequently reported himself to the emperor as his superior officer.

ANARCHISTS AT CHICAGO.

Conference With Prince Peter Alexievitch Kropotkin.

Chicago, April 18.—In the interests of anarchists and anarchy, Prince Peter Alexievitch Kropotkin, the Russian leader, and Lucy Parsons, the noted anarchist of this city, held a conference today at the Hull house. The presence of the prince in this city has aroused much enthusiasm among Chicago anarchists, who say it will greatly strengthen their cause.

FIRE AT MAYVILLE, N. Y.

County Seat Badly Damaged By the Floods.

Jamestown, N. Y., April 18.—A disastrous fire occurred at Mayville, the county seat of Chautauqua county early today. The county jail was completely destroyed but the prisoners were all rescued. The block between the jail and the Mayville house was all destroyed, including St. Paul's Episcopal church, the opera house and the Mayville Sentinel office. The total loss will reach $75,000.

COMMANDER DEAD.

Charles O. Allibone Expired At Cavite Thursday.

Washington, April 18.—News has been received at the navy department of the death of Commander Charles O. Allibone commanding the gunboat Wilmington, at Cavite, this afternoon, from heart failure.

Commander Allibone was a native of Pennsylvania, and was appointed to the naval academy from the state of New Jersey. He entered the service in July, 1863.

TENDERED TO BARRETT.

Washington, April 18.—Professor Cyrus Northrup, president of the university of Minnesota, having declined the appointment as a delegate to the Pan-American exposition to be held in the City of Mexico next October, the president today offered the position to John Barrett, formerly minister to Siam. The impression prevails that he will accept.

His Wife's Weak Heart.

It is a singular thing that in the popular view of disease the interdependence of the several organs of the body is lost sight of. The heart, for example, is diseased and it is treated as if it were entirely separated from, and independent of, every other organ.

The fallacy of this opinion is shown by the cures of heart "trouble," liver "trouble," kidney "trouble" and other so-called "troubles," effected by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Primarily the "Discovery" is a medicine for the cure of diseases of the stomach and blood. But it cures diseases of organs seemingly remote from the stomach, because these diseases have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and its associated organs of digestion and nutrition.

"I doctored with three different doctors for weak heart, but they did me no good," writes Mrs. Julia A. Wilcox, of Cygnet, Wood Co., Ohio, Box 52. "I was so tired and discouraged if I had had my choice to live or die I would have preferred to die. My husband heard of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and he bought a bottle. I took that and the first half seemed to help me. I took six bottles before I stopped. I am perfectly well, and am cooking for six boarders. It has been a God-send to me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

IS STILL DELAYED

Formal Announcement of the Burlington Purchase Not Ready.

Members of Morgan Firm Still Negotiating With Directors.

When They Return Terms Will Be Made Known.

New York, April 18.—The Evening Post today has the following: The formal announcement of the Burlington purchase on behalf of the Northern Transcontinental lines is still further delayed.

Messrs. Charles Steele and Robert Bacon, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., are today in Boston conferring with the Burlington directors. When they return it is expected that the form of the announcement of the Burlington's acquisition, the details of the terms offered to Burlington shareholders, and a request for deposit of stock with J. P. Morgan & Co., for exchange into new guaranteed bonds will be issued.

DENIED.

Rumors of Union Pacific's Intentions Not True.

New York, April 18.—The Evening Post says: The report that the Union Pacific interests propose to call and retire Southern Pacific collateral trust bonds, in order to segregate the Central Pacific railroad from the rest of the Southern Pacific and merge it with the Union Pacific, which was current at the time of the absorption, and again repeated today, is authoritatively denied. One of the highest Union Pacific interests said today:

"There is no ground for these reports. The Southern Pacific will continue to be operated as an entirety. There is no thought of dividing the system. Any such ideas to that end which may have been entertained as a possibility when we took over the property were long ago abandoned."

POPE IS WELL.

F. P. Dunne Says His Holiness Has Good Health.

London, April 18.—F. P. Dunne, of Chicago (author of "Mr. Dooley in Peace and War"), sails for America April 27. He informed a reporter of the Associated Press that when he saw the pope on Palm Sunday the pontiff looked remarkably well. "He's just beautiful," said Mr. Dunne. "It was a small, special audience. His holiness talked to me for perhaps ten minutes. His conversation was full of humor and sympathy. He expressed his deep love for America and its people and evinced the keenest interest in and cognizance of the latest developments in our country. When the audience came to an end and the pope pronounced the benediction, his voice rang out strong and clear, like that of a man of 20. After seeing this marvelous head of the church, one could easily afford to disregard the frequent rumors of his feebleness and ill health."

HEAVY LOSS.

Burning of New York Central Car Shops.

Rochester, N. Y., April 18.—Revised estimates place the loss by the burning of the New York Central car shops here last night at about $150,000.

For the past two weeks the car shops had been idle because of a strike among the 175 employes, who made a demand for an increase of wages. One of the employes this morning said conferences between committees of the East Rochester shops' union and committees of the Buffalo repair shops were held Tuesday at Buffalo and yesterday in this city, and that it was practically settled to call out the Buffalo men next Tuesday.

EXPRESS COMBINE.

Community of Interests By Leading Companies.

New York, April 18.—L. C. Weir, president Adams Express company; James C. Fargo, president American Express company and Francis Linde Stetson have been elected directors of the United States Express company. This election of Messrs. Weir and Fargo confirms rumors which have long been prevalent in Wall street of plans for the community of interests amongst the leading express companies.

REORGANIZED.

Western Elevating Association On Same Basis.

Buffalo, April 18.—The Western Elevating association has been reorganized on same basis as last year and with the re-election of all the old officers. George F. Sowerby is president. Thus the association include all the elevators in the city having both lake and rail connections except the Kellogg. The rate for elevating grain has not been decided upon, but it probably will be ½ cent a bushel.

'The Land of the Sky" Country.

Avoid the rigors of early spring in the north by going to the mountain section of Western North Carolina, one of the most beautiful countries on earth with climatic advantages second to none. In this region are situated the attractive resorts of Asheville, Hot Springs, Tryon, Sapphyre and Black Mountain, where there are superior hotel accommodations and visitors to this country find it at all seasons of the year most advantageous.

Round trip tourist tickets on sale from all points. For literature, rates, etc., write or call on George B. Allen, A. G. P., Southern railway, St. Louis, Mo., or J. C. Beam, Jr., N. W. P. A., 225 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.

CONFIDENT

That Settlement of Steel Strike Will Be Effected.

Pittsburg, April 18.—The advisory board of the Amalgamated association was still in session at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Both sides appear confident that a settlement will be reached before the adjournment on the lines indicated in previous dispatches, but no vote has yet been taken.

SHIPS COLLIDE.

Valetta, Island of Malta, April 18.—The British battleship Hood, while leaving the harbor today, fouled the French mail steamer Eugene Pereire. A disaster was narrowly averted by a smart evolution on the part of the ironclad. As it was the Hood had two boats smashed. The injury done to the Eugene Pereire was slight.

HER ODD HOBBY.

Princess Victoria of England the unmarried daughter of Edward VII., has the most curious hobby of any in a family that has several unusual fads. She is deeply interested in bookbinding, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

How she happened to choose that particular hobby nobody seems to know, but for several years she has devoted a great deal of time to learning how to be an expert bookbinder, and at last has come one.

A few months ago several book covers sent to an exhibition in the name of "Miss Matthews" were favorably noticed by the judges and received several prizes. Nobody knew who the exhibitor was until the prizes were awarded. Then it was discovered that it was the Princess Victoria.

The princess takes her hobbies very seriously. Following the lead of her mother, Queen Alexandra, who is deeply interested in medicine and hospital work, Princess Victoria began to study nursing some years ago. She took an examination in theoretical work and when she passed announced her intention of becoming a hospital nurse.

It was current gossip in London at the time that the prince and princess of Wales had great difficulty in convincing her that it wouldn't be wise for her to do so, and that Victoria submitted only after many tears.

TOO GREAT FOR CHAIR.

The death of Rev. John Samuel Sidebotham, the distinguished English churchman, which occurred recently, has awakened a flood of recollections of his career, relates a London correspondent. His work as editor of Crockford made him a power in church circles, in which his influence was well and wisely wielded. His ironic exhortations to those clergy who were sinful enough to ignore his application for information always provided entertaining reading; indeed, the genial editor himself must have enjoyed writing those wonderful prefaces year by year.

Prebendary Sidebotham's physical bulk once led to a rather funny incident. When he was the guest of a well-known cathedral dignitary in the South the sons and daughters of the host were brought one by one into the drawing room to be presented to the visitor. Last of all came the youngest, a little fellow of an inquisitive turn. Evidently impressed with the vast proportions of the visitor the terrible infant turned to his mother and inquired:

"When the gentleman sits down does he use two chairs?"

None present enjoyed the joke more keenly than the editor of Crockford himself.

Ship Subsidy Bill Not Dead.

From April to December is a far cry, but the senate chairmanship makers in Washington, in lieu of something better to satisfy their appetites for speculation, are already drawing up tentative slates in the event of this or that occurrence. The Baltimore American says that at the moment the overshadowing legislative measure in prospect seems to be the ship subsidy bill, which during the last session, nautically speaking, "put to sea to escape the squalls off shore." In hands other than those of so skillful a mariner as Mr. Frye, the shipping bill would have become a hopeless derelict, but he seems to have saved enough of it to warrant a patching up, and if present plans prevail the bill will again sail gaily into sight, with a new sheet here and there and a reef in its mainsail, but it will be the same old buccaneer, awaiting a favorable chance to seize upon an annual prize of $9,000,000. As has been said, the pilot is the man in whose hands its fate rests, and it is very essential to see that a man who has more than a passing interest is given the chairmanship of the committee on commerce. Rumors are afloat insinuating that Mr. Frye will not serve again in that capacity, and it is right at this point that interest crystallizes. If, as the rumor says, Mr. Frye "prefers" the head of the committee on foreign relations, a post lately held by the lamented Cushman K. Davis, the fate of subsidy legislation will rest largely with Senator Elkins, who it is said, may succeed Mr. Frye. Now it is widely believed in Washington that if there is one thing that Mr. Elkins does not possess it is the kind of influence over the senate which counts in the final reckoning. So the chairmanship is in something of a muddle. This is increased in perplexity by the fact that the senate does not appear to be desirous of permitting Mr. Cullom to preside over the foreign relations committee, which he would do if Mr. Frye should remain chairman of the committee on commerce. At the same time if Mr. Cullom were transferred Mr. Elkins would become chairman of the committee on interstate commerce, so that the latter's promotion is assured, no matter what new assignment be made of Messrs. Frye and Cullom. It is understood that Mr. Elkins' original lukewarmness toward the subsidy bill has changed, and as a strong party man he will be found in line supporting the measure. In the meantime the bill is to undergo repairs, and it may be expected to make its reappearance soon after the Fifty-seventh congress assembles in regular session. It means too much financially not to be trimmed and fitted in every manner conceivable to be caught up by the wind of popular approval, but recognizing its essential purpose the people are not likely to be deceived by its disguise.

Nebraska's New Jury Law.

They have a new jury law in Nebraska, and its workings have already driven several of the court attaches to drink, so it is said. This recently enacted law provides that the jury for the district court shall be drawn from the tax list instead of the directory as heretofore. Its first trial was made at Omaha and the first dash out of the box made some complications that turned the hair of the justice a snow white. Three women, a dead man, a Chinaman now in the Celestial Kingdom, and a babe who is a resident of Germantown, Pa., were among those chosen the first day. Deputy Jones hunted all over the city for his man without success until he ran across an undertaker, who gave him the drawn juror's correct address. It was in a certain lot out in Forest Lawn cemetery. Deputy Neve hunted all day long in the Chinese section for Sam Lee only to find towards sundown that he had gone back to China three months ago. Deputy Roach, after considerable search, located his "man." He found that a 2-year-old babe, who lives with his parents in Germantown, Pa., was wanted to sit on cases in the Omaha court. Deputy Sherry found his people all right, but they were women and he spent an hour trying to coax one of them to go into court long enough to answer to her name. He did not succeed. She told him she knew it was a joke her husband was trying to put up on her and she wouldn't bite. Then the four deputies filed into court and made their report and lots were cast for a new list. Perhaps if that jury could have been summoned it would have done as good work as many of the juries of the present day.

ILLEGAL DIVORCES.

The supreme court of the United States has handed down a decision which may send consternation into the ranks of Dakota divorcees. If the reports of the decision can be relied upon, the court holds that a divorce to be legal must be granted in a state where both husband and wife have secured a legal residence. In other words the court holds that marriage is a status determined by the laws of the state and not a civil contract, and that unless both parties are within the jurisdiction of the state, and have both gained a residence as required by law, there can be no valid change of the status.

It is very doubtful whether this is the decision of the court. If it is it will revolutionize the law of marriage and divorce, and will bring great hardship upon many who have acted in good faith under the laws of some states. For instance, those who have secured divorces from North and South Dakota, after gaining a residence there, but whose husbands or wives were residents of another state, will find themselves still bound in the original contract, notwithstanding the decree of the Dakota court. If they have married, they will be liable to prosecution for bigamy. Nor will the difficulty stop with those who have sought the divorce. The innocent party who remained at home and was quietly divorced, if re-married, will be guilty of the same crime, although acting in strict accord with the universally accepted interpretation of the law.

The tendency of the times has been to a liberal interpretation of the divorce laws, as making for social morality. Such a decision from the highest court of the land would turn the social clock back 500 years. The probabilities are that further investigations will give another color to the decision of the supreme court.

THE GAINSBOROUGH HAT.

The discovery of the Gainsborough portrait of the beautiful countess of Devonshire, decked out in that wonderful hat, which afterward took the name of the famous painter, has had the effect of again drawing public attention to that becoming but troublesome style of headgear.

The edict has gone forth from the millinery autocrats that the Gainsborough hat is to be worn once more. From this edict there is no appeal. If our dear sisters want to be in the swim they must allow themselves to be crowned by one of those wonderful creations. Inasmuch as the change of style of a hat does not intrench upon any hygienic law there will come no protest form the public. This man or that man who is compelled to pay the bills may kick; the man behind the hat in the theater may swear under his breath, and go out between the acts to get an unobstructed view of the stage from the side entrance, but that is about all.

The hustle tried to come back after it was banished, but there was such a roar of rage from the sterner sex that it retired to its mountain fastness in alarm. The hoop-skirt has made frantic attempts to assert itself, since it was dethroned thirty years ago, but it has been met with such a determined opposition that it has taken refuge with its younger sister, the bustle, and remains in hiding. The corset, however, stays by reason of its clinging propensity. Just how the revived Gainsborough will look with the present style of dress remains to be seen. It is certainly picturesque.

SOUTH POLE OR BUST.

For years the North Pole has been the great object of scientific research. Little by little the ice has been forced back, until the daring explorers have reached a point within a few hundred miles of the desired point. While these explorations in the frozen North have been fruitful of everything but financial gain, they have been persisted in with the hope of being able to do what man has not done before. The scientific data gathered by the various expeditions has enriched our literature and given the world a pretty accurate knowledge of the regions north of the Arctic circle.

During all this time the South Pole has been shamefully neglected. That end of the earth's axis has been regarded as a secondary affair in the revolutions of this sphere. Piled high with ice and surrounded with turbulent waters, the navigators have heretofore shrunk from the task of protracted explorations. But that is now at an end. A concert of powers is to make an assault upon the South Pole, and if it be not too thoroughly buttressed in ice it will have to surrender. The English, Scotch, Germans and Swedes are to lead the assaulting column. With Victorialand as a base, the English expedition will cover the region south of Australia and New Zealand. Southeast from Cape Horn, with Graham land as a base, the Scottish expedition will operate. The space between the Cape and Australia will be covered by the German expedition, with headquarters at Kerguelan island. The Swedes will take a position south and west of Cape Horn. Thus surrounded, the South Pole will have but little chance to escape. The Antarctic area to be explored is as large as Australia, covering 10,000,000 square miles. The first of November next is the day set for the order to advance. The result is awaited with interest.

PULP MILLS VS. SAWMILLS.

Must the sawmills surrender to the pulp mills? It certainly looks that way in the state of Maine, and it may become a reality all over the country. The pulp magnates declare the sawmill is nearing its end. At Bangor, logs are held at $14 per 1000 feet while the lumber that can be sawed from those logs will bring but $13 per 1000 feet. It is true that somewhat more than 1000 feet of lumber can be sawed from 1000 feet of logs, owing to a difference in the scale, but this difference allowing for the waste will not more than make things even. So that today on the Penobscot river the mill owners would receive for the product just what they paid for the material and lose the cost of manufacture.

One of two things must happen before the Maine sawmills can be operated at a profit this year—logs must come down or lumber go up. There is no prospect that logs will decline in price, for the reason that, with 100,000,000 feet, or fully one-half the total cut, going to the pulp mills, there will not be enough left to supply the sawmills for even a moderate season's work. No one expects values to fall when the supply is short of the demand. The pulp mills will buy all the logs in sight at present quotations, because they can afford to pay that price, and if the lumbermen cannot afford to pay that price they must go without logs.

As to the prospect of an advance in the price of spruce lumber, opinions differ. Everything depends upon the New York market, which makes the price for random spruce—the great bulk of Maine's lumber production, and of late years the New York market has been "up like a rocket and down like a stick." In 1900 it was difficult to sell the best wide randoms at $16 to $17.50 per 1000. This year the lumbermen say that they see little prospect of good prices, let alone high prices for spruce. There is about $4 per 1000 difference between the price of lumber in New York and that quoted in Bangor. From this it will be seen that $20 per 1000, which would be considered by lumbermen as a good price in New York, would be about $15 per 1000 in Bangor, and the Bangor price today is only $13. While only $13 worth of lumber can be sawed from $14 worth of logs, the pulp men can do much better—so much better that they can afford to pay the price asked for the logs and then make a fine profit.

One pulp mill on the Penobscot river eats up 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 feet of logs annually, this being the largest establishment of the kind in the world. This mill has been such a success that plans are now being made to enlarge it considerably, and there are numerous smaller ones in operation, with several new ones projected. The situation is simple—the men who cut the logs will sell them where they can get the highest price. If the sawmills cannot pay the price set by the pulp makers, then the sawmills must shut down. It is a question of whether the logs shall be sawed or ground into pulp, with the chances decidedly in favor of the grinders. A boom in the lumber market would postpone the sawmills' doomsday, but the perpetuation of Maine's old-time industry depends upon a narrow chance—the discovery very soon of something that shall supplant spruce logs as a material for pulp.

One great trouble with the American diplomat is that he talks too much. He says more than he really means to. The most recent illustration is Minister Loomis who talked about President Castro without realizing how it would sound after it became public property. He soon found out his mistake, however, and hastened to deny that he ever said any such thing. What else could he do but deny it?

The silence of the grave is the absolutely rounded and perfect censorship, and Lord Kitchener's censorship is the next thing to it. For proof read this, from I. N. Ford's London correspondence in the New York Tribune: "The fact that 1500 British soldiers have been besieged over three months without anybody's knowing anything about it is striking proof of the utter inadequacy of news service in South Africa."

An Eastern newspaper, in reporting the disappearance of John L. Williams, an editor of Morristown, N. J., with $1000 on his person a contemporary says: "The most peculiar part of the matter is that he was last seen with Frank Everett, who also has disappeared." Not at all—the most peculiar feature is that the editor was in possession of $1000. Where did he get it?

The "golf dog" is said to be the latest thing in canines. He is described as a cross between a Scotch collie and a retriever, with a little "sooner" thrown in. His great value lies in his ability to bring the golf ball out of the pond where it is frequently knocked by the duffer who plays at golf.

It is said that ex-President Cleveland has been greatly worried of late by the appearance of mysterious footsteps in the vicinity of his house at Princeton. Surely it is not the Star-Eyed Goddess of Reform seeking to force another presidential nomination on him!

The postoffice department has determined not to establish rural free delivery where the roads are bad. This should give the good roads movement a fresh boom.

The Erie, Pa., young man who committed suicide because one of his puns was not appreciated will not be much missed.

BREEZY REMARKS.

Philadelphia Times: While on a train recently, Mrs. Nation was afflicted with a sort of sea-sickness. Probably on account of the choppy motion of the cars.

Indianapolis Press: "Oh, Lordy," said she, "wouldn't this be an elegant afternoon for a drive!"

"Yes," said he, unabashed; "I'll bring you up a hammer and a few nails this afternoon."

Detroit Free Press: "Do you believe in 'push' or 'pull' as elements in success?"

"Neither."

"What then?"

"Dig."

Chicago Record-Herald: "Mark Twain wants a statue erected to Adam."

"Adam? What did Adam ever do for humanity? It was Eve who discovered the nutritive value of the apple."

Washington Star: "I guess mabbe Josh is goin' to be a great financier, an' git money by his brains," remarked Farmer Corntossel.

"Does he take such an interest in commercial affairs?"

"No. But he's got to get a livin' somehow, An' he jes' won't work!"

Pittsburg Chronicle: "What a hoarse laugh he has," said Ethel, not unkindly, but discriminatively.

"Yes," added Blanche, "I wonder why he doesn't get a horseless laugh."

Philadelphia Press: Bookkeeper—Did the boss carry out that plan of yours?

Clerk—No, but I guess Mike will.

Bookkeeper—Mike?

Clerk—Yes, the porter. The boss threw the plan in his wastebasket.

Brooklyn Eagle: Willie Boerum (entertaining his sister's caller)—Do you like base ball very much, Mr. Jamaica?

Mr. Jamaica—I never played ball much. I enjoy golf—

Willie Boerum (disappointedly)—Why, I heard tell pa tell Susan you was a great catch!

Chicago Tribune: Aunt Chloe, following the suggestion of an educated friend, had named the previous pickaninny Appendix, thinking there would be no more.

TWO CHARIOTS.

This is the chariot know as Fate and these are the horses three,
They are known as Greed, Ambition and Strife, and the wind is not more free.
They are seen coursing the vast arena of life and their goal is Destiny.

And who is it rides so swift away, O!
who may the driver be?
Stern shows his face through the clouds of dust—look and your eyes will see
The form of a daring rider there, and his name is Enmity.

Now, these are the horses black as night, and the driver fierce is he;
They feel the pitiless lash of pride as onward they swiftly flee—
For he seeks the glittering goal beyond,
the goal that is Destiny.

But look, where another chariot goes and drawn by horses three;
Their driver he drives with a gentle hand
and Love his name shall be,
For the horses he drives are Faith and
Hope, and the third is Charity.

White as the foam that wets their lips are Love's swift horses three;
They, too, are sounding the course of life
toward the goal that is Destiny;
But they trample no roses under their feet and none from their pathway flee.

Where Enmity's chariot wheels have been a burning track shall be,
While Love looks back with a lingering smile that all who will may see;
For Enmity rides with a fierce desire,
but Love shall the victor be.

Plea For the Shirtwaist.

New York Mail and Express: We are to have the shirtwaists because they are cool, and sensible, and sightly. It argues no superiority of culture to overdress in warm weather; we believe that of all people the citizens of the "Black Republic" of Hayti adhere most rigidly to the frock coat for formal summer wear. But the probable triumph of the shirtwaist is not to be understood as the triumph of untidiness. Society should frown, and will frown, on the effort of the serviceable garment designed for the ball field, the tennis court or the buckwoods to domicile itself on the hotel or cottage piazza. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and eternal laundry bills and doceurs to the frillmakers will be the price of this latest emancipation.

Freak Names For Race Horses.

New York Tribune: The preserve ingenuity exhibited by some owners of race horses in selecting grotesque, uncouth and disagreeable names for their thoroughbred colts and fillies almost takes one's breath away at times. "Skip Me" and "Wait a Minute" are running on Western tracks, and what is to be said of the good taste of the man who would afflict an innocent and harmless animal with such a name as "Sad Sam!" But the climax of offensive nomenclature appears to have been reached by the unscrupulous person who was guilty of the choice of "Syncopated Sandy" as a burden for a runner of excellent lineage to carry through life. Every thoroughbred racer has a pedigree which can be traced for a century or more. Think of an ancestry of blue blood which finally descends to the horror of such a botch as "Syncopated Sandy!"

Perils of Street Car Man.

Detroit Free Press: One of the responsible managers of the Detroit street railways, by neglecting to provide his cars with safety appliances, as required by law, has made himself liable to imprisonment for 3039 years. His lawyers, however, assure him that even if such a sentence is imposed it will never be carried out.

Great Bodies Move Slowly.

Boston Transcript: The supreme court's long delay is passing on "the colonial policy" is another reminder that great bodies move slowly, especially when ticklish questions are up. DAILY STORY.

THE FINAL EIGHTH.

BY GEORGE LEMOYNE.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller.)

Buffington was soaring. It went up not by fractions, but by whole points, and each point meant a dollar on every share of Buffington common, and there were a million shares.

It was small wonder that the little men looked at the ticker with their hearts swelling up into their throats, while the sticky prespiration crept out upon their flesh. At 10 o'clock in the morning of Tuesday, May 12, 1900, Buffington lay dead on the market at 48, and no sales. When

"That!" said Craven, pointing to the small man.

the exchange closed five hours later as the hands touched 3, the floor resembled a maniac-stricken fire trap, and Buffington was touching 68—that is to say that the railroad of Buffington, worth $48,000,000 at 10 a. m., was valued at $68,000,000 five hours after—a difference of $20,000,000.

The brokers shook their heads and sold all the Buffington they could lay their hands on, for they knew it paid no dividend, and its real value was below the 48 of the morning's sales.

Now, on the morning of the 13th a few brokers who were short on the stock started to break the market, and Buffington sold down to 64⅜, but somewhere in Wall street a strong hand reached out with millions in its palm and swallowed all shares offered, and Buffington sold up to 80 before 1 o'clock.

John Craven watched the ticker slipping the fateful line of paper ribbon into his basket, where it coiled upon itself like some albino serpent.

"Buffington at 70," dashed the instrument; "70½ and 70¾. Buff. at 80, and all shares bought on sight. It is evident that some tremendous combination of capital is beeling this stock upward in an effort to squeeze out the great short interest." That meant those who had sold the stock below 80 and were out a dollar for every point of difference.

"Great God!" muttered Craven, letting his face rest on his hands; "and I am short 20,000 shares of Buffington; yet he told me it would not go over 80. But will they stop there? If they do not I fail for a million."

A small man entered softly and came close to the despondent figure. "Well?" asked William Conyers, with a curious rising inflection in his voice, "Buffington is at 80."

"Yes," answered Craven, "but will it drop now? Remember, you vowed that it would not go over, and I have margined up to my last cent—another eighth would kill me," and here his eyes watched his companion with a certain feverish impatience as if he desired to tear the truth from him.

"It will go to 80⅝," was the imperturbable reply, "and just because the eighth will ruin you absolutely, although the other was dumb from surprise. "It is because, as you know why, I loved your wife before you met her, and I believe in my soul that she cared for me, however, she married you, and I have hated quietly and consistently without unnecessary words and with no violence; but today I have the pleasure of making a pauper of you, and, believe me, it is charming," and here the little man ceased and viewed his victim with an absolute joyousness of manner.

The other man clung to the ribbon and shuddered as the machine tapped off Buffington at 80⅜ and no sign of slumping.

The door opened swiftly and the junior partner entered with a drawn, tense expression about the mouth, which showed the frightful strain he was undergoing. "They have sent for the last margin. What shall I do?" he asked.

Craven raised his head, and his deep-set, empurpled eyes were filled with the mists of despair. "Ask for time," he said; but the man answered: "No time allowed on a day like this." "True enough," Craven admitted; "then borrow money."

"I have tried," was the answer, "but the street is already filled with rumors that you have failed, and our paper has been refused."

"Then the doors must close," the broker answered, disdaining to glance at the conquering smile of Conyers, who was lighting a cigar with much carefulness.

Then a girl came in and knelt beside John Craven, whose eyes cleared somewhat as they rested on her rare loveliness, while Conyers, the victorious, shivered. "It is Mary," he murmured, before he remembered that it was only Mary's daughter.

"Papa," said the girl, laying her cool fingers on the fever-branded forehead of John Craven, "I heard something of failure and ruin—is it true?" and reading her answer in his face, she continued: "But what in the world caused it?"

"That!" said Craven, pointing to the small man, who attempted to regain his conquering smile, but its radiance was dimmed.

Then her father related the cause and beginning of his financial crash, and the girl watched Conyers with such bewildered horror that it stung him through his pride. "You see, young lady," he said; "men no longer fight with steel; today men battle with their brains and their weapon is a golden one; not pointed, but round."

"I am aware, sir," she answered with a serene contempt that hurt him cruelly, "that the age of gentlemen is decidedly archaic, but you have proved it most conclusively. However," she continued turning toward her father, "I was long on Buffington up to a half hour ago and have ordered my broker to sell at 80. That will net me $50,000. You can cover up to 87 with that. Can you carry it over?" she asked the astounded schemer, whose face had gone an ashen pallor, while with a deep-mouthed curse he disappeared, knowing that he would need all his skill to avoid an utter ruin; for, weakened by the girl's sales, Buffington dropped to 78, at which figure Craven sold his shares at a profit of half a million.

"But, Annie, what induced you to buy Buffington?" Craven asked wonderingly.

The girl went to the door and returned with William Conyers' son and the two stood shamefacedly before the broker. "It was he," the girl confessed at length. "He told me to buy all the Buffington I could and sell at 80, and that is why the market broke in time to save you—just at the final eighth," and unreproved by John Craven, Esq., broker and member on 'change, she raised her lips to the man whose young love had vanquished an old hate, while Buffington was dropping like a falling star.

ZIGZAG COURSE

Of Emperor William Is Criticised By Bismarck.

Berlin, April 18.—Prince Herbert Bismarck, in a speech at Burg, criticised Emperor William's zig-zag course, quoting the elder Bismarck's words: "The way of destruction for the government is to do first this and then that, and promise today what it does not do tomorrow."

Prince Herbert praised Count Von Buelow as the most capable German diplomatist and recognized Von Buelow's interest in agriculture, but demanded that he follow up this with the assistance needed, which was an agricultural tariff.

WOMEN MUST SLEEP.

Avoid Nervous Prostration.

If you are dangerously sick what is the first duty of your physician? He quiets the nervous system, he deadens the pain, and you sleep well.

Friends ask, "what is the cause?" and the answer comes in pitying tones, nervous prostration. It came upon you so quietly in the beginning, that you were not alarmed, and when sleep deserted you night after night until your eyes fairly burned in the darkness, then you tossed in nervous agony praying for sleep.

MRS. A. HARTLEY.

You ought to have known that when you ceased to be regular in your courses, and you grew irritable without cause, that there was serious trouble somewhere.

You ought to know that indigestion, exhaustion, womb displacements, fainting, dizziness, headache, and backache send the nerves wild with affright, and you cannot sleep.

Mrs. Hartley, of 221 W. Congress St., Chicago, Ill., whose portrait we publish, suffered all these agonies, and was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; her case should be a warning to others, and her cure carry conviction to the minds of every suffering woman of the unfailing efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

CLOSING AT HAND

Merrill & Ring Purchase to Be Soon Acted Upon.

Diamond Match Company Directors to Meet Saturday.

Sale to Include Mill and All Timber Holdings.

Unless there is a big flurry in the money market or something unforeseen happens, there is little doubt but that the sale of the Merrill & Ring interests, including their timber on the north shore and the big mill at West Duluth, will be consummated with the Diamond Match company. Dispatches from the East indicate that there will be a meeting of the directors of the match company in Chicago probably on Saturday of this week, and it is understood that the meeting has been purposely called to complete this purchase. The match company has had cruisers and estimators all over the Merrill & Ring timber for weeks and these have returned and made very satisfactory reports to the company. Until the deal is actually made, it is natural to suppose that the parties interested do not care to give out figures to the public, but a very close estimate of the sale price is said to be in the neighborhood of $1,200,000.

At this price the match company would be buying cheap for the mill is one of the largest and best equipped at the head of the lakes. The timber interests of the Merrill & Ring company are variously estimated between 50,000,000 and 150,000,000 feet. The deal will include all the Split Rock Lumber company's camps and logging railway and equipment at Split Rock on the north shore.

It comes pretty straight from a lumberman, who has recently seen one of the Merrill brothers at the Pacific coast, that the Merrill & Ring company will begin logging operations on a large scale in timber holdings that they have in Washington, just as soon as the present deal is closed up. Whether or not this is to include a mill for the timber there is not known.

There has been more or less speculation as to the plans of the Diamond Match company in buying a sawmill plant at the head of the lake. Of course, the inference is that the company will first go into the business of sawing match timber, but the speculative part lies in the question of whether the company will also branch out into general lumber business and whether it will ultimately have a match factory at this point. The match company had a sawmill in Northern Michigan that burned down about two years ago, and the company never rebuilt. It is held that the company did not build a factory at the site of its former mill and and might not do so here, while on the other hand the conditions are not the same, for at the head of the lakes the match company would have a fine site and the conditions as to nearness to base of supplies and facilities for shipping are uncelled at any other point that the match company might consider.

There are still several million feet of lumber on the Merrill & Ring company's dock at West Duluth, but with the exception of the scoots, it is understood that the stock has been all sold during the past winter to be moved as soon as practicable after navigation opens.

HE IS BOLD.

Burt Bellinger Robs a Dentist's Office In Minneapolis.

Not satisfied with the flurry in dentistry and finance which he caused in this city recently by stealing valuable sets of false teeth and passing forged checks, Burt Bellinger created considerable excitement in Minneapolis last Saturday night. He paid an informal visit to Dr. G. E. Dysinger's dental parlors and came very near putting the dentist out of business, only leaving the chair and painted sign on the door. The following account of this nervy transaction was published in yesterday's Minneapolis Journal:

"Burton H. Bellinger, of aristocratic appearance and from one of the best families of Duluth, Minn., is rapidly making great strides to reputation as one of the shiftiest rascals now at large.

"Last December the young man came to Minneapolis and secured employment with Dr. George W. Dysinger, a dentist at Hennepin avenue and Third street.

"He had been in Dysinger's employ but a few weeks before the doctor had reason to question his honesty but knowing the family connections of the lad, Dysinger decided to discharge him rather than make trouble. The day Bellinger received his discharge Dysinger missed a number of sets of false teeth valued at $300. Bellinger went to Duluth. Dysinger consulted the police, and Inspector Lawrence was dispatched after the young man with a warrant charging him with grand larceny. He was brought back to this city, but the grand jury failed to indict him.

"Subsequently Bellinger brought a civil action against Dysinger for damages to his reputation because of the arrest. This suit was pending in the Hennepin county courts when fresh tidings from the wayward Bellinger at Duluth were to the effect that he had secured $250 on a forged draft, together with other valuable instruments stolen from the dentist's office where he was employed. He was supposed to have eluded the officers and left for the West.

"He did leave for the West, but it appears that he sojourned for a day and a night in Minneapolis and by way of renewing former ties with Dr. Dysinger made a hasty visit to his office and appropriated everything of value in sight. In fact he nearly put the doctor out of business. Sets of teeth, delicate instruments, gold fillings, crowned dies—all were shoved into the capacious satchel of the wily Bellinger. The value of the goods taken amounts to $500. With rare generosity Bellinger left behind the doctor's costly dentist's chair and the painted sign on the door."

It combines, in a rare degree, the excellence of high quality with the pleasing feature of low price.

It is fine in tone, carefully finished and artistic in style.

It satisfies—won't you examine it?

THE FREIGHTS

Discussion of Rates Is Becoming More General.

Freight rate talk is said to be getting a little warmer, though there is little prospect of the season opening with a jump. The principal interest seems to be at present in the coal rate and reports have been coming to the head of the lake that a block of coal had been taken for 40 cents. It is now said that this report is generally doubted by both owner and shipper, that the latter says he will not take the business until he can get at a rate of 35 cents, while the owners are holding back for 50 cents. Fifty cents is the price agreed on by the vesselmen's pool, and those on the outside are said to be holding out for the same figure. The ore shippers have disposed of a great deal of their ores, but are not particularly anxious about getting boats to move the ore.

There is nothing doing locally as to lumber rates. The local vesselmen say that no charters have yet been made, but that both sides the shipper and the vesselman, are talking over the proposition and trying to reach a figure satisfactory to each. It has been intimated that the chartering business will start up with a rush very soon.

Announcement has been made that the first boats of the Lake Superior Transportation company will leave Cleveland for Lake Superior points on April 25.

SOUTH DAKOTA CROP NEWS

Some Seeding Done But Very Little.

The publication of the crop reports in the spring wheat states has begun. The South Dakota report for the week ending April 15 is as follows:

"Very little seeding, or preparation of ground except dragging, was done during March in the middle and northern counties. In the extreme southeastern counties a little wheat was sown during the first decade, but the work thereafter suffered frequent interruptions from freezing weather or rain or snow until the last of the month, and where progress of any consequence was made it was confined to localities. Some apprehension was felt the fore part of the month lest the soil moisture would be insufficient for the prompt and healthy germination of seed, but subsequent rain or snow made the soil amply moist generally for at least present needs.

"During the past week wheat seeding although interrupted by damp and showery weather and in many localities, particularly in the northern and Black Hills counties, delayed by wet condition of the soil, has become far advanced towards completion in the southeastern, has progressed fairly well but not generally in the middle, and has begun in the northern counties, and the early sown in the southern counties is germinating well, though slowly because of the cool, cloudy and damp weather."

Automobiles In War.

Automobiles are to be used as army transport wagons. Trial experiments in France have proved convincing. It is odd to note the different uses to which nature and science are put. On the battlefield they fight for the destruction of life, while throughout the country Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, one of nature's most scientific medicines, fights to preserve it. For fifty years the Bitters has been making strong stomachs and curing dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation and biliousness. In the spring when the system is usually run down this wonderful medicine will be helpful in restoring your health and strength. It will also prevent malaria, fever and ague and as an appetizer it is unequalled. See that our Private Revenue Stamp is over the neck of the bottle.

ARE UNDER OPTION.

Big Dredging Plants May Be Sold.

Things are cropping out every few days that go to show that some of the dredging plants of Capt. C. S. Barker, of West Superior, and E. T. Williams & Son, of this city, are under option. The firs dredge work of the season was begun in the ship canal today by one of the E. T. Williams dredges. Capt. Barker's dredges are unable to get out for several days yet on account of the ice in the slip at West Superior.

Lessons In Beautifying.

This evening Secretary Thomas E. Hill of the Duluth Improvement company, will inaugurate at Duluth Heights the first of a series of improvement meetings to be held in various parts of the city. The object is to bring before the people in the most practical way the methods of tree planting, flowers, care of yards, fences roads and other things that help to beautify the city. The second meeting will be held in Lakeside on Friday night and other meetings in the West End and in West Duluth will be arranged for later.

IS VERY UNUSUAL

Present Situation on the Lakes Without Precedent.

Navigation Open and Scarcely a Large Boat Moving.

Possible That Few Will Move Before June 1.

"It seems funny," said a tugman yesterday, looking at the dancing blue waters of the lake thoughtfully, "to see the old lake open and us getting nothing out of it."

That is the way it strikes a good many people. To see the lake free and navigation practically open, with smaller craft plying unimpeded, and to think that hardly a big boat all over the lakes is stirring, makes an unusual situation. Usually there is a good deal of betting on the opening of navigation, but there has been almost none this year, so completely has the engineers' strike covered the field with its more absorbing interest. The only bets that are heard are as to the length of the engineers' strike. One man was heard within a day or two to offer all kinds of money as a bet that no boats to speak of would be moved before June 1, and he got no takers.

Reports from all over the lakes are that the men are standing firm everywhere, and that most of the vessel men are also standing firm. With many vessel men the prospect of a hold-up of navigation until June 1 is not so terrible. They profess to be perfectly delighted with the prospect, in fact, and they claim that if navigation is delayed until June 1 they will save a month's expenses, will carry just as much in the season, and will get more for it. The men, on the other hand, say this is a good deal of a bluff, and while it is true to a certain extent the fact that no vessels are fitted out, and that some little time will be needed for that after the strike is over, is bothering the vessel men not a little.

It would seem that it has fallen to the steel trust to bear the brunt of the strike. At least it is assuming it, either from choice or because the other vessel men are tacitly permitting it to come to the front in the matter. Some of the lines have slipped out of the Lake Carriers' association, such as the Egan fleet of four vessels, and the Dunham fleet of three, none of which come to this port. The lumber vessel owners are said to be arranging for a conference with the engineers, and it is expected that a deal will be arranged that will release the lumber carriers from the strike soon.

The action of the local tugmen in arranging for independent tugs to keep them busy until the strike is settled and the Great Lakes Towing company can get to work, will meet with favor among the vessel men. The only boats to move, of course, will be those not in the strike, so there will be no objection to the men working in this way.

The danger of a clash with the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association seems to be over. It was feared for a time that the L. T. P. A. would prove a stumbling block to the engineers, but so far those fears have not been warranted.

Central Gun Club.

The Central Gun club held its annual meeting Tuesday evening and elected the following officers: President, Paul Sharvy; vice president, F. E. Berry; secretary and treasurer, J. W. Nelson; field captain, D. H. Day; lieutenant, Thomas Storey; official referee, A. B. Thomas. The club now has about forty active members and about 125 all together. Eight new members were admitted at the meeting. There will be a two days' tournament the coming summer, the dates to be decided upon later. The grounds are open for practice and shoots on Saturdays and Wednesdays.

The Bradshaw Leaves.

The steamer Mabel Bradshaw got away yesterday with a large load of passengers and freight, and the season for the White Line Transportation company may be considered as begun. The Bradshaw had seventy-five passengers and about 100 tons of freight. The trip will be around Isle Royale.

Capt. Singer has put out a folder descriptive of the pleasures and advantages of the triangular trip his line offers, and it is a very well arranged and well written advertisement.

The Deal Is Closed.

The deal for the sale of 200,000 acres of N. P. lands to the Boston and Duluth Land company was formally closed yesterday. It has already been described in detail. The company has already disposed of a large quantity of the land, and is doing a heavy business in locating settlers in this section. The lands formerly belonged to the St. Paul & Duluth. The consideration is said to be in the neighborhood of $500,000, though it is not made public.

COLDS

The quickest relief for a cold is by Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

You will find the edge taken off in a night; and, in three or four days, you'll be wondering whether that cold amounted to anything anyhow.

That's relief. If you tackle it quick, the relief is quick; if you wait, the relief won't come—you know how colds hang on.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

AMUSEMENTS.

HERMANN THE GREAT.

"Hermann the Great," the widely heralded man in American theatricals, will appear at the Lyceum Saturday evening. Not less than his predecessor of the same name, whom he strongly resembles in looks and mannerisms, is the present Hermann, an accomplished magician. In some respects, indeed, he surpasses the first of the line of prestidigitators whose feats of magic earned for him the name of "wizard" and whom the public crowned with the title "The Great."

AL G. FIELD'S MINSTRELS.

Al G. Field's minstrels will be at the Lyceum Monday evening next. Especially strong is said to be the force of singers. Mr. Field has selected each one of his soloists, each one of his chorus singers, has been selected with the utmost care and the result is a choir of tuneful song birds far in advance of what is elsewhere met with on the minstrel stage. Arthur Yule is there, the famous English tenor, so is Rees Prosser America's favorite tenor, A. Fred Aelkens, contra tenor, will also be heard. Addison Waltz baritone, Clarance Rummell baritone, James Gibbons tenor, Paul Lalonde, basso, round out the matchless roster.

Church Benefit Concert.

The Mission church at the West End promises to be filled tomorrow evening when the concert for the benefit of the Swedish Methodist church is given. The great attraction will be the appearance of Governor Van Sant who will make a speech. He will be introduced by Mayor Hugo. Dr. Long of the First Methodist church will also speak. The concert will be a notable one, a very fine program having been arranged. The High school musical society will take part.

Two Circuses Coming.

Two circuses will visit Duluth the coming summer. Ringling Bros.' big show will be here in the early part of June and will be warmly welcomed without doubt for it is the largest of all the shows in the country at this time.

During the second week in July the John Robinson show will be here. It is possible that the Buffalo Bill show will visit here again this year but it is not likely.

The Duluth Presbytery.

The Duluth Presbytery at its session in the Glen Avon church yesterday elected Rev. R. A. Montgomery delegate to the general assembly which will meet in Philadelphia. C. H. Fratcher of the Second Presbyterian church was elected as the lay delegate. The alternates were Rev. T. H. Cleland and F. A. Watkins, of Carlton. Reports were given by the pastor-at-large, Rev. S. A. Jamieson, and Rev. T. H. Cleland on systematic beneficence. In the evening Dr. Milne lectured on John Knox and his address was the subject of much favorable comment. His Scotch stories were very striking. Mrs. T. G. Sykes sang pleasing songs.

CHANGES ARE MADE

The Election Laws Are Amended In Some Particulars.

Appropriation of Regular Party's Name Is Prohibited.

Provision Affecting Legislative Candidates In This County.

The legislature at the session just concluded made a number of changes in the election laws of the state. As a result of one of these, there will be no more parties designated on the ballot with names such as "Silver Republican," "Social Democrat," etc., for the law provides "that a political party which heretofore or hereafter shall adopt a party name shall alone be entitled to the use of such name for the designation of its candidates on the official ballot, and no candidate nor party subsequently formed shall be entitled to use or have printed on the official ballot, as a party designation, any part of the name of a previously existing party. And in no case shall the candidate of any political party be entitled to be designated upon the official ballot as the candidate of more than one political party, and shall be designated upon the official ballot in accordance with the certificate of nomination first filed with the proper officers."

The latter clause of this law will prevent a candidate being designated as the candidate of the Democratic and People's parties, and was undoubtedly aimed at fusion.

Another law passed, and one which will be generally approved, provides that when there is a presidential election the names of the several electors of each party shall have after them a bracket, and it shall be specified what presidential candidate they represent, and a cross placed after the name of the candidate shall count a vote for each of the nine electors. This means that one cross will carry a vote for president instead of nine, as it was at the last election, and eleven, as it will be at the next.

Another law which has been passed provides, in effect, that in cases where there is more than one candidate for offices which are under one designation on the official ballot, the names shall be printed on the ballot in such manner that each candidate shall have his name at the top on an equal number of ballots with every other candidate. This will apply to this county in the case of legislative candidates. There are two candidates for representative for each legislative district. Formerly the auditor put whichever one first that he saw fit, but hereafter the ballots must be printed so that each will be at the head on an equal number of ballots with the other.

It is understood that this law was secured by St. Louis county Republicans for the purpose of applying to the legislative candidates. It has been the experience of the Republicans in the legislative contests here that the second man on the ticket sometimes had a close shave, while the first man would slide in with plenty to spare. The object sought is to make both more certain.

NOW IN DULUTH.

Mull's Pioneer Kidney Cure.

Physicians generally are freely prescribing for Kidney Disease, a small chocolate coated tablet, called Mull's Pioneer Cure, with good and lasting results. It is not a "cure all," it is recommended only for Kidney Trouble, hence the doctors have faith in it.

Kidney Trouble is responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, and if permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow. Mull's Pioneer Kidney Cure cures by draining out of the blood the poisonous Uric acid, which causes the disease. It acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels. It is specially compounded for eradicating Kidney Disease.

It can now be obtained from any up-to-date Druggist at 25c for trial size, and $1.00 for large size, the latter has a dollar draft with it as a guarantee.

The Lightning Medicine Co., Rock Island, will send you a free trial if you wish.

Mull's Lightning Pain Killer, relieves life of one great burden, Pain. Rub it on or drink it. 25c.

RED HATS

Imposed By the Pope on the Newly Appointed Cardinals.

Rome, April 18.—At the public consistory today the ceremony of imposing the red hats on the new cardinals occurred in the Sala Delle Benedizionia, in the presence of all the cardinals, bishops, prelates, diplomats, functionaries of the vatican, Roman nobility and numerous invited guests. The pope, who was in excellent health, was warmly cheered. The pontiff, seated on the throne and surrounded by his court, performed the ceremony of imposing the hats and pronounced the pontifical benediction. There was no allocution. Subsequently the pope received the new cardinals in his private apartments.

RATES.

Passenger Association Fixes Various Ticket Assessments.

Delmonte, Cal., April 18.—The Transcontinental Passenger association in session here, has decided that the rate from Chicago to San Francisco and return for the Episcopal convention, which is to be held in San Francisco, shall be $50 for a first class ticket. The rate from the Missouri river will be $45 and from St. Louis and New Orleans $47.50. Tickets for this convention will be on sale east of Colorado from Sept. 23 to Sept. 27. The round trip rate from California to the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo will be made on a basis of $60 to the Missouri river added to whatever rates may be made east of the river. It was decided to abolish skeleton tickets. The following roads have joined the association: The Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern, the Burlington & Northeastern and the Keokuk & Western. The association now numbers thirty-six roads and it is announced that the number may be increased to forty-five at the next meeting. The Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific are still out of the association.

HEAD-ON.

Injured: Harry Velzenbrech, engineer; J. O. Hammon, fireman; Sylvester Bruggen, workman, Cleveland.

Boys' Brigade March.

The Boys' Brigade, which is to march again on Saturday will start from Garfield avenue and march westward to Twenty-ninth avenues west on Superior street and back on Third street. A former announcement said that the march would be to Twenty-ninth avenue east.

K. of P. Band Concert.

The concert to be given by the Minnesota Knights Pythias band at the Armory on April 29 promises to be an exceptionally delightful musical treat. This is the band that made Duluth famous in Detroit last fall during the Knights Pythias convention and it will also represent Minnesota in the convention to be held in San Francisco next summer. After the concert there will be a dance.

A FRAUD.

Joel E. Emerson Arrested By Government Orders.

Manchester, N. H., April 18.—A special to the Union from Nashua, N. H., says: Joel E. Emerson, who hails from Vermont, has been arrested here upon a warrant issued by the United States officials, charging him with using the mails for fraudulent purposes. His arrest was caused by Franklin J. Moore, of Philadelphia, assistant United States manager of the General Accident Assurance company of Scotland, and a vice president of the International Association of Accident Underwriters. Mr. Moore has just returned from the West, where he secured the arrest and conviction of the celebrated accident insurance "fraud" Gilbert Moffett.

CASCARINE, THE MODERN CURE

For Stomach and Liver Troubles.

Ninety per cent of the population of this country suffer from stomach trouble and 75 per cent of the ninety suffer from indigestion. If anyone has that uncomfortable feeling in the stomach, a headache or a feeling of repression, he should take Cascarine, the gentle and pleasing laxative, used in practice and recommended by thousands of people. If you cannot sleep at night, if you are restless and have palpitation of the heart, which usually leads one to believe he has heart disease when in reality it is nothing more than accumulation of gas in the stomach, you should take a teaspoonful of Cascarine before retiring and after continuing for a week you will find you are troubled no more and can sleep well and sound.

If your tongue is coated and you find a bad taste in your mouth, your stomach is out of order and requires Cascarine to put it in shape. You must not eat too much, and you must have your meals regular and eat well-cooked food. There are many remedies, digestive ferments, digestive tablets, mineral waters and thousands of other so-called cures, but all have to be taken constantly in order to do any good, and after using for a time become worthless. Cascarine is superior to all others. It stimulates the liver, removes from the stomach all impurities, and acts as a tonic on the whole system.

Mothers should be careful not to use any other laxative for the children. When you ask for Cascarine at your druggist's be sure you get Cascarine (which comes in blue and white wrappers) and not cheap tablets or pills. Insist on Cascarine, and if your druggist hasn't it ask him to get it for you of his jobber. Price, 50 cents.

DAMAGE REPORTS

Wheat Started Out Firmer With the Shorts Scared.

Heavy Frosts In Kansas and In the Southwest.

Cables Were Steady and the Northwest Receipts Light.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 18.—The shorts in May wheat got a scare this morning when the reports came of heavy frosts in Kansas and in the Southwest, calculated to inflict damage on the winter wheat crop. The result was that the opening prices showed an advance owing to buying by shorts, but when this demand was satisfied the market reacted. The cable news was steady, an advance of 1/4@1/2d at Liverpool, being reported, and the Northwest receipts were of moderate size. The foreign and domestic demand for wheat is one of the strong features of the market and it continues good. New York reported 52 loads of wheat taken today. Chicago reported 260,000 bus of No. 1 northern wheat worked just after the close yesterday. Duluth continues a little out of line and is doing no export business. Primary receipts were 361,279 bus, last year 351,741 bus. Shipments were 177,077 bus, last year 324,566 bus. Clearances of wheat were 206,893 bus. At the seaboard yesterday exporters bought 320,000 bus and were supposed to have bought 250,000 bus more that was not confirmed.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 245 cars, against 280 last week and 250 last year. Chicago receipts, 27 cars, none of contract grade.

Trading in futures was dull on the Duluth board and prices held within a narrower range than at Chicago. May wheat opened unchanged at 72⅝c, sold at 72⅛c at 10:20, recovered to 72¾c at 11:45 and held at that point to the close, closing there, without change from yesterday. Chicago closed ¼-⅜c up and Minneapolis ⅛c up. Cash sales of wheat in Duluth were very light aggregating about 10,000 bus at ¾c under May for wheat to arrive and ⅞c under for wheat in store.

Corn was rather active today in Chicago and sold up to 44⅜c for the May option, Phillips being a bidder for corn in large lots at the high prices of the day. Later it slumped and closed at a decline. In Duluth the price was unchanged. Primary receipts of corn were 240,888 bus, last year 524,477 bus. Shipments 170,077, last year 1,940,991. Clearances were 235,157 bus.

September flax advanced 2c while the May, cash and to arrive were 3½c off.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 73⅝c; to arrive, 74⅜c; May, 74⅜c. No. 1 northern, cash, 71⅝c; to arrive, 72⅜c; May, 72⅜c; July, 75¼c; September, 71½c. No. 2 northern, 66⅜-70⅜c. No. 3 spring, 61⅜-66⅜c.

Oats, 27-26¾c. Rye, 50¼c. Flax, cash, $1.35½; to arrive $1.33½; May, $1.09; September, $1.25; October, $1.22. Northwestern, $1.27; October, $1.22. Corn, cash, 41c; May, 41⅛c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 58; oats, 1. Receipts—Wheat, 52,579 bus; corn, 750 bus; flax, 2658 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 1771 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Heavy Frosts Gave Wheat Shorts a Scare.

Chicago, April 18.—Heavy frosts in Kansas and the Southwest gave shorts a scare at the opening of trade in wheat today. May started ½@⅝c higher at 71@71¼c. Cables were steady and receipts light. The buying soon ceased, however, and May reacted to 70¾c. Local receipts were 27 cars, none of contract grade, while Minneapolis and Duluth reported 245 cars, against 280 last week and 257 a year ago. Corn was dull. May opened ⅛@⅜c up at 44⅜@⅝c, sold to 44⅝@⅔c early on the receipts, 91 cars, and then reacted to 44⅛@⅜c on reports showing an improved condition of the weather. July sold at a discount of ⅛c under May.

Oats were quiet and steady, sympathizing with the firmness of the cash position. May opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 25⅝@25¾c and ruled steady. Receipts were 145 cars.

Provisions were irregular and dull. There was a small demand for lard and ribs, while pork was neglected. July pork opened 2½@10c lower at $14.22½@14.30; July lard 2½@5c down at $7.95@7.97½, selling to $8.00, and July ribs 2½c higher at $7.92½c, selling at $7.87½.

Close: Wheat, April, 70¾c; May, 71@71⅛c; July, 71⅜@71½c. Corn, April, 43⅝c; May, 43⅞@44c; July, 43¾c. Oats, April, 25½c; May, 25¾c; July, 25c. Pork, April, $14.10; July, $14.25½. Lard, April, $8.12½; May, $8.15; July, $7.97½. September, $7.85@7.87½. Ribs, April, $8.10; May, $8.10; July, $7.95; September, $7.82½@7.85. Flax, cash Northwestern, $1.33½; No. 1, $1.33; May, $1.09; September, $1.22; October, $1.22. Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 72@73c; No. 3 red, 70@72c; No. 2 hard winter, 71@73c; No. 3 hard winter, 71@73c; No. 1 northern spring, 72@73c; No. 2 northern spring, 72@73c; No. 3 spring, 68@72c. Corn, No. 2, 44c; No. 3, 43½c. Oats, No. 2, 27@27½c; No. 3, 26¾c. Rye, April, 50½c; May, 50@50¼c. Barley, cash, 38@58. Timothy, April, $2.80; September, $3.20. Clover, April, $10.75.

WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, April 18.—The wheat market has been very erratic showing at times pronounced strength advancing ¾c over yesterday, but lost nearly all of this by the close. Large buying by a professional short inspired the smaller fry to do the same thing and found the market bare of offerings. There was also strong cash bids reported and the loads at New York said to be for Germany. There was considerable damage talk from the Southwest. Primary receipts were again heard of last year. Price Current says wheat conditions maintained. The strength of the cash situation is now attracting attention with possible damage and is really the potent factor at the present time. The British government has decided not to tax grain, the fear of which has inspired for some time past very liberal buying from that side. It is possible this may turn about as a bear argument in view of over purchasing. The situation affords better scalping opportunities than any one-sided action on either side. Short sales on bulges with profits taken on breaks will make money and it looks as though there would be selling enough on the market is growing in breadth and at this time of the year with so many bull arguments to bear upon it, it is advisable to take profits on all breaks.

The corn market was firm early, but sold off later. Chief support came as usual from Phillips, but as he is credited with being on both sides, it is difficult to determine just what his operations are. There has been a better cash demand reported; 40 loads at New York, and a good inquiry from local people. The market is bare of special features, but gets good support on breaks, although there is a marked tendency to take profits on rallies, by the outside longs.

The oats market has been active. The provision men and Phillips bought. July was ½c discount. There is continued talk of bad spring weather in Nebraska and Price Current claims that the acreage will be reduced. New York exports 30,000 bus. Local sales, 50,000 bus.

The provision market continues to be dull and without leading feature; hogs are 2½@5c lower. Shipments of product light. Cash demand slow, speculation very slow. It is expected that hog receipts will increase from now on. Hogs West 61,000, against 69,000 last week.

HEAVY GALES

Do Great Damage to Property In Southern Cities.

Chattanooga, April 18.—This section was swept by a terrific gale early today. Much damage was done to property, but no lives were lost. Two churches in the suburbs were completely wrecked. The Richmond Spinning mill was unroofed, the Vance cotton mills were damaged. Congressman Moon's house was unroofed, Lookout inn partly unroofed, and much damage done to railroad and telegraph wires.

New Orleans, April 18.—A heavy wind and rain storm prevailed here during the night. Telegraph service was crippled for a time. No lives were lost.

Selma, April 18.—A terrific wind and rain storm early today damaged the electric light plant and several other buildings. Several great oaks were uprooted in the heart of the city. A freight train on the Mobile & Birmingham road was caught in the storm near Jackson and wrecked. Engineer Wood was killed and a brakeman was badly hurt.

Bridgeport, Ala., April 18.—Every factory here was compelled to close for repairs on account of the storm. Three were completely unroofed. The steamboat City of Charleston was sunk at her dock. No lives were lost.

Montgomery, Ala., April 18.—In the heavy storm which prevailed here early today communication with Northern Alabama was suspended for hours, and much minor property damage occurred. No loss of life is reported.

STILL PROBING.

But MacArthur Says Frauds Were Exaggerated.

Washington, April 18.—A dispatch was received at the war department today from Gen. MacArthur, in Manilla. Only announcements relating to transports were made public, but it is understood that the dispatch also referred to frauds in the subsistence department, and insisted that there had been considerable exaggeration, and that the authorities were now engaged in probing the matter to the bottom.

ADVANCE IN STEEL

United States Common Stock Goes Up a Few Points.

Bears Hammered Sugar and Railroads Were Under Pressure.

Break In Sugar Unsettled Market and Close Irregular.

New York, April 18.—There were some wide changes both ways amongst the industrials at the opening but the railroad departments was rather quiet and irregular, changes were restricted to fractions. United States Steel preferred, Sugar, People's Gas and Smelting rose from ¾ to 1¾. New York Air Brake jumped 3 points. Amalgamated Copper was sold down from 124 to 123½, compared with 124¼ last night and Consolidated Gas and Anaconda lost over a point each. Dealings were not on as large a scale as during the recent days. There was, however, a large demand for Union Pacific, at an advance of nearly a point.

Prices were inclined to drop after the opening and some stocks suffered to the extent of a point before the movement was arrested by a rapid rise of 3¾ in Kansas & Texas preferred. Other Southwesterns became stronger and there was a sharp rally in the grangers, Atchison and Union Pacific. The Vanderbilt stocks were also in good demand. The gains in the stocks indicated were from 1 to 2 points. The market smelling improved further, the common selling at 65¼. Liquidation in Amalgamated Copper forced it down 1 point with a favorable rally of over a point and profit taking in Kansas & Texas preferred depressed it 2¾. The general market became very uncertain, Sugar and some of the low priced railroads weakening while United States Steel crossed 47. The high priced railroad stocks were again before 11 o'clock.

A falling off in demand for stocks aroused some uneasiness among the bulls and they took profits on earlier purchases. Bear traders also hammered Sugar down to 145¾ and the lack of support for Amalgamated Copper induced short selling of the active list. New York Air Brake fluctuated widely and at one time was 9 points above yesterday's close. Large purchases of the New York utilities, brought the group into prominence before midday at advances of 1¾ to 4. Metropolitan leading. People's Gas rose 1¾. Railroad stocks, however, continued under pressure. Bonds were quiet and irregular.

There were new points of strength late in the day. The Erie rose 1¼@1⅛. Illinois Central, 2¾; New York, Chicago & St. Louis, 1¾, and Colorado Fuel pfd., 3. United States Express gained 8¾ on the admission to the directory of officials of other express companies, and American Express, 1½. A break to near 147 in Sugar insulated the market and there were reactions of a point or more, notably in the grangers. A recovery to last night's level in Amalgamated Copper engendered a conflict between the bulls and bears and made the market very irregular. The closing was active and irregular.

FOR STOCK INVESTORS.

New York to Rupley—People who got frightened out of their long stocks yesterday on strike news and other Tommy rot rumors will feel sorry inside of twenty-four hours, judging from what we get from inside sources. There was quite a line of stocks, said to be another heavy load which the pool and insiders are carrying. It is very evident the big deal is not over.

• • •

New York to Edwards, Wood & Co.—It has been unofficially stated that the terms agreed upon at the last moment for the exchange of Burlington are $200 in 4 per cent bonds. The offer of 225 in 2½ per cent bonds having been refused by some important interests. It is understood the Burlington directorate will be reorganized in a few days by the election of Great Northern and Northern Pacific representatives, but that President Harris and the executive staff will be retained.

• • •

New York to Baker—The Commercial says that blocks of Atchison of between 160,000 and 200,000 shares have been acquired by Pennsylvania interests, which will secure very strong representation on the Atchison board at an early date. It says further that the Atchison deal is being engineered by E. R. Berwind. The latest report in regard to Burlington, which comes from well authenticated sources, is that Chicago, Burlington & Quincy stock will be given new Northern Pacific B 4 per cent bonds on the basis of 100 shares of Burlington for $20,000 of bonds.

• • •

Joseph's gossip—The large increase in the uptown of New York, the growth of business in the down sections, the coming use of electricity as a motive power and the certainty of reduced expenses are all factors of actual and increasing importance in estimating the future of the Manhattan Railway company and the value of the stock. Business depression and surface car competition played a good deal of havoc with the earnings of the L roads, losses in which have not yet been fully recovered. What the effect of the installation of electric motive power will mean for Manhattan can only be conjectured at the present time. It must mean not only increased patronage but an enormous gains in earnings through economies made possibl in the force necessary to operate trains on the system under present arrangements.

• • •

New York to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The buying of Atchison is on tremendous scale. Orders coming in from all points of the country and are of bullish proportions as a rule. The demand is based on the well grounded and apparently well founded belief that there will be a dividend on the common at the rate of 4 per cent.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 18.—Cotton opened steady 1 to 3 points higher on firmer English cables than expected, bad weather reports from the Central and Western belt and fresh visions of manipulation in July. Following the call buying became general and caused May to advance to 8.15 and July to 8.10 after which there was a reaction of 4 to 6 points under profit taking. Cotton spot closed quiet. 1-16 higher; middling uplands, 8⅝; middling gulf, 8⅝; sales, 102 bales. Cotton futures closed quiet. MAIN ISSUE

Is the Same, Says Ex-Senator Towne at Kansas City.

Kansas City, April 18.—Ex-Senator Charles A. Towne of Minnesota, who came here to attend the wedding of his friend, James R. Bennett, Jr., of St. Cloud, Minn., to Miss Rosalie O. Flournoy, of this city, will make an address on Saturday night at the state university, Columbia, Mo., on the subject, "American Liberty and Its Perpetuation." Mr. Towne was interviewed by a Star reporter. He was asked what he considered the present political issues.

"Of course," he said, "we are in the interim now between conventions and between campaigns, but the main issue remains the same. It is the growth of power in the hands of the few and the loss of it by the many. This condition is shown in the industrial world by the growth of the trusts. In the national life it is shown by the domination over weaker nations. The disposition of McKinley to get the United States into foreign broils gives thinking Republicans the gravest disquietude. It is simply a reversion to a worn-out type of national life. These Republicans, I believe, can be relied upon on the occasion to help the opposition to the party which pursues this policy.

"But we cannot overthrow the Republican party as long as favorable industrial conditions continue, although that party has not been responsible for these conditions and can lay no claim to bringing them about. There is a certain acceleration and stimulation due to combinations, and there is always reaction after stimulation."

Mr. Towne has been one of the closest friends and advisers of W. J. Bryan, and the Minnesota man was asked what he thought of the political status of Bryan.

"Mr. Bryan," he said, "is a statesman and a sincere patriot. Whether or not he ever becomes president, he will always be honored by the American people."

It depends upon conditions which cannot be foretold now, Mr. Towne says, whether the Nebraska orator will ever again become a candidate for the presidency.

RIPLEY CASE.

Judge Cantrill Instructs the Jury as to Their Duty.

Frankfort, Ky., April 18.—Judge Cantrill delivered his instructions to the jury in the case of Capt. Garnett Ripley, whose trial for alleged complicity in the Goebel shooting has just been concluded. Judge Cantrill's instructions were practically the same as those given in the case of Caleb Powers, and in substance held that the defendant must be found guilty of the charge of conspiring with Taylor and others to cause Goebel's death, as alleged, if it has been proved to the satisfaction of the jury, and that if the jury believes from the evidence, to a reasonable doubt, that the defendant and others conspired to commit an unlawful act and that, in consequence of that fact, Goebel was murdered, he is still guilty of murder, though the killing of Goebel might not have been the original of the conspiracy.

P. W. Major then delivered his closing argument as counsel for the defense.

HILL IS ANNOYED

Says Many Erroneous Statements About Mergers Have Appeared.

Burlington Deal Has Not Been Consummated as Yet.

Many of So-Called Reports Are Merely Guess Work.

Seattle, April 18.—President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern railroad was in this city today on a pleasure tour with a party of friends. Asked if he had anything to say touching the reported merging of various railway corporations in which he is interested into a great syndicate, President Hill said: "I have read the various statements published, and where there is one clean statement of facts there are about a dozen of an erroneous character.

"It is true that several large railroad corporations are endeavoring to make closer traffic arrangements, and that such arrangements involve the Burlington, but up to the present time there has been nothing consummated upon which to base correct statements."

It was apparent that President Hill was greatly annoyed by the coupling of many railroads other than those with which he has been dealing, and he did not hesitate to say that interviews purporting to have been given out by the heads of such railroads were merely "guess work," and contained little truth.

Mr. Hill left Seattle for St. Paul at noon.

TO THE PRESIDENT.

Gen. Pearson Appeals Mule Case to Executive.

New Orleans, April 18.—Gen. Pearson, the Boer officer who was refused a writ of injunction by the United States circuit court against the local British officers, by which he sought to prevent the further exportation of mules from that port to South Africa, sent a petition directly to President McKinley asking for the relief the courts refused. In the recent decision Judge Parlange

EXPLODED.

Collapse of Boiler on Fraser River Steamer Killed Four.

Vancouver, B. C., April 18.—Four people are dead and seven probably fatally injured as the result of an explosion which took place yesterday afternoon on the steamer Ramona, which plys on the Fraser river. One of the plates in the rear of the boiler blew out, tearing away the whole front of the vessel and knocking into the water all those in that part of the steamer. The accident happened shortly after 2 o'clock, when the boat was in midstream opposite Fort Langley, thirty miles from Vancouver. Two women, Mrs. Harry Morrison, of Langley, and Mrs. J. Bailey, of Mount Lehman, were standing on the front deck and were knocked into the water and drowned. Two deck hands named James Mack and Andrew Phipps were struck by one of the flying boiler plates and were instantly killed, being so horribly burned by the escaping steam as to be unrecognizable. A. Power, the purser; J. Maynard, mate, and Victor Nowell, the fireman, who had gone on that day for the first time, were burned so badly that they cannot possibly recover. Four Indians were dreadfully scalded and only one of these is expected to recover. One Indian baby is at the point of death. Capt. Seymour and John Oliver, the engineer, who owner the larger interest in the vessel, were unhurt. Both Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Bailey had left their babies upstairs in the saloon and had come on deck for fresh air. The babies were unhurt. The injured people were brought to Westminster. Power, the purser, has gone insane, and the others are in so bad condition that no hope is held out for their recovery.

CASS LAKE BALL TEAM.

Good Material Being Secured By Manager Pitman.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. C. Pitman, manager of the local baseball team, is rustling these days, and is getting together some very good material to form the team which will represent Cass Lake on the diamond this season. He says that of last year's champions he has already secured Lambert, Roy, the Houle brothers, Mike and Alexander, and Sheehy. In addition to these players, Umland, formerly with Fosston; Phillips, of Duluth; Douglass and LaChapelle, of Thief River Falls, and Erickson, of Rushville, will in all probability wear Cass Lake uniforms during the coming summer. Mr. Pitman will rearrange the ball grounds, enlarge the grand stand and make other improvements at the park which will make it one of the best in this part of the state. Correspondence has been had with Ed Jess, the old Crookston pitcher, who will manage the Bemidji team, and also with Ernie Kent, manager of the Grand Forks nine, and it is more than likely that both of these teams will play several games here during the season. Fosston is also organizing a strong team, as are Park Rapids and Akely.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

James J. Hill passed through Spokane Wednesday afternoon. When asked as to the truth of reports that he has secured control of the Burlington road, he replied: "I do not want to say anything about that. You will have to get that from the other end."

An unfortunate accident occurred in the first race at Aqueduct Wednesday. Osman Digna fell on the far turn, throwing Jockie Wilkerson heavily and the boy is thought to be mortally hurt. His arm was broken and a hasty diagnosis at the track indicated that his skull was fractured, as partial paralysis set in.

Benjamin Sandon was instantly killed at Apolina Wednesday while thawing frozen dynamite. The explosion also injured Thomas Moore and George Bates, the former probably fatally. Sandon's body was thrown 100 feet into the river and was terribly mutilated. All the men are residents of Apolina.

Four people were run down by the Missouri, Kansas & Texas flyer at a crossing eight miles north of Vinita, I. T., last night. They have been identified as John Wilson, Mrs. Ollie Wilson, their infant son and "Slim Jim," an Indian, the driver. Wilson and the boy were killed and Mrs. Wilson and the Indian were fatally injured. The party were en route to Baxter Springs, in a covered wagon.

The detective bureau of New York says that John D. Hart, now in the Tombs awaiting trial on the charge of blackmail, has been identified by City Marshal Kendall of Chicopee, Mass., as J. Edwin Stoddard, a forger of national reputation, and that he has operated under the aliases of John Ward, John S. Wolf, Frank Hamilton and Thomas Allen.

SMALLPOX.

A Scare on the Border Between Minnesota and South Dakota.

Browns Valley, Minn., April 18.—An interstate warfare growing out of smallpox conditions at Sisseton, S. D., is on at this point. More than 100 cases of the disease exist at Sisseton, and Browns Valley forbids persons from there, who have been exposed, from entering this village. This eraged Sisseton authorities, and under pretense of having quarantined Roberts county, they placed armed guards on the state line one half a mile from Browns Valley, who forbid farmers from any section to come across. Many of the farmers have broken the guard line by running their horses, while some have been arrested and handcuffed and taken into Sisseton, fourteen miles distant.

There is great excitement over the affair and unless the state authorities of the two states take a hand and bring about an adjustment of the matter there will undoubtedly be serious trouble. There is no smallpox in Browns Valley and none in the farming territory on the Dakota side, and farmers protest in bitter terms from being held up and maltreated on the public highways. The roads leading into Browns Valley is the portion of Roberts county that is quarantined.

St. Paul, April 18.—Smallpox at the Sisseton Indian agency in South Dakota has spread to Minnesota and 100 cases are under quarantine at Browns Valley. Governor Van Sant received a telegram today signed "S. Y. Gordon and others," asking that the state take steps to prevent further spread of the disease. Dr. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, was shown the telegram and wired the authorities at Washington immediately, requesting them to act and control the disease at the agency.

Until a reply is received from Washington the state will be unable to do more than quarantine the cases east of the South Dakota line. The authorities of that state have no powers at the agency and will be practically helpless until the government enforces a rigid quarantine of all suspects.

Reports have been received during the past few days of smallpox at Warren, Minn., and other points. Secretary Bracken left for Duluth stating that in all probability he would proceed to Warren today, and possibly to the Sisseton agency, to secure the co-operation of the agency authorities.

HURRICANES

Have Done Great Amount of Damage at Antipodes.

Victoria, B. C., April 18.—The steamer Aorangi has arrived from the Antipodes with a large number of passengers.

News was received by her from New Zealand of a new socialistic scheme there. Premier Seddon gives notice that he will ask the government of the colony to start a national coal mine to supply the government owned railways and private consumers and keep down prices.

From the Fiji group news is given of a serious hurricane which involved the loss of property and shipping valued at over one million at Levuka and heavy damage elsewhere. Seven lies were lost at Levuka and from other parts of the group loss of life was reported. Ten coasting vessels which were blown ashore by this hurricane, which was on March 13 and 14, were lifted bodily onto the mains running along the water front. New Hebrides was visited by a hurricane and tidal wave shortly before, and the Fiji group and Bromanga especially suffered.

ROSECRANS ARRIVES.

San Francisco, April 18.—The transport Rosecrans has arrived from Manilla with a portion of the Thirty-fifth regiment. She will be held at quarantine for inspection.

LARGER DEMAND

New Contracts Call For Large Amount of Iron and Steel.

Low Prices of Ore Cause Comment In Iron Trade.

Proof That Standard Oil Principles Will Guide Trust.

New York, April 18.—The Iron Age today says: By many in the iron trade the announcement of the low prices for ore is now interpreted as proof of the fact that Standard Oil principles are to guide the management of the United States Steel corporation. As one of the brightest sale managers of one constituent concern put it, these principles may be summarized briefly: "Better service, improved quality and lower prices."

This, so far as the last named are concerned, would be breaking with the traditions of quite a number of leaders in the iron industry who have believed in making the best of the opportunity of the moment. A flurry has been created by the threat of the Amalgamated association to force a fight on the recognition of the union in the sheet mills. It is pretty certain, however, that the meeting would be adjusted. The markets continue strong, but as is natural, have quieted down somewhat in pig iron after the long period of activity. Reports of large sales of Bessemer pig in the Central West are untrue, but, on the other hand, there does not appear any foundation for the reports of weakness as the result of the lowering of the price of lake ores. The steel market is rather dull, chiefly because, while the demand is restricted, the supply is even narrower and premiums are still paid for prompt delivery. In all branches of the finished trade, the rush of heavy orders continue, and there is evidence that a good deal of new work is being taken. The steel rail makers report somewhat of a revival in orders. In the East about 65,000 tons were placed, while a Western estimate is fully 100,000 tons for the whole country.

In other directions, too, there is a somewhat larger demand. Some good blocks of railroad bridge work have been recently taken, including orders for the Mexican Central, the Nickel Plate and for the Pennsylvania railroad. The American Bridge company has also taken an order for 5000 tons of bridge work for Cuba. The activity in building large structures in the leading cities and in manufacturing buildings continues unabated and in the aggregate the tonnage is very large.

From Chicago comes the report of some very large sales of bars to the manufacturers of agricultural implements for forward delivery, the quantity involved being 50,000 tons. The smaller concerns are expected to follow and swell the total. As an indication of the condition of affairs in the plate trade, the fact is noted that the Chicago mills are delivering along the Atlantic coast and in New England.

NOTED MAN DEAD.

Professor Richard Rothwell Expired at New York.

New York, April 18.—Richard Pennfeather Rothwell is dead from cancer of the stomach, at his home in this city. As a mining engineer of distinction in his profession, and as a journalist few men in his generation have equalled Mr. Rothwell's services in the cause of industrial science. He was born at Ingersoll, Canada, May 1, 1857.

In the field of manufacturing, of mining and in the treatment of ores, Mr. Rothwell made many notable inventions.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Chicago Man Kills French Woman and Himself.

Paris, April 18.—Madame Lascher Englander, an English woman, living at Passy, has been murdered by Fedinand Ernst because she refused to marry him. Ernst, who was born in Chicago, and who is said to be director of the Manchester house and a British subject, then shot himself. All of the parties were socially prominent. The man was of independent means. The man, who died in a hospital, left a letter requesting that his body be cremated. He already had made arrangements for the funeral of his victim.

FROM KITCHENER.

One Sided Report From South Africa.

London, April 18.—A dispatch from Gen. Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Wednesday, April 17, says:

Plumer has occupied Bathfont, capturing thirteen prisoners and a number of rifles and ammunition.

Douglass' column has occupied Dullstroom. Six Boers were killed.

On Gen. Kitchener's advance from Lydberg, the Boers blew up a long Tom. Thirteen prisoners were captured.

Elliott's division has brought in a large number of cattle.

MACEDONIAN CONGRESS.

Sofia, April 18.—The Macedonian congress met yesterday to elect officers. The credentials committee is now sitting. The indications are that the Pacific element predominates in the congress.

DOES NOT DISAPPOINT.

The New Discovery For Catarrh Seems to Possess Remarkable Merit.

A new catarrh cure has recently appeared which so far as tested has been remarkably successful in curing all forms of catarrh, whether in the head, throat, bronchial tubes, or in stomach and liver.

The remedy is in tablet form, pleasant and convenient to take and no special secrecy is maintained as to what it contains, the tablet being a scientific combination of Gualacol, Eucalyptol, Sanguinaria, Hydrastin and similar valuable and harmless antiseptics.

The safe and effective catarrh cure may be found at any drug store under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

Whether the catarrh is located in the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or stomach, the tablets seem to act with equal success, removing the stuffy feeling in head and nose, clearing the mucous membrane of throat and trachea from catarrhal secretions, which cause the tickling, coughing, hawking and gagging so annoying to every catarrh sufferer.

Nasal catarrh generally leads to ulceration in some cases to such an extent as to destroy the nose entirely and in many old cases of catarrh the bones of the head become diseased. Nasal catarrh gradually extends to the throat and bronchial tubes and very often to the stomach, causing that very obstinate trouble, catarrh of the stomach.

Catarrh is a systemic poison, inherent in the blood, and local washes, douches, salves, inhalers and sprays can have no effect on the real cause of the disease. An internal remedy which acts upon the blood is the only rational treatment and Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is the safest of all internal remedies, as well as the most convenient and satisfactory from a medical standpoint.

Dr. Eaton recently stated that he had successfully used Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in old chronic cases, even where ulceration had extended so far as to destroy the septum of the nose. He says: "I am pleasantly surprised almost every day by the excellent results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. It is remarkable how effectually they remove the excessive secretion and bring about a healthy condition of the mucous membranes of the nose, throat and stomach."

All druggists sell complete treatment of the tablets at 50 cents and a little book giving the symptoms and causes of the various forms of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart company, Marshall, Mich.

THE DAKOTAS.

Free Excursions to the Farmers Will Be Continued.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—President Worst, of the North Dakota agricultural college, has returned from a trip to St. Paul, where he interviewed the Great Northern officials about continuing the free excursions to farmers from every county along the Great Northern lines to the college this summer. These excursions have been the vogue for two years, and the farmers are delighted with them. They occur during July, when the results of the experiments are evident and have resulted in great advantage. President Hill furnishes transportation to fifty farmers of each county, and it is generally endeavored to have a new party each year. Efforts will be made to get the other roads to be as liberal.

Mr. and Mrs. Crenshaw have been entertained by numerous friends since the announcement of Mr. Crenshaw's promotion at Standard Oil manager from Fargo to Kansas City. Mr. Crenshaw leaves Thursday for Kansas City. He will be succeeded here by W. W. Nicholas, one of the oldest oil traveling men out of Minneapolis.

The Methodists have full control of Fargo for the rest of the week. The examination of the candidates was completed Tuesday afternoon and all the ministers assigned to the homes of members of the church. Wednesday morning Bishop Walden called the first session of the sixteenth annual conference to order. The preliminary work was concluded, and many reports received.

Grafton—D. C. Moore, cashier of the Grafton National bank, had a strange experience. He was returning home about 4 p. m. and, as he approaches his residence, stopped to scrape the mud from his shoes. While so doing, he placed one hand against an electric light pole and with the other grasped a guy wire. He received a severe electric shock and found himself unable to let go. Neither was he able to speak, but finally his knees gave way and he sank to the ground. In this way the circuit through his body was broken and he soon recovered.

Lidgerwood—The Mevius State bank has been merged into the First National bank, with a capital of $50,000

Special election will be held May 4 to vote on the question of changing the village form of government to a city.

Reynolds—Mrs. K. O. Rauf, who died recently, was the mother of a remarkable family. She had four sons and they ranged in height from 6 feet to 6 feet 6 inches, and in weight from 200 pounds to nearly 600. The aggregate weight of the four boys was a little short of 1400 pounds.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Miller—Hattie E. Meredith was granted a divorce from her husband, Thomas E. Meredith, on a cross-bill. The latter is a Christian minister, evangelist and professional church singer, well known in South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa.

Deadwood—It is likely that the company getting the franchise for putting in the electric railway at Lawrence county will be required to put up a forfeit of $25,000 to show good faith. No action has been taken yet by either the councils of Lead, Deadwood or Spearfish, or the county commissioners. It is probable the Leavenworth and Kansas City company will have a good show for getting the franchise.

Woonsocket—Four men at work on the building which is being constructed for a pesthouse were precipitated to the ground, a distance of some ten feet, by the breaking of the scaffold on which they were standing. The only one seriously injured was Elmer E. Hice, whose left side was penetrated by a projecting nail in the scaffold.

Clarence H. Van Tassel had examination in bankruptcy Wednesday. Some secured claims will get a dividend, but there will be nothing for the others. Mr. Van Tassel was at one time a deputy United States revenue collector for South Dakota.

An Indian named John Harrison had a fight here with Dell Hamilton, alias "Curly." The Indian was an easy winner, although Hamilton was an expert boxer and all-round athlete. Both were arrested but Hamilton broke away from the officer and escaped.

Sioux Falls—Levi Clark, the alleged counterfeiter, who was arrested Sunday night by Sheriff Huston and Jerry Carleton, deputy United States marshal, has been recognized as an old offender by Frank Wade. For several years Wade was the chief deputy United States marshal for South Dakota. The prisoner was instantly recognized by Wade as one of the two men who were arrested by the federal authorities in the fall of 1894 for counterfeiting. Clark also recognized the ex-deputy.

It is learned from a reliable source that S. E. Young, ex-speaker of the lower house of the state legislature, has been slated for appointment as superintendent of the state reform school at Plankinton. There has been much speculation throughout the state as to who would capture the prize.

AWAIT THE BUDGET

All England Is Anxiously Expecting Hicks-Beach's Estimates.

The Speculators Are Working Entirely In the Dark.

So Closely Has Sir Michael Kept the Secrets Guarded.

New York, April 18.—Ministers and members of parliament are already gathering for the budget speech today, says the Tribune's London correspondent. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach is revising his estimates and putting the finishing touches on the budget. Lord Lansdowne has returned and there will be a full attendance at the cabinet meeting tomorrow. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach has kept his official secrets so closely that the budget speculators are working in the dark. Export duties on coal, increased duties on tea, tobacco and spirits, the inclusion of sugar in the schedules, indirect taxation and increased taxation of incomes are predicted on the eve of the resumption of the session; but there is no authoritative information, and some of these guesses will prove incorrect, for the chancellor of the exchequer is certain to find it more comfortable to borrow money liberally than overwhelm the country with fresh taxation, when the end of the war is in sight. Uncertainty prevails in the Welsh and Lancashire coal districts, and the Liverpool sugar market and commercial circles generally. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach will be faced with a united Liberal front bench, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman having returned in improved health and Sir William Vernon Harcourt being in fine fighting form.

Much depends upon the reception of the budget speech by the country. The promotion of Mr. Chamberlain to the leadership of the commons, and the elevation of Mr. Balfour to the peerage, will be hastened if the budget proves highly unsatisfactory to the nation.

IN MICHIGAN.

Co-Operative Company Absorbs the Bessemer Stove Company.

Bessemer—The Co-operative Store company has purchased the stock of the Bessemer Store company, and will add a stock of meats and general provision. The company is incorporated for $25,000.

The Chicago and Northwestern company's pile driver is at work at the Anvil mine, rebuilding the high trestle that has not been used for some time.

Superintendent A. E. Stearns, who had charge of the city schools last year, will not continue the coming year. He has decided to take up school work in Lower Michigan. He has given good satisfaction and much improved the schools during his short stay here.

Tri-Mountain—The intake for the pumping plant at the Tri-Mountain mill will differ from those of the six pumping plants located on the shores of the great lake in this vicinity in that instead of tunneling out under the bottom of the lake in order to avoid trouble from anchor ice the Tri-Mountain will put a crib out 1400 feet from the shore and heavily anchor it in twenty-six feet of water. This will serve as the terminus for the intake pipe which will be forty inches in diameter, of iron, and will be laid out on the lake bottom. The crib will not only be fixed in place with a filling of heavy rock, but will also be fastened to the solid bottom by anchor bolts. Much of the timber for the crib, which will be 42x66 feet in size and 26 feet deep, is already on the ground and the task of framing the crib will soon be commenced.

Lake Linden—Lake Linden is again without a hotel on its principal street, Harry Lee having yesterday closed the doors of the New Linden, of which he has been proprietor since last fall.

Laurium—The State Savings bank of Laurium was given the entire issue of the $100,000 worth of bonds at a rate of interest of 5 per cent by the village council of Laurium. The village may draw the money as needed and interest will be paid only on the amount taken from the bank. A sinking fund will soon be established by the council in order to pay off Laurium's indebtedness.

It is announced that the complaints against the Laurium marshal and other members of the village police force, referred to in a previous issue, will be thoroughly investigated by President Hazen. If the accused are found to be fulfilling the duties of their offices as well as can be expected under existing circumstances, they will be completely exonerated of any and all charges brought against them. If found otherwise Mr. Hagen and the council will promptly dismiss the offenders.

Schlitz is Old Beer

The beer that causes biliousness is "green beer"—insufficiently aged. It is hurried from the brewery to the market before it is half fermented. Drink it and it ferments in your stomach, and the result is biliousness and headache.

Fermentation is expensive. It requires immense refrigerating rooms (ours hold 265,000 barrels) and an even temperature of 34 degrees. Fermentation is a process of months.

No green beer ever leaves the Schlitz brewery. If you wish to be certain of an aged beer, get Schlitz, the beer that made Milwaukee famous.

KAISER IS PLEASED

With the Dainty American Dishes For the Breakfast.

Imperial Chef Takes Instruction In Art of Preparing Them.

Emperor Especially Liked Buckwheat Cakes and Hominy Cakes.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—That good old American buckwheat cakes, with maple syrup, hominy pancakes and codfish cakes, can tickle an imperial palate is the latest discovery made by Emperor William II of Germany. By order of the emperor, the imperial chef, Voelkers, took passage on the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland, which landed in New York last Thursday, and for two days received instruction in the art of preparing American dishes. Under the tutelage of Emil Fahrenheim, chef of the big Hamburg-American liner, Herr Voelkers learned the most approved method of grilling steak and chops, preparing Welsh rarebit and golden buck, and especially oatmeal, hominy and other light dishes familiar to the American breakfast table.

Emperor William discovered the appetizing qualities of American cookery during a visit he paid to the new Hamburg-American yacht, Prinzessin Victoria Louise, on Jan. 3. The emperor left Berlin on a special train for Hamburg, accompanied by his staff, prominent military personages and members of the reichstag. Herr Voelkers invariably accompanies the emperor on his travels. He was in charge of the dining car of the train, but his services were not required on the yacht. In honor of the occasion, the officials of the steamship line had temporarily transferred the chef of the Deutschland to the Prinzessin Victoria Louise.

Herr Fahrenhein prepared an American breakfast for the emperor, who was so delighted with it that he remained for luncheon and dinner. After witnessing a performance at a Hamburg theater, the emperor returned to the yacht at 1 o'clock in the morning, and at a midnight lunch was regaled with a rarebit. Emperor William stayed over night on the yacht in order to enjoy another breakfast. On his return to Berlin the main topic of conversation in the imperial car was the excellence of the American cooking.

"The dishes are light and tasty," the emperor is reported to have said, "and yet rich. I intend to have my chef instructed in the art of preparing an American breakfast."

Emperor William mentioned the buckwheat cakes, the hominy cakes and other dishes as novelties which had proved palatable to him. From the steamship company the emperor obtained permission to have his chef take a course in cookery in the kitchen and grillroom of the Deutschland. Orders issued successively by the various officials of the Hofmarschllant finally reached the royal imperial chef, who, in accordance with the instructions, boarded the Deutschland when she sailed from Hamburg on about the first off April.

"He remained on board for two days," said Herr Fahrenheim. "I taught him how to prepare buckwheat cakes, hominy pancakes, fish cakes and, in fact, all the typically American dishes that we serve.

"Then we went up into the grillroom, where I showed him how to prepare the entire bill of fare. Herr Voelkers took notes as he went along, and when he left the steamship at Cherbourg I am certain that he was capable of pleasing the most fastidious American.

"Herr Voelkers is about 30 years old, and for three years has held the post of cook to the kaiser. He was formerly chef to the Herzog von Oldenberg. He is chef at the imperial palace at Berlin and always accompanies the emperor to Charlottenburg, Potsdam or wherever he may go. During the summer he is chef on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern."

Specific provision for the neutrality of the proposed isthmian canal will be made in the canal treaty to be signed by Secretary Hay and Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador. This decision has been arrived at by the president and Secretary Hay only after the most exhaustive consideration. The administration expects opposition in the senate to a provision of this character, but it hopes it will be lessened by the language which will be employed.

From the outset of the negotiations Great Britain has insisted upon the principle of neutrality. The best naval and military advice that the administration has been able to get has shown the necessity of neutralization, and the views of naval and military experts have been supported by opinions rendered by distinguished jurists. Treaties which exist between Nicaragua and Costa Rica and foreign states contain specific provisions regarding the neutrality of the canal, or according those states the most-favored-nation privileges.

Another and most important reason for the inclusion of a provision declaring the canal neutral is the attitude of Nicaragua and Costa Rica. It is understood these two republics have indicated plainly to this government their unwillingness to cede the right-of-way across their territory unless the principle of neutrality be absolutely conceded.

"Austria-Hungary shows considerable and growing interest in an American loom—the Northrop," writes Consul Mahin from Reichenberg, "which, with less manual aid, produces greater results in weaving than any previous device. So far as I am aware, the Northrop loom is not yet in operation anywhere in this country, but a start in that direction has been made. A joint stock company has been organized in Hungary for manufacturing the loom at Rosenburg, with arrangements for also furnishing the machine to Austria.

"A recent session of an industrial organization in Southern Austria listened to an address by a government official which has greatly stimulated and extended the interest felt in the Northrop invention, the address being widely published. The speaker emphasized the statement that while, under present methods, one weaver can attend to only four looms, the American invention enables one weaver to serve at the same time from ten to sixteen—even from twenty-four to thirty-two, and possibly still more—of the swiftest cotton looms. A weaving factory equipped with these machines, said the speaker, can double and triple its rate of wages, and sell better goods at the same price as that asked by factories using the old methods and yet continue to do a profitable business. The speaker then gave a detailed description of the Northrop loom, explaining its remarkable superiority over the old weaving machines."
